WHO'S TO BE THE NEW MISS BSU?

Application information below...

Oh, Gloria! I could never win. Not with my unnaturally curly hair!!!

News in Brief

The ASBSU Senate has solved the problem of reapportionment by creating a Senator-at-Large seat instead of deciding which school would be given an additional senatorial position. (See pg. 7 for more information)

Between 1300 and 1400 students have received parking tickets since the initiation of the new BSU parking system. "BSU and the City of Boise will split the difference after expenses have been met," according to Gordon Phillips, BSU coordinator of administrative services.

Dr. Robert Boren, chairman of the BSU communications department, and Jerry Reed, director of special projects have co-authored a new text on communication research.

Three Bronco football players have been selected by Pro-teams in this year's Pro-Draft. (See the ARBITER Sports section)

Boise State University Percussion Ensemble and Keyboard Ensemble, both directed by Dr. John Baldwin, have been selected to perform at the Northwest Regional Music Educators National Conference Convention in Spokane, Wash. on Feb. 15.

Miss BSU information

the theme of this year's Miss Boise State University Pageant is THE CHANGING FACES...OF TODAY'S WOMEN. The event is scheduled to be held in the Boise State University Student Union Ballroom. The pageant is part of the Miss America Beauty contest, and is being directed by Fred J. Norman, director of the BSU Student Union Building.

The winner of the Miss BSU contest will represent the university in the Miss Idaho Pageant in June. She will also represent the university throughout the year at campus, community and state events.

Some of the sponsoring organizations this year are the Intercollegiate Knights, Golden Z's, Valkeries, the Student Union Program Board and the BSU Public Relations office. Organizations wishing to sponsor a candidate may do so by contacting the pageants co-ordinator, Gary Ribeiro in the Food Service office.

The pageant has been scheduled for 8:00 pm, Thursday, March 13, 1975.

SERMONETTE

And the unknowing students said let there be a revolution in our government. Let the apostles of bureaucracy be rocked and shaken from their thrones for such is our desire. Bring them forth even unto the snack bar and let us see the greedy godless goons who lead our student body into the lands of Nod and then we shall disavow them and call it good.

The lords who sat high-up in the union called down and said, "Verily, verily we say unto you, take your complaints and be gone. We are the kings and the kingpins of this here democracy and never shall we yield to apathy, administration or the one-eyed cyclops of the varsity center. Take your misjudgements and go in silence even unto the library!"

And so they went. Heads downslung and hearts downtrodden. Ideals and commitments slashed by the knives of student servants, the kings and senators from lands of business, languages and manual training.

And it came to pass, that on the third year a messiah was brought forth unto the land of Academia. A person of virile deeds and vast assessments of the problems at hand. He called for action, but the ears were deaf and the eyes were blind and he was ignored. He cried unto the multitudes to find their senators and higher representatives and spake to them of the troubles beneath the seats of Bronco Stadium and above the heads of the State Board of Education. He urged them to bring their grievous complaints before the senate, but alas the messiah was talked down.

And so he asked for reasons why the government, though good in content and theory was ignoring the very essentials they were there to represent. He spoke of the teachings of Jefferson and Jackson, two men who thought the people should come first, and the ideas of on the job training experiences last. He recommended that the government either do its job or dissolve itself.

"The government for the people is a good and valid institution, but when that government forgets its purpose it becomes a monster worthy of its titled burden, BUREAUCRACY." And the people listened and the government met the people and began its new elections. Hopes for a better future spurred the electorate forth even unto the polls, and the messiah said it was good.

"A government of, for and by itself cannot stand. A people ignored and defecated upon cannot see the truth. The government must respond to its people or the people will respond to that government by tearing at its committees, its leaders and its purpose."

The moral of this story is that before you cry for changes, the system you want altered must be examined. If you find that the system is supposed to function differently than it does, strive to see how it works when it is working correctly. Do not call for an end to government, rather call for its return to the function for which it was instituted--the benefit of its people, not the enrichment of its theoretical monarchs.

Student "thanks" staff, faculty, & citizens

Editor, the ARBITER:

On the 16th of January, my fraternity rented a bus from Boise State University. This bus was for the purpose of taking children from the Warm Springs Home up to Idaho City to go tubing at Steamboat Gulch. We were expecting about 20 kids, plus three advisors, and about 20 of our own group. In all about 40 to 45 people.

This bus was rented through the offices of Dr. Bullington and Roger Green, Vice-President of Financial Affairs.

I would like to thank these two gentlemen for allowing us to use school equipment for our service project. We do appreciate their kindness.

Mr. Herbert Mengel, director of the Physical Plant, was contacted earlier in the week (this was to be used on the 18th) to verify that the bus would be able to meet our needs. At no time were we told that this bus would not only be unable to meet our needs, but probably would not even make it up.

On Saturday morning we arrived to start out, only to be met by a bus that could barely hold 25 people, much less the 40 we expected, and once underway, we discovered that the bus was not even in condition to be on the road. It took us nearly three hours to travel, at a rate of just barely 10 miles an hour, to a point some seven miles short of Idaho City. Here the bus gave out completely. The driver could coax it no further.

I would like to commend the driver, Mr. Tom O'Donnell, for his efforts in keeping us moving. He really did an excellent job of keeping that bus rolling much longer than I had thought possible.

We were fortunate to receive help from many more people that day. I would like to thank Jerry Moon for the ride into Idaho City to search for help in getting to Steamboat Gulch. I would also like to thank Larry Loy, Charley Dowd, Pete Sumerbalt and Charles Goddard for taking time to drive back in their own cars to pick everybody up, as well as all the food we had brought up and then carry us all up to Steamboat Gulch.

I can only say to these people, thank you all so very much for your help and kindness when it was sorely needed.

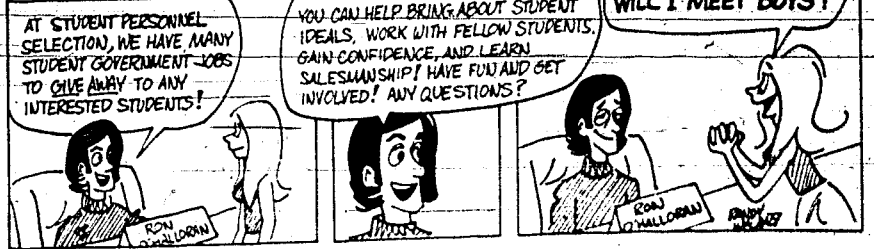

I would also like to thank Gary Ribiero (ARA Food Service) for the hot chocolate they gave us to take along. It certainly came in handy later that afternoon.

I also want to thank Fred Ross for giving us a break on the tickets. He played a major role in making that day a success after all.

I can only suggest to Mr. Mengel that he keep a closer watch on the worthiness and safety of his vehicles, or have them checked over before sending them out. We were lucky that nothing happened along the way, because, I feel, of our driver. The next time, they might not be so lucky.

STUDENT SERVICES

Reader challenges student government justification

Editor, the ARBITER

The theory behind any government in our democratic society, is that it be of the people, by the people and for the people. It is unfortunate that the student leaders in the ASBSU have neglected to learn this theory and more so, that they have neglected to exercise its meaning.

Too many times in the past, the general student body has been subjected to rules and regulations brought forth by seemingly selfish, political, or religious motives.

If we are to have a representative student government, it is time we demand recognition as being students capable of making decisions as well, if not better, than those we let make decisions for us.

The tragedy of student government is that inherent in its present structure and application are the inefficiencies and apathetic responses of the governed that is more than apparent on the national level.

Surely we as students of the present college generation, should not forget the ideals and demonstrations of the '60's to make college administrations and state and local governing agencies more responsive. But perhaps, we are calling names and forgetting that our own apathy and response from our own peer group government is sorely lacking in responsibility.

The challenge that faces us throughout our college years is to grow in knowledge and experience and to apply that knowledge and experience throughout our lives.

Perhaps the reason that so many businessmen and state officials decline to recognize student opinions is that we as students and they, our student leaders, fail to practice what we expect in others.

An election is designed to make changes and to put into use the ideas we have. To ignore or neglect to get involved is asking for perpetual inefficiencies to continue.

If we cannot make our own student government responsive to our needs, how facetious of us to expect other governing agencies to listen to our student needs and desires?

And, if our student government is not really what we want or not really responsive, perhaps we should abolish it, or come up with something better.

I challenge any candidate for student office to justify student government, and if he cannot, to come up with something more responsive. If they cannot, then I propose we abolish it, and reduce student fees accordingly.

Perhaps that is what all the student really want. Let this paper know how you feel by writing to it, or to me in care of this paper. Ron Lundquist

Director of Student Services defends ASBSU

Editor, the ARBITER:

The editorial by Mr. Layne, I'm sure, will draw many comments from our student government leaders. As the director of Student Services I would fall in that category. I'm not writing this to convince you of the need of student government but to give you facts concerning aspects of our student government.

Student Services was created by the senate to meet special needs of the students which include: housing, employment, health care referrals and legal advice. During the past year 720 students used student services for the above and other miscellaneous services. Of those 194 sought legal advice, which amounts to an approximate savings of $2000 to the students. Some students are reluctant to use the Housing and Career and Financial service offices, and we serve as an auxiliary service for these offices.

Student Services is manned by seven student volunteers who give up to nine to twelve hours a week to help other students. I fail to see where the administration could offer this type of service free of charge.

I'm sure in your mind some inequities exist, but before you

ASBSU P.R. Director expresses thanks

Editor, the ARBITER

I would like to take this moment to thank you and the students of Boise State University for allowing me to serve as Public Relations Director during the past few months. It has been the most rewarding experience that I have ever encountered and I am deeply appreciative of the indulgences of you, the Student Senate and all the students at Boise State for allowing me to serve in that capacity.

condemn the entire student government organization into oblivion, please try to learn something about it.

Mr. Layne's letter is appreciated for his concern, but to quote, "I feel we have to give in order to receive."

Nate Kim

Due to personal commitment that causes me to detract my efforts in another field, I feel it necessary that I submit my resignation effective the first of February, 1975:

Again, let me express my appreciation for all the thoughtful words and assistance lent to me by all of the students during the last semester.

As everyone should know, Blaise State is more than an education, it is QUALITY EDUCATION in the highest marketable sense. In adhering with this concept of perpetual economic appeasement, we now introduce another milestone which, as others have in the past contributed so significantly to BSU's progressive quasi-learning program: FIT THAT TUNE. Merely select that song which you think depicts the individual, office or organization most accurately. If you are indeed one of the big time winners (and there are no big timers in BSU QUALITY EDUCATION) you are eligible to participate in our grandiose Grand Prize JOB later this semester at the Department of Employment. Second Prize is $25.00 worth of labor in the recently uncovered archeological Scenic Arts Center's construction pit. Just make your checkbook moist thinking about it, huh!!!!!! Vo-Tech goes 1984

Dr. Spoc O. Ded.

THE TRUTH....

...is very seldom written, occasionally recognized, and not usually accepted if and when it is realized. Most of us go through life living and realizing many truths, it just takes longer for some things to sink in.

When I started Vo-Tech Electronics over a year and a half ago, I pretty well knew who I was, and what I wanted, or rather what I didn't want! Up until that time I had a preconceived notion that vocational schools were comprised mostly of idiots who hadn't the brains to handle the intellectualism that is associated with a higher level academic program. Whether the following evaluation was designed to convince myself that I'm not one of the idiots, or whether it is attributed to my being a balanced Libra, is not for me to decide... leave it to the Psych majors, and their peers. However, in realizing my truths then as I do now, I don't believe that anyone can be evaluated by the type of schooling they choose to take. I do believe that anyone who graduates or even spends enough time in any one program at any institution, becomes, if not a stereotyped person, then at least a programmed individual.

The proof to this can be seen in the Vo-Tech programs that are available here as well as throughout the country. They are federally funded programs designed to absorb the average individual with the average intelligence, I.Q., common sense, and what have you, and punch out those designed industrial middlemen who fall somewhere just above the ditchdigger-janitor, and short of the administrative - executive types.

Did you as an academic student ever wonder why you couldn't get an Intro to Horticulture, or a basic Auto Mechanics course? The reason...Programmed Education. The Federal government funds the Vo-Tech department under a basic education act, as does the state, designed for the benefit of the people, however, the only way that you can benefit from these educational funds is if you attend these classes according to the rules laid out for you. The programs are structured on the basis of a clock hour instruction to insure an on-the-job-training technique. A monkey see monkey do, practice makes perfect process which is a necessity in learning almost anything. The problem is that the process is too hastened for some and too inhibiting for others, and again there's no room for the people who would like a basic understanding of a particular Vo-Tech field.

But, as usual, it's your money that is being spent, and you really have no say in how it will be spent. You have no choice but to accept programmed education, programmed employment, and programmed living (1984 is upon us), regardless of how individualized we may think we are.

The truth is that only we can look at the problems as they really are and then scream and holler or do whatever to change things so that each individual can truly decide what course of action should be pursued to determine their own future.....if at all possible.

Senator Gochnour claims Layne's remarks unjustified

Editor, the ARBITER:

This letter is directed to the unjustified, inexperienced remarks of a Richard Layne in the last issue of the ARBITER. He suggested the total elimination of Student Government, throwing all of the responsibilities of its functions on the university administration.

A quality education is more than just classroom hours. A person who has not experienced other types of education while going to school is a real bore. This is one area where Student Government can help you if you only take the time.

Student Government is also a voice to the administration of student's feelings and needs. Although this works slowly, it does work. Without student government a student would be completely unheard.

Granted, Student Government does cost money and has a long way to go; however, I think it provides many programs and services that most students don't even know about.

Talk is cheap and until you get involved and find the real value of Student Government, it is very obvious you don't know what you are talking about. In closing, I not only challenge you, I demand you and other concerned students to get involved before you make such a great judgement on the value of Student Government. Then, maybe your comments will make some sense.

Senator Frazier questioned

Editor, the ARBITER

After attending the last senate meeting last Tuesday, January 28, one senator seemed to stand apart from the others.

Concerning the programs board appropriations, John Frazier stood wielding his flaming brand of mis-conceptualized ideas, blatantly unfounded proposals and recommendations.

My understanding of Senator Frazier's argument for rejecting the finance committee's recommendations of granting additional funds to the programs board, was that he viewed it as highly inflationary. He seemed to feel that by not granting funds this student service committee would be amply chastised. When in reality, the punishment would be born by the student body.

Senator Frazier has handily brandished his way to personal discomfiture and self-abasement.

His voting record seems to indicate that he is either uninformed or without concern. Out of the twenty recorded roll call votes between September 10, 1974 and January 21, 1975, Senator Frazier was either absent or abstained on nine of them.

In conclusion, I feel that this type of activity could best be remedied by you, the student body, taking a closer look at the people you elect to these positions.

One Concerned Student,
Steve Williams

Editor, the ARBITER

This is in reply to Senator Frazier's comments during last week's Senate meeting concerning the Program Board and specifically the Pop and Experimental Film Committee. First of all, Mr. Frazier, we want you to know that we respect your opinion on the proposed New York Erotic Film Festival. Many people dislike erotic films (we'll avoid saying "if a person doesn't like them, he shouldn't go see them"). Then again, many people do go to them. What we're trying to say, Mr. Frazier, is that this semester's film program, as well as all the events scheduled by the Program Board are presented as an attempt to please as many people as possible.

A film, just like a concert, cannot please every student on campus. Some people who liked Last Tango in Paris are going to hate the Marx Brothers Festival, the 3-D movie, or The First Circle.

Although, we might not achieve it in totality, the purpose of this Board is to provide a variety of good quality entertainment. This is what we try to achieve, simply because Boise State University's student body is also a variety of humanity and no two students think alike.

The Student Union Program Board Members

Academic Recognition?

Editor, the ARBITER:

Why is recognition for academic achievement unheard of at BSU? Is this not a University? When did you last recognize in your 'RAG' the students who have excelled academically? Maybe the Dean's List can't make money for the Jocks so it is cast aside. Success in the classroom goes literally unnoticed at this school!

I know I'll not get this printed and my time has been wasted; however, I would like to hear what this athletically inclined staff (like our educator of the year, Asmus) have to say about this much neglected point.

"4 Point" and a "Jock"

EDITOR'S NOTE: Point well taken Mr. '4'. Perhaps Mr. Asmus, Dr. Davis, Dr. Baker, Dr. Sickles or another of our academic experts would like to express themselves on this point. If any faculty member wishes to answer our reader, this "RAG" will be happy to print it.

Vo-Tech building opens its doors

Just five months after the first foundation trenches were dug, Boise State University's newest Vocational-Technical training building opened for classwork this week. Students tinkered on chain saws, snowmobiles, and auto body projects before carpenters and electricians put last touches on the plant.

"We really needed to get our engine repair and auto painting classwork started in here now," explained BSU Vo-Tech Schools Director Don Miller, guiding press and university officials through the new facility.

Contract terms called for the building to be ready for use February 7, 1975. With heavy winter term enrollment jamming his class schedules, Miller moved students into the new building as the term opened. Classwork used only the completed areas while the contractor finished the rest.

By early February, four programs will fill the 21,000 square-foot red bricked structure. Classrooms and shop areas are especially fitted to handle the combination of bookwork and ear-shattering engine noises. Students will train to master the trades of parts counter-men, small engine repairmen, auto body technician, refrigeration, and air conditioning maintenance work.

For Director Miller, the building represents a half-million dollar key to a growing classroom facilities jumble. Threatened was orderly operation of BSU's 30 year tradition in Vo-Tech education leadership in Idaho.

Over recent years, overall university enrollment surges spilled Vo-Tech students to an overflow condition in the two buildings used for those courses on campus. Miller rented space in the city trade areas nearby. He put classrooms in old residences amid the decaying neighborhood across Campus Drive. Several classes still operate several miles away in Garden City.

Vocational and technical courses at BSU—has suddenly—leaped beyond the old "auto body" "auto mechanics" days to opportunities for job skills in trades as varied as horticulture, restaurant food service, electronics, health services, and airplane flying.

Worst of all, says Miller, his staff started the inevitable carving up of large shop and classroom areas in the campus structures to squeeze a bit more learning space in.

"So we were beginning to infringe on the quality of facilities we had already built here, in order to get what was really inadequate room for something new," he recalls.

Relief has come with a building that offers half its interior as 10,000 feet of open shop space, the other 10,000 feet divided into classrooms for technical lectures and desk work just across an acoustically sealed center hallway.

It will let Miller's staff release the "stolen" space to original shop and technical course users in the major round Vo-Tech building adjacent to the new wing. Best of all, he says, some of the "old house" classes can leave those rundown quarters and get orderly, well-lit and properly safe conditions in the on-campus complex.

"Eventually, we'll get virtually all students back on the campus, close to our full staff of teachers and advisors, and into the mainstream of the campus life," hopes Miller.

That goal, he admits, will take more buildings yet. But as he looked down the long rows of students setting saw chains, revving snowmobile engines hooked to diagnostic gear, hammering garden machinery back into top operating shape, he showed evident satisfaction.

"Small engines and light machinery repairmen are really needed in our community right now. There'll be jobs for these people...and jobs is the name of the game today."

Construction begins on Special Events Center

by Pat Nance

Construction began last week on the new Special Events Center housing future theatre and music department productions plus the Student Union Program Board's pop film, foreign film and lecture programs.

Costing $1,192,000, the Special Events Center will seat 425 people facing a 32 by 36 foot proscenium stage, with a proscenium opening 20 feet high. The building will include approximately 1656 square feet of wing space adjacent to the stage, a 12 by 20 foot green room, two 12 by 20 foot dressing rooms, and a 22 by 28 foot costume design and storage room. Also in the building will be a 20 by 78 foot scene shop for set construction, an art display area in the main lobby and a complete light and sound projection booth.

The Center, according to BSU president Dr. John Barnes, will be completed in about one year or next November. "The complexity of the building necessitates this long building period," Barnes said. He added, "I wish it were done next week because it will be a beautiful, useful facility."

The fully carpeted Center features upholstered theatre seats and a unique aspect in that there are no stairs in the exterior or interior portions that are to be used by the audience. "This is so that the building will be accessible to handicapped and senior citizens with no trouble at all," Barnes stated.

Scheduling for the building will be handled through the office of the Director of the Student Union Building, with final scheduling decisions to be made by that office. Theatre and music productions and the SUPB film series will have no. 1 priority in the Center, Dr. Barnes reported. This necessitates these programs being planned and scheduled about one year in advance.

But Barnes added; the Center will be useable 12 months of the year and "will be in operation as many days as humanly possible."

Barnes said the new Center will be the finest complex of its kind in the state. He added that, although the Center will replace the production functions of the present Music Auditorium and Sub'al Theatre, these two buildings will remain as they are; the Music Auditorium as classrooms and practice areas and the Sub'al and old SUB as an experimental theatre. Barnes expressed his congratulations to the Theatre Arts Department for doing so well with the limited Facilities that exist, and said, "With the new Center, the quality of production should be even better."

The next building scheduled to be constructed is a 90,000 square foot three story Science Building. Dr. Barnes stated that construction could conceivably begin by April or May 1975.

Senate OKs Miss BSU scholarship

The senate was called to order at 3:35 by David Ward. The minutes of the previous minutes were read and approved. A letter from the Idaho Student Lobby concerning the minimum wage law ammendment was read and taken into consideration.

The presidential appointments of Nate Kim and Doug Jones to the Finanical Board; Ron Combs and Janet Paine as Chairperson and Vice-Chairperson respectively for the Election Board and Lenny Hertling as the Senator from the School of Arts and Sciences were all excepted by the senate.

President Christensen requested that the senate give Miss Boise State University a $500 scholarship to be used for tuition and fees with the remainder to be used at her discretion. This motion passed a roll call vote.

Psi Sigma Epsilon asked for a loan, but the Finance Board had refused to endorse the request. The monies requested would be applied toward sending members of this business fraternity to the national convention.

The ASBSU Program Board requested $12,000 for additional funding, but the Finance Board recommended that this amount be sliced down to $4500. Senator Gochour made a motion to except the Finance Board's recommendation? Senator Roberts seconded the motion which passed the roll call vote.

The question of reapportionment was settled with a plan originating with Vo-Tech Senator, Ken Butler to allow the twelfth senate seat to be designated a Senator-at-Large position. The motion was made by Senator Butler and was seconded by Senator Welker. This motion passed a voice vote.

The constitution of the Society of Silly Goose was read and excepted.

Senator Frazier tendered his resignation as student representative to the Faculty Senate.

Complaints were voiced concerning the present parking situation. People interested in discussing the problem were requested to meet with David Ward in his office on Wednesday, Jan. 29 at 4:00.

President Christensen came forth with the final appointment of the day. Dan Coughran was chosen as temporary head of the Photo Bureau. Senator Roberts moved and Senator Kirby seconded the motion to endorse the use of the HI-FI room as the new headquarters for the Bureau. The motion passed a voice vote.

Senator Crawford then tendered his resignation as Senate Representative on the Election Board.

Candidates were again reminded of the Feb. 7 deadline for petitions. The meeting was adjourned.

Public Relations committee organized

The newly formed public relations coordination staff consisting of representatives from various campus organizations met Thursday, January 30 to discuss communication problems between the school's extra-curricular activities.

Possible solutions were proposed in the form of Public Relations representatives from each campus organization to meet twice monthly to hash over upcoming campus events.

Acting Public Relations Director Tony Chirico stated that a more viable route of communications would bring about greater success for all concerned parties and organizations.

Any organization interested in becoming part of this committee staff is urged to contact Chirico at 385-1440 or by stopping by the Public Relations office on the second floor of the Student Union Building during regular business hours.

Spring '75' registration may produce new record

Spring term registration at Boise State University may produce another enrollment record says the school's Director of Information Services. While official registration figures will not be released for another month, the BSU Information Office staff surveyed class loads at key university departments this week.

The conclusion, according to Director Bob Hall, is that the traditional mid-winter enrollment sag is far less this year than in any previous year.

"In many cases, department chairmen are reporting class loads from ten to twenty per cent heavier than they had anticipated, based on past annual patterns," says Hall.

Fall term enrollment, on a student head count basis, was reported at 10,000 by the BSU Registrar as school opened last fall. Some key indicators of an unusually heavy second-semester teaching load at the school:

Housing Director John Vestal

reports all BSU housing, on and off campus is "at full occupancy" for the coming semester. Normally, he says, the school has at least one hundred vacancies to fill as a result of lower second-semester enrollments.

Chemistry Department Chairman Jack Dalton reports his estimates of the expected winter sag were "at least fifteen per cent" off. He says lecture and lab sessions are only slightly under the Fall term attendance level.

At the popular BSU School of Business, Dean Charles Lein reports a fifteen per cent increase in registration pressure on all classes, compared to last year at this time. "We're taking some courses to Capital High School at night to find teaching space," he says.

Another significant enrollment indicator at BSU, the pace of registration by veterans, supports the overall picture of a record surge, says Hall.

Unlike other enrollment sources, veteran numbers traditionally increase at colleges in the winter months as winter job layoffs and business slowdowns make use of VA benefits more attractive to veterans.

But even that usual increase is stronger this winter, reports BSU Veterans Affairs Coordinator Gary Bermeosolo.

"We had 1687 veterans enrolled here for Fall term. We're looking at 2,000 or so this term, an estimate of what we've seen so far," he says.

Major impact of the unusual winter term student load at BSU will be felt by faculty people already operating in overcrowded classrooms, estimates Hall.

"When faculty and students have been pretty jam-packed in classes, labs and traffic areas since Fall term opened, many look forward to a bit of relief when enrollment drops off for Winter term."

"This year, it looks like the pressure is going to stay right on, until summer."

Selective Service provides information

The law requires men to register with the Selective Service at age 18 and to be classified. You must register within the 60-day period beginning 30 days before your 18th birthday. Thereafter, until the year you become 23 years of age, you must inform your local board when you change your address and respond to requests for information. You may register at any Selective Service local board, area office, community registrar or by use of a mail-in card wherever they are available.

Upon registration, you will be assigned to class 1-H, which is a holding category, until the calendar year you reach 19, when there will be a national lottery drawing for your age group. The annual lottery establishes the Random Sequence (Lottery) Number for all registrants. After the lottery drawing for your age group an Administrative Processing Number (APN) will be established by the National Director. If you have a lottery number above the APN you will remain in Class 1-H and will not be subject to further Selective Service processing unless there is a major mobilization.

If your lottery number is equal to or below the APN, you will be reclassified into a class available for induction (1-A), (1-A-O), or alternate service (1-O), unless your local board determines you are eligible for an exempt or deferred class. Before reclassification from your initial Class 1-H, the local board will advise you of this action and extend you ample time to file a claim of conscientious objector or to request a deferment of exemption for which you believe you may qualify. You may file such claims when you register or at any later time.

Your prime year of vulnerability as a regular registrant is the calendar year you become 20 years of age. All regular registrants are classified in Class 1-H following the year of prime vulnerability unless they are eligible for a lower classification.

At the time you are reclassified from your initial Class 1-H, your local board will consider all information you have submitted prior to this reclassification and/or during your personal appearance.

After your prime year of vulnerability, you will be placed in a lower category of vulnerability for induction with men of your own year group, and if your RSN is below the APN you will be returned to Class 1-H unless you are eligible for a lower classification. Each succeeding year your vulnerability will be further reduced.

If you are between the ages of 18 and 23, you must keep your local board informed in writing of the address where mail will reach you. You must submit to your local board, upon request, information which may affect your Selective Service status.

If your local board mails you a Current Information Questionnaire (SSS Form 127), this indicates that the local board is considering reopening your classification. You should fill out the questionnaire and mail it back to the local board at once. You also should send any other information which might affect your eligibility for a deferment. If you become eligible for induction processing, your local board will classify you based on the information in your Selective Service file. If you do not send information to your local board or do not promptly return a questionnaire, the local board generally has no choice but to classify you 1-A.

In January of the year you become 23 years of age, your file will be stored in a Federal Records Center. You will no longer be required to furnish information to the local board and information in your file will no longer be available upon request to your local board.

When you reach age 26, if you have never been deferred, you are no longer required to have your Selective Service Status Card in your personal possession, and your concern with Selective Service should be over.

Mail-in cards for registration are available in the Office of Veterans Affairs, Administration Building, Room 114.

Bookstore manager regrets rip-off

by Jo Elliott-Blakelee

Last December one of the student rip-offs of the year took place in the Student Union Building when the Nebraska Book Company purchased used books from students on a sliding pay scale. The nation-wide standard customarily followed by companies buying used books is a payment of 50 per cent of the original cost. At least 25 complaints traveled to Ms. Betty Brock, Your Campus Store manager, that the Nebraska Book Company paid less than 50 per cent to many students, and paid varying amounts for the same books in nearly identical condition. Clearly, their practice was less than honorable.

Even though the bookstore was not involved in the Nebraska Book Company's dealings with students, Ms. Brock was quite upset about the unfair treatment. She wrote a letter to the company, and the woman who was the "book-buy" person on campus acknowledged a mistake had been made involving a discrepancy of at least $500.00. Ms. Brock then insisted the company have the students prices be posted ahead of time. She also insisted the company have the students sign a paper form which would state the amount of refund each student received. After she had corresponded with the book-buy person, the president of the company wrote a letter to Ms. Brock "effectively whitewashing" the whole incident. After that, Ms. Brock refused to deal with the Nebraska Book Company again.

The students were not the only ones to receive poor treatment from the company. The bookstore bought some used books from the company at 50 per cent of the new book price—the same amount the students were supposed to receive when they sold their books to the company. Since the company did not pay the 50 per cent to many students, they realized a large profit margin in selling these books to the bookstore. In addition, the bookstore boxed the remaining books the company had purchased and shipped them to the company. For this service the bookstore was supposed to receive 5 per cent commission. "No records of either the amount of money the company paid out or took in, or the number of books purchased were kept." Only a "word-of-mouth" statement had been given to the bookstore. Judging from the actions of the Nebraska Book Company, they may not have been honest in this area either.

Ms. Brock is now investigating three other companies to buy used books from students. Of the three (Barnes & Noble, Wallace and Follett), Barnes & Noble claim they pay more than 50 per cent. If they do and if other college bookstores have had honest and fair dealings with them, they will probably be the one chosen.

Rose Bowman to speak at Brown Bag lunch series

Rose Bowman will be the first speaker of the "Brown Bag" lunch series. This will be held on Thursday, February 6, at 12:00 at the Minority Cultural Center. Ms. Bowman will speak on "Women Power - What Can Women Do?" The talk will cover what women can accomplish if they put themselves on the line and take the responsibility.

Ms. Bowman is currently the Executive Director for Humanities in Idaho. She also serves as Vice Chairman of the Sewer Commission and is a member of the Junior League of Boise. Ms. Bowman has taught high school English and is a former employee of the Idaho State Department of Agriculture and has also been a candidate for the U.S. Senate from Idaho.

The Women's Center Committee is now in the process of finding the facilities to house the Center. It is believed that such a place is needed to help fill many needs of the BSU students, faculty and staff. Besides holding the brown bag lunch series - the Center would like to offer other featured speakers and events which will cover a variety of women's concern in today's society.

It will also serve as a place to go and relax, talk things over with an old friend or as a place to make a new friend. It will be a place to have a cup of coffee and be alone with your thoughts if you wish. Whatever your needs are, this place may not have all the answers but it will be where you can work things out.

If you are interested in the Women's Center you are invited to attend the first of the series on February 6 to learn more of the future plans. If you cannot attend, please feel free to contact Maria Young at 385-1583 to be put on a future mailing list.

Make-up pictures for the '74-'75 Los Bols year book will be taken Friday, February 7 beginning at 2:00 p.m.

If you have not yet received the '72-'73 or '73-'74 year book, you may obtain one at the information booth in the SUB, free of charge. Any writers having short essays or poems concerning BSU would be advised to take their works to the Annual Office in the SUB for possible printing in the '74-'75 Los Bols.

State Board Education to review Alpha Kappa Psi

On February 6 and 7 the State Board of Education will convene at the Boise State University Student Union Building for their second regular monthly meeting of 1975.

One of the most significant rulings that they will have to make is to determine whether or not to permit Theta Omicron Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, a national professional business fraternity, to continue their status as an officially recognized campus organization.

A K Psi is currently on probation through the action of the ASBSU Judiciary Council, which ruled that the fraternity was in violation of provision 1-f of the recognition requirements for student organizations. This is a non-discrimination statement that declares that no organization shall discriminate on grounds of race, color, creed, or sex.

Action was first taken against Alpha Kappa Psi in October, 1974 when two women students, Donna Furuyama and Barbara Woods submitted written grievances to the Judiciary Council. These grievances stemmed from the actions of the chapter members who voted to rescind the admission of Ms Furuyama and Ms Woods as pledges, when earlier in the semester they had voted to allow women into the fraternity. Theta Omicron followed this course of action when they were informed by the Regional Director of the Alpha Kappa Psi National Office that they would forfeit their local charter if they did away with their male-only status.

In December of 1974, A K Psi filed an appeal with the Student Policy Board which upheld the decision of the Judiciary Council. Later a complaint was filed in 4th

District Court on behalf of Alpha Kappa Psi, Theta Omicron Chapter, and named Boise State University, the State Board of Education, Dr. John B. Barnes, and Dr. David S. Taylor as defendants. This was done in hopes that A K Psi could obtain an injunction which would prohibit BSU from undertaking any disciplinary action against the fraternity, but the injunction was denied.

Theta Omicron Chapter's campus existence, as well as many ideological questions will hang in the balance of the outcome of the State Board's meeting this Thursday. Dan Roberts, Theta Omicron Chapter President, is hoping to receive an extension of the compliance date until August, 1975 when the fraternity will hold its national convention. They can then present their dilemma to the representatives of the national chapter.

Advantages of dorm life explored

Editor's Note:

This is the first in a three-part series of articles dealing with the pros and cons of dormitory life. In this week's issue, the advantages of dormitory life will be discussed.

by Rich Darrington

When a new student, particularly a freshman, becomes a member of our happy little student body, he usually wants to make friends. Of course, the big question running through his mind is, "How?" The student moves into a dormitory and immediately discovers the greatest advantage of staying there-making friends. Through dormitory functions he has the opportunity to participate in floor functions, floor exchanges, and activities sponsored by the food service.

A dorm student may enjoy the convenience of being able to "foot it" everywhere. He is only a few steps away from meals, classes, recreation, movies, and all kinds of other activities; even a Bronco football game, or a Carpenter's concert. What style! One does not need to rise as early in the morning as someone who drives to classes, nor do they need to scrape frost off of a single windshield. Also, if one has a three hour period between two classes, he does not need to waste his time and money in the SUB because he has access to his room for a little snooze. Try sleeping on a cold sidewalk sometime!

Have you ever sat there eating your dinner talking to a fork? If you are a dorm student, you never have to suffer from loneliness when struggling with your Reuben sandwich. One can start the day off right with a few laughs with friends before those ghastly classes. Also, you don't have to cook your meals and then suffer from dishpan hands.

Then comes that frightening, earth-shattering week called finals. One may need some help studying for a test, but no need to worry because someone down the hall is always there to help. You can worry together, which is much better than worrying alone.

Lastly, the price you pay is pretty cheap. The rent on an apartment will usually cost more than the expense of room, board, and convenience combined.

Overall, dormitory life can be exciting, fun, and an education that perhaps everyone should have at least once during their college years.

Election Reminders

Attention students running for the position of Senator. The Senate has voted the 12th seat to be called Senate-at-large. Any student wishing to run for this seat must so declare.

All candidates should be reminded that February 7, 1975 at 4:00 p.m. is the deadline for turning in your petition to the ASBSU office. Also all candidates are reminded that they or their representative (authorization must be in writing with your approval) must attend the Orientation Session in the Senate Chambers on February 10 at 4:00 p.m. At this time the Election Board will explain campaign procedures and draw lots for placement of names on the ballot. All candidates not attending will be placed at the bottom of the ballot in alphabetical order.

Long's Home Ec. offers ethnic chow

Elaine Long, Boise State University Home Economics instructor, believes in putting a lot of enjoyment into her classroom. You won't find anyone nodding his head in boredom or worried about his stomach for lack of food.

"Cultural Foods" is a special topics course being offered this semester through BSU's Home Economics department. With emphasis on actual food preparation, the course is also designed to acquaint students with cultural values, nutrition, and history of foods from other countries.

Students spend two hours per week learning how to prepare various dishes in the lecture sessions and then spend 2 hours on Fridays preparing foods from other lands.

Every other Friday brings a special treat - a full course meal designed, prepared and then shared by the class members in a regular sit-down dinner.

The first such full course dinner featured foods from Scotland. Everything ethnic from kidney pie, "bubble and squeak" - a cabbage and potato dish - to oak cakes and a beautiful dessert cake "trifle" was laid out before the class to be discussed, admired and mostly happily eaten.

'Great Godot'

By John Elliott

Though WAITING FOR GODOT is one of those plays that everyone should see at least once, it remains to be one of the great cliches in contemporary theatre. The BSU Theatre Arts department's production of the Samuel Beckett 'dinosaur' is admirable to say the least.

Eric Bishoff as Estragon is an absolute amazement. Mr. Bishoff has grown so much over the past year from his immature portrayal of Biff in DEATH OF A SALESMAN to a seasoned performer in GODOT.

Bruce Richardson as Vladimir, the crotch-scratching Gabby Hayes side-kick, is a real wizard throughout his characterization. It is apparent from his performance that he enjoys the character immensely, but even more importantly he understands the character's objectives.

Pat Nance as the 'bullish' Pozzo carries the role under his arm like a carpet waiting for the appropriate moment to unroll his weight upon whomever is in the way. The inherent 'bastardliness' in Pozzo is amplified by the imposing personage of Mr. Nance.

Elizabeth Streiff as the long-suffering Lucky is physically suited to the part, but her vocal characteristics leave much to be desired. Her rapidity of speech is distracting during her only monologue, which goes on for five minutes. Though her vocal mannerisms are inadequate her overall performance is magnificently controlled and enormously watchable.

Carol Prettyman as the Child is arrestingly believable. Her innocently angelic appearance gives a freshness to the play when the dialogue has climaxed.

Kudos to Frank Heise for his lighting design. The use of lights in this production is an entertainment in itself.

Roger Bedard's setting design is rather cartoonish in appearance, but coupled with the excellent use of lights becomes as cold and forbidding as a runaway ice-berg melting into a 'dungheap' world.

This play, long held as the darling of the intellectual effettists, was Larry West's first directing assignment at the Sub'al. His superb slap in the face via the old vaudeville stunts, slap-stick stchicks and snappy patter brought the dullness of the 'Absurdist's Syndrome' to life. This reviewer believes that this shot in the arm is just what the college community's theatre needs.

GODOT will continue through Feb. 8 at the Sub'al Theatre. BSU students are admitted free of charge, but a reservation is necessary. Reservations may be obtained by calling 385-1462 during regular business hours (3:00-6:00).

Special Events Chairman calls Statesman 'premature'

Randy Birkinbine, Homecoming and Special Events Chairman for the ASBSU Student Union Program Board, was quoted in the January 28 Idaho Daily Statesman as saying that several large food companies have agreed to donate commodities for a 'special event' to transpire April 2 as a part of the Easter Seal campaign.

According to the Statesman article, Birkinbine stated that representatives of the Guinness

Book of World Records, Oscar Meyer Meats and possibly Wonder Bread Co. would be on hand to film the event--the preparation of a 400 foot sandwich.

This event is to be followed by the consumption of a 600-pound ice cream cone.

Birkinbine is then quoted as saying that BSU is trying to enlist actor Robert Redford as Master of Ceremonies for the day's events. Birkinbine, though he does not deny certain plans and possibilities, feels that the Statesman has jumped the gun and hurt chances of the activity ever transpiring. He stated that the whole "damn" mess could negate all the work that has already gone into the planning and negotiations for the event.

"Big companies don't get off on this kind of tinkering with their public image," said Birkinbine. "I hope that the Statesman's lack of integrity doesn't hurt our part of the Easter Seal campaign."

BSU senior interviewed for scholarship

Beth Musser, a senior biology major at Boise State, has returned from Salt Lake City, Utah where she was interviewed February 2 as an applicant for the prestigious Danforth Graduate Fellowship Program.

According to Dr. William Mech, the Danforth liaison at BSU, she was one of 300 in the nation selected for the final interview. Musser was first nominated by Boise State University for the fellowship.

Awaiting her, should she be selected, is a four-year, all expenses paid scholarship to the graduate institution of her choice.

The Danforth, says Mech, is one of the most respected fellowship programs in the United States. Dr. Yojo Takeda of the Boise State math department is a Danforth scholar.

Foreign Films list coming attractions

The Foreign Films Committee brings to BSU a taste of the erotic from other cultures by means of the works of talented directors. Each Friday night throughout the semester a new film and sometimes a short subject will be presented free of charge in LA106.

Films planned for this semester include RED PSALM with a short film THE FACE; THE CONFORMIST with a short flick, THE HITCH HIKER; I AM CURIOUS (YELLOW) with a cartoon, THANK YOU MASKED MAN; MACUNA-IMA with ROPE TRICK; CAPRICIOUS SUMMER with VIOLINIST; CAMPANERAS AND CAMPAN; EROS plus REMINISCES OF A JOURNEY TO LITHUANIA; ISA-BEL; LOVES OF A BLOND with NIGHT CATS; THE BAILIFF with WARGAMES; TERRE EM TRANSE; ALEXANDER NEVSKY with WHY DO YOU SMILE? MONA LISA?; WEDDING IN BLOOD; and WEDDING IN WHITE.

The films come from a range of countries including the African continent, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, France, Japan and Russia.

The committee has room for a few more working members. Those students interested in working with Foreign Films, including the choice of next year's schedule, may apply at the Program's Board office in the Student Union Building.

J.D. Salinger reviewed

by Aleta Fairchild
J. D. Salinger, known mainly for The Catcher In The Rye, has written other novels which are just as deserving of attention. Franny and Zooey is another laurel for the contemporary master of sarcasm.

Franny and Zooey are a brother and sister in the intriguing and unnerving Glass family. The Glass children, Buddy, Franny, Zooey, Seymour (deceased) and the rest, were so precocious that they were chosen panelists for the radio show It's A Wise Child. (circa 1927-1943)

This novel deals with Franny and Zooey's spiritual and mental traumas on the road to maturity. It deals with the family's method of coping with the guilt and sadness caused by Seymour's suicide. But even more, it deals with the universal ridiculousness of young men and women searching for "The Answer" to the fundamental questions of life.

Salinger's fictional characters are comic, tragic, and real enough to identify with easily. His friendly ridicule helps people laugh at how silly they actually are sometimes.

Music department news

Glen Grant, James Dobson, and Donald Walkup, music majors at Boise State University recently traveled to Spokane, Washington, to enter the district competition of the Metropolitan Opera Northwest Regional Auditions. All three men are voice majors, students of William Taylor, and have performed in the BSU Meistersingers, Chorale, and Opera Theater during the past four years.

Center, which features young artists, has invited him to perform in their recital hall in Seattle on April 13, 1975.

Enlow is a major in Piano Performance and studies with Madeleine Hsu of the BSU faculty. He is a 1974 graduate of Capitol High School, and is on the Dean's list at the university.

The Boise State University Percussion Ensemble and Keyboard Percussion Ensemble, both directed by Dr. John Baldwin, have been selected to perform at the Northwest Regional Music Educators National Conference Convention in Spokane, Washington, on February 15. Their performance there will be the highlight of a 3-day concert tour through western and northern Idaho and eastern Oregon.

Charles Enlow, Jr., a freshman in the honors program at Boise State University, recently won the state piano auditions of the Collegiate Artist Competition sponsored by the Music Teachers National Association. He is now eligible to compete in the Northwest Division auditions to be held in February. The Seattle Battelle Research

Broncos split Big Sky weekend; to travel to Ogden, Flagstaff

by Michael Conroy

The Boise State Broncos travel away this weekend after a home stand that left their record at 10-7 (3-2 in the Big Sky) to play NAU and Weber State in two more conference games.

Led by the outstanding play of Terry Miller and James Smith Connors' Cagers nudged by Weber State Friday night 81-76. The Broncos played without the services of their league-leading scorer Pat Hoke, who missed the game due to a hip injury he received in the Gonzaga - Idaho series. His spot was taken up by two Broncos, Mark Christianson and Kip Newell. The two Bronco reserve split time at the center position and scored 18 points and pulled down 14 rebounds. They did a very good job as Hoke's game averages are 20.2 points and 9.3 rebounds. Christianson, a freshman from Portland, Oregon, started the game and responded with 10 points and 5 rebounds. He looked a little nervous at first but settled down and performed well. Newell, who came off the bench to relieve Christianson popped for 8 points and dragged down 9 rebounds.

The rest of the slack was taken up by Miller and Smith, who scored 25 and 23 points respectively. Miller's rough house style of play may have pulled the game out of the fire for the Broncos when the contest was still young. With 12:12 to play in the first half the Wildcats of Weber were leading 9-4. Miller came down court and fed to Christianson who hit from the corner to make it 9-6. Miller then stole the ball as soon as it came in bounds and gave it to James Smith who drove it in for a 9-8 score. Still Miller decided it was not enough as he once more stole the ball and this time put it up himself to give the Broncos a 10-9 lead. Miller went on to play the entire game with this type of flair.

Smith was equally impressive. Along with his 23 points he single-handedly destroyed the Wildcats fast break. Twice it looked as if Weber was going for sure baskets via their fast break when Smith displayed a fast break of his own. He foiled both of Webers' attempts, once by getting in super position and forcing a bad shot and the other time he "smoked" the ball out of the hands of the surprised Wildcat. Weber made it a close one on the effort of Jim Watts who scored 29 points and 14 rebounds. But it was not enough as Boise State out shot the Wildcats from the floor 50 per cent to 41 per cent. Other Broncos aiding the cause were Steve Connor with 8 and Trent Johnson with 7.

Boise State played a team that would not foul and saw a last ditch rally fade as NAU defeated the Broncos 86-85 in a conference game Saturday night in the Bronco gym. Committing infractions was not on the Lumberjack's game plan as they sent Boise to the charity stripe only 12 times during the entire night. The Lumberjacks made 32 trips via Boise State miscues. The Broncos did not get a chance for a freebie until there was just 2:57 left in the first half. They missed it. They got another chance with 45 seconds to go in the first half but they missed that one as well. On the other side of the court NAU got 8 chances with 3:30 in the half and made all 8 to take a commanding 47-39 lead at the intermission.

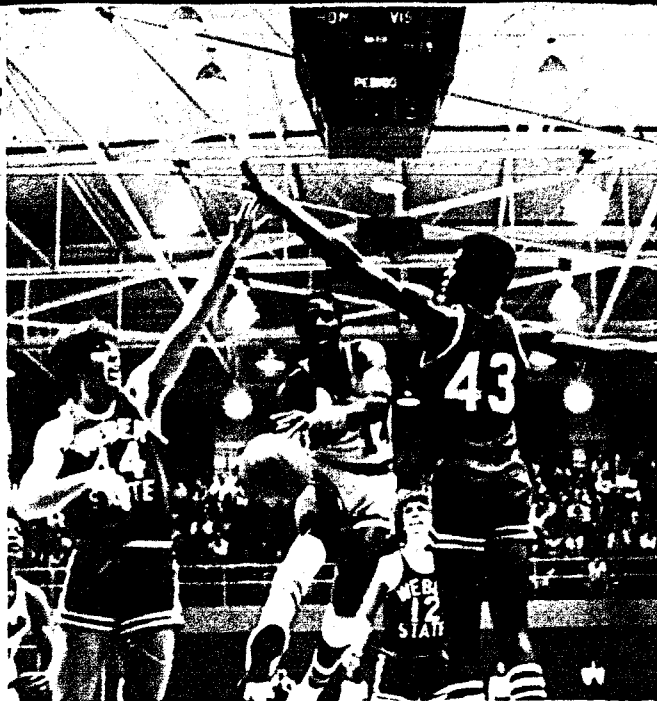

The Lumberjacks, led by the 25 point performance of Nate Payne exploded at the beginning of the second period of play to lead by as much as 15 points. Terry Miller, James Smith and Mark Christianson put on a rush that pulled the Broncos within one at 81-82 and almost snatched out a victory.

Christianson, who was again starting in the place of injured Hoke played an excellent game. He scored 12 points (10 in the first half) and had 4 rebounds. Christianson's defense was his strong point as he would not allow any of the NAU players to shoot when they entered the domain of his zone. As in the night before when Christianson needed a rest Kip Newell would come off the bench and perform admirably. Newell popped for 6 points, 6 rebounds and had two tremendous blocked shots. Twice the NAU team tried to shoot over Newell only to have the ball come right back at them due to Newell's efforts. Newell and Christianson combined for 18 points and 10 rebounds, a super effort by both men. Miller and Smith once again were the leading scorers, as they each had 18 points. Trent Johnson pulled in a nights high 13 rebounds along with 15 points and Steve Connor added 16 points. What cost the Broncos the game was really something that they had no control over. The Lumberjacks just would not foul enough to the Broncos' advantage Connors' Cagers hit on 9 of 12 free throws but NAU made twice as many freebies as the Broncos had a chance at. The 24 free throws that the Lumberjacks connected on proved fatal as two of them were put in by NAU's Nate Payne with just 33 seconds remaining to give the "JACJs" a 86-83 lead. James Smith hit the bucket at the buzzer, but it wasn't enough as NAU pulled out a 86-85 squeaker over the Broncos.

Three Bronco seniors chosen in NFL draft

Three seniors from Boise State's championship football team will have a chance to continue their careers as they were selected in the annual NFL draft held last Tuesday and Wednesday in New York.

Rolly Woolsey, Jim McMillan and Ron Franklin were selected in the sixth, fourteenth and fifteenth rounds, respectively.

Woolsey, a 6'1", 180 pounder from Grandview, was chosen by the Dallas Cowboys, who were impressed with his 4.3 40 speed which aided him in producing a league-leading punt return average of 10.7 yards in 27 returns.

"I just hope that I can do my best," Woolsey said about his chance to play.

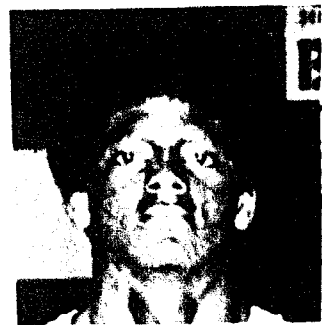

Jim McMillan, Boise State's All-American quarterback from Caldwell, was picked in the fourteenth round by the Detroit Lions. "I am really happy about the chance to play, and I hope that I can work hard to make it," McMillan said. "It's something that I've thought about and I am excited to give it a try," he added.

Ron Franklin, the Broncos' 6'8", 240 pound defensive tackle, was taken in the fifteenth round by the St. Louis Cardinals. Although he only played two years of college ball, his size combined with his intensity and ability to stay low were definite factors in the decision.

"I am really happy about the whole thing, it's something that I've dreamed about since I was kid," said Franklin. "I plan to give it a 100 per cent effort and I just hope that I won't be disappointed," he added.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

TRENT JOHNSON

Trent Johnson is the second leading rebounder on the BSU team with a 8.6 average. The freshman from Seattle, Washington, has a 10.2 scoring average through 14 games and was leading rebounder in last week's game against U of I with 18. Trent chose to attend Boise because he wanted to get in on a good rebuilding program. The 6'5" forward played football in his earlier years, switching to basketball in the 9th grade. Trent feels the only real difference between teams in his native area and this area is the lack of big men 6'1" or above. As far as the Broncos go, he feels this year's team is as good as any in the Big Sky, and in future years they will definitely be title contenders.

Trent is majoring in P.E. and hopes someday to play pro basketball, or "anything as long as it's with a basketball". He likes to watch basketball on TV in his spare time, along with listening to the Isley Brothers.

DAN JONES

Dan Jones is still nursing his right foot that was injured against Utah State a few weeks ago. He expects to have the cast off in 2 1/2 weeks, and wants to get back on the court as soon as possible. Dan has a 4.4 scoring average for 11 games, and comes to BSU from Compton, California, where he was an All-CIF selection senior year. The 6'6" freshman chose Boise State because of it's Art program.

Dan is optimistic towards the Broncos' chances now and in the years to come. He feels that with more experience plus the new recruits from this year's high school crop, BSU will be definite contenders in the coming seasons. Dan has played basketball since his second year in high school, and hopes to play pro ball someday. In his spare time he likes to listen to soul music, and also think about how glad he'll be when he gets to suit up again.

Cindermen prepare for busy 1975 schedule

by Rick Christian

Although most people are still sporting long underwear, complaining about the weather, and using Ben-Gay by the tub full, the BSU thinclads have begun preparations for what appears to be their most promising season ever.

Formal practice started January 15 and 48 bodies showed up including everyone from last year's squad, except all conference triple jumper, Jerry Bell. He will be back though, as an assistant to BSU's outstanding, all-everything head track coach, Ed Jacoby.

When Jacoby first came to BSU in 1973, he inherited a track program that had just finished a dismal, disappointing last in the conference. Then in just one year, he brought the Bronco's from the cellar to the runner-up spot in the conference standings, garnered Coach of the Year honors in both track and crosscountry, and left everyone wondering what he eats for breakfast.

"This season he is shooting for national ranking and recognition as well as the Big Sky championship. Both goals are attainable since the team has gained much depth and stability through recruiting. With the rest of the squad returning after a year's experience, the potential is almost unlimited. In the past, many members of the team had to compete in three and even four events; they had to pace themselves in order to save something for the events later in the meet. Now they can concentrate on their specialty, and as Ken Carter,

BSU's school record holder in the long jump, puts it, "We can prepare ourselves mentally, and then really explode."

Along with his progressive attitudes and practices, Coach Jacoby has also brought a number of excellent athletes with him from southern California. Although he is a graduate of the University of Idaho, he coached at the Junior College of the Canyons and is well aware of that area's potential as a recruiting source. One athlete who has been with Coach Jacoby for all four years of his college career is Howard Hawkenberry, the school record holder in the 880 yard run.

After suffering through what he felt was a below par performance at the close of last season, Howard is optimistic about his chances for this season and hopes to set a personal best below (1:50.0). Another Californian who holds a school record is Sam Jenkins. He has posted a 9.4 second clocking in the 100 yard dash, and will probably join forces with Karl Bartell, Roland Woolsey, and Carter to form the 440 yard relay team.

At the beginning of Jacoby's tenure as head coach, there was some resentment towards the Californians by the other athletes, but this was just an initial reaction and now a special atmosphere of "oneness in purpose" reigns over the team. The closeness that has developed on the squad is largely attributable to Jacoby. He is a personable man who sincerely has the welfare of the team members in mind. He gives individualized instruction to those athletes in each event and also constructs a daily workout schedule for them to follow. These schedules outline the training program for each athlete and are tailored to meet his own specialized needs. In this way Coach Jacoby puts into practice the basic aspect of his coaching philosophy, which is: to help each athlete to acquire as much knowledge about his particular event as possible.

Even though he tends toward reservation when talking of the outlook for this season, occasionally a pleasant smile will spread across his face and leads one to believe that the future must actually look pretty bright. Injuries will be an important factor in determining the outcome of this season, but so will the mental attitudes of the team members. On March 25, the Broncos will compete in a four-way meet with the University of Washington, U. of California (Berkeley), and Cal Poly. This will give Jacoby a chance to evaluate his personnel in relation to the California schools and will allow the team an opportunity to flex their muscles in some good weather. As far as mental attitude is concerned Ken Carter pretty well sums it up.

"Ed Jacoby is a hell of a coach, not only that, he is a hell of a man." The season does indeed look bright.

Boise State's Mike Bennett clears a hurdle in preparation for the 1975 season. The Broncos' first meet is March 25 in California.

Young claims Chandler "best overall wrestler"

by Rob Lundgren

"Dave Chandler is probably one of the most fascinating and exciting wrestlers to watch in the nation." These are the words of Boise State's wrestling coach Mike Young. Although statements such as this are made most everyday, Young's praise of Chandler isn't idle rhetoric. Young has competed throughout much of the United States with some experience internationally. He has wrestled some of the worlds finest wrestlers, as he once took third in the World Games.

According to Young, "Dave's main objective in wrestling is to go for the pin." Chandler's aggressive style is evident in the fact that he has twice been named the most valuable Wrestler in the Big Sky Conference. If records and statistics are an indication, he has a good chance of setting a conference record of three such titles.

This year, thus far, Chandler has placed second in the Arizona Invitational Tournament, second in the Mountain Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Tournament and was the champion of the Beehive Tourney. He has lost only one dual match and remains undefeated in conference action.

On a national scale, Young states that "Chandler has the potential to go as far as he wants in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tournament in March."

Coach Young is not alone on his views of Chandler's aggressiveness. Last year, his teammates chose him as recipient of the Competitor Award. Young added that "Chandler is the best overall wrestler on the squad this year."

When Chandler was confronted with the question of how he felt he would do nationally, he replied, "I'm as good as any if I want to be. I can do it. I just can't make mistakes." As for the conference, Chandler was confident in Boise State's hopes for another conference crown. "We have as good a chance as any," he stated. "We're as tough as our team last year. We just can't make little mistakes and get caught flatfooted. If we wrestle like we should, there's no reason we can't be in the top ten in the nation."

And, as if Chandler didn't know better, Friday evening's victory over San Francisco State was highlighted by his 17-0 shalacking of his opponent in the 167 pound class.

Women cagers reach midseason

by Johna Reeves

The Boise State women's basketball team has been playing pretty good defense all season, and that could be one of the reasons for their flawless record. The women reached the midpoint of their season last Tuesday night, defeating Northwest Nazarene 64-34 in Nampa. Boise managed to grab most of the rebounds over their taller opponents, despite frequent turnovers had a well balanced scoring attack. Deanna Brower scored 16 points. Joanne Burrell snatched 15 rebounds and had 14 points.

At the helm of the women's team is Coach Connie Thorngren, who with a lot of hard work and determination has put together some pretty tough basketball teams in the past as well as an outstanding one this year. She relies on a constant team effort and desire from her players and this year that's just what she's got. This year's team as described by Coach Thorngren consists of the following women: Deanna Brower, the only senior, who is a good outside shooter averaging 8 points per game, gets her share of rebounds and has made a lot of improvement this year; Kendra Falen, sophomore co-captain, who plays excellent on defense, and has a good inside jump shot averaging 7 point per game; Elaine Elliott, sophomore co-captain, who is the defensive leader, an excellent ball handler, and is a very good shot averaging 11 points per game; Joanne Burrell, freshman who puts excellent shooting together with her ability to drive to lead the team in scoring with an average of 16 points per game while leading the team in rebounding; Elaine Godfrey, sophomore who plays good defense, second in team rebounding, has a nice jump shot, averaging 6 points per game; Bette Will, 6'2" sophomore who is the tallest member of the team, is good on defense and is developing a good shot; Maureen Hirai, 5'2" junior who is the shortest team member, but has good timing and uses it to out rebound her taller opponents, and is a very good shooter; Connie Coulter, a junior who is a good ball handler and makes most of her points on the fast break; Karla Merrill, freshman who is coming along and has a nice outside shot; Cindy Fralck, junior who is an excellent outside shooter, and remains cool headed in a press situation; Bev Ballard, sophomore who has made improvement on defense and has developed a better shot; and Theresa Anderson, freshman who is developing into an excellent offensive player, pulling down offensive rebounds and sticking with it for the shot. Each member of the team sees her share of action and the contributions of each member help make the team as strong as it is.

NCAA springs bad news on women's athletic programs

by Tim Ritter

Some bad news sprang forth concerning women's athletics during the recent NCAA convention, as 954 delegates from around the country gathered to review college athletics. The delegates did a lot of talking about women's athletics and their financing, but things started happening for real when the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women stepped in and henpecked the NCAA. The results were nothing startling, but the stink raised by the AIAW showed that something positive should be done for women athletic programs, and soon.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, stated that he favored starting women's sports at the club level, ignoring the fact that ladies sports are already on a firm basis in many places, and that the AIAW was already sponsoring eleven title events. Byers also stated that he did not consider the women's 2 per cent share of funds spent on all athletics inadequate.

The discussion really started last year when representatives of the NCAA and the AIAW met to discuss some sort of merger. Soon after the meetings, the NCAA went out and adopted its own policy for a women's program to be run almost exclusively by men. So, when a Byers assistant faced the AIAW convention in Houston, the delegates fired up a torrent of questions which were mainly skirted by the NCAA assistant to Byers. Finally, bending under steady pressure from Houston, the NCAA delegates passed a resolution for a joint committee to study women's athletics, and report back to the convention in 1976. It isn't much, but it is a start. If the committee reports back honestly to the committee, then the true plight of women's athletics will be out in the open, and the girls should then naturally be in for a bigger slice of the pie, funding wise. Times are changin' for the better, at least for women's sports.

It took longer than expected by most people, but Jim McMillan was finally drafted by the Detroit Lions, in the 14th round of the NFL draft last Wednesday. McMillan was joined by BSU teammates Rolly Woolsey and Ron Franklin. Woolsey, a speedy defensive safety, was grabbed off in the 6th round by the Dallas Cowboys, while the defensive behemoth Franklin was taken by the St. Louis Cardinals in the 15th round. The draft picked a total of 442 collegians during the two-day affair. We at Boise State can now only remember the pleasure that those three were to watch in action, and wish them the best of luck in their careers. For Franklin, the move from basketball to football has turned out to be a wise one, and the Sacramento, California native may have a great career ahead of him in pro football.

Other teams participating in the journey from BSU are men's and women's table tennis, men's and women's billiards, and the chess team. [Photo by Dan Coughran].

Grapplers defeat San Francisco ; to vie with WSU Wednesday

The Boise State matmen lost only two matches and rolled to a 24-10 win over San Francisco State Friday evening in the Bronco gym. The victory over the bay area team marked only the third time in 21 days the BSU wrestlers have competed on their home grounds.

The latter part of their road trip did prove very successful for Coach Mike Young's grapplers as Boise State placed fourth in the Mountain Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Tournament and defeated Big Sky opponents Idaho State and Weber State. ISU had high hopes of upsetting defending conference champs BSU, but were stymied in their efforts to regain the crown they lost last year.

With the recent 33-9 drubbing of Weber State and a 23-16 loss handed to the ISU Bengals, Boise State now boasts a 4-0 slate in conference action.

BSU's recent road trip was much concern for Coach Young as the Bronco's traveled throughout Oregon, Montana, Utah and Idaho. "Despite the rough schedule we have had the last three weeks," Young commented, "I'd say we did a super job. It was a great effort for the guys, considering what they have gone through."

The only other road trip hampering the Bronco's future is a four-day venture into Colorado and Wyoming during February. As for the recent one, Young stated that his wrestlers rose to the occasion and didn't let the team down.

In wrestling news for this week, the BSU grapplers will play host to Washington State on Wednesday, North Idaho on Friday and a Saturday evening match against Coach Young's Alma Mater, Brigham Young University. All three bouts will begin at 7:30 p.m., with exhibition matches preceding the varsity bouts.

Learn to land a jet here and you can land one anywhere.

Bringing in a supersonic jet on a 10,000 ft. cement runway is tough enough. But landing one on a 500 ft. piece of a carrier deck, moving at 25 knots, is even tougher. Only a few men are good enough to do it. And they're all Navy trained. How can you become a member of the Naval Air team? One way is to join while you're still in college. One of the advantages of being part of the Aviation Reserve Officer Candidate (AVROC) Program is that it lets you continue working toward your degree.

Getting your Navy Wings isn't easy. The training is tough. The least that will be expected of you is the best that other pilots can do. Their limits are your starting blocks, their expertise your primer. But if you succeed, your future is assured whether you remain in the Navy or not.
