Get H.E.L.P. at Albertsons.

With today's rising costs, every budget needs what Albertsons has. H.E.L.P. At Albertsons, we've made it a point to offer you Hundreds of Everyday Low Prices down every aisle. On meats, produce, groceries, generic products and much, much more. Anytime you need our H.E.L.P. — you've got it.

Ore-Ida Foods, Inc., took root in the heart of potato country in 1951, producing a single product. Today, we have blossomed into the nation's largest diversified frozen food company, marketing more than 350 items, from potatoes to pizza, from cookies to calorie-controlled entrees, from beef to vegetables.

Ore-Ida's growth has been steady, nurtured by a reputation for quality and a commitment to keep pace with consumer needs.
Upheavals in the social order of things were not uncommon in Mozart's day. The Marriage of Figaro foretells of a greater upheaval in France that was to occur some three years after its premiere in Vienna in 1786. Himself a poor man, Mozart well understood the injustices of social discrimination. The idea of a lower class peasant (Figaro) rising to a higher station in life by virtue of his talent and wit was abhorrent to all upper class thinking of the period. Mozart and his librettist, Da Ponte, managed in their way to engrave their political philosophy into history's record. The genius of Mozart's opera is indisputable. It stands today as one of the oldest, if not the oldest, operatic works still popularly performed in the current repertory. Letters from Mozart to his father recounting the opera's success in Prague a year after the premiere indicate that "Figaro tunes were heard wherever he (Mozart) went . . ." They were the top numbers of the hit parade. And so it has been ever since.
ACT I.

As Figaro, former barber of Seville now in the service of Count Almaviva, and the Countess’ pretty maid Susanna prepare the room they will occupy after their impending marriage, Susanna warns Figaro that the Count has amorous designs on her. Figaro angrily vows to outwit Almaviva. When the room is empty, Dr. Bartolo, the Countess’ former guardian, enters with his aging housekeeper, Marcellina; still seeking revenge on the man who made him lose his ward to Almaviva, he persuades Marcellina to sue Figaro for breach of promise. Susanna returns and spars with Marcellina, who leaves in a huff. Soon the young page Cherubino comes to ask Susanna’s protection from the Count, who found him courting Barbarino, the gardener’s daughter. After confessing that he is “in love with love,” the boy hides as Almaviva arrives. The approach of the music master Don Basilio, however, causes the Count, too, to hide. At Basilio’s insinuations that Cherubino loves the Countess, the Count steps forth; reenacting how he found the page with Barbarina, he again discovers Cherubino. Amid the ensuing confusion Figaro leads in a group of peasants. They extol the benevolence of Almaviva, who drafts Cherubino into his regiment and departs with the others. Figaro teases Cherubino about army life.

ACT II.

In her boudoir the Countess laments her husband’s fading love. With Susanna and Figaro she plots to chasten him: Cherubino, disguised as Susanna, will meet with the Count, who will then be caught red-handed. Cherubino, who comes to bid the Countess farewell with a song in praise of love, is disguised by Susanna in girl’s clothes. Hearing her husband approach while the maid is out of the room, the Countess locks Cherubino in a closet; when the jealous Almaviva hears a noise inside, he leaves (with his wife) to secure tools to break the lock. Susanna, who has overheard, helps Cherubino escape through the window and takes his place, completely baffling the Count on his return. All seem relieved until the gardener Antonio enters to complain that someone has jumped into his flower bed. Unaware of what has happened, Figaro takes the blame, but the Count proves hard to convince. Marcellina, Bartolo, and Basilio burst in with a court summons for Figaro, to the delight of Almaviva.

ACT III.
In the palace audience room, Susanna promises the Count a rendezvous, but he suspects a ruse when he overhears her laughing with Figaro. Furious, he vows revenge. Marcellina arrives to demand that Figaro pay his debts or marry her at once but soon discovers he is her long-lost natural son, fathered by Bartolo. The Countess enters; alone onstage, she mourns her lost love. To further the conspiracy she dictates a note for Susanna to sign, inviting the Count to the garden. Peasant girls, among them the disguised Cherubino, now bring flowers to their lady. Just as the page is discovered by Almaviva, the wedding processions of Figaro and Susanna and of Bartolo and Marcellina advance. During the festivities, Susanna slips the note to the Count.

ACT IV.
In the moonlit garden Barbarina has lost the pin the Count has given her in reply to Susanna’s note. After she tells Figaro and Marcellina of the secret assignation, Figaro delivers a tirade against womankind and leaves. Susanna and the Countess appear, dressed in each other’s gowns; dropping her disguise for a moment, Susanna rhapsodizes on her love for Figaro, who, overhearing her, thinks she refers to the Count. Susanna hides. Next the Countess, protesting, is wooed by Cherubino, who mistakes her for Susanna. This angers the Count who chases the page away and sends the disguised Countess ahead to an arbor. He then disappears. By now Figaro has caught on and makes exaggerated love to Susanna, who, believing he loves the Countess, boxes his ears. But the couple is quickly reconciled, pretending when the Count returns that Figaro has won the Countess. Just as the outraged husband calls everyone to bear witness, the Countess reveals herself. Grasping the truth at last, Almaviva begs his wife’s pardon; all are happily united.
CAST
(in order of appearance)

FIGARO, Valet to the Count ........ Thaddeus Valdez, Bass-Baritone
SUSANNA, Maid to the ............... Carolyn Piccone,
   Countess and Figaro's Fiancée Soprano
BARTOLO, A Doctor, Attorney ...... Steven Johnson, Bass
MARCELLINA, Bartolo's ............. Machelle Aaron,
   Housekeeper Mezzo Soprano
CHERUBINO, Page to the Count ........ Tina Poole,
   Mezzo Soprano
COUNT ALMAVIVA ........ Keith Tackman, Baritone
DON BASILIO, A Music Teacher ...... Michael Stafki, Tenor
COUNTESS ALMAVIVA ....... Pam Piccard-Johnson,
   Soprano
ANTONIO, A Gardener ............... Todd Bedal, and Susanna's Uncle Baritone
DON CURZIO, A Notary ............. Ted Totorica, Tenor
BARBARINA, Antonio's ............ Jennifer Hubler,
   Daughter Soprano
DANCERS ................................ Bruce Carroll
   Laurie Carrol

PEASANTS
Paula Solee Greg Johns
Sarah Munroe Theron Brown
Maria Lewis Ted Totorica
Tami Eymann

TIME: Late 18th Century
PLACE: Castle of Count Almaviva,
       Outskirts of Seville, Spain
PRODUCTION STAFF

DIRECTOR ........................................... Victor Chacon
CONDUCTOR ............................... Michael L. Samball
RECITATIVES AND REHEARSAL
PIANIST ........................................... Anna Holly
TECHNICAL DIRECTOR
AND DESIGN ........................................ Dr. Steve Buss
LIGHTING .............................................
     Steve Frank &
     Cathy Robran
COSTUMES ........................................ Dr. Steve Buss &
     Cherry Bragg
HAIR DESIGN ........................................ Betty Sackett
MAKE UP .............................................. Carolyn Crooks
PROPERTIES .......................................... B.J. Jefferson &
     Paula Solee
STAGE MANAGER .............................. Roberta Henderson
CHOREOGRAPHY ............................... Bruce Carroll
PUBLICITY .......................................... Anne Howie
CAMPUS PUBLICITY ............................. Jocelyn Fenwick
PROGRAM COORDINATION ............ Thaddeus Valdez &
     Stephan Smith
GRAPHIC DESIGNER .......................... Stephan Smith

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Fritchman/Smith Graphic Design and Illustration, Dance Spectrum, Scott Beseman, Scrubby's, Boise Cascade, Sam and Ginger Norris, BSU Printing and Graphic Services, Dunkleys, Holsingers, Pam Abas

English Version By
Ruth and Thomas Martin
Fritchman/Smith
Graphic Design & Illustration

- Logos
- Illustration & Technical Drawing
- Print Advertising
- Charts & Graphs
- Posters

• Brochures & Booklets
• Architectural Rendering
• Publications
• Package Design
• Displays

Belgravia Building/439 Main St. Boise, Idaho 83702 336-5617

A FINE TRADITION OF BANKING EXCELLENCE FOR OVER 115 YEARS
AFFILIATE OF MOORE FINANCIAL GROUP

Smokehouse
SCRUBBY'S

8775 Fairview Ave.
Boise, Idaho 83704
375-8474
VIOLIN I
Julia Rice
Nicki Nine
Concertmaster
Juanita Osborn
Lisa Krahn
Cindy Rogers
Debbie Rae
Stefani McDonald
Natalie Faris
Diane Gibbs
Gina Mauer

VIOLIN II
Rob Kohler
Frank Outhet
Denise Wingett
Eva Fothergill
Alison Paige
Roberta Fothergill

VIOLA
Debbie Spieler
Kevin Howard

CELLO
Steve March
Tanya Murphy
Sheila Roche

BASS
Rae Ann Gustafson
Holly Hollenbeck

FLUTE
Cindy Barrie
Becky Eisenmann

OBOE
Forrest Hartvigson
Pat Marshall

CLARINET
Alan Anderson
Lena Clem

BASSOON
Jo Ann Lewis

HORN
Mark Morris
Cindy Scudder

TRUMPET
Andy Plamondon
Chris Colberg

---

ESTABLISHED 1985

It's all under one roof - Men's, Women's or Children's apparel, China, Housewares and Domestics. What could make shopping easier? How about FREE gift wrapping and delivery!

OPEN EVERY SUNDAY 12:00-5:00
Downtown - Corner 8th & Idaho

"flowers from our house . . .

. . . to yours"

house of flowers, Inc.
107 east Idaho
boise, idaho
83702
344-3591

john g. and karola
carpenter
ANECDOTES

From the memoirs of Mozart's sister (1800):

“In London where our father lay dangerously ill, we were forbidden to touch a piano. And so, in order to occupy himself, Mozart composed his first symphony (aged 8) for all the instruments of the orchestra — but especially for trumpets and kettledrums. I had to copy it out as I sat at his side. Whilst he composed and I copied he said to me: “Remind me to give the horn something worthwhile to do!”

From Doris Stock's memoirs (1871):

“. . . Mozart himself, during his short stay in Dresden was an almost daily visitor to the Korner's house. For the charming and witty Doris he was all aflame, and with his south German vivacity he paid her the highest compliments. He generally came shortly before dinner and, after he had poured out a stream of gallant phrases, he sat down to improvise at the piano-forte. In the next room the table was meanwhile being set and the soup dished up, and the servant announced that dinner was being served. But who could tear himself away when Mozart was improvising! The soup was allowed to grow cold and the roast to burn, simply so that we could continue to listen to the magic sounds which the master, completely absorbed in what he was doing and unaware of the rest of the world, conjured from the instrument. Yet one finally grew tired even of the highest pleasures when the stomach makes known its demands. After the soup had grown cold a few times while Mozart played, he was briefly taken to task. ‘Mozart,’ said Doris, gently laying her snow-white arm on his shoulder, ‘Mozart, we are going in to dine; do you want to eat with us?’ — ‘Your servant, Mademoiselle, I shall be with you in a moment.’ But it was precisely Mozart who never did come; he played on undisturbed. Thus we often had the rarest Mozartian musical accompaniment to our meal.

From William Jackson's memoirs (1882):

“An anecdote of him may be worth preserving. When he was a mere infant (I think under six years of age), he was exhibited as a great performer on the harpsichord, and an extraordinary genius for music. John Bach took the child between his knees and began a subject on the instrument, which he left, and Mozart continued — each led the other into very abstruse harmonies, and extraneous modulations, in which the child beat the man. We were afterwards looking over Bach’s famous song “Se spiego” in Zanaida. The score was inverted to Mozart, who was rolling on the table. He pointed out a note which he said was wrong. It was so, whether of the composer or copyist I cannot now recollect, But it was an instance of extraordinary discernment and readiness in a mere infant.”
“Developing International Markets For The Northwest’s Products”

Expand your firm into international markets without the financial risks and complications of starting your own export department. Our services include:

- market research for your products
- determining the best distribution channels
- product design, packaging, labeling for specific markets
- appointments of foreign representatives
- international trade show coordination
- financing, credit insurance, banking coordination
- shipping, documentation, customs declarations, licenses, and insurance
- mail, catalogue, and exhibition advertising

Call Us For Additional Information!

Delta Group is pleased to support the B.S.U. Music Department and its production of “The Marriage of Figaro”.

Delta Group, Inc. presents Business Computer seminars each semester through Boise State University’s Professional Development Program. Learn to evaluate and select the most effective system for your company or personal use. Contact Delta Group at 375-6060 or call the BSU School of Business Professional Development Program.

We also offer complete computer consulting services to area businesses.
First Security Bank of Idaho, N.A.