Funding for Investigate Boise is provided by the Center for Idaho History and Politics at Boise State University. As a teaching project beyond the traditional classroom, the series relies on the generous assistance of seasoned professionals who coach students through the writing process. Professor Todd Shallat organized the project, working closely with writing/research mentors John Bieter, John Ysursa and Dave Lachiondo from Boise State’s Basque Studies Program. Larry Burke served as managing editor and Basque Museum Executive Director Patty Miller provided invaluable assistance and advice. Carolyn Groom was student researcher and Allan Ansell was project photographer. A special thanks to graphic artist Adele Thomsen and proofreader Kelly Roberts.

Others who assisted in the project include: Carmen Achabal, Simon Achabal, Steve Achabal, Gerrit Achurra, Jesus Alcetay, Jill Aldape, Julana Aldape, Flora Ansotegui, Chris Ansotegui, Dan Ansotegui, Dorothy Ansotegui, Gina Ansotegui, Jose Luis Arrieta, Jose Mari Artiach, Cedy Beaudeau, Mayor David Bieter, Luisa Pagoaga Bilbao, Frieda Cenarrusa, Esther Ciganda, Danielle Day, Marie Jausoro Day, Dave and Jean Eiguren, Fr. Boise State University

Boise State University, with an enrollment of more than 21,000 students, is a progressive student-focused university dedicated to excellence in teaching, innovative research, leadership development and community service. Its students benefit from an emphasis on the undergraduate experience, including public affairs research as demonstrated by the student papers in this publication.

With record student enrollment, new academic buildings, additional degree programs and an expanding research portfolio, it is no coincidence that recently Boise State was ranked by U.S. News & World Report among the nation’s “top up-and-coming schools.” With Idaho’s fastest-growing research program, Boise State is in the midst of a transformation that builds on its traditional teaching strengths while expanding its capabilities in research and scholarly activity. This evolution reflects the integral role that Boise State plays in contributing to the quality of life in the Treasure Valley and beyond.
