Pre-registration examined

Dr. John Barnes made a very refreshing observation at the Freshman Orientation, that unfortunately, is all too true. He stated that "The job of a new student is to get enrolled in the courses which he has chosen." It was true, if he so chooses. Music and learn how to finger new courses were Elementary. Included were some personnel who could not find their way out. They promised to be dull. We were n标题财委, financial aids, while some are in policemen instead of personnel. This plan eliminates the hassle currently present and actually adds a few benefits.

A class is post-arranged, which means that the courses can be arranged to open new sections beforehand instead of waiting the afternoon of the second day of registration. A small down payment would be required to hold a slot here in the course. Fees could be paid at the regular time, the end of August. Freshmen and transfer students would still have to register at the end of August, but the number of people trying to register at once would be cut drastically.

The number of students attending Boise State gets larger every year. It would be a good investment for the registrars office to at least check out a new type of registration system because the time is coming when the old one won’t work.

EXCUSES, EXCUSES, EXCUSES

The ASBSU senate screamed last spring when student body president Nate Kim brought them an appointment schedule which was not good through "proper channels," namely Personnel Selection Committee. The senate refused to consider Kim’s appointments until Personnel Selection had interviewed all candidates and made their recommendations to the president. Kim sent his appointments through the committee. Score one for the senate.

However, this year the senate seems to have reversed its policy. Several appointments for key positions, including Public Relations Director, have been approved without going through Personnel Selection. The senate didn’t ask Kim for his appointments committee was not utilized.

Kim said, "I didn’t take any recommendations from Personnel Selection, a committee he describes as "vitally important to the ASBSU," because the board had interviewed all members even though committee members were available during the summer. If they don’t meet in the summer, they get behind. There were several instances of bad judgment. I would recommend people whom I felt would do the best job for the ASBSU. people can get along with. I will refrain to the Freshman Success Program and the Freshman Senate. These programs have been approved by the senate, and we won’t be able to accomplish anything that needs to be done during the year," Kim added. "Personnel Selection will have to be replaced if they don’t work.

John Steppe, director of the committee says Personnel Selection didn’t meet because "Kim didn’t ask us to." He explained, "This committee is at the discretion of the president. We don’t meet unless the president directs us to meet. We are only an advisory body, we make recommendations and make recommendations only when the president asks for our assistance. He can totally disregard our recommendations if he so chooses."

Excuses aside, it’s time the senate took steps to investigate the role of this "vitaly important" committee. If the ASBSU senate and the president are so no longer interested in utilizing a committee to conduct interviews and make recommendations, then the Personnel Selection committee should be dissolved, not ignored.

The Registration and Parking problems on BSU are going exquisitely well. Perhaps, another Arbitrary Scholarship fund will do them in.

The History Department offered a course on the Presidency of the United States. It was taught by Dr. John H. Dirksen, a former member of the faculty. Some members of the faculty were not sure if the course would be successful. However, the course was well received by the students.

The course, "The Presidency as a Reflection of Society," was offered as an elective course for students majoring in history. The course covered the history of the American presidency from the time of George Washington to the present day.

Membership question to be resolved

During the national convention of Alpha Kappa Psi the main issue, as expected, was female membership. Due to Title IX legislation, it was apparent that a simple vote to open the fraternity for women would not solve any of the problems that have plagued the fraternity chapters around the country. It was decided to submit a bill to congress in September seeking federal legislation. In consideration of the trend in our society, a resolution was passed asking AKA to continue to seek expansion of legislation from Title IX. If the fraternity appears that the bill is not going to pass, or does not pass, the national executive board has the power to change the constitution to delete the words "male only" or before June 30, 1970.

At this time, I respectfully submit that the State Board of Regents call a meeting of all Omicron Chapter since the matter will be resolved, one way or the other, within the next ten months.

English Department files suit

According to a report released by the Human Rights Commission, there are salary differences in the English Department at Boise State because of sex discrimination. The report came as a result of a suit filed by 16 English instructors alleging discrimination within the Department.

The instructors filing suit were: Stuart Everett, James Hadden, Ross Nickerson, Glen Selander, James Maguire, Carol Mullany, Richard Sanderson, Richard Leathy, Margaret Peck, Louise Ackley, Sherry Maguire, Dean Townsend, Orvis Burnmaster, Kathleen Warner, Margaret Cocottis and Lonnie Willis.

Among the contentions of the suit were that discrimination does exist on the basis of sex because compensation of faculty within the different departments of the University is influenced by the number of female faculty within that department. The suit also questioned whether faculty in other departments receive lower salaries because of the higher proportion of female faculty.

The commission found that during the past 10 years, male and female faculty members of the English Department have received a lower average salary than faculty in 18 other departments at Boise State. The Commission further found that the 1974-75 female faculty were concentrated in nine departments: nursing, English, Societal and Urban Studies, health and physical education, foreign languages, art, social work, allied health and library. The average salary for these departments in the lower grade of the salary spectrum at Boise State is 24.3 percent below the average for male faculty.

Although the Commission found that discrepancies do exist, they also stated that discrimination on the basis of sex has "historically been a significant determinant of departmental salary differences". They further stated that the University acts primarily on the basis of supply and demand, when establishing salary schedules.

The Commission concluded that there are a number of other factors which release the University from responsibility for its practices. The report stated that Boise State is acting out of "business necessity" when establishing salary schedules which perpetuate discrimination.

According to the Commission, "business necessity is a valid reason to allow some discrimination when establishing salaries for various professions."

Ross Nickerson, one of the 16 complainants, stated he was satisfied with the decision. "It was a place to try out our argument. I thought it was a pretty successful." Nickerson stated that as a victory for the administration, "it was terribly hollow."

Carol Mullenay said that the Commission's "approach was favorable to our position," but that the Commission had no power of enforcement.

James Hadden also felt the suit accomplished a purpose. "They confirmed our ideas."

The group does, however, plan to pursue the idea further.

Works presented at Boise Gallery of Art

An exhibit of four well-known Idaho artists present eight works of art by each. The show at the Boise Gallery of Art opened Wednesday, August 27 and will run through September 24. The artists include painter Johna Crenk, Moscow, painter David Holinger, Boise, Photographer Ken Jeppesens, Twin Falls, and sculptor Don Joslyn, Lewiston.

Running concurrently is an exhibit of four well-known English Department photographers. Some of Boise's leading photographers, including Margaret Cocottis, Lonnie Burmaster, Kathleen Warner and James Hadden also felt the suit was a victory for the administration. "It was terribly hollow."

These photos, demonstrating that a picture is worth at least 1,000 words, are presented by James Stein, Henry Gabel, Kenneth Perrier, and David Frater. These men are well known in the area for capturing newsworthy events in film.

The Eight by Four Exhibit and Boise Press Photographers Show are open to the public Tuesday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday from 12 noon to 5 p.m. The Gallery is closed Mondays.

Radiologic Technology option may become possible

Students contemplating health science studies at Boise State University may soon have a new option to choose from, according to Dr. Victor H. Duke, according to Dr. Duke, because the accuracy of a diagnosis may depend on the quality of the radiographs produced for examination by the attending physician.

Like most other members of the allied health professions, radiologic technologists must pass a certification examination in order to be registered for practice by the American Medical Association. The BSU program will combine academic grounding with the clinical experience necessary to qualify students in the health sciences.

According to Dr. Duke, standards for radiologic technology are becoming more and more demanding as the profession becomes more complex. Modern technologists work with increasingly sophisticated equipment, and must understand the relation of their field to x-ray therapy, nuclear medicine, and new processes for producing images such as ultrasound.

Twenty students who have successfully completed the year of pre-professional studies will be admitted into the professional course, with admission based mainly on grade point average—Duke says that the limited number of students allowed in the program is set by the A.M.A., and is based on the number and kind of clinical facilities available in the area.

At one time, Duke says, hospitals directed education of all allied health personnel. The cost of this schooling was passed along to the patients. Now, however, the cost of health education programs is considered a more logical responsibility of all citizens, through the institutions of higher education.

The new program in radiology technology joins Medical Technology, Respiratory Therapy, and Medical Office Assistant in the Health Sciences Department of Allied Health Studies at Boise State.

Pre-professional Club plans September meeting

The Pre-professional Club has been organized for all Health Science students. If you are enrolled as a Health Science major, a meeting has been planned for Thursday, September 11, at 7 p.m. in the Minidoka Room of the SUB.

The purpose of the club is to provide information and encouragement to all students who are interested in a professional career in the health sciences. At this meeting plans for the year will be discussed, including field discussions, hospital tours, medical school tours, etc. Any suggestions will be appreciated. A slide-presentation entitled "Life of the Unborn" will be shown.

Freshman and sophomore students are strongly urged to attend. Guests are welcome.

Q. Who owns the Bookstore? A. Your Campus Store is a part of Boise State University responsible to the Vice President of Financial Affairs via the Director of Auxiliary Services.

Q. What is Your Campus Store pricing policy? A. All book prices are established by the publisher. All other merchandise is marked at the vendors' suggested retail price or, wherever possible, below the suggested retail price. A lucky discovery is a double sticker or crossout with a remarking that we were invoiced at the higher price, even though the vendor shipped us merchandise that was packaged or preprinted at a previously lower price. We do not raise prices on anything already in stock or received at the contracted price.

Q. Why are textbook prices so high? A. Textbooks are selected by the faculty. The Campus Store is merely the ordering agent. All book prices are established by the publisher. Textbooks are billed to us at the selling price less 20 per cent, plus transportation. Unsold textbooks must be returned to the publisher at our expense.

Q. What about other prices? A. Whenever possible we mark all merchandise slightly below "suggested retail price" as established by the manufacturer, wholesaler, or jobber from whom it was purchased.

Q. Why don't you sell at a discount? A. There are several reasons why we cannot presently sell at a discount: 1. We are a self-sustaining entity supported only by sales income. No Student Fees, No tax money, No funding of any kind goes to the Campus Store. Your Campus Store is the only university division that must be self liquidating. 2. After we pay for the books, supplies and general merchandise we must pay for all out overhead costs such as rent ($25,000 for fiscal year 1975-76), telephone, payroll, auditing, fixtures and other general business expenses. We are also paying an interest bearing note to the University. 3. Since approximately 70 per cent of our floor space and the greatest proportion of our payroll expense is invested in textbooks, we must sell high profit margin goods to offset textbook losses.

Q. Do you make a profit? A. For several years the bookstore lost money. Presently Your Campus Store is in a turn-around situation, but is not aiming at more than break-even.

The Community Conference on the Epilepsies which is being sponsored by the Health Sciences Steering Committee of Boise State University and the Idaho Epilepsy League is intended to be solution-oriented. A Plan of Action for the State of Idaho is to be synthesized from the recommendations drafted by task forces on the medical, legal, educational, and vocational implications of the epilepsies.

Therefore, your presence, as a decision-maker for the State of Idaho, is requested at the concluding session of the Conference on Monday evening (7-9 p.m.) in the Nes Perce Room of the Boise State Student Union Building.

Q. Is this healthy? A. Yes and no. Ideally we should strive for a 2.6 per cent year-end profit to set aside for future expansion and retain the capital to generate better systems and services but, realistically, our overhead expenses will not permit this.

Q. What about the future? A. Depending upon economic situations, enrollment, and the successful implementation of proposed internal changes, we hope to go on a rebate-to-students plan.

Q. What does that mean? A. At the close of school, the auditors will establish a percent-of-profit-for-rebate. Students will turn in their non-textbook receipts and the established percent-of-rebate will be paid in cash.

Your questions, comments, suggestions, and criticisms are always welcome. Please feel free to bring them to me anytime.

Veterans in a Changing World

'Staggering rate' of vets imprisoned

by Helen Christensen

"Out of 1.3 million men incarcerated in 460 federal and state penitentiaries, 48 per cent are veterans, mostly Viet Nam veterans. Out of the 192 veterans we've got here, 106 are veterans of the Viet Nam war. That's a staggering rate when you consider there's only 347 men inside this yard," stated Richard Percefull in a recent interview at the Idaho State Penitentiary where he is presently serving a prison sentence.

Percefull is the founder and president of Veterans in a Changing World, an organization of veterans who are presently serving prison terms at the Idaho State Penitentiary.

"We originally started this club to provide the veterans out here with a way to get together and find out what benefits they are eligible to receive. These men are entitled to receive their educational benefits through the G.I. Bill even though they are presently incarcerated in this institution. Veterans in a Changing World started out in November '74 with two members. We wrote to the Veteran's Administration asking for assistance but they weren't very interested in giving us information about our rights. It was Gary Bermosolo at BSI's Office of Veterans' Affairs that really helped us get this whole thing going. He came out and talked to us and told us about our rights and benefits and helped get the whole organization off the ground.

"When most guys first get out of the service, they really don't know what benefits they are entitled to. They know that they have the G.I. Bill, but they don't really understand that it entails. A veteran has ten years to take advantage of his education benefits. The veterans inside this prison can receive their monthly benefit check by going to school in the education department here at the prison," said Percefull.

"Some people think that men in prison should not be receiving this money since all their expenses like room and board are paid for by the state and taxpayers. But actually these guys who are pulling in a check every month are taking a great deal of the demand off the taxpayers because they're able to start supporting their families. They are getting an education and sending money home so their families no longer need welfare.

"This money also provides inmates with the opportunity to build up an account as part of their parole plan which enables them to get paroled from prison earlier so they can attend college when they get out," he explained.

"As an organization, Veterans in a Changing World started slow. It took a lot of time to get around the yard that we had something we could do for the veterans, something we could help them achieve. Once the information started circulating and people started coming to us and asking questions, we got more activity in the education department and more men working on their high school equivalency exams.

"The Veteran's Day Banquet which we held in June generated a lot of interest. The banquet provided an opportunity for members to invite their families and friends inside the prison compound for a day of activities including a banquet, guest speakers and inmate-provided entertainment. Our club paid all the expenses of the festivities and the dinner, even to the point of paying the guards' salaries so we could use the dining hall after hours.

"Out of this involvement and interest has come an organization which is significant not only to vets inside this prison, but also to people out in the community, the administration and education department. We've come a long way, and there's no telling where we could end up," Percefull added.

In a recent report compiled by the office of the Controller General of the United States entitled "Need For Improved Approach Efforts For Veteram In Prison Or On Parole, Boise is cited as having "an outstanding program of counseling of incarcerated veterans." The program they are referring to is BSU’s Office of Veterans’ Affairs work with the Veterans in a Changing World organization, according to Barry Bermosolo, director of BSU’s Veterans’ Affairs Office.

Outreach program helps prison vets adjust

“When our office became aware that a segment of veterans in this area, namely the men in the state penitentiary were not being provided with adequate counseling to inform them of their benefits we began visiting prisoners for a few hours,” said Bermosolo.

“None of the counselors at the prison would call us or one of their inmates needed information. When I met Percefull last November and he got his veterans club going, the number of men applying for their education grew tremendously. There has been so much interest generated there that we now need to have a trained veterans’ counselor with an office at the prison. BSU grad Pat Neeser has just recently established such an office at the Idaho State Penitentiary and will be working with these vets from now on,” he said.

Bermosolo explained that his office has four primary responsibilities to the veterans in this area. “First of all we strive to provide an outreach program within our service area to make these veterans aware of the benefits to which they are entitled.

“We also provide a counseling service for those veterans coming into the university. Often when a man is coming to college after serving in the armed forces, he will not have any friends on campus since the guys he grew up with got their education while he was serving his country. Many times, particularly in the case of men coming out of prison, they will have lost touch with their families. It is very likely that the veteran will have no disciplined study habits and no real exposure to the college level education system. He’s usually older than the average college student. All these things can make him feel like a stranger to the university.

“By providing guidance and counseling, we are able to assist the veteran as he goes through the registration process and help him find housing and financial aid if it is needed. Our office also provides remedial programs and has tutors with funds paid by the Veterans Administration. We also do a lot of recruiting, getting the veterans to come to BSU and take advantage of their educational benefits,” said Bermosolo.

Bob Hofer is one veteran who is presently taking advantage of his education benefits. Hofer is the former Vice-President of Veterans in a Changing World and the first member of that organization to be granted parole to attend BSU. Hofer was at BSU for the summer session and works in the Office of Veterans’ Affairs. He is presently acting as the outside coordinator for the Vets club, although he is now involved with Percefull or any other members of the group.

“Veterans in a Changing World opened a whole new life for me. When I first went to prison I had no future, no goals, no nothing. I was only interested in doing my time and getting out. I didn’t know what I was going to do when I got out, it’s hard to find a job when you’ve been typed and branded as a convict.

“When Percefull found out I was a veteran he kept after me to get my GED and start using my education benefits. I’d never considered college before, I just never thought I could back it. But when I started working at it and discovered that I could achieve something, it gave me a lot to look forward to. That’s the way the club works. Every man is working to get an education. We’re all working together to better ourselves, to plan and set goals for the future. That’s a quite a contrast to the prison system which survives off a man’s weaknesses.

“The people in the club give each other encouragement. When you see one guy make it, you begin to think maybe you can do it too. And the money helps a lot. It can get a job. Nobody wants to hire him. He can only do menial jobs. This is a really exciting prospect.

Interim house project needs combined efforts

the Veterans' Affairs office. If we're to continue to grow and expand as an organization we need the support of the public. The interim house is a big job and will take the combined efforts of a lot of people working together toward a common goal. I want to encourage the public to come and see us on Monday nights. They are open to the public if your name is submitted through Gary Bermann, our director of recreation.

Richard Schmidt, a member of the prison's education department staff stated that "The Veterans in a Changing World organization is definite asset to this institution. They've done a great job encouraging education. It is an 18 month period the number of inmates going to school while in prison has grown from four to 140. While Director of Education Dr. Steven Youngerman and I can't take part of the credit for this, the vets club has been a good influence in education," stated Schmidt.

The prison administration has not always approved of the Veteran's Club, according to J.C., a member who asked that he be not identified. "They (the administration) didn't want us to get together. They were afraid to let us ask anyone over our own lives. If we get together and started thinking for ourselves and planning our futures, they'd be looking control. They didn't want that," he stated.

The administration's major concern about this group," explained Schmidt, "in the money these veterans are receiving while pursuing their education. If a man has a lot of money in here, he can get by and do all right.

"There are drugs in any institution that you get into," stated Perzelfull. "There are homosexuals, there are all kinds of deviants; it's all there in the institution. But people had to have a cop-out some where. They had to have something to blame the drug situation on, and all these other problems on. So what they said was 'because the veterans are getting their money and because the veterans, especially those who were in Viet Nam, are drug users to begin with, they're to blame for the infiltration of drugs into this institution.' They had to have a cop-out," Perzelfull stated.

Schmidt explained, "I don't think that's specifically how the institution has rationalized this situation. But, they are seeing that large amounts of money within the individuals account could allow them more dealing," he stated. "The veterans have no place in the prison. They are not felons and they conveniently throw it about," said Perzelfull. "This money is either going home to their families or it's going into a broen account so that the man will walk out of here with enough to get him into school and provide some sort of adequate housing. The money is theirs legally, and they're not using it to purchase drugs," he added.

"The institution wants people to have clubs and social activities," explained Schmidt. "But you have to remember that the first priority that a prison has is to control the inmate's behavior. Any club is viewed by the institution as a loosening of control. You can't have a person that someone is responsible if you're going to control his behavior." he added.

"That sort of thinking just doesn't work," stated J.C. People are always looking for the worst in us. We're not the law breakers. We're law abiding people." he said.

"Just think where a man would be if he didn't have any money when he got out," said J.C. "They give you $15 when you walk out of this place. Where's that going to get you? You can't get a job and buy food and get transportation with it. You can't do anything. You just get so disgusted its not long before you're right back in a place like this." he said.

"With the vets club you know what you're going to do when you get out. By the time you walk out of this place you already have a place to live. You've got a future," he stated.

J.C. is currently out on parole and attending classes at BSU along with several other members of Veterans in a Changing World.

Senate Report

To pay or not to pay

by Helen Christensen

"Let's be careful not to cut our own throat," cautioned Lenny Hertling, senator from the School of Arts and Science, when Senator Howard Walsh, Health Science, introduced his plan to investigate student fees at a recent ASBSU Senate meeting.

"Students ought to have the power of the purse," Walsh said. "If students are going to be taxed, then they should not only know but be able to say whether or not they want to pay for a certain service. The state board of education made a decision to tax the students and this is subject to investigation. The schedule of mandatory fees that students must pay in order to attend BSU may not be entirely legal according to specific laws as set forth in the Idaho Codes. Students are getting ripped off by some of the mandatory fees, and an investigation of this practice is long overdue," he stated.

"Athletics, students health insurance and associated student body fees may not legally be mandatory. Money is power," Walsh said. "If students are going to be taxed, then they should not only know but be able to say whether or not they want to pay for a certain service and programs, I believe that in the long run this would make the college more responsive to the needs of the student," he added.

Welch explained to the senate that his investigation could lead to providing the student with the opportunity to decide for himself if student government is worth paying for. Senator Royanne Klein, Arts and Science, warned "let's be very careful with this, it could cause us a lot of trouble. ASBSU funding may be something we won't want to risk." Klein stated.

If student fees were given the option to pay for student government today, I would not do so," stated Welch. "Our present student government does not offer any significant programs that we need or want. If students were given the option to decide whether or not they wanted to pay for certain services and programs, I believe that in the long run this would make the college more responsive to the needs of the student," he added.

GENERAL INFORMATION RELATED TO SCHEDULE OF MANDATORY FEES

1. "No student who shall have been a resident of the state for one (1) year next preceding his admission shall be required to pay any fees for tuition in the university, excepting in a professional department and for extra studies." (33-291, Idaho Code) The intention of the law is clear; however, there has been a proliferation of fees which may in fact represent payment of tuition, and are not utilized in a "professional department" or for the provision of "extra studies." These fees have been increased by 50% during the last five years, he stated.

2. The State Board of Education is empowered "to borrow money and issue bonds and to provide for the payment of the same and for the rights of the holders thereof" and "to issue refunding bonds, for the purpose of paying, redeeming, or refunding said bonds, at such times and in such manner as the board shall deem advisable." Over 120 per cent of the fees which you will be compelled to pay are for other purposes and are not authorized by statute.

3. "Bonds shall be paid from fees, rentals, and other charges from students, faculty members, and others using the facilities of the university, from the issuance of warrants, dividends derived from the sale of bonds shall be paid to the state treasury but shall be deposited with banks and trust companies as designated by the Board." This is the only statement in the Polley Manual for Institutions of Higher Learning that describes the purposes for which fees may be used. (See page 925).

4. Although "Board approval must be secured prior to the establishment or alteration of student fees, room and board charges, etc.," it is specified that "institutional officers have the responsibility for developing procedures and criteria for receiving and accounting for student fees." (See page 705).

5. Only 20 per cent of students who had the right to vote participated in the A.S.B.S.U. general elections of 1975. About three thousand part-time students did not pay the A.S.B.S.U. fee and were disenfranchised.

Kimerling presents art exhibit!

Artist Kim Kimerling, a former Boise resident, will present a one-man exhibit Friday, September 5, through Friday, September 12, in the Ada Lounge of the BSU Student Union Building. The exhibit will also speak with classes at the Student Union Building. It runs from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays and 1-4 p.m. on Saturdays.

Kimerling's art, which has been exhibited in acrylic, oil, watercolors, macrame, sculpture, prints, weaving, ceramics, textile design, and stitcheries, is shown in the ADA Lounge.

Kimerling's art will contain paintings and examples of some of his latest work with hangings and soft sculpture.

Kimerling is represented in collections throughout the United States, in Alaska, Florida, Guam, South America, Africa, and Canada. His exhibitions have included shows in Idaho, Oregon, Washington, California, New York, Chicago, Texas, Florida. He has won awards in nine counties: watercolor, oil, acrylic pottery, sculpture, and mixed media. Kimerling is also a member of the Boise Art League, presenting multimedia performances interpreting dance, pushes, music, readings, and sculpture.

Kimerling's art is being made available to the Student Union Building.

Students needed for Bronco Marching Band

The Bronco Marching Band is looking for new students to join! The band is currently seeking trumpet, horn, baritone, and tuba players. Uniforms are available in all the brass sections (trumpet, horn, baritone, and tuba). For further information, please contact Dr. John Baldwin.

Begging of contagious infections on campus.

Q. How contagious is infectious mononucleosis? A. Despite its name as the "kissing disease," infectious mononucleosis is not contagious to any degree. It is spread from two members of a family at the same time, and persons who have been having intimate contact with each other. Isolation or avoidance of other people is not necessary.

Q. Is the Student Health Services program designed to take care of you if you have measles? A. Currently, dental care is the responsibility of the student. If you have measles, you must be diagnosed by a doctor and contact Dr. John Baldwin for further information.

Q. What is the best treatment for constipation? A. Use plenty of liquids and eat a high in bran and particularly those who are not, as well. We are not able to perform employment examinations and other such examinations which require a complete physical, and the student should seek medical care elsewhere for that kind of disease.

Changes made in ticket policy

There have been a few minor changes made in this year’s ticket policy for student sports fans this year. As before, no full-time Boise State student will be turned away from a home football game if he or she has a ticket, and every full-time student must be issued a ticket if he or she desires. Tickets will be available in the Information Booth in the SUB from Monday noon through Friday noon before each game, and also at the Varsity Center from Monday noon until game time the following Saturday.

A change is evident in the price and quantity of student ticket prices this year. Inflection is striking home with the new $1.50 guest ticket, but the change isn’t all bad. This year there are 2000 (as opposed to 1000 last year) guest tickets available which have been much sought after in the past. They will be available from Monday noon to Friday noon, and if they are not all picked up, they will be sold as general admission tickets on a first come, first serve basis. One in ten ticket is the limit for each full-time student per game, and proper identification must be presented upon purchasing. Part-time students will be required to purchase a guest ticket for entrance to the games. For those married students wishing to attend most of the home games, with their spouses, a student spouse activity card can be purchased at the Varsity Center for $10.00. This card will be honored for all regularly scheduled athletic events during the fall semester. It must be presented when picking up tickets for games. Those students purchasing a spouse activity card may not buy additional guest tickets after the Transaction has taken place.

Ticket Pickup Dates for home games are as follows:

- Sept. 13: Cal-State - Hayward
- Sept. 20: Cal-Poly - SLO
- Oct. 4: Montana State
- Oct. 18: U. of Nev. - Las Vegas
- Oct. 25: U. of Montana
- Nov. 1: Montana State
- Nov. 15: Utah State
- Nov. 19: Northern Arizona
- Nov. 26: U. of Montana

Board seeks members

The Intramural Office has announced that the Recreation Board is looking for members for the 1975-76 school year. Interested persons should make applications to the Personnel Selection Committee through the ASBSU offices on the second floor of the SUB.

A Friendly Face Far from Home.

Away from home. For the first time or the fifth time. You can always use a friend.

If you’re from one of 102 cities in the Intermountain Area, chances are First Security is your hometown bank.

When you come to school in a strange town, as far as we’re concerned, we’re still your hometown bank. Just as friendly, just as anxious and willing to help you as the bank you grew up with. We call it person-to-person banking. But it means we just want to be friends.

Come in and see us.

You have a long way to go.
We want to help along the way.

New seats added to Bronco Stadium

Students at the first BSU home football game will have additional seats because of the recent addition to Bronco Stadium. The seating arrangement gives students seats in the lower portion of the upper deck and the upper portion on the lower deck. All seats range from goal line to goal line.

There are approximately 3,830 tickets available for fall football games. Tickets will be sold as general admission tickets on Saturday, and guest tickets available for the combined total of 5,830 student and guest tickets. There are also 2,000 student guest tickets available for the games at a cost of $1.50. These are available Monday noon through Friday noon the week of the game.

At that time any tickets not yet sold to students, will be sold as general admission tickets on Saturday. A combined total of 5,830 student and guest tickets will be available for each home game.

Flag football, softball planned for fall

The 1975 Flag Football season is set for Monday, September 22. This fall the Intramural Office also has plans for a coed softball program.

The Bronco coaching staff welcomed back 42 lettermen at the man as we are reserved guard Toots Smith and Ray Hooft. Terry played behind Allof last season. -Weakside linebacker Mike Brayholdt. Taking the helm at the quarterback slot will be senior Lee Hury, who also saw some action in 1974. The offensive backfield will have a few familiar faces in 1975 in backs Ron Emly, Bob Cleveland, Tom Sims, John "Superredicate" Smith and Dan Blanc. Returning receivers include Mike "Motormouth" Holton, Bruce Pooley, John Crabtree, Clarence Smith and Rosolowski. Defensive back Ken West, wide receiver Ray Hooft and defensive tackle SaJa Misa. Jr.

The Broncos haven't started working on their kicking game as yet and as Knap puts it "there is a lot remaining to be done just in basic learning. We are basically still in the early process of learning how to play as a team on offense, and defense," he said.

Defensively speaking, the 1975 Broncos have five linemen returning in guards Glenn Sparks, and Jim Ryan and center Todd Whitman as well as reserve guard Toots Smith and Ray Hooft.
