Knap now head coach for UNLV, BSU looking

by John Steppe

If there are any of you who do not read the Statesman, do not watch television, do not listen to the radio, then this article will be big news to you. One would have found it hard to avoid the news that Boise State's head football coach Tony Knap has resigned and is now the head coach for the Rebels of the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. The University of Nevada at Las Vegas has been referred to as the arch-rival of Boise State.

What it boils down to is that UNLV offered Coach Knap more money than Boise State was paying. The results of that offer have been called everything from treason to the only thing he could do. Regardless of what other people think of his actions, Tony Knap is gone and with the entire Bronco coaching staff (with the exception of Dave Nickel, who is making a bid for the head coaching spot).

With his leaving Coach Knap takes with him a record of 71-19-1. He directed his team to three Big Sky Conference titles and to the Camellia Bowl in the fall of 1971 where the Broncos downed Chico State for the trophy. The list could go on for some time if it were my point to discuss Coach Knap's accomplishments while at Boise State.

The entire happening took place within a period of 24 hours. You could almost say one minute he was here and the next he was not. The event caught everyone off guard. Many have said it was a good thing and many feel that this is the end of Bronco football as it is now known.

The process of looking for a new head coach has already begun at Boise State with the usual name dropping that accompanies such an endeavor. It is rumored that the new salary will be higher but this is not known for sure.

When asked what his first reaction was to the incident, Athletic Director Lyle Smith said "I was surprised but I wish him all the luck in the world." Smith added "I think we have a fine program here at BSU thanks to Coach Knap and now we start looking."

Shortly after the formal resignation came, there was an emergency meeting of all varsity football players. Discussed at this meeting were various regulations. There was also a vote by players as to whether they wanted assistant coach Nickel to remain and take the head coaching job. The vote turned up that the players favored Nickel to stay and take the job.

A random sample of reaction brought up such quotes as "Wow! There goes the State Board appropriations..." and "Who the hell are we going to beat next year..." All in all, good luck, Tony.

Alcohol, detrimental to education?

"The alcohol suit is a much more monumental issue to the students than the State Board," according to an attorney with the law firm of Green, Frost and Cantrill, which is handling BSU's suit against the Board in a meeting last week.

Central to the question of consumption of alcohol on campus is whether it is detrimental to education, he said. Also a point is how State Board constituencies will feel about the regents statements on alcohol.

The point where the State Board will get excited is when the Board goes back to some of the more conservative areas of the state. They're going to say 'what the hell do you mean you came out in favor authorizing consumption of alcohol?'

He said there were factors which should be stipulated from the Attorney General's office. First, that there are students consuming alcohol on campus; second that there is no extensive enforcement and that the drinking of alcoholic beverages by those who of are legal age to consume it with in their own living quarters is not disruptive to a classroom situation.

The State Board wants a court of law to rule on the alcohol issue, according to the attorney.

"The Board wants a court of law to take the monkey off their back. They want to be able to say to their constituents 'we did not authorize it.'"

There will be a request of the State Board to set an alcohol policy at the Board's next meeting this week at BSU. If this is not on the State Board agenda, then a suit will be filed. "If it is brought up and it is against having alcohol on campus then a suit will also be filed."

As far as a test case, if a dormitory student in good standing grade wise could be found who would be willing to be caught drinking alcohol on campus, it could be tried this way, the attorney said. That student would, however, face a possibility of being suspended from school.

State Board to meet in Boise this week

by Barb Bridwell

The Idaho State Board of Education will meet at Boise State this Thursday and Friday, February 5 and 6. The Board will discuss BSU matters at 3:00 p.m. on Thursday and there will be an informal rap session for Boise State students at 2:30 p.m. on Friday.

The Board is expected to discuss 1976-77 housing and dormitory rate increases, which will total six per cent. The increase is needed because of increased operating overhead, utilities, and food costs, according to Boise State officials. This will maintain acceptable levels of service and accommodations to Boise State resident students.

Boise State will also request a special fee of $60 per credit hour be approved for the Masters of Public Administration program to be offered at the Mountain Home Air Force Base. The increase is needed because of the nature and expense of the program. The regular off campus fee is $20 per credit hour.

Building names is also on the State Board agenda, with a proposal for a special committee to recommend names. The committee would consist of the president and vice-president of the faculty senate; the president and vice-president of the student body, the president and vice-president of the alumni association; the executive vice-president and the vice-president for student affairs. The committee will be responsible for recommending building names to the president of the university, who will recommend names to the State Board. The State Board is the official body to approve final naming of buildings and structures.

An opportunity for everyone to benefit

Community Education - an opportunity for everyone to benefit from their public education tax dollars. Did you ever think how blithly we pass by public buildings, knowing they are for all persons. Yet most Americans will pass by a "public" school and if asked what it is say, "That's a school for..." then identify a particular age group. Nationally, our public schools are used less than 35 per cent of the time, a fact that would cause most of our private industries to fold if they used their property on this basis. Schools are the only facility to be found in every neighborhood of our country so why not open these facilities to use by all taxpayers? Why build new community activity centers and furnish them with audio-visual equipment, restrooms, food preparation areas, recreational equipment, etc., when we have schools already housing each of the above.

Boise Schools Community Education will begin over 200 activities the week of February 2 with registration beginning Sunday, January 18 at 2:00 p.m. at Fairmont Junior High. Monday, January 19 at 7:00 p.m. registration will be at East Junior High which is handy to BSU. The cost is 40 cents per class hour and BSU students are welcome. Call 345-9911 for further information or stop by 301 N. 29th for a brochure.

College recruitment advertising may halt

A joint memorial sponsored by Maurice Clements, a conservative from Canyon County, has panicked a few administration officials. The House memorial, number 13, calls for a halt to mass media college recruitment advertising.

Number 13 states that "Whereas, the record indicates ever increasing requests for additional funds to support the institutions of public education in Idaho, and

"Whereas, extensive publicity campaigns have been undertaken in order to increase enrollment at a time when scarce economic resources should be carefully spent in order to meet present commitment, we respectfully urge the State Board of Education to review the policies of the institutions of higher education, and to insure that money's are not spent in the advertisement or solicitation of students with the resultant increased pressures on the state for funding purposes."

What this verbose mass of English means is simply that money allocated from the state for higher education should go to something other than trying to acquire more students; things more like buildings, programs, etc. This premise sounds good, but Representative Clements neglected to consider a few other factors.

First, federal grants, such as to Veterans Affairs, stipulate that there will be active recruitment of students. If this is not done, there are no more federal bucks, so programs funded this way go out the window.

Secondly, the state higher education allocations depend for a large part on the number of students attending the institution. More students equal more money, but to get more students, an institution must get it's name around. In other words, advertise, the Catch-22 of appropriations.

Lastly, certain people make their living by recruiting students, especially high school students. To put it bluntly, these people would be out of a job, and there are numerous people in the state who make their living in this fashion.

The State of Idaho is going to have to realize that higher education needs more money. No matter how the budget is trimmed, to have quality education, there has to be adequate money. This particular cut is not going to help, only hurt. B.B.

Woman against woman- -dissension in the ranks

by Cynthia Crossen

(CPS)--The stalling of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA)--just four states short of final ratification--has already prompted many opponents of women's rights to applaud the death of the women's liberation movement.

But now, with a split in the ranks of the largest and most powerful feminist organization in America--the National Organization of Women (NOW)--now the ERA may be only the first of many casualties in the most recent war between women and women.

The sides were drawn at a recent conference in Philadelphia where a NOW faction calling itself "The Majority Caucus" won two-thirds of the seats on NOW's national board with the slogan "Out of the mainstream into the revolution."

In one of its campaign newsletters, the Majority Caucus explained that their platform "commits us not just to get women into the mainstream of American life, but to change the very nature of that mainstream itself."

The newsletter went on to say that "to achieve equality in a society that is fundamentally corrupt, compassionless, dehumanizing and destructive is to stop short of realizing our own full potential for social change..."

Few times in NOW's 10-year history have such radical ideas been proposed to its 60,000 members. NOW has always sought support from women "who enjoy being wives and mothers" and whose most radical ideas include child care, equal access to credit, better jobs and improved income.

These are the women who will be alienated by NOW's new leadership, according to the NOW conference delegates who lost their bids for the national board. Many of the defeated delegates subsequently formed their own faction, "Womensurge," to decide how to put NOW back on its old track.

"You don't make the great strides on child care and jobs and credit and things by alienating the people you want that from," one Womensurge member said.

The Womensurge group is expecting that the new priorities approved at the Philadelphia conference--lesbian rights and alliance with Third World and working women--"will frighten most women."

Indeed some of NOW president and Majority Caucus member Karen DeCrow's ideas have come under sharp attack from several local chapters. DeCrow advocates third term abortions--abortions when the fetus could be viable--and NOW endorsements of political candidates, both stands widely opposed by the NOW rank and file.

But DeCrow responded to Womensurge criticism by repeating her commitment to the women NOW has previously neglected. "Somehow, if the feminist movement pays attention to anyone but white, middle-class straight women, we are off course," she complained.

The dissension in the ranks has proven to be more than the usual political infighting associated with such diverse organizations as NOW. One member of NOW's board of directors labelled it "a crisis of tremendous proportions...There's a great deal of bad will in the organization," she said.

The Philadelphia convention itself was marked by vicious personal attack, parliamentary maneuvering, credentialing fights and endless, middle-of-the-night voting, according to an independent feminist newsletter, The Spokeswoman.

Fortunately, much of NOW's efforts towards equality for women happen in the local chapters which decide many of their own projects and priorities. The effect on the grassroots organization is expected to be limited.

But 50 per cent of the NOW membership is "at large"--unaffiliated with any local chapters. And if the factionalism of the national leaders continues for long, the women's movement and all the progress it has made, may be lost in the scuffle.

BSU Special Events Center needs name

Editor, the ARBITER

It was with much enthusiasm that I read that the BSU Special Events Center is about completed and soon ready for dedication.

Something so beautiful and original needs a special name and I've not heard a thing lately about its name. Last fall when I heard that the students desired to name the theatre in honor of John Woodworth, I heartily applauded the idea and thought it the best choice that could be made.

The students should be commended for their recognition and love for a teacher who exemplified the highest standards of teaching and challenged his students successfully to achieve the goals he set for them.

Perhaps the students didn't follow the "chain of command" in selecting and announcing their choice of name for a building constructed from student funds. That oversight should be easily forgiven by the Executive Council in view of the excellent choice the students made with the concurrence of the Faculty Senate.

The time is past due when a gifted, beloved member of the faculty who was known as "Mr. Shakespeare" on the campus when it was still BJC, should have the new theatre named in his honor. Mr. Woodworth's contributions to the students and Boise State cannot be measured in dollars.

Whereas both the Faculty and Student Senates have moved that the new theatre be named the "John Woodworth Memorial Center," I second the motion and ask for a unanimous acclamation.

Hot water, 5 cents, 'pretty dumb'

Editor, the Arbitrator,

I have noticed in the past few days that the restaurant downstairs in the SUB has been charging a nickel for a cup of hot water. I think this is pretty dumb. I know they just want to keep students from bringing their own tea bags, but what about people like me who bring instant soup and things for lunch. I know the cost of cups and electricity and things is going up, but enough to charge five cents for a cup of hot water? I hope they don't start charging for cold water.

The Senate is dead . . . long live the King

Dear Uncle Ernie,

I read in the paper last week that it's time for the student body elections. Won't these jerks ever give up? I, for one, can't see the point in paying these people [0] for playing their high school politics.

I think that our student government ought to get away from the conventional forms of government and experiment a little. You never know, they might come across with some new form of government that will solve everything. What do you think?

Yours Truly,
Won't Vote

Dear Vote,

I have the plan that is sure to work wonders with our student body government. We don't elect a President, Vice-President, Treasurer or Senators, but instead we will select a King. That's right, the one and only, The Associated Student Body of Boise State University Monarch.

I can see the coronation in the Special Events Center. The King will be dressed in an orange and blue cape, his crown will be a Bronco Burger and his scepter will be a giant IBM pencil and his palace will be the American Legion Hall. It may be old fashioned but at least we will have one head instead of sixteen.

Shitskies Ernie,

What on earth are we going to do now that Coach Tony has abandoned ship? Who do you think we ought to get for the new FB coach. Hurry, our school pride is at stake here.

With Love,
Good-bye Tony

Dear Good-bye,

How about Charles Manson, I hear he's up for parole. He'd really teach our guys to hit-if you know what I mean.

PEOPLE

. . .the turkey didn't show up

by Elliot Johnson

It is official now! Our head coach Tony Knap is leaving for the rigors of Las Vegas. Knap has, in this writer's opinion, been one of the most influential members of the university community in the greater Boise area, if not the entire state. Though we shall miss Coach Knap next year, the important thing to look at is the excitement of an entirely new ballgame. . . so to speak. The greatest thing to remember about Knap is that he built an impressive team here at BSU and that will be certainly a big plus for our program. Good luck to whomever get the head coach-nod.

Big Ed Pancoast (you remember, the second runnerup for the Homecoming Queen this year) has stated that he feels as though he has been chained to a log like some character in a Richard Bratigan novel. "I don't know what's going on anymore," said Big Ed. "I feel like a fool trying to feed plastic carrots to a rubber donkey. . . I just keep getting farther and farther behind."

The Student Union Programs Board is planning to sponsor a two-week period of events in April for the American Bicentennial. Tom Beeler, Special Events Chairperson, stated that this will beat the entire state to the punch. "We are encouraging every BSU organization and group to get involved with this celebration," said Beller.

Already it is rumored they have procured a rodeo (to be held on campus); a band concert and plans are in to cooker for an art show, an antique car display, and a road rally.

Speaking of the Programs Board, the contract-rider for the March presentation of THE NATIONAL LAMPOON SHOW arrived, much to the chagrin Lectures Chairperson Randy Birkinbine. It appears that they want 18 1000-watt ellipsoidal lights as a part of their stage set-up. Birkinbine says that they can go right ahead and want as their aren't that many available. There were some other rather bizarre requests on the rider, including a small green plant, which was to be destroyed on stage. Birkinbine would not go into details, but evidently it stems from a startling conclusion which would not only shock the viewer, but bring in the law.

Dyke Nally is still laughing over the last meeting on Wild Life and Big Game held publically last week. It seems as though there were some hunters in the audience who told stories about a cougar that had died of malnutrition. Nally imparted the story in detail to a select group of folks in his office last Thursday, and all present shared in Nally's glee. On the serious side, Dyke said that the Fish and Game people had better start learning a little more about the wildlife they are supposed to be protecting.

"They need to get the slob hunters out of the woods," said Nalley. "Those are the ones that are killing indiscriminately and taking aim on reducing the competition by maiming their fellow hunters." That would be a good project for our Alumni Director in coalition with the F&G department...bringing about fair play in our state's wilderness so that everyone would benefit. Go get 'em Dyker!

Finally, the people who worked on the recent Phase I petition drive were a little more than saddened when they went to the Statehouse to present over 2600 signatures to the chairperson of the Finance and Appropriations Committee. It seems the turkey didn't show up. Perhaps BSU's students who are interested in their institution should take this as a direct insult; perhaps the entire state should take a long, hard look to see if the people they elect are truly responsible to the state's needs and priorities.

Two weeks ago, we referred to Tau Kappa Epsilon as "Tau Kappa Sigma Epsilon." Sorry, TKE's, it's all Greek to us.

Q. Do you feel that ASB Senators should be elected to two year terms?

Dianne Scott, sophomore. I think that would be a good idea.

Nancy Ertter, graduate. Doesn't sound like a bad deal.

Jan Miller, junior. I think probably a two year term, because then they'd have an idea of what was going on the year before.

Jim Staup, senior. I think they should have a one year term, mainly because it allows new thoughts and ideas to flow into the senate.

Dave Wells, sophomore. I've never really thought about it, it's pretty good the way it is now. Why change?

Dennis White, freshman. I think they should keep it at one year so that everyone can have a chance.

BSU HEALTH CENTER ANSWERS MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

What is tetanus?

Tetanus (lockjaw) is an infectious disease characterized by intermittent tonic spasms of voluntary muscles, and convulsions. It is an equal opportunity disease; anyone can catch it.

How is tetanus contacted?

Tetanus lurks everywhere: home, factory and even in your own back yard. It can enter any break of the skin and can strike any unimmunized person. It kills 50% of all who contract it. Persons dependent on addicting drugs are prone to develop tetanus as are those with surgical wounds and burns.

What are the signs and symptoms of the disease?

The incubation period varies - usually from 5 - 10 days. The most frequent presenting symptom is stiffness of the jaw.

Other symptoms include restlessness, irritability, stiff neck, difficulty swallowing, stiff arms or legs, headache, fever, sore throat, chills or convulsions. Later the patient has difficulty in opening the jaws. There may be rigidity or spasm of the abdominal, neck and back muscles.

What can be done to prevent tetanus?

Immunity can be maintained after basic immunization (indicated in all children and adults) by periodic booster injections of toxoid at 5 - 10 year intervals. The injection may be obtained at your Student Health Service. OR Tetanus booster injections will be given FREE in the SUB Lobby Wednesday, February 11, 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., by Student Health Service personnel.

'WICHE' internship

The Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE) is developing more than 200 internship projects for the summer of 1976.

WICHE is encouraging students of junior, senior or graduate level to apply for the varied projects.

Internships run approximately 12 weeks. Interns selected for the program receive a tax exempt educational stipend of $100 per week and are expected to produce an acceptable professional report for the sponsoring agency.

The primary focus of the summer internships is "solving community problems." When a student is assigned to a project, after it is fully planned by the sponsor, he has the responsibility to make necessary modifications so the plan can successfully meet the needs of the sponsor. The kinds of projects developed include: economic development, consumer protection, police-community relations, water resources, industrial pollution, community planning and others. Students from all major fields of study are encouraged to apply.

Application forms can be secured from the Dean of the student's school of study, or the office of the Vice-President for Student Affairs (A-110).

Student sex squired Hoover

(CPS)--Sex is the latest addition to the list of student activities that former FBI director J. Edgar Hoover tried to stamp out.

Information uncovered by the Senate Intelligence Committee recently revealed that Hoover authorized FBI agents to forge letters from parents to protest "free love" at the University of Texas.

Hoover, angered by a news report describing students' sex lives at the Texas school, approved letters forged on locally obtained stationery that would protest such goings-on at a state supported school. The letters were sent to regents as well as state senators, pretending to be from irate parents who were considering sending their children to the University of Texas.

'The cost of dying...'

by Scott Tudehope

"The cost of dying has not kept up with the cost of living." Earl Waggoner, director of Alden-Waggoner Funeral Chapel, should know. He added, "Of course the purpose (of funerals) is to satisfy the family...yes they should stop around and look."

Cost of funerals has recently come under attack by consumer agencies and individuals concerned with rising costs. According to the National Funeral Directors Association, funeral expenses come under four headings: 1. professional services, including overhead and casket; 2. services rendered by the cemetery; 3. A monument or marker for the grave; and 4. miscellaneous items such as flowers.

The first item is usually the only profit making area for the firm. Unless the funeral parlor owns their own cemetery, they make no money on either two or three. It depends on the individual cemetery's policy, but in most cases morticians can not sell markers.

Below is a quick run down on one of the cheapest funerals in Boise, based on figures supplied by a local funeral home.

	Average funeral	Cremation
Salaries, facilities	$615.00	$465.00
Casket	125.00	125.00
Subtotal	$740.00	$570.00
Sales tax	8.88	6.24
Cemetery	275.00	140.00
Clergyman	25.00	25.00
Music	12.50	..
Escort Service	35.00	..
Death Certificates (4)	8.00	8.00
Subtotal	$364.38	$179.24
Total	$1104.38	$749.24

Keep in mind that the figures are relative, and are one of the cheaper buys. Caskets can run as high as $3000 or more, so you get an idea how inexpensive this one is, in comparison. In case you're wondering, "professional services" include embalming, transportation of the remains in Treasure Valley, among other things.

Broken down, you can see why a $1000 funeral isn't much any more. But don't forget the compensations--life insurance for one. If you are a wage-earner, expect $200 from social security, and if you were a veteran during wartime, the VA will chip in $400, a flag for the casket, and a free marker.

The cheapest way is to kick off while taking an ocean cruise. A friend could dump you overboard and save your family quite a bit. Most folk, however, choose to have traditional rites. Another way to save is to make your own casket. Imagination can pay.

What's new in caskets this year? Being a bicentennial year, you guessed it...a red, white and blue beauty. Tack on two American flags on the overhead panel and go out in patriotic style. The creator of the old glory, Jack White, claims, "It has a special appeal for the serviceman."

The expenses of dying almost makes it worth making those life insurance payments.

'Happy Birthday Wanda June,' opens Tuesday

by Linda J. Knighton

Theatre in a Trunk is Boise's only semi-professional playhouse and has ambitions to become a para-professional group in the future.

The troop began as a BSU project which was literally A Theatre in a Trunk. They toured Idaho and became such a success that they decided to become independent. They rented an old warehouse to make into a theatre of their own. Refurbishment took the entire group, working in twenty-four hour shifts, to install seven tons of sheet rock (donated by Boise Cascade), two restrooms and a new door.

The Theatre in a Trunk opened this fall with, "The Private Ear and the Public Eye." Since that time, the audience has more than tripled. The increase in audience has caused a problem with reservations. BSU students are urged to make reservations early for the $2.50 seats. Those willing to take a chance can wait until 8:10 and try for seats on a standby basis. These seats cost only one dollar. Reservations can be made by calling 336-1901.

The group is now in rehearsal for Kurt Vonnegut's, "Happy Birthday Wanda June." If this play were a movie, it would be rated "R." The explicit language might put some people off, but a spokesman for the company states that the language is part of the vehicle which conveys the point of the play. This point is best summed up by a quote from the play, "This is a simple-minded play about men who enjoy killing and those who don't."

"Happy Birthday Wanda June," opens February 3rd.

Boise Talent Association seeks talent

Auditions will be held Thursday night, February 5th from 5:00 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., in Music-Drama III for all musicians and vocalists who might be interested in becoming a member of Boise's first professional talent agency.

The Boise Talent Association, under the leadership of Lois McWhirter and Pam Reeder, has been organized to aid in the discovery of new, local talent and also to promote the area's established talent.

The function of this organization is to develop a personal "work file" for each actor, musician, comic or vocalist who is accepted as a member. From these files the agency will be able to select suitable talent for the employers in the area who are looking for performers to hire.

The BTA will operate as any other entertainment agency and will charge the member $7.00 to prepare the resume, work, file, and whatever 8 x 10 photographs they deem necessary. They will also take 10%, the required professional agents fee, from the salary of each performer placed in employment.

McWhirter told the Arbiter that plans are already under the way with Dr. Robert Erickson, chairman of the Theatre Arts Department, to set up auditions for actors and comics, as well as the audition scheduled for musical talent on February 5th. These auditions are free and could result in the first real opportunity for Boise area performers to entertain professionally, McWhirter said.

Boise State University gains permanent art collection

Dr. Barnes, in consultation with Dr. Louis Peck, Chairman of the Art Department, announced that the University is beginning to establish a permanent collection of art in which one or two art works of students, former students, or other outstanding Idaho artists will be purchased annually. The selections of art works to be purchased will be made by a committee of art faculty under the chairmanship of Dr. Peck. Each annual selection will bear the name of the artist and the date, and will be housed in some appropriate location on the University campus. Until a new fine arts building is constructed, tentative plans call for using the foyer of the Special Events

Center as a repository for the permanent collection. The art collection will include works of various mediums and will not be limited to oils or water colors, etc. The President's Office has committed $500 per year from non-appropriated funds for this purpose. The first selections of the committee will be announced in the spring.

'Dog Day Afternoon'

by Linda J. Knighton

At the Ada theatre, it looked like a new version of, "What if we gave a party and no one came?" The audience was small, but we were given a party. "Dog Day Afternoon" may be deep, but nobody was hit over the head with the point. This movie was like a grown-up version of, "All in the Family." If you liked the show, you will love this movie.

The plot is fast moving. The characters are engaging from the inept bankrobbers to the entire New York City police force. The story may be unbelievable, but you will want to believe.

The acting was superior, with an especially shining performance turned in by Chris Sarandon. Al Pacino was in clear command of the screen every second he was on it. As a matter of fact, it is to the credit of director, Sidney Lumet, that not one of the actors seemed to be acting. This even held true for those whose screen life was as brief as Mayfly's.

Women's liberation groups might note the excellent editing of Dede Allen. This was obviously not another butcher job on Frank Pierson's script.

There are problems with strong language, references to homosexuality and several rather pointed barbs at the Catholic church, but if you know these things won't bother you, by all means see. "Dog Day Afternoon."

Senate report

Senate rejects Photo Bureau appointment

by George Nells

The Senate Tuesday asked for the head of the Personnel Selection Committee to explain her practices in the light of President Kim's recent appointment of Tom Mc Kercher as head of the Photo Bureau. Kim Silva, head of the committee, noted that few of the recent appointments to particular places on the student staff had gone through her committee. This "distressed me," she said, it is "very unfair to these 12 people to not be considered," referring to the twelve applicants to Photo Bureau positions, none of whom had been interviewed by the committee. Three had been appointed extraneous to the committee.

Howard Welsh, Senator from the School of Health, reaffirmed Silva when he noted that "these appointments should go through Personnel Selection."

Tom Mc Kercher, the head of the Photo Bureau, said that because of the sudden loss of personnel, he had been appointed as temporary head. Nate Kim made the position permanent by recommending Tom to the Senate, who then confirmed him into the position. Ron O'Halloran, President of the Senate, said, "Nate has the right to fill a vacancy without going through the Senate."

Because of this "lack of communication," the policy has had a "distressing view on people turned down. In fairness to other applicants, it should go through Personnel Selection," was Silva's final point.

Mc Kercher agreed with her, "I wouldn't mind at all if it went through Personnel Selection."

Ron Buchanan gave his budget report. He asked for a $200 scholarship as a service award for John Elliott for his work on the homecoming magazine. There was a question from the Senate why $200 would be given for the scholarship. It was an arbitrary award, noted Buchanan. The year before, Elliott "did receive $90, giving half of it away to his workers." He spent six months laboring on the "only magazine made by a student." Steve Mengel then pointed out that "he busted his butt on it, did a good job."

A sticking point occurred when Buchanan asked for $2100 in funds for the President of the ASBSU to travel to three conventions. The first, to a meeting of the State Board in Pocatello, passed easily, but when the Senate was asked for additional funds to send the President to Ann Arbor and Washington, they balked. Howard Welsh was the first to speak up. "No objectivity," he said, "no information what these trips are about." Nate Kim said, "These meetings show us "how schools within a state system can work toward collective bargaining. - What happens across the nation affects us here at Boise State." Ron Buchanan noted that the "current issues now facing student government are issues ... vital to student body process coming up."

Welsh called it a counter productive technique. The proper technique would be to "obtain a portfolio from the conference." It would be a "more reasonable investment in money. To take advantage of information look into other techniques."

Lenny Hertlign, Senator from Arts & Sciences, said that the "value of going to conferences ... is interaction... an address to a specific problem." The motion to accept the monies for the Ann Arbor/Washington meetings was defeated for lack of a two-thirds majority.

When Lyle Mosier, Senator from Education, was questioned about the "old business" he was bringing to the floor, he answered that this was "old business as of last night." A heated session arguing the points of the upcoming alcohol suit followed.

Welsh then demanded that all senators receive a copy of the contract to the alcohol suit. It's "time for the lawyers to show what (the) disposition of the suit is." Lenny Hertling, as "an unbiased observer," noted that the contracts were "easy to get a hold of." O'Halloran said that, "Senators should be aware that the information is at their disposal."

It was then pointed out that what is in the actual legal brief cannot be known until the brief is officially filed in court.

The BSU Astronomy Club Constitution was approved by the Senate.

Next week there will be two Senate meetings, an informal session at 3:30 Monday, and their regular session at 4:30 Tuesday. Budget meetings are held every Wednesday at 5:15.

Idahoans don't want proposed Pioneer

A statewide opinion survey shows that Idahoans do not want the proposed Pioneer coal-fired plant, the chairman of Citizens for Alternatives to Pioneer said Monday.

William Smallwood of Mountain Home said results of Idaho's Tomorrow telephone survey would have been even more negative if the survey had been taken within the last two weeks, after it was learned that electric bills would more than double with the coal plant.

"It wasn't widely known in early November when the survey was taken that Idaho Power proposed to double its rates within four years and raise them a total of 154% in eight years if Pioneer is approved," said Smallwood.

Smallwood said many Idahoans are probably unaware that Idaho Power proposes to expand its generating capacity by 60 per cent from 1973 to 1980, without Pioneer.

"Idahoans have been hit with a propaganda blitz telling them the coal plant is needed," he said, "when in fact with reasonable rate of population and industrial growth, we can get along for many years with a 60 per cent increase in power generation."

Smallwood noted that according to the Idaho Statesman, 75 per cent in the survey prefer Idaho population growth of no more than 200,000 in the next 20 years. "The coal plant would stimulate the boom type growth that most Idahoans don't want," he said.

"When asked what sources of energy they liked, only 3 per cent favored coal plants," said Smallwood. "If the Public Utilities Commission denies the coal plant, it will allow us time to utilize technological breakthroughs that are sure to come.

Radioactive waste disposal

(CPS)-Federal officials are still up in the air when it comes to disposing of rapidly increasing radioactive waste materials but they have made one thing perfectly clear-they won't be shooting the nuclear wastes into the sun by rocket ships.

"Rockets just aren't reliable enough yet for such a thing," one energy official told the Wall Street Journal.

The toxic wastes, such as plutonium, which must be isolated for hundreds of thousands of years, are fast becoming a major issue as nuclear power plants proliferate. White House officials are currently working on a program to assure the public that radioactive wastes pose no health problems but high costs are proving to be a handicap. Nuclear waste disposal may cost the country hundreds of millions of dollars over several years.

Since rockets to the sun are out, scientists are studying salt beds in New Mexico, underground rock formations in the midwest and east and the ocean floor as sites for possible nuclear garbage dumps.

"I do not consciencely try to express a mood or a feeling in my work. I think it comes out in a lot of things I do, that's not my goal, my goal is to achieve technique," said Larry Douglass, featured in this weeks Gallery.

ERA rescission fails, 20-15

Supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment got a boost last week when the State Senate defeated an attempt to rescind Idaho's ratification of the ERA. The measure failed 20-15, four votes short of the needed two-thirds majority.

The Senate spent nearly an hour on the ERA, most of that time discussing whether it takes a two-thirds majority to rescind previous legislation. There is still another ERA rescission bill in the Legislature, although it is in the Senate State Affairs Committee, where it may remain. This bill calls for only a simple majority to pass.

Debate on the actual issue was kept at a minimum, with only one Boise delegate, James Risch, voting in favor of the rescission. He said he was "voting the way my people want me to vote."

Risch stated in debate that Amendment 14 of the Constitution already struck down discrimination on the basis of sex, also various Supreme Court decisions have struck down statutes that discriminate on the basis of sex.

Senator Edith Miller Klein, of Boise, countered Risch by stating that the Supreme Court has also ruled that discrimination on the basis of sex is permissible.

Lyle Cobbs, R-Boise, stated he was opposed to rescission. He said he could not accept the idea that women should "stay home, cook, raise children and bake bread."

Leon Swenson of Nampa voted for the rescission saying that the thrust of the ERA is not towards women's rights. "By nature society has given women advantages and certain areas of protection which they should have."

Swenson said that opponents of the ERA have been accused of witch hunting. He cited a ruling where in some areas females should be equal with males in athletics as one of the "witches."

Republican J. Marsden Williams of Idaho Falls said he wished women to have equal rights, but he also wished women to be "on a pedestal higher than men." He stated that "Chivalry is not dead."

State police alerted to stand by at legislative land use hearing

Reprinted by permission of the Lewiston Morning Tribune

Two area legislators Thursday expressed their appreciation to Sen. Lyle Cobb, R-Boise. Cobb ordered Idaho State Police to stand by Monday night when a hearing is held at Boise on three land use bills by the Local Government Committee of the Senate. Cobb is chairman of the committee.

Sen. Mike P. Mitchell, D-Lewiston, and Rep. Dale Branson, D-Nezperce, told the Governmental Affairs Committee of the Greater Lewiston Chamber of Commerce that they fear "militant action."

The land use package has brought reaction throughout the state from individuals and organizations who believe enactment will mean a loss of property rights. Cobb ordered state police to stand guard during the hearing because he fears opponents of the measure might become "militant," Mitchell and Branson said during a hotline discussion with the committee.

Later in the day, Robert N. Wise, chief of the Bureau of State Planning & Community Affairs, said in a telephone interview with the Lewiston Morning Tribune that if opponents would "just read the bills" their fears would be allayed.

The three bills are:

SB 1275 - This would provide for hearings if a new development had a regional impact, such as an industrial plant on a county line. Hearings could be requested by government units, 1,000 registered voters or 7 per cent of the registered voters if they do not total 1,000.

SB 1276 - This bill strikes the state law on subdivisions and leaves the decision to city and county governments. Wise termed it a relaxation of state control over subdivisions.

SB 1277 - This bill provides for assistance to county and city governments in land use planning upon request. It also allows the state to comment on land use, but not to overrule cities and counties.

"We are hoping people will study these bills," Wise said. "If they do they will find out they are not ogres."

By enacting its own land use bills, Wise added, the state can protect itself from increasing federal regulations.

Idaho, Wise said, is the fourth fastest growing state in the nation, and "We don't want to see it bulldozed" in the same fashion as Arizona or California.

Mitchell told the committee there is "no reason for militants" in the legislative halls when peaceful access is available to all.

"It appears to me that demonstrators hurt their own cause more than they help it," Branson said.

Mitchell assured C.J. Hopkins that the legislature will get around to considering tax relief measures after it has determined its financial position.

Hopkins had chided Branson about a House decision waylaying a bill to increase the sales tax exemption on food from $15 to $20.

Branson said he does not plan to vote in favor of any tax relief measure until the highway system has been funded.

"How about the little people?" Hopkins asked.

"They use the roads, too," Branson replied.

Mitchell told Hopkins the legislature now has tax relief measures totaling $36 million.

"If all these were enacted, the state would have to close up," Mitchell said. "We ought to fund the state first and then see."

"When the picture is clear, we will help the little people. This is an election year and everybody has a tax relief bill."

Mayor Richard J. Adams expressed city council support for pending bills returning more control to city government.

"We don't want legislators from eastern Idaho telling us how to run cities," Adams said.

Changes in the law are needed, Adams continued, to bring county government up to date to meet today's realities. He said the role played by county governments is now minor compared with 100 years ago.

"Some legislators act as though they came across the Delaware with George Washington," Adams said.

During a second hotline discussion, Congressman Steve Symms said from Washington, D.C., he will vote against a measure calling for publication of a report on the investigation of the CIA conducted by Sen. Frank Church.

"It is sensitive material," Symms said. "I am skeptical about jeopardizing agents and our ability to carry on intelligence."

"I don't want to air our dirty linen in a world where the other side is playing hard ball and we're playing soft ball."

Those who support publication of the full report, Symms said, would reap headlines.

Symms also was critical of a bill approved Tuesday to halt aid to Angola.

"By denying the ammunition and guns we sent a signal around the world," Symms said. "One of these days we're going to have to bite the bullet."

People's birthday cake

Pranks and 'economic democracy'

by Bill McGraw

(CPS)-It's nearly 1 p.m. on a cold winter's day at the University of Wisconsin at Oshkosh. Ronald Reagan is on his way and Bonzo the Chimp is in a tizzy.

Bonzo, or at least someone dressed like Reagan's former movie co-star, is leaping about and chanting along with nearly 2,000 students in the school's gym, ready to "laugh Reagan out of Wisconsin," as the frenzied speaker screams over the microphone. "Reagan for President means Death Valley Days for the U.S." reads one student's sign. "Revolution in '76," says another.

Reagan arrives, ducks three eggs, and then speaks forcefully to the students from the right hip for 50 minutes. He even gets the upper hand at times, despite the hostility and tension.

The heckling, the candidate and the rhetoric are nothing new, especially in this campaign year. What is new, however, is the speaker, the chimp and the other organized theatrics, all provided with compliments from the People's Bicentennial Commission (PBC).

The PBC, the small, radical and well organized group from Washington that is offering Americans an alternative to the regular Bicentennial, has a new trick up its sleeve. It's called "The Common Sense Campaign" and it's designed to infuse debate on the nation's economic problems into the ongoing presidential campaign.

The PBC says it has "hundreds" of Common Sense volunteers hard at work in the early primary states of New Hampshire and Wisconsin. The volunteers, many of them college students, show up at political gatherings and pepper the candidates with tough questions about the basic problems facing American workers. "This campaign has one purpose," says Randy Barber, Common Sense New Hampshire coordinator, "to put the issue of democratizing the American economy on the national agenda. The Common Sense Campaign says it's time for working Americans to reclaim control over our economic destiny."

The Campaign echoes the basic themes of the PBC, which started in 1971 with $600 but has now expanded well past its original role of showing the country there is more to its 200th birthday than red, white and blue toilet seats.

"Economic democracy," in which workers take control of their jobs, is now the PBC's thrust. PBC members make no bones about being revolutionary. "We are really a political movement—we are fighting the new monarchy of today, big business," says Jeremy Rifkin, the PBC's founder.

Rifkin, 31, and the PBC hold up the American Revolution as their model of what they see as the citizen uprising needed today. They want home-grown, non-violent change. Their models are not Mao Tse-Tung or Ho Chi Minh but rather Jefferson and Paine. Big Businessmen are our current Tories, they feel, and the next revolution should be based on pride in the nation and not revulsion of it.

A look at court action from Tuesdays matchup between Boise State and Northwest Nazarene College in which the Broncos came out on top.

Cagers hit one for one in weekend play

by John Steppe

Bronco courtmen were handicapped this last weekend, for they were playing without the services of Terry Miller, a junior from Tarzana, Calif. Miller sustained a broken thumb in practice last Thursday.

Even with the lost player, Boise State handled Northern Arizona for a victory. Down 51-46 at halftime, the Broncos held on until 18 seconds were left in the game. During an NAU time out, a technical foul was levied against NAU because a man was "out of bounds without permission", under their bucket. The free throw was given to Steve Connor, with the score NAU 83-BSU 82. Connor put the ball up and missed, BSU gained control of the ball. With 3 seconds left, Connor hung the ball into the air. When it finally came down, the game was over, and BSU won 84-83.

Scoring for the Broncos went well with Connor leading with 21 points. In second place was Pizza Hut Basketball Classic candidate Pat Hoke with 19, and Trent Johnson netted 14.

The following night, the cards just didn't fall right for Boise State. With a score of 41-31 in the favor of Weber State at halftime, the Broncos weren't doing it.

In second half action, Pat Hoke scored his 1000th career

At one point, the Boise State cagers were down by as much as 19 points. When the game ended, it was Weber State 97-Boise State 87.

Scoring was lead by Steve Connor with 32 points, followed by Dan Jones with 17. Pat Hoke brought in third place honors with 12 points.

Womens' basketball at 5-5 for season

by Johna Reeves

The Boise State Women's basketball team evened their record to 5-5 last week with a 57-24 win over Northwest Nazarene College, Tuesday and a 57-47 victory over Western Washington State College, Friday.

The Bronco women gained control of the NNC game early in the first half, as the Crusaders could only manage 8 first half points. Boise State led at the half, 29-8.

Vicki Larson, a freshman forward from Caldwell, led the Bronco's with 11 points and 8 rebounds. JoAnn Burrell and Kendra Falen added 10 points each, while Elaine Elliott and Connie Coulter combined for 15. Elliott had 5 assists and Maureen Hiria grabbed 11 rebounds.

Western Washington came to Boise State with a 7-0 record and the Broncos fell behind 7-14 early in the game, but Kendra Falen dropped in 11 points, as BSU came back to take a 29-25 lead at the half.

Elaine Elliott led Bronco scorers with 16 points, while JoAnn Burrell added 13 points, 12 rebounds and 6 assists.

Boise State maintained their lead throughout the second half, going on to win the game 57-47.

Coach Connie Thorngren felt the Bronco women "put together their best team effort of the season. Everybody did their part and I think this could be the turning point in our season.

The Boise State women will be back in action Friday night as they host the University of Montana at 8 p.m., in the BSU gym.

Bikecentennial

BIKECENTENNIAL is seeking people who like people, 1,400 of them. As the inaugural tours on the worlds first transcontinental bicycle trail fill, the need for capable leaders is more urgent than anticipated. As many as 1,000 small groups of 8-12 cyclists including many foreign visitors from Japan, Europe, South and Central America will be requiring the services of competent leaders this summer.

In addition to sharing this adventure with many people of widely varied backgrounds, leaders will receive food, lodging, and all other tour services, as well as a small daily expense allowance.

Training courses are offered at four centers in Oregon, Colorado, Ohio, and Virginia. The seven-day sessions include classroom and field instruction in bicycling and touring techniques, safety, repair, group dynamics, special bicycle and camping skills, and first aid. Cost, including food, lodging, instruction, books, and materials, is $75.00

Tours varying in length from 12 to 82 days offer all who participate a chance to feel America's pulse in this bicentennial year. Bikecentennial, a non-profit, publicly supported organization, can use your talents in bicycling back into America.

Gymnastics team takes second

With the spring semester of each year the Boise State womens gymnastics team takes to bars, beams, and mats in intercollegiate competition.

Throughout the past few weeks they have gracefully maneuvered themselves into a high quality team.

The University of Oregon gymnastics team scored 91 points to place first over Boise State (76.4) and Montana State (48.38) in a gymnastics meet here, Saturday.

The Oregon women place first in all 4 events, Jan Model (7.3) took first in vaulting and BSU's Jerrie Sievers (6.7) placed third. Wendy Halberg (8.45) grabbed first on the uneven parallel bars. Sievers (6.85) took third and Cindy Woodworth (6.80) was fourth, for Boise State.

Halberg scored 8.85 on the balance beam to take first, with Boise State's Lori Jukich (6.7) sixth.

In the floor exercise Ann Olsen (8.35) took first followed by BSU's Denise Zundel (7.25) in second place.

ABOUT MUSIC... An L. A. promoter has offered the Beatles a $30 million guarantee if they will perform together in a concert which would be carried on closed circuit television. Where money like that is involved, anything is possible, but the whole idea seems like a long, long (but not cheap) shot.

Country fans might want to watch "Hill Country Sounds," a special music show hosted by Bill Anderson, featuring many top-name performers. It was produced by Nashville's PBS station, and is reported to be more authentic and true to the spirit of country music than most TV efforts. (Channel 4 - Monday - 8 pm.) Come see our Bluegrass selection at the MUSICWORKS.

Interest in jazz seems to be building on several fronts. Traditional jazz and big band albums are staples with the collectors, while many rock fans are moving into jazz as well. Record companies have increased their efforts in the jazz field also, with significant releases from labels such as CTI, A&M's Horizon series, Arista, ECM, Blue Note and many others. At the MUSICWORKS, we stock them all.

ALBUM NEWS... New releases scheduled for this week include albums by Black Sabbath, Wet Willie, and Paul Butterfield. Other February releases include a live set from Joe Walsh, and a new Steely Dan. Among artists reported working on new albums are Tower of Power, Fleetwood Mac, Smokey Robinson, Leonard Cohen, Sly Stone, Billy Joel, and Taj Mahal. Judy Collins, the BeeGees, and Minnie Riperton will also be starting new recording projects shortly. Lynryd Skynryd and the J. Geils Band both have completed work on new albums, with no release dates set as yet.

So called "legendary" Soviet pianist Lazar Berman is featured on several upcoming releases by Columbia and Deutsche Grammophon. Previously unavailable and virtually unheard of in this country, Berman is starting his first U. S. concert tour next week, and is expected to be the subject of numerous magazine articles and new recording projects.

"The Classical Barbra" is a collection of songs and arias marking the classical debut of Barbra Streisand, no less, and due for release in February.

Around last October, word was that a new Stevie Wonder album, "Songs in the Key of Life," would be out by Christmas. Since there's still no official release date on it, maybe they meant next Christmas.

ABOUT THE MUSICWORKS...

More and more people are watching football everyday

Reprinted from the National Collegiate Athletic Association News, January 1976.

Ratings for the 1975 NCAA Football Television Series increased dramatically over '74's marks, sharply reversing a recent negative trend.

The impact of the audience turnaround was evident recently in the increase of $2 million per year in the rights fee the carrying network, ABC-TV, will pay the NCAA in 1976 and 1977. Negotiations were concluded in late November for those years.

ABC presented 20 games in each of the nation's television markets in 1975, with 14 games presented nationally and regional games presented on six occasions.

"We are most pleased with the ratings received," stated Seaver Peters, Dartmouth College director of athletics and chairman of the NCAA Television Committee, which administers the football program for the Association.

"Equally, we are delighted that college football television apparently has reversed the trend--if it was a trend--to lower ratings for the NCAA Series and all televised football over the past several years.

"In 1975, all football was up, with the college series registering remarkable increases and other packages up slightly. This is critical, for some observers were wondering aloud whether football television had reached or exceeded the saturation point. Advertiser confidence could have wavered had another slip occurred.

"These ratings increases, plus our increased rights fees for 1976 and 1977 and the increases in attendance this year, all seem to repudiate any saturation on the part of the public with college football.

"College football is a great, exciting game, and the Television Committee had stated its confidence the ratings would rebound," he concluded. "It appears we have had our confidence justified."

The banner year started strongly and maintained a pace that resulted in 20 million more homes viewing the Series than a year ago.

Statistically, the increases were 10 per cent for the ratings (Average Audience %), 12 per cent for homes (AA Homes) and 6 per cent for share. The first two increases, particularly, are dramatic by industry standards.

The figure for homes is the highest in the history of the Series. The ratings mark is the third highest, up to 13.2 from 1974's 12.0, which had represented the third straight drop since record marks of 14.0 [ratings], 8,700,000 [homes] and 38 [share] were established in 1971.

Homes had been up in 1974, signaling the beginning of the turnaround in viewership for the Series. But the ratings had been down, reflecting the continuing increase in the number of television homes in the nation. The ratings figure indicates the percentage of the nation's television homes which tunes in a particular program. Therefore, even if the program's total homes are up, its rating will fall unless the rate of its increase matches or exceeds the increase in homes with television sets.

Here are comparative figures for the past six years:

Year	Rating	Homes	Share
1970	13.8	8,300,000	36
1971	14.0	8,700,000	38
1972	13.3	8,600,000	35
1973	12.2	8,000,000	34
1974	12.0	8,200,000	33
1975	13.2	9,200,000	35

The top marks for the season all were established on November 22, in two different games. The Ohio State-Michigan classic had the best share of the season--49, while the Pitt-Penn State game which followed it had the best rating (17.0) and most homes (11,800,000) of the year.

The strength of the 1975 season, however, was not in one of two strong games, but in continuous, never-changing strength. Seven 1975 contests drew more than 10 million homes, while in 1974 only four contests exceeded that mark.

Bonfires and football games

(CPS)--Getting the Big Game bonfire lit at Stanford University was hard enough this year. But getting it out took the combined efforts of firepersons and police.

The local pollution control agency requested the student senate to cancel the annual bonfire that precedes the University of California vs Stanford football game. Officials claimed that the fire sent 12 tons of pollutants into Palo Alto's air the previous year. The student senate agreed, calling the bonfire "an exercise in conspicuous destruction."

An enraged Intrafraternity council felt the bonfire was necessary to promote school spirit and won the support of a university dean. The dean stipulated that as a concession to environmentalists the bonfire be only two-thirds as large as last year's.

Once the fire was blazing, more problems flared up. After 9 p.m., when most people were expected to have left, there were still 500 to 800 people milling around the fire.

According to one fraternity member, they "were all drunk or stoned, throwing things and running into the fire."

Police were called in to break up the crowd and arrested six people. Palo Alto firefighters extinguished the blaze at the request of the police.

Rob Lundgren pinned Rob Wilson from Weber State, and scored a decision over Herb Crimp of the University of Utah to help spark the Broncos to victory in both matches this weekend. Lundgren, a transfer student from Weber, wrestles in the 134 pound weight class.

Beehive state trip proves fruitful for Bronco matmen

by Jim O'Malley

The Bronco matmen were on the road this week, and picked two important wins over Weber State, 28-17, and the University of Utah, 28-9. The action was in the Beehive State brings BSU's season record to 5-3-1 in dual meets.

In Ogden Friday night, the Broncos dropped their first two weights, but came back to win that match 28-17. There was only one upset in that meet-Weber's Bob Thoman racked up a 4-2 decisions over Dan Warren in the 150 weight class. Dan had defeated Thoman for the MIWA crown last week, but according to coach Mike Young. "However, in that match, Thoman was seeded number one."

Rob Lundgren pinned Weber's Rob Wilson during the second period in the 134 pound competition.

Heavyweight action on Friday had Ed Ritt, a freshman from Beaverton, Oregon, winning by default over Ed Spann of Weber State in the second period. Yound tells the story, "Ritt threw him down with what we call a lateral drop. He scored a two-point takedown and a three-point near fall, but in the process, Spann broke his arm."

The Boise grapplers then journeyed to Salt Lake, where they defeated the University of Utah 28-9. Lundgren picked up a 7-5 decision in the 134 weight class over Utah's Herb Crimp, who placed third in the MIWA tourney last week. In the 158 weight class, Jeff Savage of Utah was halted easily by Randy Watson, 15-4. It was quite surprising because Savage was second in the MIWA meet last week.

Action for the Broncos moves to the home mats this week, as the grapplers from Ricks College come to Boise on Friday, and Weber State comes to the city of trees for a return bout Saturday afternoon.

Bronco Pat Hoke drops in Pizza Hut balloting

Superb Indiana forward Scott May has retained his East voting margin despite strong advances by two new challengers, but a new leader has come out of the pack in the West as balloting continues for the fifth annual Pizza Hut Basketball Classic.

May now stands atop the East with 44,906 votes. Maryland All-America John Lucas has jumped to second with 42,824, Vanderbilt's Jeff Fosnes has moved up to third (42,169) and St. John's frontliner Beaver Smith vaulted all the way to fourth with 41,455 votes. Smith was as low as 18th only two weeks ago.

In the West, a pair of Texans continue their battle for the lead. Texas A&M's Sonny Parker, gaining growing support from his hometown of Chicago, holds a slight edge with 38,721 votes. Texas El Paso's Gary Brewster, West leader during most of January, is second with 37,538. Standout Washington guard Clarence Ramsy made the most noticeable leap of the past two weeks, moving into the third with 35,203. Ramsey was 42nd in mid-January. Balloting for the April 5 charity contest featuring the nation's top senior collegians will conclude March 8. The game will be held at the Las Vegas Convention Center.

East voters have propelled a trio of frontline players into top contention. Last week, Bradley's Greg Smith, Florida's Gene Shy and North Carolina State's Phil Spence were logged in the middle of the ballot candidates. Today's voting report shows them eighth through 10th respectively. Another strong advance was seen in the West. NCAA national scoring leader Marshall Rogers of Pan American jumped from 44th to 10th in a matter of two weeks.

Jack Harman's West club appears guard-heavy if current voting trends at the nation's 2,250 Pizza Hut restaurants continue. Backcourt specialists Andre McCarter (UCLA), Ron Lee (Oregon), Chuckie Williams (Kansas State) and Leroy Shaw (Midwestern) join Ramsey and Rogers in the top 10 to date. An offer the man couldn't refuse and he didn't

by Marty Most

One week ago Tony Knap was one of the best loved men in Boise. This week he is perhaps one of the most despised, or at least most misunderstood. For $40,000 a year, it's a lot easier to be hated.

Knap's departure itself is not what angers or upsets most people. It's the fact that he went to Nevada-Las Vegas, a school with a reputation for recruiting officials as diligently as players. It's the fact that he took most (and possibly all) of his coaching staff with him. It's the fact that BSU, with the help of the Bronco Athletic Association, didn't get a chance to make Knap a better offer. And it's the fact that he left BSU in a lurch at recruiting time.

Yet, Coach Knap has had some pretty good offers in the past and didn't take them. It's obvious that he's motivated by more than money alone. It's frustrating coaching in Idaho and the Big Sky. The Big Sky makes a practice of whittling your scholarships and coaching staff down with one hand and shoving you into a tougher division with the other. The State Board of Education tries the same thing and they keep a tight lid on your salary for good measure. Don Robbins, Idaho's renegade coach, wasn't much of a public relations man (or football coach) but he had the sense to see what was happening in the Big Sky and he tried to bolt. He got purged for his trouble. It's a constant wonder that there's any good coaching anywhere in the Big Sky.

Nevada-Las Vegas, on the other hand, is an independent, a land grant college whose only budgetary problems come from trying to spend all their gambling revenues. Coach Knap will have 30 additional scholarships (75 total) and a coaching staff of six. Add financial security and it's a pretty good way to spend your last years as a coach.

Boise State was very fortunate to have Tony Knap for eight years. It is a testimony to his patience that he stayed with the ridiculous restrictions imposed by the Big Sky that long. He built BSU into a Division II powerhouse from a junior college. For that he deserves our respect if not our admiration. So much for the sermon.

The first order of business for Athletic Director Lyle Smith is to find a new head coach. The logical and most likely candidate is offensive line coach Dave Nickel. Nickel has made it abundantly clear that it's an all or nothing situation—either he's head coach at BSU or Knap's assistant at UNLV.

Nickel would be the ideal choice. He knows the players, the system and the formula for success. His outstanding ability to build offensive forward walls from scratch mark him as capable.

The job is open to all applicants, however, because it is a state position and comes under affirmative action hiring procedures. Hence names like Jim Wagstaff, assistant to Chuck Knox's L. A. Rams, and Dee Pankratz, Borah High's phenomenally successful mentor, come to the fore of speculation.

Who the new assistants will be is anybody's guess. Names like Doug Woolsey and Robert O'Mera have been tossed around but the final decision will probably rest with the new head coach.

It's the people who play the game that are going to make the most crucial choices about the Broncos football future. The mass exodus of players to Las Vegas hasn't materialized as many had feared. But two hours after Knap announced he had signed with UNLV, a meeting of returning players was called to discuss, among other things, NCAA eligibility requirements relating to transferring to another school. The support players exhibited for Dave Nickel at that meeting indicates they would stay at BSU should coach Nickel remain and become head coach. If coach Nickel leaves a few key players leaving could start a desertion that would have a snowball effect and leave the varsity roster a depleted shell.

Recruiting has been difficult. Prospects tend to shy away from program shakeups. Nobody wants to hitch their wagon to a falling star. This is another area where coach Nickel would provide stability. Tony Knap was always a big selling point in recruiting and because he taught Nickel the system, recruits would know what to expect. A new coach would be an unknown quantity and might prefer to start recruiting efforts from scratch. That could mean disaster this late in the recruiting season.

Whatever happens, the picture is not totally bleak. Nor will we have to agonize over it for months. The questions will be answered in a week or two.

En Garde anyone

The two sports that top the list of recommendations of the President's Council on Physical Fitness are tennis and fencing. Fencing is a sport that one can participate in at age 90 as well as age 9, and does not cost an arm and a leg to start. The "oldest" of modern sports will be the subject of a meeting of the BSU Fencing Club on February 3. The meeting will be held on the balcony of the gym at 8:45 p.m., immediately following the Advanced Fencing class. Join the people of all ages and all levels of fencing, and learn a sport you'll never outgrow. En Garde!

The Air Force needs people... many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit... 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officer's commission, plus advanced education. If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.
