Hertling, Silva top vote-getters

The team of Lenny Hertling and Kim Silva proved to be the top vote getters in last week's primary election for BSU's Student Body President and Vice-President. Running for president, Hertling received 254 votes, 19 ahead of opponent James "Crank" Crawford's 235. Hertling and Crawford will be the presidential choices on the March 31 general ballot.

Presidential candidates who lost in the primary are Howard Welsh with 112 votes, John Elliott with 106, Dave Pearson with 58 and Robert Hopple with 41. Kim Silva, Hertling's running mate, came out 74 votes ahead of opponent Mike Hoffman in the race for vice-president. Silva landed 439 votes to Hoffman's 365. Both candidates will be on the general ballot.

C. Murray Jenkins, candidate for first year student senator came out 90 votes ahead of Gerald Michelson with 403 votes to Michelson's 313. Both candidates will be on the general ballot.

In the race to fill 61 senate seats, 22 candidates made it through the primary for a place on the general ballot. The ten candidates running for the five Arts and Sciences seats are Michael Kirkpatrick, who received 143 votes, Pat Platney with 134, Scott Whiggle with 128, Diana Simpson with 125, Pam Kallfors with 121, Maralya Sommer with 116, Gelacio 'Bud' Valdez with 104, Christiane Rudd with 99, Kmarie 'Rene' Clements with 92, and Wade Nelson with 74 votes. David Outser with 55 votes did not make it to the general ballot.

Candidates running for the five Business seats are Larry Lee Johnson, who received 99 votes in the primary election, Toni Fornman with 96, Robert Naugler with 94, Tracy Miller with 90, Chris Hayne with 83, Burt Feldman with 78, Lanl Joy with 64 and Lee Loder with 61 votes.

There are only two candidates running for the three Education seats. Evadna Hunsperger and William Curt Freaser each landed 26 votes. Robert Doblle II, the only candidate for the Vocational Technical seat received 61 votes.

Running as a write-in candidate, Holly Welsh received 17 votes, enough to put her on the general ballot as a candidate for one of the two Health Science seats.

The general election will be held March 31 and April 1.

Tax relief bill will hurt Boise State

by Barh Bredwell

A measure which would use nearly $7 million in surplus funds for property tax relief, but with a loss to state building funds, passed the Idaho state Senate last Wednesday 10-17. At stake in the debate is the completion of Phase II of the Science Education Complex, additional inmate housing at the Idaho State Penitentiary and an addition to the state library.

Democrats, with the exception of Senator Stan Kress, voted against the bill, siding with Governor Cecil Andrus. Andrus had asked in his state of the state message that at least $5.1 million in surplus be used for building needs. Joining the Democrats were Republicans Phil Bitt, Dick Smith, H. Dean Summers and Vernon Haveray. Summers and Bravely were the only Boise senators to oppose the bill, therefore voting indirectly for Boise State.

The Boise representatives voting in favor of the Senate amendments to the $6.76 million tax relief measure were Peggy Hunting, Dan Emery, Kitty Gumrey, Jack Kentner and John Bearden. Senator Bravely, a member if the Permanent Building Fund Council, said buildings were badly needed by a state institutions, and that the measure was "not meaningful tax relief."

Boise senator H. Dean Summers also opposed the bill, saying that in Ada County those who would benefit from the measure were not included in the papers, but corporations such as Idaho Power, Intermountain Gas and Mountain Bell. Cy Chase, senate minority leader also fought against the bill, saying that there are many areas where money is needed. He also said it was popular to vote in favor of this measure when "you are running for Congress or some other state office." Stan Kress, a candidate for Congress, was the only Democrat voting in favor of the bill.

Student body and administration officials at Boise State are attempting to change the vote of the six Ada County representatives who voted in favor of the amendments to the bill. A shift in those seats may get the measure defeated in the House. If the bill still passes, the answer is resolving, the problem may rest with Governor Andrus and a veto. Students are urged to call their representatives and ask that they vote against the bill, according to Dr. David Taylor, vice-president of Student Affairs.

"Both the House and Senate have taken action to vote monies for tax relief rather than building needs in the state," Taylor said. "What we are asking is that anyone who can assist call the Governor's office (334-2100) and talk to either the Governor or one of his assistants and urge the Governor to veto the House bill 590 so that surplus funds can be used for state building needs," he stated.

"It's more of a question of tax relief is nice but we also have on going building needs within the state. That perhaps needs to be looked at very carefully before we totally pass out the surplus and not meet the building needs of the state."

Students and others can still make contact with members of the Appropriations Committee, according to Taylor. Even if the $6.76 million does go into tax refund, that would still leave some money in surplus funds. "It would be good if the Appropriations Committee would recommend that the surplus monies be used for a surplus fund, can be used for state building needs in the state," Taylor said.

The new Special Events Center is slated for its grand opening on March 10. The opening night of the combined Music Department Theatre Arts Department presentation of the musical CELEBRATION is going to be a very special event indeed. At this ceremony, a ribbon will be cut to officially open the building by two student leaders, Robert Hopple, chairperson of the Student Union Programs Board, and Nate Kim, ASB President.

The opening remarks will be made by Dr. John Barnes, BSU President and Master of Ceremonies will be Special Events Building Student Manager John Elliott. The opening night of the new facility is being termed "Student/Alumni Night and it is hoped that a good turn-out from these two groups will transpire. Tickets for students and alumni will be available for the opening night ceremony and presentation on March 3, 4, 5 and 6 exclusively. Reservations may be made by calling the theatre box office at 385-3566 during regular business hours.

SPOON RIVER ANTHOLOGY which was the BSU Bicentennial Production directed by Fred Norman was the experimental show scheduled in the building to discover any flaws in the new structure. The flaws have been discovered and everything possible is being done to alleivate any problems that have arisen.

"We are looking forward to many years of student service from this building," stated Fred Norman, Student Union Building director. "The facility is one of the finest of its kind in the northwest.""

"The musical CELEBRATION is very reminiscent of the FANTASTICKS," said theatre director Larry West. "We feel that this production will be well received by the students of BSU and the people of Boise." Once again, student and alumni tickets for opening night will be available free of charge March 3, 4, 5 and 6 by calling 385-3655 for reservations.

editorial

Rich get richer,
poor get poorer

Higher education in Idaho serves a vital role; or at least it could if the powers that be within the state would fund state institutions properly. Oregon's People are fed up with the idea of a bill divorcing $45.76 million from surplus funds (which Governor Cecil Andrus requisitioned be used for building needs) into property tax accounts. In this bill passes, and Andrus does not veto it, Boise State's request for funding of Phase II of the Science-Education building will be lost.

Classroom utilization at BSU is nearing 100 per cent. The additional classroom space Phase II would provide is very much needed. And while tax relief is a noble gesture, the benefits to ordinary tax payers will be little.

For example, the tax relief to the owner of a $35,000 home would only be approximately $22 a year. Those who would benefit the most from this measure are corporations; Idaho Power, Intermountain Gas, Mountain Bell, and so on. They own more property, therefore they stand to receive more in tax relief. This measure is what could be called a rich get richer, poor get poorer bill, something Idaho can do without.

And as it may be, there is a funding race between the institutions of higher learning in the state. However, there is a difference between the northern and southern areas in Idaho; the legislators from the north vote to support their regional school. In this instance, Ada County legislators, with the exceptions of H. Dean Summers and Vernon Brassest, didn't. They voted in favor of the relief bill and amendments to it, or indirectly against Boise State.

Hopefully, by the time the final vote is called, the legislators will realize what the bill really is and vote against it. If not, perhaps Governor Andrus will stand by his convictions and veto it. Either way, students, faculty and staff, now is the time to contact your representative and demand a NO vote on House bill 586.

B.B.

by Jack Bryson

Last week the Ada county commissioners denied the voters of Ada County the opportunity to express their opinion on a crucial controversial issue that affects not only their lives but the lives of people unborn. The Ada County Commissioners rejected a petition signed in an effort to have a county wide advisory vote on the proposed Pioneer Power Plant placed on the Presidential Preference Ballot. Voters lost not only their chance to be heard but much more. We've been robbed.

Who says Jesse James and his gang are dead. The Committee To Put Pioneer on the Ballot was formed and in a three week period collected the signatures of 4,000 Ada county residents in an effort to allow more than one-fifth of the customers of Idaho Power to voice their opinion on the Pioneer Power Plant proposal.

The Commission said in a statement the reason for their decision was that the coal powered plant is an entity of regional impact and a regional vote would be the viable means of rescuing a valid voter consensus on the issue. However, they have not discussed initiating a regional vote drive.

Ultimately the final decision rests with the Public Utilities Commission. Under state law the PUC can override any land use decision made by county commissioners. Many who oppose building the issue to a vote believe that the public is not well enough informed to vote intelligently. James Bruce, president of Idaho Power, has stated that the average person does not have the time to read all of the testimony and exhibits concerning the Pioneer proposal; however, the PUC does have. What Mr. Bruce said may be true, but I believe that if we waited until the public was fully informed of an issue before putting it on a ballot we would never have any elections, Presidential or otherwise.

How can the average person make an intelligent decision when Idaho Power is spending enormous sums of money attempting to convince him of the need for a new power plant, while at the other end of the spectrum conservations are telling him that if the plant is built each breeze may be his last. The average citizen doesn't have the time or energy to wade through all the propaganda; but he does have the time to decide if a new power plant will benefit the community in which he lives, if he wants to maintain the status quo if he wants to chance pollution and allow the area to grow. In the middle of the spectrum lies the average person who must live with the decision of leaders, who like Ada County Commissioners, to continue to reduce his input to a minimum.

The Ada county Commissioners, or possibly a more accurate description the James Gang, have successfully sidestepped an important issue by calling it a regional matter. It is not.

And of course, the commissioners would lose if the Ada county commissioners, or possible a regional vote, should be rejected. We asked to be heard and we were denied.

Even though the Commissioners may not make the final decision they had the opportunity to be the leaders and allow the public input on a wide basis, but they chose instead to sidestep the issue. Obviously, pressure was applied on the Commissioners by both side of the controversy. It would look foolish if after an election the Commissioners voted in opposition to public opinion. The Commission could reconsider the citizen's proposal, but they won't because reconsider would indicate that perhaps a hasty or pressured decision was reached the first time, and of course, the commissioners would lose face and we couldn't have that. It's better than one fifth of Idaho Power's customers be told that they're not worth listening to. From outside appearance it is apparent which pressure group won. I don't think it's a question of "If" the Ada County Commission will approve the power plant, but "when" they will approve it.

At least the original James Gang had class, they only had their victims of money.

AND NOW THE PRESIDENT...
SB 1 must be stopped

Sometimes a thing seems so self-evident that the obligation to write about it brings a profound weariness. Senate Bill One, a labyrinth of vindictive legislation, is just such a case. It is only the spectre of the bill as Law of the Land that prompts this statement of the obvious.

Senate Bill One must be stopped.

The following editorial is part of a nationwide media campaign against SB 1 and the consideration of this frontal assault on our civil liberties must transcend all political priorities in this election year. We are using the power of the press; you must use the power of the pen.

The job was Herculean. and there was no Hercules to be found. As time went on and administrations changed, the task became increasingly monopolized by Neanderthal types, notably Democratic Senator John McClellan of Arkansas.

Nixon in power. Law and Order was his theme song, and McClellan and company had a field day drafting the criminal law reform. They staged lengthy showcase hearings featuring famous liberals in full dress, while they fashioned a piece of pure malevolence. Their intent was that "responsible people" could swindle and spy with relative impunity, while "irresponsible elements"—particularly those who found our Vietnam adventures distasteful—would be forevermore brought to heel and held safely beneath it.

It is impossible to enumerate all the pernicious parts of a 753-page legislative proposal in this space. Much more ink will be spilled in discussion of it. We urge you to look closely for details, but here are just a few observations about SB 1:

It would abridge freedom of press by establishing penalties for the disclosure of information vaguely deemed in the interest of national security.

It would re-establish and mandate the forfeiture of human life for many breaches of the code.

It would place strict limitations on public protest and impose heavy penalties for violation.

It would excuse governmental misconduct if the accused believed their actions were duly authorized, as did many of the principals in Watergate.

It would sanction and increase governmental use of wire-taps.

It would vastly increase penalties for victimless crimes such as marijuana possession and pr0nography.

It would seriously weaken constitutional guarantees established in the Supreme Court's Miranda decision, encourage police entrapment and make insanity as a defense nearly impossible.

The list could go on and on. The bill is an obscenity. Those disenchanted with the policies and practices of the United States over the last several decades will enjoy a remarkable degree of liberty. SB 1 is an assault on this liberty. It is frightening that SB 1 should be the object of serious consideration. But such are the times that it could achieve not just consideration, but passage. The thought appalls.

Dear Uncle Ernie,

I want my baby back

Dear Uncle Ernie,

I want my baby back again. She's the one. My best friend, And now I lie here all alone, I'm just a sad, sad human being.

Her lips were sweet as summer wine, and when I held her hand in mine, I thought she'd never be untrue, and now she done broke my heart.

What should a law abiding citizen like myself do?

Yours truly,

L.D. & J.B.

Scholarship competition to be held

The annual Delta Delta Delta Jean Richardson Memorial Scholarship competition will be held once again. All full-time undergraduate women students on this campus are eligible to apply. Applicants should be well-qualified students, showing promise of valuable service in their chosen field. Academic record, contribution to campus life, and financial need are points to be considered.

This scholarship is strictly sponsored by the Tri Delta’s on the Boise State campus, however, all local winners in the colleges/universities where there are Tri Delta chapters will automatically be eligible for one of the $1,000.00 awards to be made by the Delta Delta Delta National Service Projects Fund. Applications are available from Christa Jay in the Activities Office, the Student Union, and the Tri Delta house at 1010 Lincoln.

Completed applications must be returned to one of these two locations by March 1, 19th for consideration.

Attention candidates

An orientation meeting will be held Wednesday, March 3 in the Senate Chambers at 4 p.m. All candidates must attend the meeting or have someone represent them with written authorization to draw for positions on the general ballot. The general elections are being held on March 31 and April 1.

Bronco Days '76 are coming

AMS to host annual employment seminar

This is not a job offer but it can help. The Administrative Management Society is again holding its annual Employment Seminar. Local businesses, people representing private industry, utilities, and government will be there to give you their views on job hunting, resumes, interviewing, and the present conditions of the job market. Let AMS help you bridge the gap between the academic and the real world. Plan to attend at 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. Thursday, March 4 in room 105 of the Business Building. This is open to all students, not just business majors, after all, English majors need jobs, too.

BSC HEALTH CENTER ANSWERS MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Q. What does the blood test required to be performed by the State of Idaho for marriage indicate?

A. This is a test (called a prenatal or newborn’s) performed for syphilis only. Contrary to popular misconception, it does not indicate blood type, nor does the State require blood typing for marriage.

Q. How is this test performed?

A. A VDRL (Venereal Disease Research Laboratory) test is performed on which an extract from fresh beef hearts (combined with lecithin at cholesterol is introduced into the blood serum. If the person does not have syphilis, the antibodies in the serum will form visible clusters by combining with the extract.

Q. Can I get a prenatal serology at the Student Health Service?

A. Yes. A full-time student may have blood drawn at the Health Center. There is a $4.00 fee for this service, which is our cost for having the test processed by the State Laboratory. (This is one of the few services for which we charge).

Q. My fiance is not a student. How can he/she get a serology?

A. An appointment must be made with a private physician.

Q. How soon before I plan to get married should I get the test?

A. You must get your marriage license within 30 days from the date on your Premarital Examination Certificate. You may wait as long as you wish or marry as soon as you like after this. If you do wait until the last minute, remember to allow about 3 days for processing on the serology before you will receive the certificate that will enable you to get your license.

Applications being accepted for
Who’s Who in American poetry

American Collegiate Publications has announced it is now accepting applications for the second annual volume of Who’s Who in American Colleges and Universities. This is the only non-fiction poetry publication for students which is published in direct cooperation with collegiate institutions.

This publishing program has been created to give noteworthy student poets recognition. Through publication and awards, this program provides talented students with incentive and a tangible goal for the continued development of their writing skills. Poets selected to appear in the 1975 volume will have their bio published along with an original poem. The 1975 volume of Who’s Who in Poetry will present the work of 347 poets, representing 217 colleges and universities in 47 states.

Those accepted for publication in Who’s Who in Poetry receive:
1. A complimentary copy of the book, which contains all the following qualifications:
   - the student has won a departmental award or citation for poetry, or
   - the student has had one or more poems published in the college literary magazine or newspaper,
   - the student is recommended by a member of his/her college English department.
2. A certificate of honor,
3. Entrance into the $1,000 Award Competition.

Students are eligible to enter the 1976 program if they meet any one or more of the following qualifications:
- the student has won a departmental award or citation for poetry, or
- the student has had one or more poems published in the college literary magazine or newspaper, or
- the student is recommended by a member of his/her college English department.

The publisher seeks quality poetry of any form, style, or voice, traditional or experimental. Applications may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to American Collegiate Publications, 516 S. 5th Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10036. NO REQUEST WILL BE HONORED WITHOUT THE ENCLOSED STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

Because this project is funded by sponsorships and grants, the S.A.S.E. is essential to help cover mailing costs. All application requests must be received by the publisher no later than March 22nd, 1976. Copies of the 1975 volume will be available in the college library, or you may order a soft-cover copy directly from the publisher at $5.95 per copy.

Applications from all qualified students are welcome.

BSU researches effects of weather forecasting

A team of BSU faculty and students was recently completing research into the effects of weather forecasting on business costs. They are Dr. Patrick Shannon, assistant professor of accounting; Dr. Norman Gardner, assistant professor of management and finance; and Jerry Hawkey, a BSU student majoring in finance and accounting.

Their plan takes into account the business costs associated with precipitation, and uses this relationship in weather forecasting.

A sample of the different costs associated with precipitation can be shown by examining a concrete laying firm. If the weather bureau forecasts no rain the firm will lay the cement. If the forecast is accurate, the firm will lose no money. However, if the forecast is inaccurate the cement firm will have to lay the extra cost of protecting the newly laid concrete, or possibly the cost of relaying the concrete. If the forecast had been for precipitation, the firm would not have laid the cement and would have suffered only the cost of postponement. In terms of cost to the firm the best forecast would have been the one predicting rain.

What Gardner and Shannon have done is to incorporate these cost relationships into their forecasting. Their plan does not attempt to replace the weather bureau forecasts but will attempt to provide forecasts to individual businesses. They will present their plan at the American Institute of Decision Sciences in San Diego, Calif., in mid-March.

The plan is the result of academic theories, and statistical procedures being applied to specific business problems. The funding for the research came from the Applied Research Grants program administered by Boise State.

Unification Church sponsored rally at BSU

A group of six members of the Unification Church of Boise staged a patriotic rally last Thursday afternoon at the Boise State University campus. Many students and onlookers stopped on their way to class to watch the unusual event which took place in front of the library.

The purpose of the rally was also to call to attention America’s responsibility to live according to Christian ethics and principles. “Without this common bond of brotherhood, which is necessary for a peaceful and happy world?” asked Joel Furtneanu, a 21 year old missionary from Wisconsin.

The Unification Church will also be sponsoring a special “Biennial ‘God BLESS America’ Festival” this spring in New York City. Rev. Sun Myung Moon, the founder of the Unification Church, will be speaking at Yankee Stadium about God’s hope for America. Missionaries in Boise will be working to charter buses to N.Y.C. for this nation-wide event.

All people interested in the work of the Unification Church are urged to attend evening lectures and seminars at 715 N. 9th Street, or, for more information, to call Joel or Diane at 343-6951.

Barh Bridwell reported to the Senate about her efforts as head of the Student Lobby at the Idaho State Legislature. She urged the Senators to write the state legislators in the hopes of influencing passage of State Board Education’s forty-seven million education appropriation. She urged the Senate to also write about transferring the two hundred fifty thousand dollar contingency fund to phase two of the Science building.

A letter was drafted by the Student Affairs committee, and the Senate recommended that it be sent to the Ada County Highway Department. The letter asks for an “official inquiry” regarding the College Blvd., Lincoln and Bellevue street intersection. There have been numerous student complaints about almost being run down at that crossing. The letter suggested a possible pedestrian cross light could be installed, or alternative crosswalks.

The Academic Affairs committee said that it was considering allocating some of the monies which would have gone for scholarships could be transferred into money for tutorial services. This money would come from the endowment fund. The fund has been in the process of committee and Senate consideration for the last month.

A new allocation of $3,000.00 was passed by the Senate for three members of the Student media, following President Kim’s veto of last week’s allocation. Previously six members of the Arbitrage Photobureau, and Les Bois, would have gone to the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Conference in New York. Nate Kim did say the journalists could indeed receive substantial information pertinent to the improvement and expansion for publications,” but that he questioned the “need established” by the journalists as to the amount of personnel necessary to attend. He went on to state “it is apparent a correlation exists between the current political situation, (i.e. current electoral process), and the influential scope of our campus media.”

Doug Guchner and Royanne Klein moved to eliminate funding for the position of Administrative Assistant. Guchner said “I don’t think the job is being done.” One hundred and fifty dollars for nothing.” Mike Hoffman moved that the Senate go into executive session. The motion passed clearing the gallery and the press from the Senate chambers.

After the regular session was re-instated the whole matter was committed to the Ways and Means committee, with the purpose of “investigating everyone.”

A motion to bring a $500.00 allocation for Vallivue High School band, back from being tabled was defeated. Welsh observed that “this is a foreign aid deal.” He said that perhaps the Senate could give money to all the high schools in Idaho.

Jim Crawford submitted that “we ought to allocate $500.00 to form our own.”

Dave Wynkoop mentioned that because of “student irresponsibility,” the Liberal Arts parking lot was being barricaded in the morning now because students in their enthusiasm to get a parking spot were removing the barriers guarding access to the heating plant feeding station. He recommended that in the future students be a little more wise.

Howard Welsh announced a committee is being set up to help program activities for April 20, Earth Day. Any one interested in ecological problems is advised to get in touch with Welsh.

Jim Crawford was approved by the Senate to be a member of the Alumni Board.

It was announced by Ron O’Halleran that Senator Frank Church would speak at commencement the sixteenth of May.

Howard Welsh expressed a “stereotpe” has been made of students, declaring the “stereotpe called for the fallacy that it is.” “(The) fact is some students would not be going to school if it wasn’t for subsistance.” Dave Wynkoop noted that “unfortunately a few students do rip off the program.” Heritng, opposing the Andrus proposal to curtail food stamps must be seen as an end all (it) would be detrimental to a lot of students who are going to school.” The motion passed the Senate by a voice vote.

Student government

Congressional candidate favors educational funding

by Barb Bridwell

“I think we have a lot of problems in this country that need to be solved. I’m a candidate for United States Congress from District I stated as his reason for running against incumbent Steve Symms. "I’m here because I believe the people of this district, if it would have been a disaster had Symms been successful,” he stated. There are other issues relating to the environment in Idaho that are going to be coming up, according to Pursley, “I think we need somebody from Idaho who will stand up and make us heard in these issues in office. The whole question during the next few years will be whether or not the government can be both efficient in the delivery of services and decent in the treatment of the individual,” Pursley stated.

Budget wise, Pursley feels the government is “in the death with a selective matter. “You must work and deny services to those you want to continue or have outlined their usefulness instead of just arbitrarily going on everything that comes along. The fact is that if you vote no on every new program it means you can’t deal with new problems.”

Another question that is of importance according to Pursley, is the question of decency in government. “This is a question of government policy, the assassination of foreign leaders. For example, as a matter of foreign policy, I am very much opposed to that. The incumbent is apparently in favor of it. In fact, he stated at a town meeting that if the CIA was responsible for the death of Salvador Allende in Chile than more power to the CIA.”

There is also the question of the use of government power through the Internal Revenue Service, the CIA or the FBI to intimidate people who have political views that don’t agree with those in power, he stated. Pursley does not favor all out development of coal and nuclear facilities to solve the energy problem. “There is no question we have to move away from a petroleum based economy. The question is whether we are going to do it in such a careless way that we ruin the rest of the quality of life. There’s many ways we can eliminate a lot of the waste that we have built into our system. A waste that resulted from cheap energy that is no longer available,” he stated.

“I would look to geothermal and solar energy which have to be important to Idaho because we have a lot of sun light and we also have a lot of geothermal potential,” he said. Pursley favors government incentives either in the form of tax incentives in some cases, direct subsidy. “One of the real problems with the development of these resources right now is the pure economics of it. We’ve subsidized the oil industry for years and years through the depletion allowance in our tax laws. I am opposed to this. But we are going to have to help finance some basic research in how to tap those other resources.”

Pursley is at odds with incumbent Symms in the area of education. Pursley stated Symms would have to be anti the Federal Department of Education, something Pursley is very much opposed to. “This would eliminate aid to education including research projects under the National Science Foundation. We’ve got to recognize that education does cost money and that there are a lot of students who can’t afford the cost and that we are going to have to help subsidize that.”

“I want to continue with student loan programs and also provide more direct funding through block grants rather than through the categorical grants that we have today. The incumbent has been consistent about trying to get more aid to education. As it’s been taken a high mistake.”

Foreign policy is in a transitional period, according to Pursley. “I believe that we are not going to solve any problems by throwing money around the world. I am also opposed to us responding to every civil war that comes along. We’re going to have to start making some real distinctions about where we have a national interest at stake and where we don’t. I am not in favor of pulling back entirely from a major role in international affairs. We’re going to have to be a lot more selective about where we get involved and by what means we get involved.”

Boise Gallery to present St. Matthew's gospel

The Boise Gallery of Art presents a free showing of The Gospel According to St. Matthew, a feature presentation for Lent Wednesday, on Wednesday, March 7 at 7 pm. Directed by Pasolini, this film has achieved acclaim from widespread audiences, church groups, the public, critics and film festivals including the University Film Fest of the Western States.

Pasolini's unconventional approach to film making is evidenced in this work of religious significance. In telling the story of Jesus, Pasolini gives voice to the general audience's spiritual and emotional reaction to this most significant and beautiful of all stories. The Boise Gallery of Art is located at 1500 N. 6th St.

Cuckoo's Nest - 13 years from stage to screen

by Richard Landauer

Thirteen years ago Kirk Douglas purchased the rights to the book "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" written by author Ken Kesey. Dale Wasserman was hired to adapt it for the stage play in which Douglas himself played the main role of crazed Randle McMurphy. Today the play is still a great stage attraction.

It has taken thirteen years to put Cuckoo's Nest on film. Reputed studio moguls and law suits delayed the film version until 1976 when Michael Douglas, star of "Seminole," rushed the bustle from San Francisco, took over the ensemble concert with the camera work on the remaining parts of the film. The important factors for the success of McMurphy, Louise Fletcher as the gut-twisting and dedicated Nurse Ratched, who is portrayed as more vicious in the book, and Will Sampson, in real life an Oregon forest ranger, the towering leader of the Indian Chief Broom. All give splendid performances, as does the rest of the cast. No original patience were used for the on location filming at Oregon State Hospital in Salem, but the entire cast appears quite authentic.

Bravo for producers Douglas and Zaentz, and director Milos Foreman. Cuckoo's Nest has been nominated for numerous awards with good reason, and for those who have enjoyed this outstanding film, I state the obvious. For those who have not seen One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest--go see it!

The National Lampoon Show

From the same irreverent, irresponsible, irrational folks who bring you the world's most widely read humor magazine, and highlighting players who have appeared on Broadway in such shows as Grease, Hair, The Last of the Red Hot Lovers, Luv, The Magic Show, Butterflies Are Free, Promises, Promises, Two by Two, and The Man of La Mancha... not to mention Peter Pan and As You Like It.

Warning: This show has strong political and sexual references. If you're uptight about open reference to relations between the sexes, or feel that the incumbent president is doing an extremely capable job under difficult circumstances, or that religion, earthy language, and music and lyrics expressing dubious moral activities should not be presented on stage, may we refer you to a dandy Walt Disney film playing just down the block.

CELEBRATION makes the most of props

"Props!" somebody calls. So Pat Nance mumbles some French phrase and rumbles down one of those cavernous hallways in the Special Events Center until he finds some old trunk or paper bag and digs around in it until he finds the prop he's looking for. Probably around one of those cavernous hallways in the Special Events Center until he finds some old trunk or paper bag and digs around in it until he finds the prop he's looking for. Probably a can of Silly String or a 10-30 that lights up.

There is a reason to all this chatter. Pat Nance is the prop master for the Theatre and Music Departments' upcoming production of the musical, CELEBRATION. Director L. L. West commented that this is the heaviest "prop show" that he's ever been involved with. Here's a partial prop list:

- Plastic Flowers
- Rubber Knife
- Barber Stiff
- Big Needle
- Vintage Instruments
- Weider's Masks
- Fabrics
- A Bunch of Trunks and Boxes
- Devil Girl Whips (3)
- Hangmans Noose
- Broad Swords
- Noses
- and that's just a partial list.

To see these props in use is a real ten cent marvel. To see the actors use them is a twenty-five cent marvel and to hear them singing on top of all that is a whole dollars worth. When asked about his prop master duties, Nance replied: "Props! -- oh, shh you mean the toys. Yeah, yeah it's more fun than I've had in a long time."

CELEBRATION will open on March 10th and run through the 13th in the Special Events Center. The box office opens on March 3rd and the new number there is 385-3066. General Admission is $2.00 and BSU students will be admitted free with their activity tickets. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Father Karl Patetz, S.J. will celebrate the Byzantine Liturgy of St. John Chrysostom according to the Russian usage. In English, Sunday, February 29, at noon, in St. Paul Catholic Student Center Chapel.

A special choir, comprised mostly of college students, will sing the liturgy... in the tradition of the Eastern Church, the liturgy, will be sung in English and A Capella. Director is Michael Norsett, and soloists will be Rodney Jakowskii and Timothy Ritchey.

Father Patetz is Pastor of the Russian Catholic Church in San Francisco. He served in the German army in World War II, was taken prisoner of war on Eastern Front, and spent five years in a Soviet prison camp.
Golden Gloves Boxing Championships slated

The Boise Exchange Club is sponsoring the Idaho State Golden Gloves Boxing Championships, on March 5th and 6th, 1976. The contest will be held at Bishop Kelly High School Gym. The tournament will host fourteen boxing clubs from all parts of Idaho, with about 90 participants. The winners of this tournament will advance to the Regionals, which will be held in Pueblo, Colorado. This show will be on March 19 and 20, 1976. The Regional winners will advance to the Nationals in Miami, Florida.

This tournament will be the first step for many boxers to qualify for the Olympic Trials, the last leg of four years of preparation. Among the outstanding fighters in Idaho and many are regarded as national contenders, are:

Teddy Hughes at 119 lb. Fort Hall.

Mike Haylett at 125 lb., Boise.

Kit Chacon at 132 lb., Pocatello.

Dyrk Godby at 147 lb., Gooding.

Steve Damingen at 160 lb., Boise.

Joe Keene at 165 lb., Emmett.

Blessing Bird at Heavyweight, Boise State University.

Danny Martinez at Heavyweight, Nampa.

With the help of the Boise Exchange Club, Idaho's amateur boxing program ranks among the best in the country. This tournament is regarded as the finest show in the state in many years. Admission to the fights will be by donation, these funds will be used to finance the champions to the Regionals. The tournament will feature a rematch between Blessing Bird and Danny Martinez. This was the best heavyweight bout and the best bout of the year.

Season ends in three way tie BSU, ISU and Weber

by Jim O'Malley

A conference call held late Saturday night between the athletic directors of three Big Sky schools decided where the playoffs would be held, after those three schools had compiled identical 9-5 conference records to tie for the conference crown. Three schools: Idaho State, who had just defeated Montana State 106-85; Weber State, with a 72-64 victory over Idaho; and Boise State, after Steve Connor sank a 30-foot shot to score a 67-66 win over Montana. At the end of the call, it was announced that Weber was the top seed; ISU was second and BSU was third. Northern Arizona, who had just lost to Gonzaga 56-80 and had a 8-6 record, was fourth.

As top seed, Weber will host the playoff in Ogden. BSU will confront ISU at 7 p.m. this Friday, with Weber taking on NAU at 9 p.m. The winners of those pairings will meet at 8 p.m. Saturday to determine the Big Sky championship, and who will represent the conference at the NCAA tournament later this year.

Boise State grapple\ns take Big Sky crown

by Jim O'Malley

On Saturday night, most people who were watching the Big Sky Conference with intense concentration were dividing their attention between Pasca\ntello, Moscow, Spokane and Boise. But there was action in Flagstaff, Arizona, that was of major interest. For there, BSU were racking up 927 points over Weber State's 886 and ISU's 53% to win their third straight Big Sky Conference Wrestling title.

Six wrestlers from BSU made it into the finals, and all won individual championships.
Council reports on 69th annual NCAA Convention

Each year, the Council prepares a comprehensive report of its action during the preceding 12 months and presents it to delegates attending the annual NCAA Convention. J. Neil Thompson, District Six Vice-President and faculty athletic representative at the University of Texas at Austin, represented the Council at the 70th Annual Convention in St. Louis, Missouri. The following are excerpts from the Council Report:

Special Convention

“The 69th NCAA Convention in Washington, D.C., adopted a resolution directing the NCAA Council to undertake certain initiatives in developing legislation to deal with the disturbing cost factors in college athletics. This led to a Special Meeting on the Economy held in Kansas City, Missouri, April 24-25. A total of 52 delegates attended the meeting, presenting all divisions and all districts of the Association, and included presidents, faculty athletic representatives, athletic directors, conference commissioners and coaches. During the course of the Meeting on the Economy, a number of measures were presented urging strong measures in this area and that the NCAA Council proceed to call a Special Convention during 1975 on the basis that economy measures should be instituted immediately and that to wait until the 70th Convention in January 1977 for all practical purposes would delay the anticipated economic savings in the academic year.

“The great many new rules stemming from the Special Second Convention, January 1975 of the NCAA are now being implemented by the NCAA Council, and it is these, in turn, that have been the subject of the Special Convention during 1975 on the basis that economy measures should be instituted immediately and that to wait until the 70th Convention in January 1977 for all practical purposes would delay the anticipated economic savings in the academic year.

Athlete’s Statement

In conjunction with the discussion of additional legislation and the detergent program, the NCAA Council wishes to comment upon the Athlete’s Statement authored by the 69th Annual Convention a year ago.

As the result of the decisions of the Council that the Athlete’s Statement be not adopted because of the singularly important tool for assuring observance of governing legislation that is available. For many years, institutions have used different techniques to determine whether the student athletes were to represent in intercollegiate competition, and the statement could have been adopted.

Some members and conferences have taken this issue up in the interest of having a more effective deterrent. However, it has not been a deterrent for many others. There are many conferences that have been unable to agree on the wording of the statement, and it has been a significant step forward.
This year, the department received more than $2 million for their sports programs. It's the same story at hundreds of other schools. This year, women's sports at Marshall University (W. Va.) make up only two or three percent of the total budget of the athletic program, about $25,000. At Oklahoma State University (OSU), the women's department is receiving less than 14 percent of the $1.7 million allocated for the men's teams. The men "are not at all interested in supporting equipment. OSU's women's athletic director complained.

In addition to the often grudgingly given funds, women's coaches and athletic administrators have run into other Title IX related problems. Many fear that equalizing the budgets for men and women will only force women into the same kinds of men's men's collegiate sports now faced. Women coaches are wondering whether recruiting athletes for big scholarships will become an administrative obligation for the women's departments. We are not likely to get our own salaries and recruits with dollar bills," the University of Missouri's athletic director explained. "We don't want a carbon copy of the men's program. Women's sports are for the individual." Other women coaches have been warned that if big money and recruiting become a part of the women's game, coaches who don't produce victory with their teams may find themselves unemployed. OSU's women's athletics director said she thinks when women's teams are expanded to the point where they are dependent on gate receipts, the coaches will be faced with losing their jobs if they don't win.

Giving money to female athletes will also force even more commitment from them and intensify the intercollegiate competition among women. "Women are going to have to become more serious about their team's," Iowa State University's women's athletics director warned. It would be difficult to develop expanded programs for living teams, she said.

The only immediate action set by the Title IX guidelines for college athletic departments in an evaluation which must be made of the athletics programs by this July. The schools are responsible for assessing their own programs and comparing them to the federal guidelines. If the schools find inequitable treatment of men and women, they must bring their programs up to the Title IX standard.

Women's athletic directors and coaches at some schools are finding this to be fraught with political problems. At a national convention for women in sport held recently, some women complained that they were certain the athletic departments men were not planning to include them in the evaluation process. Others feared that the men's department would submit its own recommendations to the administration in addition to the one done by the designated committee.

The struggle for the college athletic budget will probably continue at least three more years. Meanwhile, many schools have already opened up most of their physical education classes to both sexes and in some cases merged the two departments.

Two uncanny left-handed guards, John Lucas of Maryland and Willie Smith of Missouri, have taken the voting leads as ballhounds for positions in the sixth annual Pizza Hut Basketball Classic enters its final stages. Lucas, returning from the lead since he began on December 3, finally switched Indiana's Scott Max from the top rung on the East list. The 6-4 led All America has 12.400 votes. Max, removed from the leader's role for the first time in several weeks, has 12.200 votes.

East list players making significant leap in the past two weeks: Arizona's Paul Cottle, Colorado State settled for 4th on the West with 7,500 votes. Allen Majors, Texas, moved into 5th place with 6,900 votes. Majors and Majors. Majors, Majors...

On the West list, Colorado's Frank Johnson, Jr., who became the 12th man to break 20,000 votes in the NCAA East Regional last March, is second with 19,909 votes. Indiana's Bob Knight, with 19,909 votes, showed by a narrow margin, was dislodged by Smith but remained in strong contention in sixth place. In the tally of 68-43, Smith received 18.203 votes, Max 18.100 votes, and rather surprisingly, Ron Lee, Oregon, 18.000 votes. The voting will conclude on March 31 with the NCAA and SMA selections being announced on April 3. The plaques are presented to the top list of the East and West on April 15.

Hoke drops to 23

by John Reeves

The Boise State women's basketball team ended their regular season with a 68-49 victory over Eastern Oregon.

Elaine Godfrey and JoAna Burrell led Bronco scorers with 18 and 17 points respectively. Elaine Elliott contributed 17. Burrell pulled down 18 rebounds while Elliott handed out 8 assists.

Boise State shot 40 percent to ESOC's 31 percent, and dominated the boards, grabbing 56 rebounds to Oregon's 27.

The Broncos ended their regular season with a 10-5 record and are now preparing for the Western Athletic Conference in Cheney, Washington.
