Jordan Says NO to 'Tricky Dicky'

Senators, meeting in lame duck session, put the clamps on the Administration proposed Supersonic Transport project, a pet term of the President, that would cost the American taxpayer $270 billion. The GOP lost 12 of its backers when the vote came to bear. One of those votes came from Idaho.

Len Jordan argued that the S.S.T. would be just too expensive a piece of hardware. He also leveled a blast at the dangers the "monster" would bring to the environment. It's not the first Jordan has bolted the sacred White House block to vote on his convictions. The vote on Nixon's nominee to the Supreme Court, Clement Haynsworth, is another example of Jordan's conscience speaking out.

In the last two terms as a senator, Jordan has demonstrated his maturity as a representative for all Idaho. He is nobody's man but his own. No group controls his movements. His seat on the Senate ethics committee describes the courage of his convictions. In this age of fear and repression, it is uncommon to find such a representative in the "hallowed halls of our Congress." Len Jordan is such a man. He cares.

No Cop Hassles in Dillon?

We were reading the Boise State College ARBITER the other day, and came across an article which should be of interest to some of the students and staff at Western Montana College. The article is about the Boise Police Department having been guilty of harassing and threatening people in general, and students in particular. After reading said article, we gained some respect for the Dillon Police Department. The college students here are harassed very little when compared to those at Boise State. We suspect college students at Western must try harder to keep the peaceful coexistence in effect.

At a recent meeting of the Central Board of the Dean of Students mentioned the DPD might begin to look into some of our "unofficial, unofficial off-campus functions" if certain behaviors and actions are not terminated. They probably will not host a function unless they receive a complaint or unless they hear that laws are being grossly violated.

Stop and think. If you invite the selling ticket people or someone who is underaged, especially high school students, DPD will probably receive complaints. If functions get out of hand and personal property is destroyed or damaged, DPD will probably receive complaints.

We need these informal functions here at Western if we are to keep people on the weekends. There just aren't enough things to do otherwise. Let's let the local youth find their own entertainment and maintain our good relationship with the law-enforcement people.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The ARBITER

I am a mother of the girl who started on drugs when she was 14 years old.

She said no one really cared what she did and that she really felt that way. Maybe a better world would have been one that really understood, because I cared very much but I understood very little.

Yes, I was divorced and there were five younger children to care for. And I was the victim of my previous environment, too. My ignorance was a result of many things, some of which I had no control over.

No one can know the agony of seeing someone you love, someone who is potentially beautiful, bright person slowly destroying herself, while you stand helplessly by, trying to understand, but not being able to.

Since that time I have made a tremendous effort to learn, to understand, not only myself and my children, but many other problems in our society. I feel I am beginning to be successful when my daughter and I can communicate now and I have hope now that it will continue to improve.

I would like to say to her, and others like her, that there are a lot of us who care and care very deeply, but we need your help to help us understand. We are too close in some of these cases. The brainwashed, conditioned society and we want out of this trap as badly as you do.

So please don't shut us out. Let's work together and maybe we can help make the world better for everyone.

Does Boise State College have a parking problem? I don't think so. There is a lot of parking space on and around campus. The real problem is not inadequate parking, but the unwilling people who refuse to walk any distance at all to get to class.

Most colleges throughout the country would consider themselves lucky to have parking facilities as close as we do. Times are changing and Boise State College is growing. Everyone can't park at the front doors.

Sincerely,

One of the finest instructors I've ever had the privilege to be tutored by is Adam Trusky. To those who didn't stick it out, it's your loss.

If I would have failed, I still would have learned more than the average instructor could have imparted in twice the time. He is a true credit to his profession and deserves our thanks.

BSC Students - You're invited to the Inaugural Ball!

Jah and every BSC student has the unique opportunity to make her or his educational, political or social debut when BSC has the greatest happening since it became a four-year institution. On Jan. 4, 1973, BSC will be home host of the newly-elected state officials' Inaugural Ball.

Governor elect Cecil D. Andrus strongly feels that without students and college campuses, the state would have a limited future. The government is not an establishment just for the elite or the wealth of our state, but for all the people. Therefore he urges everyone to attend and join in the festivities of Inaugural Day, 1973 One of Andrus' greatest passions is to get young people to make Idaho the progressive state that it is, and this means all students.

Inaugural Day will begin at 8 a.m., with the welcoming ceremony of newly-elected officials. In years prior to 1969, the ceremony was conducted inside the Capitol and was only open to close friends and members of the elected officials. This year it will be held on the front steps of the Capitol Building and the public is urged to welcome the newly-elected officials.

The ceremonies will be coordinated by Maj. Gen. George B. Benford, adjutant general of Idaho.

The legislature and the House of Representatives will be sworn in as mass groups. Only the individual and outstanding efforts will be sworn in separately. After the oath, the 25th Band of Galchen will salute with mass speeches, which will be made and a cannon salute will be fired on the front lawn.

At 11 a.m., BSC students will have the opportunity to see the students that work at BSC's Debut when IISC have a heart felt belief of Governer elect Andrus, "Idaho for all the people. All the people for Idaho."

At the opposite end will be shadow boxes containing any letters from Idaho at the annual Idaho reunion, depicting scenes from our Gettysburg. The letters will be used for setting guests during the Grand March. The portion not in use will be draped with historical paintings of Idaho showing the progress made in the past 50 years. In use during this important event will be the valuable USS Boise and USN Idaho silver service, which consists of a huge silver punch bowl and images. Since the service is very valuable and can not be replaced, it will be carefully watched during use.

Throughout the evening service of several BSC clubs will be different entertainment. Doors for the occasion in years past has been formal. It has as also been referred to as black tie, where the men would wear tuxedos and the women wearing in suits or presentable school clothing. One will not be allowed admittance.

At 9 p.m. on the Grand March will begin at the second ball at Boise High School. Dance music will be provided by the Smith Foundation who are presently playing the Plaza Fun. The decor will vary. Guests will be expected to fill the capacity of both ballrooms and then some. Early in the year, long before campaigning began, Boise City's Greater Chamber of Commerce have been rounding up a non-partisan Inaugural Ball Committee. After preliminaries voting, the committee went into full swing head by Ralph J. Costner. Jr. It was the executive committee composed of Democritus Parti Chairman Joe students and Republican Chairwoman Roland Wilber and started on the lengthy, limited funded process of planning. Tickets for the event are $5 and will have two stubs, one for each ball. Tickets in recent years were higher as prices have been lowered to encourage college McAllister and others.

Among the committee we find BSC's Dr. Richard Ballington, in the action along with Dean William Hendry and others. Mr. Ballington is a member of the still existent Boise Junior College Board of Trustees, because of his bond indebtedness, the board still exists. Upon the retirement of the bonds, the board will be dissolved.

Idaho's greatest assets is higher education. It was just too important to be held in a commercial establishment," stated Roger R. McCann. president of the Boise Chamber of Commerce.

Another reason was for student participation. Due to some unknown element, participation of students in campus activities is almost nil. But now there is no excuse for not getting with it. There is a rare opportunity for students.

ATTENTION STUDENTS. WE ARE PLANNING TO HOST THE INAUGURAL BALL, HEAD ON JAN. 4, 1973. PARTICIPATION REFLECTS SCHOOL PRIDE IN OUR STATE. COME AND HELP GOVERNMENT SO LET'S GET BACK AND SHOW OUR SUPPORT THAT EDUCATION AND STUDENTS ARE A BIG ASSET IN OUR FUTURE PROGRESS AS A STATE AND NATION.

Library terms bomb threat a "hoax"

The Boise State College library was the object of what was termed a "hoax" bomb threat by a student in the parking lot Wednesday night.

Head librarian Ruth McElroy said a student in the periodical department answered a phone call and a female voice on the other end was said to have stated the word "bomb." She said the student may have been mistaken because he could not understand what sounded to his ear as "bomb" and then there was just a girl and the caller hung up.

Fernan Cameron, BSC student at McElroy, who is in turn BSC student Personnel Services William Hendry. He notified police and fire department officials who were dispatched to investigate. He ordered that the 35 to 40 students be evacuated from the building to protect their safety, the school's responsibility, according to Hendry. The Library was closed at 9 p.m. and investigators said the building was too large to cover to look for a possible bomb.

Boise State Social Chairman Ed Weber says his biggest gripe about entertainment on campus is support from the students. He says students want and expect big-name, high-powered groups, but they are just too expensive. He has a $20,000 budget to work with and it takes $15,000 to book a concert. Weber says he really tries to charge the season with a variety of different performers and that he feels one had shown up.

Communication seems to have faltered this semester along with partial blaring to an uninterested student Union building. Their point can be defended with admission of posters being used concert mentioned on campus and use of the efforts to point toward coming events.

The Social Committee wants to create a better and administration opinion to see why these concerts cannot be supplied and suggestions for improving the schedule.

The committee has a few questions to ask:

1. Would students attend concerts if they were moved to Friday and Saturday nights?
2. Would students stay on campus for events if they were scheduled for the weekend?

Weber says students may not appreciate their efforts because they don't realize what a job it entails. The idea is to try to cut the prices and give more students access to these events.

Weber says students expect too much and their committee cannot fulfill production agencies when they want a group. They have to work with the local schedule around the group's touring Agents. Weber says students are not as involved as they should be. Weber also says there is not enough money to get the program off the ground.

STUDENTS

Let us help lighten the financial burden of college expenses. Call 345-2832 or contact Ed Bird, suite 512, Clint Graham Bldg. 4696 Overland rd.

National Research and Distributing Corp.
Shonny: "Well it's an improvement in what docs happen, in the way of the music groups and in the way of the concerts, but I think that there has been less than adequate attendance at college concerts, why students don't attend, I don't know exactly what the arrangements are now in the way of social committee, a student social chairman or something I think the kids here know what they are going to see to want."

Tom Dreschel, Senior Social Science, Business Secretary Education: "RR: Does ISC have an adequate social program?
Dreschel: A social problem lies in the fact that this is a commuter school. With all commuting students you have a problem in attendance.
Inadequate attendance has been the big problem here before. There has been a lot of money spent that shouldn't have been spent for a lot of concerts that they possibly shouldn't have had."

Sheri Plumb, Sophomore, Social Work: "I think needs some changes"
RR: In what areas?
Plumb: "Well, I can't help but think that there should be more of an average student voice in what does happen, as the selection of what they do hang in the way of the music groups and in the way of the concerts."

Dr. Gould, Professor: "I think it would be adequate when the facilities of the Student Union Building is fully completed. I have noticed this year for example that because of the cramped quarters, students don't have an opportunity for dancing and things like they used to when we had the snack bar area and the Friday night sessions and things like that. But I think as soon as the Student Union Building is fully opened they will be expanded again. I think you will find an expanding interest in social functions. I think, as I have observed in those four years that I have been at Boise State College, that our social situation is well cared for, that the students tend to do what's right right now that they are under a very temporary situation that is not going to be so long an advantage of our students."

RR: As an instructor, what part should a social program play in the academic view?
Gould: "Oh, I think it has a large part to play. Students go to college to get a few facts pounded into their heads, but they also go for the associations and the social life is a part of it, and I think the well-balanced college you've got to provide for the students social needs as well as needs for my examinations. I'm quite content to let them have all the social life they want."

RR: What recommendations would you make after viewing the programs here at Boise State?
Gould: "I think both on campus and off that students should be taken care of if you want to know what should be emphasized more. I think for one thing, I should have more poetry girls in my class that I could choose for dating myself, how would that suit you?"

Mike Farber, Junior, Anthropology: "It might be adequate but I think that there are a lot of changes that should be taken. For instance the movies, I don't think there is a very good turnout and they have some good shows. The activities here should be for the students and I think instead of just the people that log in the dorms. I went to a dance about three weeks ago and the way they organized the thing was really feel needs changing?"
Anneckere: "Well, they should... ah have the music for the college students."
RR: Outside of these areas, do you see any other ways that they could improve the entertainment?
Dreschel: "It's a very good problem, students don't know what should be taken, they should definitely concentrate on the music that they think they like and what's going to be into consideration where money is concerned."
Dreschel: "Definitely, as long as they are going to have fewer concerts, they should definitely make sure that they have them when all can attend it at least as many as possible."
RR: You are aware of the Talent Guide programs here in Boise, and their big push for community entertainment. Should this area be explored for RR: You think that the social committee includes all the students on campus, or is it designed just for a few. How would you classify it?
Plumb: "I think it's really pretty equal about students... it does seem to schedule functions with the idea of serving either the dorm students or students living at home or in apartments."

RR: Do you think that the social committee includes all the students on campus, or is it designed just for a few. How would you classify it?
Plumb: "I think it's really pretty equal about students... it does seem to schedule functions with the idea of serving either the dorm students or students living at home or in apartments."

Shonny: "Well I think that they ought to get somebody that's popular besides on KYVM."
RR: Any other areas you care to comment on?
Anneckere: "Well, it would be nice if they didn't change college students to concert programs."

RR: What kind of programs would you like to see initiated that are not presently being undertaken here in the social programs?
Shonny: "Well I think there could be more along the art program, more liberal arts type of thing. I think that you could initiate some sort of art program that would be beneficial to the art students and to the liberal arts majors in general. I also think, being a writer myself, there could be some sort of summer program plus a campus program during the year that would get the writers involved with each others works."
RR: Any other areas?
Shonny: "Not right off hand, I can only say that I'm disappointed when I don't have solutions, but I've seen from another college that they've told people to seem to be more involved in everything that is going on. Maybe it's just that people don't know."
Help for Pakistan

The Pakistan Fund Raising Project is in full swing on the Boise State campus, and more than 30 people are involved in collecting monies for the country ravaged by the national disaster.

Letters have been written to high schools in the area, publicity has been distributed throughout the area on television and radio.

BSU students are working with businesses, churches, professional people and clubs and organizations in the Boise area.

Chairman of the drive is Mayor Sheehy who feels strongly the project will be a success. The total funds projected by Dec. 25 are $25,000. The Idaho Student Government Association is heading the drive on all Idaho college and University campuses. Funds so far gathered are $52 from the Fugates, plus a $100 check from a Valley resident, and other donations from organizations.

Judi Fisher Resigns From Student Senate

Judi Fisher, ASB Senator, handed in her resignation Tuesday at the last ASB Senate meeting this year. Mercy stated her resignation is effective Dec. 23.

Ed Weber, ASB Social Chairman, said ticket prices for the Doe Severenson Concert will be $2 for students and general public will pay $3, According to Weber, total cost of the concert may be close to $15,000, although he said this estimate may be a little high. Performing with Doe Severenson will be the New Generation and a group called Brothers and Sisters.

Gary Kleiman, assistant director of the SSB, said the student activities program "needs help." He asked that any students wanting to help with concerts or any student activities contact him or Ed Weber.

All organizations budget requests for the 1971-72 school year are to be turned into De Cazier by Jan. 29. Cazier said his financial board will work out organizational budgets for next year. Placed on the ASB financial board were Jean Axelton and Don Kainey.

Bronco Boosters, a new campus organization, was accepted by the ASB Senate Tuesday.
Boise State College fell to the College of Great Falls Montana 79-78 in a see-saw battle Dec. 5, on the Bronco courts.

Great Falls matched up the game with 13 seconds remaining to play. Tom Donley of CGF locked up the game with a free throw that put the Argonauts ahead by one point.

The crowd witnessed the score tied 16 times and a lead that changed hands 13 times.

Great Falls led the half at 43-49. However, in the final two quarters the Broncos came up and swapped the opponent basket for basket.

With 2:17 left in the game, Bronco Ron Anderson pushed BSC ahead 73-72 by dumping in a free throw. Following a two pointer by CGF, BSC's Steve Wallace connected on a jumper with 2:01 remaining to put the score 73-74 for BSC. Then CGF forged ahead on a two pointer only to have Wallace come back to tie the game up at 76 all. Bronco, Steve Larson, then put down a two pointer to give BSC the lead at 78-76 with 1:43 remaining.

The Argos tied the game 78-78 with 47 seconds left. Boise State then talked time and attempted to set up a final shot. However in doing so, Austin fouled Donley. Donley sank the free throw and won the game for Great Falls.

Austin was high point man for BSC with 20 points followed by Bill Barnes with 16 points.

Short Term Loans

Students who have BSC loans outstanding in December and January should settle their accounts before Spring Registration, the Financial Aids Office announced Monday.

Ron Moran, Financial Aids accountant, said that as of Nov. 30, $18,624 in loans were in default. "In the school year 1960-61 we were able to make 691 loans," he said. "But if they students who have loans don't pay it back, we have that much less to loan."

Each borrower is billed monthly before his payment date. If he has not paid by the due date, the Office charges interest (5% per annum) on his loan. Hulls are placed on records of students with past-due accounts.

The Financial Aids Office is now in Room 319. Administration Building. A cashier is on duty each day from 8 a.m. to 12 noon. 12:30 p.m. Full repayment of loans enables the Financial Aids Office to assist more students.

Applications for the Student Union Board are now being taken and may be picked up in the SUB Director's Office. For further information, contact Jim Crawford, 385-1448 or 345-4407.

The purpose of this board is to recommend policies for the operation of the SUB, including building use, general programs, formulation of food service policy, annual budget as prepared by the College Union Director and other policies that represent the views of students, faculty, alumni and staff.

Included on the Board of Governors will be student, faculty and administrative personnel with students having at least 51 percent of the vote.

Off-campus students leaving BSC at semester are asked to contact the BSC housing office, A209 as soon as possible to list housing vacancies available for second semester BSC students. Jan Vestal, director of housing, said students are especially interested in housing near campus and in the price range of $70-$100 a month.

Vestal encourages students seeking off-campus and residence hall housing to stop by his office for assistance. Applications are now being taken for students wanting residence hall housing spring semester. According to Vestal, BSC students will have priority over transfer students for student housing.
