FOREWORD

To the Students of Boise Junior College:

We are entering another school year, one filled with apprehension as far as the international situation is concerned. It behooves each one of us, student and faculty member alike, to make superior use of this year. The Congress of the United States has made provisions in the Selective Service Act for each young man of this nation to continue for at least one year his educational training is his scholastic work is satisfactory.

It is my hope that each young man entering Boise Junior College in the fall of 1951 will appreciate that this educational opportunity is predicated on a service to the nation and will thus make outstanding efforts to use his time wisely and gain superior results.

The young women entering Boise Junior College have a like responsibility. While they are not subject to the Selective Service Act and its provisions, their responsibility for wise use of time is no less than that of the young man. Each young lady has a duty to the nation. This is no time for drones whether they be male or female. Let us, as students and faculty, work together to achieve these goals.

EUGENE B. CHAFFEE,
President.

INTRODUCTION TO THE HANDBOOK

As a student enters a college, whether a junior college or a university, there are always certain questions he asks: "What is the campus like?"; "Are my credits transferable?"; "What regulations are there?"; and many more.

This handbook has been printed to help answer the questions of new students concerning BJC.

This is the third edition of the handbook printed on this campus. There may still be omissions. If students have more questions whose answers they feel should be included in the handbook, give them to the Student Executive Board to be included in the next printing of the handbook. The handbook will then be of greater value to other students entering Boise Junior College and as a reference for the older students.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF BJC

Boise Junior College was organized in the spring of 1932 to answer the demand for higher education in Boise. During the first two years of operation, the Episcopal Church sponsored the college. Then in response to an appeal from the Right Reverend Middleton S. Barnwell, Bishop of Idaho and first president of the college, a group of public spirited citizens assumed the responsibility of directing the school. The result was a non-profit organization of Boise citizens interested in education. The Episcopal Church donated the buildings formerly housing a girls academy for the first Boise Junior College.

In the fall of 1939, Boise Junior College opened as a public institution. In February of 1939, an enabling act permitting the formation of junior college districts was passed by the legislature, and signed by the governor. The qualified school electors of a designated district voted by a large majority in favor of the establishment of Boise Junior College district.

HANDBOOK

A city bond election for funds to build a college plant was approved in the fall of 1939 by a 10-1 majority. The city of Boise donated the old municipal airport on the south bank of the Boise River for the new campus. By September, 1940, the administration building had been completed. During that school year a heating plant and a gymnasium were built, followed by the erection of the student union building financed by the student body and the board of trustees of the private Junior College, the assembly-music building, and a vocational shop. The Junior College city-county health unit building is also located on the campus.

From the army surplus buildings at Gowen Field, the college has been allotted a greenhouse for the use of the forestry and botany departments, and two buildings for the temporary science laboratories and other classrooms.

Construction of the Bronco Stadium was started in 1950 and on April 11, 1950, the voters in Boise Junior College District voted seven to one in favor of constructing the new dormitories on the campus.

BOISE JUNIOR COLLEGE

The dorms, one for men and one for women, will cost $250,000 each. Work was begun May, 1950.

THE CAMPUS

Boise Junior College is located between Capitol Boulevard on the west and Broadway on the east, on the south bank of the Boise River across from Julia Davis Park. The campus, spacious and beautifully situated, is near the business district where many students find part-time employment. In this central location, the campus is easily reached by bus, stage and train.

The administration building contains 22 classrooms, completely equipped laboratories, general administration offices, a library of approximately 12,000 volumes, and an educational film library.

The assembly hall seats 750 and provides a place for assemblies and social activities. It also houses the music department, with practice rooms and studios and musical instruments, including an electric organ.

A student union provides a place for the students' social activities. There are a large dining room, modern kitchen and fountain, ballroom and lounges. The student supply store is located on the balcony of the union building.

The gymnasium is equipped with dressing rooms and showers and facilities for indoor sports. Adjacent to the gym are the athletic fields and the concrete tennis courts.

The health clinic houses the offices of the college physician and nurses. Facilities of the building are available to the college for laboratory and class use. Students may go to the health clinic at any time for minor medical treatment.

Vocational classes are held in special shops on the campus. Radio classes are held in a special building equipped with a broadcasting studio and recording facilities.

Two temporary buildings house biological science labs and lecture rooms.

The two dormitories—one for men and one for women—occupied for the first time this fall, each accommodate 78 students in 48 single and 15 double rooms. These buildings incorporate all the modern features of dormitory living: pleasing furnishings, recreational facilities, ample storage space, enjoyable surroundings and adjacent dining facilities in the newly enlarged Student Union.

A beautiful parlor is the central feature of each building. In addition, each dormitory has a small living room and lavatory facilities for every eight occupants. Laundry privileges are available in each building.

The occupants of the dormitories will be invited to elect their representatives to the student executive board. While they will have no vote on this board, they will be expected to express the views of dormitory residents.

A House Committee to work with the Director of the Dormitories will be organized during the first week of the fall semester and will formulate a constitution. This group in conjunction with the Dean of Women and Dean of Men, will work out rules necessary to desirable communal living. A handbook will be issued to all dormitory residents setting forth the standards required.

THE PURPOSE OF BJC

The purpose of the junior college is to meet the needs of students who have graduated from high school and desire to continue their education with one of the following goals in view:

1. Those who plan to enter a senior college and desire courses of a general nature, university parallel or pre-professional courses.
2. Those who are interested in carrying their education a year or two beyond the high school level in preparation for immediate entrance into the general field of business and the professions.
3. Adults who wish to continue general or special education; when it is desirable night classes can be arranged for this group.

ACCREDITED STANDING

Boise Junior College has been since 1932 an active member of the American Association of Junior Colleges. It is a member of the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools, and is full accredited by that organization, by the State Board of Education, and the University of Idaho. Credits are accepted anywhere through the association.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

As any other college, BJC has its social life and the events which are held annually.

The big event of the first semester as with all schools, is Homecoming. It is generally held the last part of October or the first part of November. Homecoming is a two day event with a bonfire starting the activities the night before the game. Wood for the bonfire is gathered and guarded to prevent other schools from setting it off early.

The IK's sponsor a flaming B on the side of Tablerock which can be seen all over the Boise valley. The following day is the parade at noon and the afternoon Homecoming football game. In the evening is the formal ball during which the Homecoming Queen, chosen by the football team, is crowned.

Other dances in the winter semester are the IK ball and the Christmas vacation.

Second semester is the time for "Bach to Boogie," the annual college musical. Preparations for "Bach to Boogie" begin several months in advance and result in one of the most popular shows to be put on in Boise. In this show anything from long-hair to low-brow goes.

Dances during the second semester are the Sweetheart Ball in February, the Spring Formal and the Graduation Ball.

BOISE JUNIOR COLLEGE

The Spring Formal always brings out something new in dances for the year.

During the year there are two major dramatic productions. One in the first semester and one in the second semester. These productions are open to anyone who is interested and has the time to devote to the work.

The college choir presents an operetta during second semester.

There are so many more activities which will come up throughout the school year that there is enough space to mention but a few of the outstanding ones.

Before an organization makes plans for a dance, the Dean of Women must be contacted.

If a student is interested in participating in any activity, dance committee, or other appointed office, he should file his request in room 110.

HOW TO RUN FOR OFFICE

A student wishing to run for office must file a petition with at least 25 signatures of full time students with the election board. Obtain your blank in room 118.
