Science-ed building rates 3 on top priority list

by Barb Bridwell

Phase II of the Science-Education Building is number three on the top list of priorities sent to the Permanent Building Fund Board by the Office of the State Board of Education.

In Group I, highest priority, Boise State's request for $3,350,000 to add phase II of the Science-Education Building is up for full funding by the next session of the Legislature. However, according to Max Boesiger of the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council, there is a great demand on the Building Fund, and they may only be able to partially fund Phase II of the building.

The Council has received a priority listing from all state agencies requesting a total of 57 million dollars. This must be cut back to 5.3 million, according to Boesiger.

The State Board of Education has recommended that the building be fully funded in the upcoming legislative session. The building when constructed, would allow the School of Education and the Counseling and Guidance Center to move from their present locations in the Library and would allow Library services to expand. It would also provide several general size classrooms and office space for use by other departments.

Another area up for funding is land acquisitions and the construction of a maintenance building to be located next to Central Receiving. These were placed in the second position in priority group II. This will be funded if there are enough surplus funds from Idaho's general fund budget and if the Legislature feels the project is worthwhile.

Also included in the report in priority group III, are requests of $3,500,000 for a second Liberal Arts Building to be located on the site of the present music auditorium.

Also recommended by the Board but not expected to receive priority consideration this session include $2,800,000 for a three-story addition to the Business Building; $2,500,000 for a Health Science Building; $1,200,000 for a two story addition to the Liberal Arts Building and $3,000,000 for a Women's Physical Education Building.

ASBSU Judiciary rules on FAB

The ASBSU Judiciary held their first formal meeting of the year last

Bob Davis

Thursday and considered two requests for interpretations and one complaint.

ASBSU Treasurer Ron Buchanan requested an interpretation of Senate Act 17 dealing with the Financial Advisory Board. The Act states that any "requests received by the Financial Advisory Board must be acted upon in two weeks."

Buchanan said there was a question of whether the time started when the request is submitted to the Treasurer's Office or when it is received by the FAB. The Judiciary ruled the time period begins when the FAB receives the request.

In other business concerning the Financial Advisory Board, Senator Scott Whipple requested a decision on the FAB's right to go into executive session for voting purposes. Judiciary member Gary Allen said that such a right could "cause problems" and questioned the procedures of other boards.

Chief Justice John Flewelling said such a policy "could be expedient. It could prevent retaliation by persons turned down by the FAB." The Judiciary took the request under advisement until their next meeting.

BSU student Bob Davis brought a suit against the Biology and Psychology Departments, charging they were in violation of Boise State University regulations by allowing animals in their department's buildings. Davis stated that the action was "not a vendetta or attack. We simply want to remove [Can't on page 4]"

New position downed in Senate dispute

ASBSU President Nate Kim received a verbal beating in last Tuesday's student senate meeting when he asked the senate to approve a $1,300 budget to fund a new and necessary position of Administrative Coordinator for BSU.

The money would cover a service award and travel expenses for the coordinator, who would be responsible for research and investigation of programs developed by the president's office. Some programs and issues included are development of a dental health service, collective bargaining, litigation against the State Board of Education concerning their "no alcohol on campus" ruling, creation of an ombudsman program, expanding legal aid and lobbying the State Board, State Legislature and Permanent Building Fund Council for student interests.

After a lengthy battle during which both the senate and executive officer shouted insults and made threats, resembling more of a dog fight than a business meeting, the senate voted down the position, eventually sending it to the Ways and Means committee for further study.

So what's to study? Not one senator questioned the importance of the programs the coordinator would undertake. The money was barely discussed. Most of the senators agreed that a token award in appreciation of the time and effort involved is appropriate. Several senators voiced approval of the position, stating that they understood the enormous amount of time involved in researching and implementing new programs, some admitting that they could not be counted on to devote any more time to the issues.

Creating bureaucracy was a major consideration, best rebutted by Senator Lenny Hertling's statement, "there's a hell of a lot to do and we're getting a late start, this is an effective way of updating our student administrative services."

The senate was concerned, possibly to the point of paranoia, about letting anything slip away from them. Some senators questioned Kim as to whether he felt them incapable of handling things themselves. Kim responded by stating that he would question the amount of time and seriousness the senate would devote to the issues.

He has reason to question. The alcohol suit, lobbying efforts and the dental health investigation have all been spearheaded by the executive office. One of the senate's more valuable pieces of legislation, making individual senators responsible to campus living organizations and living groups in order to keep students and senators informed on the issues, was instigated by Kim. ASBSU Vice-president Ron O'Halloran accused the senate of "not being interested in BSU's building needs," since so few showed up for a special meeting dealing with this issue.

O'Halloran, who did not entirely support Kim's request did however admit, "we need help. If this senate continues as other senates have in the past, we will find at the end of the year that we have accomplished little, and what we have done will include little investigation."

Hopefully, the Administrative Coordinator position will be re-introduced through Ways and Means and perhaps this time both the senate and Kim will be more willing to listen and compromise. It's just too good an idea to throw away.

Scholarship work successful

by H. Wayland

The endeavors of BSU administrators to increase the funds which can be used for scholarship purposes are proving to be successful. From pretzel sales to parking fees the base of financial support for scholarship programs to complement available financial aids has been broadened. Next year according to administrative projections over $25,000 will be garnered for the "University Club Scholarships" which are intended for the recruitment of promising high school students.

Depending on the possibility of restructuring of the BSU Budget, over $86,000 may be allowed for scholarship programs for continuing students. At face-value these figures are an impressive accomplishment unless one considers the fact that over 80 per cent of these anticipated revenues come from the pockets of continuing students and to a lesser extent faculty and staff-members. The scholarship programs are evolving as a classical example of robbing Peter to pay Paul. The break-down of the scholarship funds for next year is estimated as follows:

	Freshman	Others
Parking fees:	6,700	6,700
Matriculation:		40,000
Bicentennial donations:	8,000	8,000
Miscellaneous:	5,000
TOTAL	25,700	86,700

General fee: $6,000 32,000

Parking fees:	6,700	6,700
Matriculation:		40,000
Bicentennial donations:	8,000	8,000
Miscellaneous:	5,000
TOTAL	25,700	86,700

The general fee, a good share of the parking fees and the matriculation fee are taxes that students pay just for the right to attend classes at BSU. For many years the general fee has provided the base for the scholarship program coordinated by the Financial Aids Committee of the Faculty Senate. For the first time, revenues from the scholarship parking scheme have been added to the coffers of BSU. Next year it is the intention of the President to segregate the matriculation fees for scholarship purposes.

The philosophy that students should be footing the bill for scholarships to other students may be justified if the revenues collected are fairly disbursed according to a flexible criteria. It should be noted that the prevailing argument for the existing scholarship system is that academically superior students should be rewarded for their GPA especially if they are ineligible for federal financial assistance. The argument concludes that scholarships should be increased for the sake of scholarship. It is not the intention of this column to refute that argument, but the notion that students should have the foremost responsibility of supporting a burgeoning scholarship system for the sake of scholarship should be refuted. It is common knowledge that the university does not really exist for the sake of scholarship and that most students have reasons for attending BSU which are only remotely related to the kind of scholarship documented by a competitive grading system. Phase II (classroom space) of the new Science-Education building is included on the list of top priorities of the State Board of Education as recommended for legislative funding in 1976. This represents over half of the State Board request for $6,391,634 for top-priority building projects. Of course, the permanent building fund of the State of Idaho from which the funding of Phase II is expected to magically appear will only have about $5,000,000 during fiscal year 76-77 and this principle is supposed to aid in the financing of building projects for the entire state. It is not surprising that BSU faithfuls are frantically stumping for a legislative appropriation to supplement the permanent building fund. Nobody wants to talk about why Phase I does not include classroom space.

Student comments to Senate

Editor, the ARBITER

Spish splash, wish wash, unholy Heratics - just a couple of descriptive superlatives I have heard recently describing the contents of the BSU senate chamber on Tuesday afternoon.

A person would suppose these comments are somewhat justified when senators make statements such as "At first, I thought this was a good idea, but now, I don't think so."

A few ideological guidelines for the public official's use are:

1. A thought before a decision is made on how to vote would significantly help the situation.
2. Follow through on decisions, and keep a firm stand on decisions.
3. Senators are not elected to implement their own personal value systems, but those of the majority of the students from which school they are elected, and the student body in general.

For this last reason I feel Nate Kim should be commended for his decision, and implementation regarding the booze on campus lawsuit. I say this because the decision does not reflect the attitude of the religious organization of which he is a member.

At the present time students are made to feel like sneaky children having to play hide-a-booze on our own campus.

SO MANY BONES TO PICK!

Nobody has to play unless they want to

Editor, the ARBITER

I was shocked at Mr. Lawrence's stand. Hopefully, we would someday learn from the stupid mistakes the old deteriorated minds of the people who have historically been in control of society have made. Alas, it seems evident some spokesmen from some religious organizations have learned nothing at all in the last 2000 years.

Remember the Christian

Crusades? Well in case you have not heard, a whole lot of people were persecuted because the Moslems did not want to play a hide-a-booze, and the Christians did.

The point being nobody really has to play hid-a-booze unless they want to. I for one have seen no one with a funnel and a machine gun together at a BSU football game.

SUPB thanks store, explains coloring contest

Editor, the ARBITER

As an SUPB Chairperson, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the staff and management of YOUR CAMPUS STORE for the participation and support they have displayed during our current university-wide coloring contest. The crayon and window display they have constructed and created is really a shot in the arm.

I would also like to extend sincerest appreciation to the editor and staff of this newspaper for the support given this contest as well as other events that have transpired over the past semester.

A coloring contest may appear somewhat juvenile to some students; however, the prizes offered for the winners far outweigh any connotations inherent to such an event. ALL university students are urged to participate...there is really nothing to lose and FREE admission to all concerts, lectures, special events, etc. for the rest of the year for the winner and his/her guest.

Again, thanks to all the people who have thus far shown their support and good luck to the students at this institution who have and will participate.

Student admonishes others to 'tell it like it is'

Editor, the ARBITER,

Tell it like it is! That is one observation that people are seeking today. Yet, too often when you do tell it like it is, you discover that people get upset. They don't really want to hear it like it is, they want to hear it like they want it to be.

People are always asking politicians to "tell it like it is" with public issues, but the utmost importance is with personal concerns. Most of us don't like to hear bad things about ourselves. We resist facing up to such things, turning them off or turning them out when they don't fit with what we want.

Many times, when we are presented with something that doesn't fit our view of the world or ourselves, we get angry. This is reflected in the oft-noted phenomenon of rejecting the bearer of bad news, like the ancient Greeks punished the messenger who brought bad tidings.

It is very difficult to express views that are an exception or contrary to the prevailing views. Some people will not tolerate a challenge when "like it is" isn't what they want it to be. As John Locke commented in An Essay on Human Understanding: "New opinions are always suspected, and usually opposed, without any other reason but because they are not already common."

Anytime one stands up to be heard and say something that touches on an emotionally charged issue, one is sure to provoke a reaction. When what is said is not what people want to hear, the reaction can be quite intense.

Throughout history there are examples of the price people have paid when they followed the dictates of their conscience or intellect to tell it as they saw it.

Galileo was one such individual.

"Early in his life, he determined that Copernicus was right in saying that the Earth was just a planet and not the center of the universe. However, it wasn't until the discovery of the telescope that Galileo confirmed the theory through direct observations.

"In 1610, the Catholic church and its official scientists had other ideas. The Earth was the center of the universe and everything revolved around us. That was the cornerstone of their theories. As they had earlier rejected Copernicus' contentions, they were most upset with Galileo."

Galileo's insistence on telling it like it is resulted in his house arrest for many years and his conviction for "crimes" by the church. The authorities were particularly provoked because Galileo not only expressed his views publicly, he did so in the language of the people, Italian, instead of the language of the church and science, Latin.

Everyone struggles with unacceptable feelings, those that we don't want to face-our fears, or desires, or hates. We put a lid on these thoughts and feelings, "filing" them back in the back of our mind, concerned that any expression of those ideas will destroy a part of our world.

We all have a personal responsibility to do a better job of telling ourselves "like it is" in our lives. At the same time, we have to confront society with its hypocrisies and challenge people to be fully responsible for their inconsistencies. We must constantly seek to hear it like it is and control our urge to strike out irrationally when like it is isn't like we want it to be.

the ambiguity in terminology in the student handbook."

"We are not against having animals," Davis stated, "it is simply a violation of rules." Davis suggested that a rough draft of the handbook be submitted to the Judiciary for review prior to its publication to avoid situations of this type in the future.

"There are other clauses like this," Davis said, "and the way they are worded, we could file charges against practically everybody."

The Judiciary ruled that the charges against the departments be dismissed. They further recommended that the Student Policy Board alter the wording of the regulation that deals with pets because of "extenuating circumstances."

Board, senate get OK's in annex proposal plans

Approval to continue with plans for a $1.8 million SUB annex was secured last week by the student senate and the Student Union Board of Governors. After the senate gave unconditional approval to proceed planning, the Board of Governors decided that prior to funding, a student referendum should be conducted, with specific proposals for funding and utilization.

The annex is expected to cost between $9 and $15 per student in higher registration fees. The variations of estimated cost hinge on a bond interest rate of 7 per cent or 8 per cent and partial funding from the Housing System. It was estimated by Tom Moore, Assistant Student Union Director, that an annual $50,000 in surplus from the housing budget could be used to supplement the bond issue. According to Moore, an unbudgeted surplus would be created by growing enrollment. The Housing System is funded mostly by student fees, food service contact and housing rents.

Due to the cost of the project, the Board of Governors moved a referendum, which would probably have to be approved and conducted by the student senate. The consensus of the board was to formalize a specific proposal for funding and how the space will be used.

Suggestions tossed around at last weeks meetings include games room expansion, cafeteria expansion, consolidation of student body offices, office space for campus organizations, and administrative offices for Student Affairs and Housing. A sub-committee of the board was appointed to develop proposals. The board agreed to hold the referendum before any architects are hired.

The annex proposal is widely approved among members of the student senate and Board of Governors. Requests from student organizations for office space have denied by the Board of Governors for three years "because," says Moore, "there isn't any place to put them."

LDSSA sponsors Helm

In 1975 sixteen state legislators acted on the Equal Rights Issue, with fifteen states rejecting the proposal. This month New York and New Jersey each tromped a proposal to adopt the Equal Rights Amendment to their state constitutions.

The upcoming Idaho legislative session will again have before it a bill to rescind the ERA. Because of the interest in the state of Idaho and in order BSU students might become better informed, the LDSSA is sponsoring Senator Mary Helm who will be speaking in reference to the ERA, Friday November 14, at 1:30 p.m., in the Senate Chambers. Senator Mary Helm will speak on this issue. Senator Helm holds a Bachelors degree in Botany and a Masters degree in food science.

Senate says 'no' to new Coordinator

by Helen Christensen

With a 4-no vote the ASBSU Student Senate voted down what Arts and Science Senator Lenny Hertling termed "an updating of our student administrative services" in last Tuesday's student senate meeting. The senate refused to allocate $1,300 to provide a service award and travel budget for the position of an Administrative Coordinator which ASBSU President Nate Kim proposed.

The Coordinator, who would be directly responsible to the ASBSU President would coordinate and develop programs from the student executive office and assist in research, investigation and fact finding. Some specific programs and issues to be dealt with included the investigation of a dental health service for students, collective bargaining, litigation against the State Board of Education in regards to alcohol on campus, lobbying efforts and expanding legal aid and student services.

"I need help," stated Kim. "These are some programs that I feel very strongly about and in order to carry them out, an administrative coordinator is a necessity," he said.

"Do you think that the senate can't handle these issues?" asked Arts and Science Senator Mike Hoffman.

"Don't you think that the senators have the capacity to do this work?" asked Education Senator Lyle Mosier.

"I would question the amount of time the senate would be willing to spend on these issues and the seriousness with which they would undertake them," answered Kim.

"Although I feel the service award of $150 a month is way out of line," stated ASBSU Vice President Ron O'Halloran, "this position would be a definite aid to the executive branch. The coordinator will not be making decisions, but will aid in research and investigation. This is very important in undertaking new programs and issues. If this senate continues as other senates have in the past, we will find at the end of the year that we have accomplished little, and what we have done will include little investigation."

Several senators objected to the position on the grounds that it would create more bureaucracy. "Coordinating the efforts of all departments and efforts when undertaking new programs will make it easier to accomplish our objectives," said Kim.

Kim said that he does not plan to take the position through Personnel Selection and that he had previously submitted the budget to the Financial Advisory Board, a committee which recommends financial policy to the senate, but later withdrew it because, "nobody in FAB knows what the hell is going on. I submitted the proposed budget to the treasurer a week before the meeting so that the members would have a chance to look into it before the presentation. They did not receive it until I walked into the meeting. They don't know where the budget stands and are illegally entering executive session when voting," Kim charged.

"This position should go through Personnel Selection," said Health Science Senator Howard Welsh. "If you want to appoint a friend to a made-up position, go ahead and do it, but don't ask the senate for money until you're willing to go through all the channels, including FAB, Personnel Selection and the proper presentation of a job description," he said.

The Administrative Coordinator was turned over to the Senate Ways and Means Committee for further investigation. Ways and Means will also be investigating Kim's charges against the FAB.

BSU to support ISU's Architecture suit

by Helen Christensen

A $400 expenditure for an amicus curia "friend of the court" brief involving BSU in the Idaho State University Architecture Department's suit against the State Board of Education was approved in last Tuesday's student senate meeting. The architecture case is the second issue the two schools have jointly pursued. ISU has agreed to help with expenses and join BSU in their suit against the State Board's "no alcohol on campus" ruling.

ISU's suit came about when the State Board cancelled the school's architecture degree program. It is presently being appealed to the Supreme Court. "This is a question of whether the State Board has the right to break a contract by cancelling degrees offered in the college catalog," stated ASBSU President Nate Kim. "The precedent that this case can set could have a definite effect on the future of BSU's degree offerings. The same thing could happen to us. By filing the "friend of the court" brief, we are in effect stating that we have an interest in the suit, but not enough to be party to it," Kim added.

Health Science Senator Howard Welsh accused the senate of "indulging in a $400 frill." He said, "this accomplishes nothing in support of ISU's suit. The "friend of the court" brief divorces us from the real issue of the suit. We would be better off sending a letter of direct support of the suit and telling the State Board that we would strongly object to their doing this sort of thing to us. It would be more effective and less expensive," stated Welsh.

"This brief has to be accepted," said Kim. "A letter can be ignored."

Education Senator Lyle Mosier asked Kim if this was a "you scratch my back, I'll scratch yours" situation. "Are they expecting us to support them in return for their support of our alcohol suit?" asked Mosier.

"That has been mentioned, but the situation should not be considered in that light," answered Kim.

According to the ISU student newspaper, The Speculum, "Idaho State Vice President Don Burdick has suggested that since BSU is asking ISU to help pay for legal fees in the alcohol suit, then the BSU Senate should appropriate some money to the architecture students for their court case. Burdick said that in earlier conversations with Kim, such an agreement is possible."

"These two issues represent the first time Idaho universities have worked together on issues of common importance to Idaho students," added Kim.

Senators voting "no" on the "friend of the court" expenditure were Welsh and Mosier.

ASBSU Public Relations considering documentary

The ASBSU Public Relations office is looking into the possibility of producing a documentary film on Boise State Uni.

The film would be presented under the format of past, present and future objectives of the institution. Beginning with the humble years at St. Maragrets Hall, through the BSC era, to the present State University status. The future portion of the film would deal with the aspirations of the institution as universal by the student faculty and administrations.

Hopefully, the production of the film will begin early next spring. Because of the nature of endeavor it is important that any thoughts or ideas concerning the film be brought to the attention of the Public Relations office. It is hoped that an honest quality portrait of the great institution can be produced.

Also planned for this year, the Public Relations office is working with the University Bicentennial committee to present some Bicentennial programs. The events that are planned include the display of historic university artifacts at key places on the campus. The artifacts after they are gathered and displayed will not be taken down, after the Bicentennial year. The display will be left up for the historic knowledge of this campus for future generations of Boise State students and faculty.

One of the other Bicentennial projects that will occur next spring will involve the placement of current BSU data i.e., Arbiter, Les Bois, and senate minutes in a time capsule. The time capsule will be sealed and not open until 2076, when Boise State students will celebrate the tricentennial.

Other programs will be presented that involve the veterans, faculty members and athletics. These programs will be publicized at a later date.

This spring, the Public Relations office has tentative scheduled an ethnic dinner exchange night. This will offer an opportunity for different ethnic organizations on campus or from the community to showcase their cultures to the student body and community at large.

The Public Relations office is also sponsoring a "Pinball Wizard Contest", for information look in this weeks Arbiter.

The P.R. office also offers a weekly radio program, OUTLOOK... a new perspective on BSU on Sunday nights at 8:45, on KFXD, and hopefully will be expanded to several stations in the near future.

The Public Relations office is looking into several different programs to enhance the ASBSU. Some of the ideas include, student-faculty picnics, student forums and various other campus

THE ASBSU STUDENT AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

Is Considering:

- ALCOHOL ON CAMPUS
- BSU CHILD CARE CENTER
- FOOD STAMPS FOR STUDENTS
- NAMING OF BUILDINGS AND STRUCTURES

The ASBSU is looking for students who are interested in investigating these programs. There are openings for two Students-at-Large on the Student Affairs Committee.

Applications can be picked up and returned at the SUB Information Booth, Senate Offices or ASB Offices.

A power-off landing by a Alpha Eta Rho member.

Alpha Eta Rho fraternity aviation oriented

"I've heard of high-flying fraternities, but this is ridiculous." Alpha Eta Rho is just that, literally a flying fraternity. A E Rho is relatively new to the BSU campus in comparison to other Greek fraternities. While some frats are designed as social and business, Alpha Eta Rho is aviation oriented; and combines all three orientations into one.

Alpha Eta Rho has various activities, both business and social. Recently they sponsored airmeets at the Emmett airport in preparation for a regional airmeet with other schools in the Pacific Northwest.

An airmeet consists of three events: power-on landings, power-off landings and a bomb drop event. The object of both power-on and power-off landings is to hit the center line in a 300 foot marked area on the runway. Whoever is closest on the last two of three attempts will win the event. A pilot must carry power until he lands in the power-on event, whereas a pilot must cut power opposite his point of touchdown in the power-off event.

Bomb drops entail dropping balsa "bombs" above a target beside the runway while flying 300 feet above the ground. There are two participants in the bomb drop event, the pilot and the bomb-adeer. The one closest to the target wins.

The National Intercollegiate Flying Association (NIFA) is another reason Alpha Eta Rho conducts airmeets. Every year colleges across the U.S. compete in regional meets with the winner representing his school and region in national competition.

Alpha Eta Rho invites all full-time BSU students interested in aviation to join. The club meets the first and third Wednesday of each month with this month's meetings at 6:30 p.m. in the Caribou Room of the SUB.

Slower rate of energy growth could mean more jobs

Slowing down the rate of energy growth in the United States would also mean providing more jobs for Americans.

An intensive two-year, four-million-dollar study of America's energy situation has found that the supposed tie between energy growth and employment is a myth. At zero energy growth, there would be about three per cent jobs for Americans than there would be if growth continued at historical rates.

The study was made by the Energy Policy Project, financed by the Ford Foundation. Project Director Dwight Jensen of the Idaho Conservation League energy workshops said that study will be one of the bases for the series of eight Idaho energy workshops that begin Saturday in Boise and continue in seven other Idaho cities during November.

The study shows that at zero energy growth, there would be a slight tendency to hire people to do some work now done by machines. In addition, new jobs would be provided in several sectors—public services, public health, and mass transportation among them.

The study shows that the usual claim by energy-producing companies, that stopping the growth of energy would also mean galloping unemployment has no foundation in fact. It would be possible to maintain full employment if energy consumption continued to increase at 3.4 per cent a year, but it would be easier to find jobs for everyone if the nation leveled off and decided to get along indefinitely on the amount of energy now being used.

Moreover, zero energy growth would be less expensive in terms of government subsidies to industry and environmental damage.

Jensen said one feature of the series of workshops will be a more complete explanation of the Energy Policy Project study and its finding.

But the bulk of time at the workshops will be spent providing information on specific topics of local interest and asking for public opinion on what Idaho's energy policy should be.

The topic for the Boise workshop is "An energy-efficient Boise." The workshop will run from 9 a.m. to about 4 p.m. at the Boise State University Student Union Ballroom.

New chief of Veterans Services Division appointed

Mr. Hal Kuyper, Director of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Boise has announced the appointment of Arthur J. Jackson of the Regional Office as chief of the Veterans Services Division replacing Delbert M. Berry, who is now assigned as information officer for the VA in Denver, Colorado.

Mr. Jackson has been with the Veterans Administration for five years. Prior to his association with the agency, he managed a business enterprise in California and has worked for the Department of Army and the U.S. Postal Service.

He is currently pursuing a Business Degree program at Boise State University, is active in the U.S. Army Reserve program with the 321st ENG BN in Boise and is a member of several veterans organizations.

During World War II, Mr. Jackson received the Congressional Medal of Honor from President

Harry S. Truman for his action against Japanese forces on Peleliu Island in the Pacific. As an automatic rifleman he was credited with eliminating 12 pill boxes and 50 Japanese soldiers during the Palau engagement on September 18, 1944.

Mr. Jackson resides in Boise with his wife Dolores and their children, Susan, Lori and Monte. His eldest daughter Kathy and son Art Jr. reside in Denver.

"Alice Doesn't Day" supported with strike

The BSU Women's Alliance joined feminist groups across the country in support of "Alice Doesn't Day" on October 29. The event was billed as a national women's strike day, and its purpose was to call attention to the importance of work done by women.

A group of about 60 people marched through Boise's downtown business district, carrying signs which emphasized the theme of equality for women. The participants included women, children, and men who live and work in the community, as well as students and instructors. As they marched, the group handed out leaflets which answered the question, "Why Are We Doing This?"

Afterwards, the marchers assembled on the steps of the state Capitol building for a rally. There was an open microphone and many speakers gave short spontaneous talks and read feminist poetry. Jane Leeson, director of the Rape Crisis Alliance, pointed out that many more women would have attended the march and rally, but were afraid they would be fired if they missed work. Additionally, many women, because of low-paying jobs, simply could not afford to take the day off.

Even though only seven women participants indicated that they were actually striking their jobs, the event was a symbolic gesture. It was intended to support those who did choose to strike and also to bring several problems to public attention.

The leaflet which was handed out explained problems and issues. It pointed out that all women work, and for the same reasons that men do. 44.2 per cent of all women work for wages. A woman who works for wages earns, on the average, one half of what a man earns. Women are channeled into jobs that either offer no pay (i.e. housewife or volunteer) or else into jobs that offer less monetary reward and status than traditional "male" jobs. Yet, men depend on the work that women do.

Several things were stated as being necessary in order to balance this inequality. Among them were equal education and job training that does not prepare women for inferior positions, and equal access to all types of work. Also listed were equal pay for equal work; the establishment of free day care centers at places of work and study; payment for work done by housewives and volunteers; and equal benefits beyond wages, including insurance, credit, and retirement.

The marchers met with mixed reactions both on campus and downtown. One marcher cited the BSU SUB as being the place where most of the negative reaction occurred. "Those guys were sitting there, pointing their fingers and heckling. They were really appalled when I came over to their table to leave some leaflets, and said hello to one of them by name!"

According to one participant, "It is because of this, the negative responses, and the people who laugh at us and don't take us seriously, that women have to march and demonstrate and picket for our freedom and dignity. It's sad that we even have to do anything special to make people realize that women are human beings, too. But we do."

Another member of the Women's Alliance concluded, "Of course it was a success. Feminism is a relatively new and even threatening idea to a lot of people here. It was a start. But it's not the end!"

The BSU Women's Alliance meets every Sunday night at 7:30 in the Minority Cultural Center.

Birth control pills for dogs

A prominent pharmaceutical company has announced the development of a birth control pill for dogs which will end the problems which occur when a female dog comes into heat.

The pill is easy to administer, safe and effective. Apartment dwellers and dormitory residents who own female dogs can now plan vacations, hunting trips, dog shows and in general avoid the nuisances of a female dog in heat.

The pill is called OVABAN(Schering Corporation) and is available through licensed veterinarians only.

Neil Sedaka will appear in concert November 23 at Boise State.

Contemporary artist Neil Sedaka to appear November 23

Paul McCartney was ecstatic to finally meet his favorite recording artist. Alice Cooper considers him a legend. And, Elton John was so thrilled by his music that he has signed him to Rocket Records, Elton's own recording label.

Between 1959 and 1963, Neil Sedaka sold over 25 million records. He has written over 75 top-ten hit records in his career. Among those that everyone remembers are "Oh Carol," "Calendar Girl," "Breaking Up is Hard To Do," and "Happy Birthday Sweet 16." But Sedaka is returning to the spotlight as a contemporary artist and a contemporary musician.

Totally involved in music since he was 13 when he first began writing songs, Sedaka formally began his career as a concert pianist studying under Arthur Rubinstein. However, he later gave up his classical studies to become a pop star since he craved the recognition from his peers. By the time he was 20, Sedaka was a top international recording artist with huge followings in Australia, Italy, Japan and South America.

When the Beatles arrived in the States in 1963, bringing a new musical style with them, Sedaka took a self-imposed absence to write songs for the Fifth Dimensions, Tom Jones, Friends of Distinction, Johnny Mathis, Peggy Lee and many others. "Working On a Groovy Thing," "Puppet Man," "One Day of Your Life" and "Rainy Jane" are some of the tunes from that point in his career.

Sedaka has successfully shattered his old image with his personal appearances since they prove without a doubt that he is truly a contemporary artist. Even so, he admits that "I have never had my hand off the musical pulse. I have written all the way through and I've been aware of what people are buying. My lyrics are longer and go more into depth, but, generally my songs have developed and grown."

Sedaka has performed on every kind of stage, from chic supper clubs to state fairs and nightclubs. "One thing I refuse to do," he says adamantly, "are those rock and roll shows. I want to be seen as a contemporary artist, not some ghost from the past."

His greatest appeal is his performing -- once people see him in person they become avid Neil Sedaka fans, extremely devoted and loyal. "I didn't have to come back into this business. But I want to express myself and feel I have something to offer," he adds.

When "Laughter in the Rain", his wax offering on the Rocket Records label burned its way to #1 with a bullet - on national U.S. record charts, it was obvious that, like the title of his first Rocket LP, "Sedaka's Back", Neil was indeed at the top of the heap and here to stay.

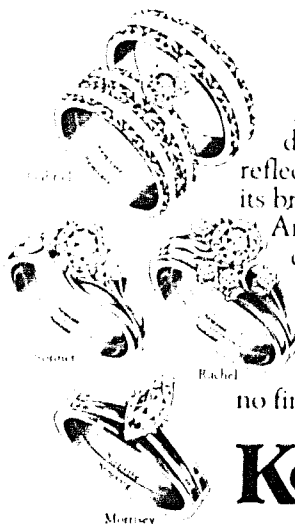

Like all prolific artists, Sedaka's talents are expanding. He is in the process of writing a Broadway show, something he has wanted to do for the last several years.

All of his music will, one day, stand as a tribute to Neil Sedaka. His greatest hope is that his music "will last for years and years" -- a way of reaching immortality through his talents. The influence he has had on other writers and performers can only help his wish reach fulfillment.

Neil Sedaka will appear in concert Sunday, November 23 at 8:00 p.m. in the BSU Gym.

TEL-MED provides free medical information

Free health and medical information is now available.

TEL-MED, which is a collection of tape-recorded health messages, will become operational November 3rd. Anyone may call 377-0430 and request a three-to-seven-minute length tape on an illness or health problem he is interested in.

These tapes are designed to help listeners remain healthy by giving preventive health information, to help recognize early signs of illness, and to help adjust to a serious illness.

The TEL-MED project will be a first for Idaho, although there are approximately fifty other similar projects across the nation. It is sponsored by the Central District Health Department and the Idaho Lung Association in cooperation with the Ada County Medical Society.

Hours of operation are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Brochures listing the available tapes may be picked up at Central District Health Department, 1455 North Orchard, or the Idaho Lung Association, 2621 Camas.

Pre-natal classes set for parents

Central District Health Department cordially invites all expectant parents to attend a series of pre-natal classes to be held every Monday and Thursday beginning November 3rd from 7 to 9 p.m. The location is their Conference Room at 1455 North Orchard and there will be no charge.

This three week course is to prepare mothers for labor and delivery, and to teach prospective parents about caring for their children.

For further information, please call the Central District Health Department, at 375-5211.

Comedian David Steinberg will be appearing at BSU November 11

Comedian David Steinberg plans November 11 appearance

David Steinberg is a multi-media celebrity--an off beat, racy, outrageous and establishment-baiting comedian--equally at home on television, in nightclubs and on college campuses. He has gained recognition as a writer. He has starred on Broadway and is a much sought-after actor.

Steinberg was born in Canada and his background includes Theological study at Hebrew University in Jerusalem and a Masters Degree in English from the University of Chicago. It was while he was studying in Chicago that he began performing professionally--with the legendary Second City troupe--basically an improvisational theatre which, during David's tenure, boasted such performers as four years of performance with Second City--in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and London--working as a writer and a director as well as a performer--that much of Steinberg's style emerged.

Second City led him to New York and appearances in three Broadway plays--the comedy success "The Mad Show" plus leading roles in Jules Feiffer's "Little Murders" and "Carry Me Back To Morningside Heights" which was directed by Sidney Potter.

While appearing at The Bitter End, he was quickly discovered--first by the New York Times and then by Johnny Carson. His Tonight Show appearances soon earned him national recognition and before long he had even earned the chance to substitute host for the vacationing Carson. This led to guest host assignments with both Mike Douglas and Dick Cavett as well as guest appearances on major television variety programs.

Steinberg's hilarious and irreverent sermons which were humanized versions of Biblical myths and which became a standard part of his performances caused him to become a front page celebrity when one of his sermons turned out to be the cause for the now famous cancellation of the Smothers Brothers Show by CBS. Steinberg ended up with his own television series, however, and last summer returned to CBS to star in his own variety hour.

Recently he emceed the Howard Cosell Roast which was televised by ABC and which garnered the highest rating of any program ever shown in its time slot. He has also written the distinguished NBC-TV special, "The World of Sholem Aleichem."

David Steinberg has emerged as an important humorist for our times--sophisticated, ingenious, personable--even sexy. As one Steinberg convert put it: "The little rascal really makes me laugh."

Steinberg will appear November 11 at 8:00 p.m. in the SUB Ballroom. His lecture is free to BSU students.

"Anything Goes" to feature stunts and games

Boise State University students will take a leaf from the pages of noted "Truth or Consequences" television show Friday, November 14 when they get together for an afternoon of stunts and games, sponsored by Morrison Hall.

Titled "Anything Goes", it will feature four coed teams from BSU's dormitories. Participants will be from Morrison, Driscoll, Chaffee and the Towers dorms.

Action will get underway at 3 p.m. on Boise State baseball field. Calling the afternoons events will be noted Boise television sports personality Paul J. Schneider.

"Anything goes" stunts will not be announced until that afternoon so teams cannot practice. Events will center around general topics like "Pie Factory," "Milkman," and "Day at the Office."

On hand to serve as contest referees will be BSU administrators Dr. John Barnes, Robert Gibb, Fred Norman and Gary Riberio and others.

The "Anything Goes" idea could turn into an annual event. Admission is free to the public.

Come see an array of stunts and games and support your dorm for the "Anything Goes" Trophy.

'Carmen' highly commended

by L. J. Pendlebury

Hats off to the Boise Civic Opera for the recent production of Georges Bizet's Carmen. For those of you who missed it, I'm sorry for you. It was, sans none, the best performing arts presentation I have yet seen in Idaho.

This is the first Boise Civic Opera production I have seen, and I must admit that I went to it prepared to be disappointed. I had been warned that it lasted almost 3 1/2 hours, that's enough to turn almost anyone off. The auditorium was over warm as I arrived, and it got worse as the night wore on. In spite of the heat, in spite of a curtain that didn't always cooperate, in spite of a painfully out of tune string section; the technical aspects, the musical aspects, and the acting held together to present us with an extremely well put-together performance.

The orchestra began with the traditional overture. I was surprised to hear the pleasing balance of strings to winds without the usual top heaviness I've been hearing of late. The overall precision made me sit up and listen carefully. Three of the main characters, Micaela (Joan Lathrop), Don Jose (Samuel O. Thompson), and Carmen (Ina Lou Cheney) led the cast through the difficult vocal and emotional interpretations that characterize classical French Opera.

Now I know, there will always be those purists who will say that opera should be done in the original language. This is the second time I have seen Carmen. Far be it from me to compare the Boise Civic Opera to New York's Metropolitan Opera Company, but I enjoyed this performance more simply because I knew what was going on. I would like to specifically thank Ms.

Lathrop, whose vocal quality and consistent style sent shivers up my spine.

What a shame that entertainment of this calibre is only presented for two nights. Compared to the mediocrity, put forth by other groups in Boise, which runs up to ten nights, I was genuinely sorry to see this one end so soon.

Anemia discussed with Health Services

Q. What is anemia?

A. The term anemia means that the patient has a decrease in his red blood cells and his hemoglobin.

The number of red blood cells normally present varies with age, sex, and altitude. Women have fewer red blood cells than men.

Q. What are Erythrocytes?

A. Erythrocytes perform the important function of carrying oxygen from the lungs to the tissues and carbon dioxide from the tissues to the lungs. The red color of the blood is caused by hemoglobin, which is contained in the erythrocytes.

Q. What causes anemia?

A. Anemia can be caused by loss, destruction, or faulty production of red blood cells and hemoglobin. Blood loss can occur suddenly and copiously, as in severed arteries, or it may result from slow but persistent bleeding from conditions such as excessive menstrual flow, hemorrhoids, or a peptic ulcer.

Q. What are the symptoms of anemia?

A. Symptoms of anemia are similar regardless of the cause and are due largely to the inability of blood to transport sufficient oxygen to the tissue: fatigue, anorexia (loss of appetite), faintness, and pallor are typical. There may be pallor of the nail beds, the conjunctiva (membrane lining eyelids and visible white of the eye), the lips and mouth, as well as the skin. The patient may be cold, even when others find the temperature quite comfortable. The pulse may be rapid because the heart beats faster in order to circulate the limited supply of RBC's (red blood cells) and hemoglobin to the tissues.

Q. What is the treatment for anemia?

A. Depending on the degree of anemia, the treatment may include the administration of iron & adequate dietary intake, and most important, finding the cause. A blood test may be obtained at the Student Health Service if the doctor or nurse deems is necessary.

College Republican meeting slated

The BSU College Republicans will hold an organizational meeting Monday, November 3, in the Minidoka Room in the SUB. This meeting will be primarily an informational and directional one. The College Republicans at BSU

BSU Library has something for everyone

Have you visited the BSU Library lately? Most campus users are accustomed to going to the library for assigned readings, research materials for term papers and other information needed for class work. But, if you haven't been in the library recently, you should stop by next week to see the display of practical materials and crafts the library has that would interest almost everyone.

For old-fashioned homemakers (yes, both male and female), the library has materials on consumerism and budgeting, general home-making--such as interior decorating, laundering, wallpapering and upholstery. Also covered are home maintenance and repair, insulating, plumbing, household pests, energy considerations, and for the creative soul--building with adobe blocks.

For the gardener, the coming months are the perfect time to bone up on landscaping, growing ornamentals, selecting fertilizers, lawns, and growing vegetables and fruit trees. No room, you say? How about mini-vegetable gardens or houseplants? Seasonally useful is how to buy a Christmas tree. Attracting birds to your garden is interesting anytime.

You say you have a little extra space? How about raising rabbits, geese, dairy goats, hogs, dairy cattle, or a small poultry flock? Or, why not build a warm water fish pond? If you ride, read a little on basic horsemanship.

Have food prices got you down? How about a few helps on how to buy butter, canned and frozen vegetables, poultry, lamb, or cheese? Low on ideas for meals? Try the popular cookbook collection.

We have a number of specialty cookbooks--such as the mother-child cookbook, fish and seafood cookbook, bread, cookies and candies, and the Time Life series of cookbooks. Too heavy, you say? Try food and your weight.

Are you a senior citizen? We have a food guide for older folks. Struggling with allergies? See baking for people with allergies. Small family? Cooking for two. Large family? Cooking for small groups. Hunter in the family? Game cookery. Same old thing every night? We have pamphlets on using poultry, nuts, fruits, milk, cheese, breads, and soybeans in family meals. Also other helpful material on nutrition.

Did you garden this past summer and find you couldn't give it all away? How about drying foods, freezing meat and fish, storing vegetables, home canning, keeping foods safe to eat, drying shelled corn, how to make jellies and jam, and a food stockpile for survival?

Do you have a small child in your home? Or on the way? How about natural childbirth, painless childbirth, infant care, baby exercises, and child development materials. Or puppet making, dollmaking, and folk toys?

Do you like woodworking? How about refinishing furniture, used furniture as a good buy, or wood carving?

Is the price of clothes too high? Try our sewing books, or tailoring, or sewing menswear.

If more creative stitchery appeals to you, try applique, patchwork, quilting, tatting, cross stitchery, and needlepoint. We also cover basketry, hooked rug making, and weaving.

In other craft areas, we have materials on collage, paper sculpture, screen printing, jewelry making, paper mache, enameling, ceramics and glazes, and mosaics.

You say crafts interest you but you don't create? Try antiques, folk lore and folk tales, folk dancing, and other folk art.

For other hobbyists, we have materials on astronomy, photography, stereo and hi-fi, popular mechanics and electronics, power tool maintenance, gem stones, wild plants, trees, bird guides, wildlife guides, and wildlife as pets.

Surprised? Stop by and see the collection of craft items some of our staff members have made in the display case on the first floor. The better you know your library, the better you can exploit its resources. The display of books will run from November 10-15 (unless the display books are checked out sooner). Craft items will be displayed for 4 weeks.

Artist-composer Harry Chapin will play at Boise State on November 13 during Homecoming week.

Harry Chapin to appear in concert November 13

Born on December 7, 1942, Harry Chapin was raised in Greenwich Village where his initial musical influence was as close to home as any future pro could hope for: Chapin's father worked as a drummer during the Big Band era, and that climate eventually drew all four Chapin brothers into music.

By the age of 15, his musical interests included a musical act with his brothers. As he progressed on banjo and picked up additional experience on guitar and trumpet, younger brothers Tom and Steve were proving similarly productive, but the eldest soon dropped out of music.

Chapin himself stopped performing for a while. After a stint at the Air Force Academy, he studied architecture and later philosophy at Cornell. He stayed long enough to meet another student, Fred Kewley, who would later become his manager, but neither music nor books seemed right just then. Chapin finally threw his scholastic career over to enter the movie industry—loading reels into crates.

Film editing followed and he eventually began making documentaries of his own, including a film, "Legendary Champions," that went on to win an Academy Award nomination and film prizes at the New York and Atlanta Film Festivals. During that period, music again entered Chapin's career when, in the summer of 1964, he reunited with Tom and Steve and his father, Jim to form another family performing group.

Because his brothers were threatened by the draft, he returned to the film business for the next several years, involving himself one way or another in the creation of some 300 films. Then, in the Summer of 1971, Chapin decided it was time to try the music scene once more. His idea was to form a unique band that could best interpret his now famous brand of "story songs."

By the time Chapin signed with Elektra Records, his group had developed a startling, complex live sound. "Taxi" pulled from Chapin's HEADS AND TALES debut album, then followed, penetrating AM airwaves despite its length (over twice the time-honored three-minute limit for single records) due to the dramatic impact of its narrative. FM acceptance was accordingly broader, and Chapin achieved the unlikely coup of garnering broad pop success with a subtly-lined fully detailed dramatic ballad.

Since then, his involvement with music has gone uninterrupted, punctuated by the release of his subsequent albums, Salper and Other Love Songs, Short Stories and Verities & Balderdash. Short stories sired Chapin's second major AM single, "W*O*L*D," itself a bittersweet view of the AM (radio) world through the eyes of an aging disc jockey.

George Thomason to perform with BSU Community Symphony

Opening its 38th season, the Boise State University Community Symphony will feature George Thomason, guitarist, as soloist in a concert Sunday, November 16, at 8:15 p.m. in the Music Auditorium.

Mr. Thomason will appear with the orchestra, playing the "Fantasia for a Gentleman" by Joaquin Rodrigo. This colorful, five-section work exploits the full resources of the guitar as a solo instrument and abounds in Spanish flavor. The main work on the symphony program is the Schubert "Symphony No. 7" in C major, one of the masterpieces of early Romantic music. Also included on the program are two numbers of contemporary music—sections from the "Suite on Fiddlers Tunes" by G.F. McKay. Conducting will be John H. Best, who will be leading his one-hundredth concert with the orchestra.

Guitarist George Thomason is well-known in the Boise Valley both for his interpretations of classical music and jazz. Having received his Bachelor of Music Degree from the College of Idaho, he was recently awarded a Master of Arts Degree from Boise State University. He has had master classes with the eminent teacher, Christopher Parkening. Mr. Thomason has been responsible for building the guitar classes at Boise State University to one of the largest departments in the music area.

Next Sunday's concert is the third presentation on the Music Department's Student Ensemble Series. Tickets will be available at the door for those who do not have season tickets for the entire series.

Concurrently with the success of these records, Harry, always breaking new ground in different directions, became the first singer-songwriter to write and star in a major Broadway Production, entitled "THE NIGHT THAT MADE AMERICA FAMOUS."

In addition to a steady touring schedule of some 100 concerts each year and regular key network television shows, Chapin has also become involved in benefit concerts and has established a foundation "World Hunger Year" dedicated to solving the problems of hunger in the world.

Chapin will appear in concert Thursday, November 13 at 8:00 p.m. in the BSU Gym.

THE PAULISTS ARE HELPING TO UNITE THE UNITED STATES!

our nation, united in goal and ideal . . . but divided in so many ways.

Divided by doubts, prejudices, fears, violence, injustice, poverty.

The Paulists have been bringing Americans together for over a century now, trying to overcome the barricades men erect between each other. We work to unite believer to believer, believer to non-believer, man to man. As Catholics and Americans, we know unity is worth a lot—worth giving our lives to bring about.

We do this everyday through the communication arts—books, publications, television and radio—on college campuses, in parishes, in missions in the U.S., in downtown centers, in working with young and old.

If you would like to help us in our venture of healing American wounds with the Gospel of Christ as a Paulist priest, mail the coupon below for information.

Roving Reporter

Question: What's your opinion of the proposed Student Union Building Annex?" (Reporter's note: Most of those interviewed were uninformed about this issue--after a short briefing on the subject they gave the responses below.)

Opinions of proposed Student Union Building Annex recorded

Bill Watterlin, freshman

It'd be worth it. It's too crowded now, especially the game room and cafeteria.

Kathy Keser, freshman

I think we need more space--a bigger cafeteria and snack bar and another lounge. The cost per student isn't that much.

Cheryl Weber, senior

I agree there's overcrowded conditions, but that's not the best solution. We need an art annex -- need someplace to work. That's higher priority.

Judy Olson, freshman

I don't think it's that crowded like it is now. I don't think they need it. There's other buildings they need worse.

Mary Mallowney, junior

I'm not in favor of it. The SUB is wasted space, except for the dining areas. They should put in something like a movie theatre. They shouldn't build more until good use is made of what there is now.

Partly in favor of it--but if it means $9 to $10 more to pay, that's getting a little sticky. It depends on how long the students would be taxed with this. Taxing school so no one can afford it, just for this--it's not worth it.

I'm in favor of it if they can use it. I'd like to see a Women's Center developed. I don't know about the fees--the tuition is already pretty steep.

Bryce Denning, sophomore

If it increases fees, I'm not that interested in it. I'm having enough trouble getting through college as it is.

Freshman Fred Goode makes his cut for yardage and an addition to the BSU ground game

BSU crushes Nevada-Reno

by John Steppe

First quarter action began with Reno's kick to the Boise State end zone. From that point the game was another of BSU's sterling gridiron performances. The first score of the game came 4:38 into the first quarter when BSU's John Smith went for 57 yards to put the Broncos ahead 6-0. The point after was good and the cold wind blew on Nevada-Reno.

Towards the end of the period John (superneddle) Smith was again called on, and this time he carried the ball for 38 yards and six more points. With Avi Rofe's extra point good the score 14-0 and the cold wind blew on Nevada-Reno.

1:47 into the second quarter BSU's defensive line blocked a Reno punt and gained another 2 points with the following safety. Eight plays later Avi Rofe made a field goal attempt good and the score was then 19-0. Midway in the second period BSU's Bob Cleveland carried the ball twelve yards for his 6 point addition to the BSU victory. The point after was again good and Boise State led 26-0. Just before the end of the first half BSU's place kicker Avi Rofe came onto the field and made a 47 yard field goal to put the Broncos way out in front 29-0. The first half ended four plays later and the cold wind blew on Nevada-Reno.

The third quarter was not all Boise State. In fact it looked for awhile as if Reno had decided to come back and win. The only points scored in the third period were made by Reno's Rob Young when he moved down field 27 yards and the only Nevada score of the day. The extra point attempt was blocked and with that the score remained 29-6 through the third quarter.

On the eleventh play of the fourth quarter, BSU's Greg Stern passed to John Crabtree for 31 yards and 6 more points. With the style that belongs to him, Avi Rofe added one more point to bring the score to 36-6 and the cold wind blew on Nevada-Reno. It was only ten plays later than quarterback Greg Stern handed off to Tom Simms who carried the ball for still another BSU touchdown. The extra point was good and the Broncos now led 42-6.

With only 3:32 left in the game Stern went for 14 yards and the last BSU touchdown. Rofe kicked for one more point making the score 49-6. Seven plays later the game was over and the cold wind blew on Nevada-Reno.

Broncos take 2nd in Big Sky meet

by Rod Landgren

Again, it was Steve Collier leading the way for the BSU cross-country team as the Broncos finished second behind the U. of Montana in Saturdays Big Sky Conference finals held in Moscow.

"It's the best competition I've seen since I've been here at BSU," said Coach Ed Jacoby. "I was a little disappointed that we didn't win, but I don't think we are quite the team that Montana is. There's definitely nothing to be ashamed of. Montana is obviously a good team," he added.

Dean Erhard, U.M.'s third man, was a surprise winner for the grizzlies with a time of 25:43 over the five-mile golf course run. Montana finished the day with 46 points, Boise State had 60, Idaho State 66, Nevada 68, Idaho 105, Weber State 164, Montana State 211, and Gonzaga 245 points.

Sophomore Collier came in third for the Broncos with a time of 25:56 while Jim Van Dine had a 26:46 for the 11th place and Gil Esparza, 25:53 was good for a 12th place finish of the 53 runners.

Volleyball victory over CSI

by Johna Reeves

The Boise State women's volleyball team defeated CSI 15-7, 15-12 in Twin Falls, Thursday, after losing a match to the Golden Eagles earlier this season.

BSU completely dominated offensive play in the first game, with Bev Ballard leading the Bronco spikers.

In the second game Boise State slacked off giving CSI the lead several times, but BSU battled back to win 15-12.

Barb Klooze lead the Bronco's defensively with constant controlled bumps and several saves.

The win moves the BSU record to 8-12 for the season. The team travels to Pullman, Friday, to compete in the Washington State Invitational Tournament.

race," said Jacoby, "but we were down two or three spots in each instance.

Although it was a clear day the temperature, a crisp 38 degrees Fahrenheit, the ground was damp and the golf course was very hilly which was the cause of many spills.

It was evident that the Bronco's had a rough time with the hilly terrain; huffing and puffing up the hills and not "opening up" on the down hill side.

"Everybody ran the same course, the same hills and the same slopes. We can't use that for any kind of excuse," said Jacoby. It was a kind of a disadvantage though. The Bronco's go out into the foothills and run, but it isn't the same.

"Collier did an outstanding job of running downhill, and the way that course is, you have to be effective downhill or you're in trouble," Jacoby noted.

Sundays edition of the Idaho

Statesman was a little unjust toward the BSU harriers attempt for an upset as the Statesman stated it was a "...Montana run away..." Actually it wasn't. There was a 14 point spread between the two teams, but as the old saying goes, "the score wasn't indicative of the game." Collier easily beat the returning Big Sky Conference champion from Montana, Doug Darho, and three other Boise Staters were right on the heels of Darho.

What turned out to be a big factor for Montana was that U.M.'s Dean Erhard suprised everyone and won the race. Had he been in his usual third best of the Grizzlies, four Bronco's might have placed ahead of him. That alone, would have put Boise ahead, 56-59. Therefore, it was the excelling of one Montana runner that could very well have cost the Broncos the title; and obviously, it wasn't a "run away."

1 You can sometimes control the direction of the ball by where it hits your paddle. If it hits the center it will go straight. If it hits the right edge, it will go right, etc. Flicking the paddle to get a spin might work but is less controlled.

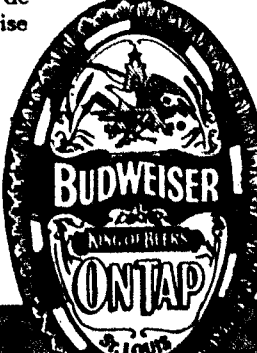

2 Avoid the sharp angle shots since they tend to slow the ball and are easy to return. The most effective angle shots are those that rebound closest to your opponent, the deadliest being the shot that rebounds just as it hits his line of play.

3 Shots down the middle are boring and slow. However, late in the rally after the ball has speeded up, a middle shot can be a killer if used deliberately to surprise your opponent.

BSU Skydivers to host national championships

by John Christ and Ed Pancoast

On November 27 through 30, the Boise State University Skydivers will host the tenth annual National Collegiate Parachuting Championships.

This will be the first time the National Collegiate Parachuting Championships will be held in the Western Region of the United States. The competition will be held at Jump West Parachute Center located off Hwy 44, one mile west of Star, Idaho.

The BSU Skydiving team will be competing against approximately 70 schools. More than 67 schools will be competing for the non-military first place award. Over the last five years, BSU has captured three first places and one second place. Last year BSU was unable to send a team to Illinois for the 1974 Nationals because of lack of student body funds. This year the BSU club has been raising funds toward this years nationals, tickets are available through the SUB information Booth, IK's and Skydiver club members.

Prices range from a general donation of two dollars and student donations of one dollar and fifty cents.

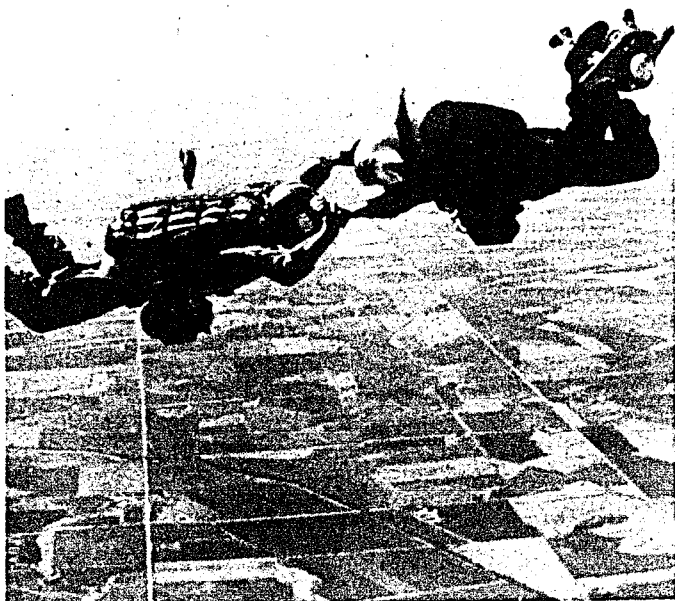

The BSU Skydiving team consists of President Ed Pancoast, John Christ, Ron Gulley, Pat Aurthur, Mike Bouton, Randy Yost, Dave Wells, Dave Brown, and Gary White. Team coaches are Walley Benton and Rich French. Each team member has invested a minimum of seven hundred dollars to obtain their own equipment, plus the expenses of their jumps.

Events scheduled for this years nationals include: novice, intermediate and advanced accuracy; style and four-man relative work. Each event has metals for first in three places; first place gold medal, second place silver medal, third place bronze medal; first place military trophy, first place non-military trophy, three scholarships of $250 and $500 and a sportsmanship award for the school who shows the most sportsmanship. Over 15,000 jumps, both practice and competition, will be made in less than four days.

The members of the BSU Skydivers have, for the last two weeks, had a petition before Dr. Barnes requesting that the moratorium on skydiving events on the BSU campus be revoked. For the past five years exhibition skydiving has been banned on the campus due to an accident in the stadium in 1970.

The Skydiving club meets every Wednesday at 6:00 p.m. in the Clearwater room in the SUB. If anyone is interested in making a jump (cost $35) or joining the club, come to the meeting.

BSU skydivers ready themselves for national competition

by John Steppe

Athlete of the week

In the fall of 1971 Cary Hoshaw ran the 151 yards in a single game. That record was almost broken last year in the Boise State-Chico State game when John (Superneedle) Smith ran for 150 yards. With several good attempts at breaking that record already this year John has become one hell of a football player.

Cary Hoshaw record lasted four years, all the way up to last Saturday when John ran for 177 yards against Nevada-Reno. A new record for John and Boise State.

In the Reno game John had more yardage by himself than the entire Nevada-Reno offense team. One could say that the first half was the big time for John for he had 144 yards before the team went to the locker for halftime.

Along with his 177 yards John also had two touchdowns for 12 points bringing his season total to 96. His first touchdown came on a 57 yards run from scrimmage which set the Broncos in front 6-0. His second scoring effort came on a 39 yard dash for paydirt putting the Boise State squad ahead 13-0.

John Smith has become one of the most explosive running backs ever to play for Boise State. He demonstrates dedication, stamina and courage. He has potential beyond the expectations of many and possesses the fortitude to carry out his potential.

Division 1 grid playoff

A proposal to begin a National Collegiate Division I Football Championship will be submitted by the Council to the 70th annual Convention in January.

At its October meeting in St. Louis, the Council received a favorable report from the 17-member feasibility committee, chaired by Ernest C. Casale of Temple University, which recommended the inauguration of a Division I football championship.

"The majority of the committee favored such a proposal," said NCAA President John S. Fuzak of Michigan State University.

"The committee favored putting it before the membership," Fuzak said. "The Executive Committee must develop the format; whether it will be a two-team playoff in a single contest or four teams or eight teams."

The committee favored a post-season playoff in early January which would follow bowl games sanctioned by the NCAA. The first playoff would not be until after the 1976 season (January, 1977).

Only the 134 Division I football playing members will vote on the proposal, and a simple majority is required for passage.

National Championships have been sponsored in Divisions II and III for the past two years and the third title games will be held at the Camelia Bowl in Sacramento, California, for Division II and the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl in Phoenix City, Alabama, for Division III in December.

Division 1 football may be reorganized further

Reprinted from National Collegiate Athletic Association News

A proposal to reclassify the Division 1 football-playing membership into two divisions has been recommended to the NCAA Council by the Reorganization Committee and will be placed before delegates to the Association's 70th annual Convention.

The Reorganization Committee, chaired by Edgar A. Sherman of Muskingum College, recommended that the Council appoint a Classification Committee to be responsible for the classification and reclassification of the divisional membership of each member institution.

Division 1 football playing members would be divided in Divisions I and I-A, and some Division II members in football could also be placed in Division I-A, with the consent of the Division II institution. These divisions would vote separately on future legislative issues which pertain to the sport of football.

A resolution will be presented at the January Convention to implement the program and create the Classification Committee.

At the time of initial reclassification, the Classification Committee may classify an institution a member of a different division even though it may not meet all of the criteria for that division if the Committee determines the institution will be able to meet the criteria within five years in the sport of football and/or within three years in the sport of basketball.

Amendments to NCAA Bylaws 8 and 10 will be submitted to the Convention to assign the Classification Committee duties formerly held by the Council regarding changes in divisional membership.

Highlights

Following are highlights of the Reorganization Committee's report to the Council:

An institution which petitions for membership in another division for which it does not meet the criteria at the time of application, may be granted probationary status in the new division.

During the period of its probation, a member shall apply all of the eligibility rules of the division to which it has applied for membership and shall be eligible for championship competition in all sports in the new division, as soon as it has complied with Bylaw 4-6(c), providing it is moving to a division of a lower number. It would not be eligible if moving to a division of a higher number.

Any opponent may regard the institution on probationary status as a member of its new division for the purpose of meeting scheduling requirements of divisional membership criteria. But an institution granted probationary status may not count games against another probationary institution toward any scheduling requirement for the division for which it has petitioned.

Conferences

In order for a conference to move to a new division, its members individually must meet the scheduling requirements of the new division and games against members of its conference shall not be counted.

To qualify to petition for a change in membership to Division I in the sport of football, a conference member must play at least 60 per cent of its non-conference games in football against members of Division I or I-A.

In the sport of basketball, conference members must play at least 10 non-conference games and at least 75 per cent of their non-conference games must be against teams in the division for which it has petitioned.

Independents

An independent institution must meet the more than 50 per cent and 75 per cent scheduling requirements for its entire schedule in football and basketball, respectively, to be eligible to petition for a change to Division I or I-A.

Six criteria will be considered by the Classification Committee when evaluating a petition for a change to Division I or I-A in the sport of football, including a statement of commitment to the division sought from the chief executive officer of the institution.

The other criteria to be evaluated are the institution's future scheduling patterns in the sport of football; the financial aid program for students participating in the sport of football; the number of sports sponsored by the institution on an intercollegiate basis, and the financial aid provided participants in sports in addition to football; the available athletic facilities; and past performance by the institution against opponents in the division in which membership is being sought.

Other Sports

Bylaw 10-4(b) would be amended to permit institutions which are members of Divisions II and III to participate in the National Collegiate Championship in those sports (fencing, ice hockey, skiing, indoor track, volleyball and water polo) in which a single championship is sponsored by the Association under the eligibility rules of their own respective divisions.

Executive Regulations, which govern automatic qualification, would also be amended.

An allied member of the Association must be an allied member for two years and two competitive seasons in the applicable sport at the time it applies for automatic qualification.

ER 2-5-(a)-(2) would be amended to provide that conferences be composed of at least six members which sponsor the sport on a varsity intercollegiate basis in the division in which automatic qualification is sought and further, for purposes of evaluating criteria for automatic qualification, the various sports shall be grouped as follows:

(a) - Team Sports - baseball, basketball, football, ice hockey, lacrosse, soccer, volleyball and water polo.

(b) - Timed Individual Sports - cross country, fencing, golf, gymnastics, skiing, tennis and wrestling. In this category, a sports committee may grant exceptions to the six-team requirement, subject to the approval of the Executive Committee.

Other recommendations of the Reorganization Committee include revisions in selection criteria and procedures, voting on committees, and committee appointments.

It was recommended that the Executive Committee require each sports committee to thoroughly and precisely define in writing complete criteria for selection of competitors and procedures for competition in or conduct of each NCAA Championship.

Also, it was noted the chairmen of the respective sports committees are chosen as representatives of their divisions and districts or areas. It is recommended that Bylaw 8 be amended to clearly afford each NCAA Committee chairman the privilege of voting on each issue before his committee.

Finally, the Committee urges more care in the selection of committee members and voted that Bylaw 8 be amended to stipulate that at least one director of athletics or commissioner of an allied conference be selected to each sports committee.

Field hockey record 17-0

by Johna Reeves

Boise State's field hockey team added two more wins to their flawless record this weekend by beating Central Washington 1-0 and Washington State 4-1 in Ellensburg.

BSU controlled the game against Central, keeping the ball at their end of the field throughout the game, but did not score until late in the second half. Connie Coulter scored the goal for BSU with around 5 minutes remaining in the game.

The Broncos also played an exciting game against WSU. Boise State held only a narrow 2-1 margin at halftime but went on to increase their lead to 4-1 in the second half. Trudy Erb and Elaine Elliott scored 2 goals apiece for BSU.

The BSU hockey record now stands at 17-0, with Boise State scoring an impressive 71 goals to their opponents 5. The team travels to LaGrande this weekend for a game with Eastern Oregon.
