Finance, Student Affairs request new ARA bids

Boise State University finance and student affairs administrators issued the following statement on the current status of food service contract negotiations with ARA Services Inc., today, April 28, says BSU Information Director Bob C. Hall.

Due to confusion caused by a series of alternate food service increase proposals from ARA Services, Inc., BSU will invite that firm to submit a single, sealed bid, in competition with other bidders who are familiar with current BSU food service specifications.

"While the university would normally cancel a contract on which annual increase proposals did not meet the contract specifications, the university prefers to verify food service prices by the only valid method—sealed bids from a range of competing firms.

By this courtesy action, the university shows its concern that all parties to the food service operation be satisfied that our rate setting process is equitable and efficient."

To date, annual negotiations with ARA Services Inc. has seen a series of "suggested" increases that have cost needless administrative time to evaluate. Yet the university finds it difficult to determine which of the varying proposals represents the company's final position. In fairness to ARA and other firms, the university will exercise its option to seek alternate bids. This should allow a fair and economic conclusion to a costly and involved procedure to date.

To prevent re-occurrence of such protracted negotiations in the future, the university will follow this policy:

During annual rate increase negotiations within a contract's three-year term, only one rate figure will be considered by the university for the next contract year. If the university cannot accept that single proposal, the university will promptly seek sealed bids proposals from other food service contractors.

Students in state internship

Two BSU students have been chosen to participate in the Governor's Summer Internship Program, according to D.E. Chilberg, Director of the Department of Administration.

Richard Mabe, a sophomore geology major from Nampa will be placed in the State Planning Bureau. Susan Rinard, a senior in fine arts, from Boise, will intern with the Department of Parks and Recreation's public relations division. The program lasts from June 14 through August 11.

Early fall registration

The BSU Faculty Senate at its March 11 meeting approved the following recommendation from the Matriculation Committee: "That individual students or groups of students who will be off-campus on school-sponsored events or other school business during the period of their Priority Registration may submit a written application to the Matriculation Committee specifying the names of such students (or maximum number) on or before the last Monday of classes the previous semester (spring for fall, fall for spring) to be permitted to enroll with Special Permission."

If you will be off-campus on a school-sponsored event or off-campus for some other school business during your scheduled registration time for Fall Semester, you may pick up an application from the Information Window, Room 100, Administration Building, and mail the completed application to the Chairman, Matriculation Committee, via Campus Mail. If your application is approved, you will be issued a PASS which will allow you to enroll during Early Registration beginning at 8:00 a.m. Wednesday, August 25, 1976. To be considered, your application must be submitted no later than 4:00 p.m., Monday May 3, 1976. There will be no Early Registration for the 1976 Summer Sessions.

Dorm rights not clearly defined; when can officers enter rooms?

(CPS)—Even though a Michigan court ruled last year that dorm rooms are constitutionally protected against arbitrary searches by university security officers, most students who live in dorms are still subject to searches by college officials armed with internal search warrants.

The legality of these university-issued search warrants has not been tested in the courts. But many schools are beginning to scrutinize more carefully their own search and seizure policies in light of the Michigan ruling which gave dorm rooms the same Fourth Amendment protections as an adult's "home, dwelling or lodging."

The Michigan case involved the entry and search of the dorm rooms of two students at Grand Valley State College. The searches were conducted without warrants and no consent had been given. During the searches, marijuana was found in the students' rooms and the university judiciary council suspended the two for one term.

Current search and seizure policy at most universities gives security officers or housing officials the right to enter a student's room without notice if there is "reasonable cause" or "just cause" to be suspicious that the room is being used for the purpose of violating university rules.

In some cases, search warrants are issued if another student, faculty member or staff

Enrollment for summer sessions

If you are currently enrolled at Boise State University, you will be able to enroll for the first summer session on Saturday, June 5, 1976, and/or the second summer session on July 10, 1976, without filling out a new application if you will let us know that you expect to enroll at BSU this summer.

Rather than prepare registration packets for all 10,000 plus currently enrolled students, we will prepare registration packets only for those students who indicate an intent to enroll this summer. To inform us of your intent, either call 385-1156 or stop at the Information Window, Room 100, Administration Building.

If you do not convey your intent to register to us, we will not have a prepared registration packet for you. This will not prevent you from registering on June 5 or July 10, but it will require that you register on a blank packet.

ASB Treasurer resigns post

Recently elected ASB Treasurer, C. Murray Jenkins has resigned, because of personal problems, according to Lenny Hertling, ASB President. The treasurer's spot will be filled temporarily by current ASB Business Manager, Jerald Michaelson.

1975-6 in review: 'we'll make it'

It looks as if we're going to make it through another year. In retrospect, this has probably been one of the best years ever at BSU. We had a winning football and basketball team, great lectures including Moshe Dayan and Gene Roddenberry and Phase II of the Science Education Building was OK'd by the legislature. Other firsts included the opening of the Special Events Center, students standing up and holding their own on the ARA issue, a suit against the State Board of Education regarding alcohol on campus, the radio station, KBSU, getting it together, and even though it didn't directly affect BSU, Alaska decriminalized the private use of marijuana. In addition, we had a student body president that didn't jump ditches on trikes and who didn't try to speak for all Idaho students.

Of course the past year wasn't all good. BSU lost a great administrator in Roger Green, former Vice-president of Financial Affairs, and there still isn't day care at Boise State.

Next year students can look forward to an administration which will work on lobby issues including continued funding for buildings, more research into dental care and day care, the continuance of the alcohol on campus suit and a president who won't jump ditches.

This is the last issue of the year for the Arbiter. Good by and have a good summer.

'RUN FOR YOUR LIVES! IT'S HUBERT HORATIO TORTOISE!'

Seaman's Gulch

by Jack Bryson

Seaman's Gulch, the Boise Valley trash disposal area, lies in the outskirts of Boise. It's a place of sights and sounds as those of you have been there would know. And for those of you who haven't been there, the admission price is a few cents and some trash.

The big yellow machine with spiked steel wheels ground its way to the top of the pile of trash as a flock of seagulls leaped to the safety of the cold, grey sky, soaring on the air currents, just out of the reach of the machine. The huge blade of the machine scooped the tide of trash higher and higher.

The big machine stopped at the top amidst the rubble, its weight causing it to slowly sink into tin cans, no-deposit bottles, newspapers, and assorted cast-offs of an affluent society. A man inside with an enormous unruly moustache and big greasy gloves solemnly shifted the machine's gears, raised the blade and returned to the bottom of the pile only to churn his way back to the top with another scoop.

I stood in the back of my pick-up truck, shovel in hand scooping rubbish that was sprinkled with once cherished possessions: an old doll of my daughter's, its dress tattered and hands decaying with age and neglect; a plastic model airplane of my son's that he had lovingly painted with a set of model paints - miraculously he had found enough room to use all sixteen colors. I shoveled silently doing my part to help spur the economy of a throw-away/replace-with-new society that lives in a non-renewable world.

The big yellow machine spewed oil-black smoke as the diesel engine roared loudly, straining against a pile of trash that it was pushing to the crest of the wave of litter. The seagulls once again leaped to the safety of the sky, soaring, waiting for the chance to return again to feed on the delicacies that would be churned up by the huge blade and steel wheels. I remembered as a child I would watch my father plow in the fields of a Michigan spring. Song birds would follow the tractor where the plow turned over the soil, exposing briefly earthworms that the robins and bluebirds would swoop down and carry off in their beaks. The big yellow machine backed down the pile of garbage and the gulls swooped down to carry off the dross of the affluent.

I looked down to the small pile of trash I had deposited on the ground behind my truck and saw an older man shifting through it. He looked near the age of uselessness with wrinkles on his face and an intense stare in his eyes as he quickly analyzed each article of trash. I started to say something, but realized he would never hear me over the roar of the distant steel-wheeled machine. I watched and wondered how many years of worry it had taken to etch the deep lines in his weathered face, how many years of frustration it had taken for him to work his way to this pinnacle of life. I wondered how many times the door must be slammed on a man's fingers in order to persuade him to find treasures in another man's trash.

I looked down the row of pick-up trucks on either side of me and watched their owners solemnly adding to this sea of refuse, and wondered how many of these people would fall to this man's height in their lifetimes, looking for treasures they now failed to comprehend. I looked back into the eyes of the old man. In the distance a big greasy glove reached forward and pulled back on the throttle and the big yellow trash compactor roared loudly while the birds of the old man's paradise soared silently above.

Thanks for putting up with me this year.

Jack

'Administrative triumph'

Editor, the ARBITER

Certain factions among students here at BSU have been distributing petitions protesting our administration's decision to discontinue ARA's food service and to contract Saga to take their place. These students are unhappy with this decision on the following basis: - that ARA has done more to help student activities than Saga ever considered doing while they were under contract to Boise State, that Saga has reputation for indifference concerning quality of food, and that Saga was fired from BSU four years ago, largely because its service to students was unsatisfactory.

If one scrutinizes closely, though, one can easily see these rumblings as attempts to defame what is obviously a masterful stroke of economic genius. Our administration has cut down two fowls with one stone: the problems of ARA's proposed twelve and one-half per cent rate increase, by getting rid of ARA, and the problem of student resentment, by keeping the deal quiet until it was settled.

What, you may well ask, gives the administration the right to invoke such authority without consulting those whom it will affect? The question, naturally is purely rhetorical and the answer is self-evident: That's what they're there to do. As an analogy:

Picture this, if you will. There exists a community of several thousand voting-age citizens, for the most part apathetic about affairs of local government. There is also a small group of people at the top of the local government which handles the major affairs of that community. These few people have reached their offices by due process of law, and so retain full legal power to manage that community's business procedures.

Now suppose these powerful few were to hire, on behalf of that community, a monopolous corporation to undertake a government project affecting the lives of nearly all the people in the community, without the need to offer those people a chance to vote on the issue. By this time you may recognize the parallel I am drawing to a real-life community of sorts. The community is Ada County. The corporation is Idaho Power.

Of course, our fine and intuitive administrators at BSU recognized a good thing when they saw it, and, noticing the same situation on campus, executed one of its best examples of efficient regulation since the reserved parking lots.

Better yet, the administration is in an even less risky position than the Ada County Commission: whereas Ada's deal with Idaho Power affects all those in the immediate area who breathe; the food service only deals with those students who eat.

It might be added that our administration does concern itself with its students; just as no business is a business without customers, no school is a school without students. Indeed, BSU has a reputation for running well along sound economic principles. As any business must keep working to keep attracting customers, so our administration will work to keep attracting students. The main element to accomplish this end is essentially the same for both a business and for a school: good public relations. And finally, any reputable enterprise has as its motto, "The customer is always right." Of course this maxim must be slightly changed to fit a university. "The student is always right where we want him."

In conclusion, I must state my support for our administration's decision to trim the fat off our food service budget, even without seeking the opinions of those it represents. After all, are we running an institution of higher education or a commune? Bud Humphrey

Dear Uncle Ernie

Dear Uncle Ernie,

I'm getting excited about voting in my first presidential election this fall. It will be my first time in the voting booth. I think voting is a big responsibility and I want to do my very best for my country. My problem is that I really don't understand the issues that some of the people who are running are using. Uncle Ernie, would you please tell me who the major candidates are and what they stand for?
Signed, Lenny

Dear Lenny,

Please don't bother me with your foolish questions. Next.

Dear Uncle Ernie,

I thought the previous letter was a good one. Why don't you answer it?

Signed, Crash

Dear Crash,
OK,OK.

Here is Uncle Ernie's interpretation of the candidates and the issues involving them.

First the Democrats-

Henry "Scoop" Jackson:

Even though Jackson is out of the running now, don't you think it would have been weird to have a president who has a name like a soda jerk.

Mo Udall: Might be alright, but what would he do with Curly and Larry? Maybe make them the Secretary of State and the head of the FBI.

Jimmy "Peanuts" Carter:

The best description of Carter that I heard was "Jimmy Carter is a nice guy but behind that toothy smile sits the mind of an empty shoe box."

cold-drill, authors, artist win top honors

The cold-drill, Boise State University's literary magazine, was recently awarded top honors in the annual Rocky Mountain Collegiate Press Association competition. The RMCPA, composed of over 60 colleges and universities in the inter-mountain West, announced its 1975-76 literary and journalism contest award winners April 23-24 in Tucson, Arizona.

Published by the BSU Department of English, this year's literary magazine won 1st place honors for Photography, Layout, and Design. The magazine was also awarded 2nd place honors for General Excellence.

Individual cold-drill artists and authors were also accorded high honors. Co-editor of the magazine, Paul Rio, won 2nd place for his poem "Tradition, or What Was Up Downtown," and Danny Friend won 2nd place for his art work "Mouse."

In the short story category, Michael Maynard placed 3rd with "A Peaceable Freedom Movement or Andy's Yarn."

Sold exclusively at the Boise State University Bookstore, copies of this year's award-winning issue are on sale for 97 cents per copy.

State advises county to raise assessment

The Idaho State Tax Commission has advised Ada County officials to change the residential property tax assessment rates. For the past five years, the State Tax Commission has assessed residential property at 73% of its market value. The courts have recently ruled that it is against state law to assess property at less than its full market value. The Tax Commission has recommended that all residential property be assessed at 100% of market value. Landlords may have to pass these higher tax rates onto their renters in higher rental fees.

When the residential property of the county is brought up to full market value, it could increase property taxes by 12.9%.

Landlords around the county have said they will review the tax increase before they decide to raise rental rates. There are several factors related to the setting of rental fees including market rates and competition.

Apartment complexes of four units or smaller are considered residential property, while complexes larger than four units are considered commercial property. Commercial property taxes may go down if residential property assessments are changed to full market value.

Dean's assistant position still open

The Assistant to the Dean works with a variety of special programs and student groups such as the Minority Cultural Center and Program Board, Women's Concerns, the ASBSU Task Force on Handicapped, International Students program, the University Special Student Services Committee, and individual student organizations. The Assistant also assists with exit interviews of students withdrawing from the University, coordinating a campus-wide tutorial assistance program, staff training and supervision, surveys and research. An equally important function is the editing and publishing of the Student Handbook in conjunction with the ASBSU Student Handbook Committee.

The position requires a minimum of twenty hours a week (part time) at $300.00 a month for ten months. Applicants should be an upper-classman or a graduate student with a minimum 2.50 cumulative grade point average.

Applications are available in room 114 Administration Building. The deadline for filing is May 12, 1976.

This is an Equal Opportunity Position. No student shall be excluded from consideration on the grounds of race, color, sex, or creed.

Powis to speak on British police

Criminal Justice Administration at Boise State University will sponsor the appearance of David Powis, Deputy Assistant Commissioner of Inspection and Planning for New Scotland Yard, London, England. He will speak on POLICE-COMMUNITY RELATIONS IN GREAT BRITAIN on Friday, May 7, at 9:30 a.m. in the Nez Perce Room of the Student Union Building on the BSU campus.

Powis joined the British Police Service in 1946, and served with the provincial police and as an Inspector with the London Metropolitan Police. In 1965 he became Superintendent of the Special Patrol Group task force and later directed the special courses program for supervisory/administrative personnel at the British National Police College.

From 1969 until his appointment as deputy assistant commissioner of Inspection and Planning, Powis was commander of police services in London districts largely multi-racial and of highly variable economic composition.

Frank Church: Hey, what can I say about Big Frank? I think Church's biggest problem is not in Idaho but I might guess that there are people around the country who are saying "Frank Who?"

Hubert Humphrey: We know this story. Let's just say he's available.

George Wallace: This old boy from the south kinda fell flat on his face and only I know the reason why. It seems Wallace went to a convention in New York early this year and when he looked out over the people at the convention, all of them put on Arthur Bremer masks. That would really freak a guy out.

The Republicans- Gerald "Can't chew gum and walk" Ford.

Ronnie Reagan: I wonder what kind of hair dye he uses.

Students gain least from Buckley Privacy Act

by Bill McGraw

(CPS)--Students, supposedly destined to become the big winners when the Buckley Amendment took affect one year ago, have turned out to be the act's biggest losers.

The Amendment, sponsored by Senator James L. Buckley (Cons.-R NY), armed students with the right to inspect their personal files kept by their school and restricted the number of outside persons and organizations able to have access to the files, which in the past often contained information on students that had nothing to do with their academic situation.

But today, bureaucrats in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) are still quibbling over the act's final guidelines, school officials are still wondering what the whole thing means and students seeking admission to college, professional schools and graduate programs have been hurt by counselors' refusals to write honest letters of recommendations.

"The guy (Buckley) had good intentions but it's a lousy piece of legislation," a Pennsylvania high school principal told the New York Times. "It's going to force the colleges more and more deeply into the numbers game. It's very unfair to the youngsters."

The main problem with the act appears to be counselors who are spooked by the specter of suit-bearing students now that they can see what is being written about them. The counselors, fearful of offending with assessment of a student's talent, have opted for a bland, innocuous letter of recommendation which admission officers say are "useless" in determining a student's worthiness to enter a school or program.

The admission officers in turn have been forced to rely on raw test scores and grades when it comes time to choose among student hopefuls applying to their schools. Officials say this process does not do students any favors.

"This (relying on grades and tests) could hurt the non-traditional candidates," explains Harvard official Fred Jewett. Bland recommendations "can have a major affect," says Charles Deacon, Dean of Admissions at Georgetown University. "When you are dealing with five, six or seven qualified applicants for every position, these recommendations can be very important."

To remedy the situation, students keen on a particular law school or graduate program are signing papers that waive their rights of access to letters in their files. "About 50 per cent" of the students registered at the University of Texas teacher placement center have signed waivers, an official there says. The practice is "common" among applicants to law and medical schools at Boston University; Harvard and some other schools send out waiver forms on a regular basis. On the other hand, some schools like Barnard College have declined to issue waivers until the final rules are known.

"While we had reservations about using recommendations that are not confidential, we thought the waivers were coercive," says a Barnard dean.

Other problems with the Buckley amendment have also arisen. At some schools, teachers have been reported registering for classes so their student status will enable them to gain access to their employment records. Some schools, lacking final guidelines, have interpreted the act to mean they can't even release individual basketball statistics without a student's approval.

The letters of recommendation have become so bland, one student nearly accepted by Harvard was discovered to have suffered a nervous breakdown. Harvard officials didn't read about it in the letters from his counselors; they had to call his school after the student started sending two and three daily letters to Harvard to check on his application.

Despite fears students would rush to see their files like a thundering herd once the law went into effect, the opposite has happened, school officials from New York to River Falls, Wisconsin report.

A HEW spokesman says the law has been beneficial nonetheless. He points to the fact that no longer can police or military organizations gain access to student files along with the new opportunity for students to purge their records of any erroneous material.

Stop Pioneer campaign starts

Over 100 people attended the first organizational meeting of the Campaign to Stop Pioneer, held last Thursday evening in the Nez Perce Room of the SUB.

The Campaign is a loose coalition of groups and individuals working for a common purpose - prevention of the construction of the Pioneer Power Plant. Among participating groups are the Idaho Conservation League, Idaho Citizens Coalition, Committee to put Pioneer on the Ballot, Citizens for Alternatives to Pioneer, Idaho Consumer Affairs and the BSU Student Action Committee.

The Campaign's activities will be coordinated by several committees: fund raising, voter registration, public educational events (debates and forums), media relations, research and position papers, street theater and BSU and high school activities.

The first activity scheduled at BSU is a campus wide leafletting program to be carried out this Wednesday. The leafletting is scheduled to begin at noon. Anyone interested in helping should come to the front entrance of the library at 11:45.

If you want to help, or if you want more information, call the Campaign to Stop Pioneer at 345-2222 or 345-6933.

The case of Yvonne Wanrow

The case of Yvonne Wanrow, a shy, sensitive mother of three young children, has gained national interest. Yvonne Wanrow is a 32 year old Colville Indian woman who was convicted in Spokane in 1973 of second degree murder, and first degree assault. Ms. Wanrow admits shooting William Wesler, a 62 year old white man, and shooting and wounding his companion, Kelly, when in the early morning hours, they entered the home where she, another woman, and their children were staying. Yvonne asserts that she believed Wesler to be a dangerous man who had previously assaulted one of the children, who had also attempted to assault two more of the children then present in the home, and she had shot him while he was attempting still another such assault. She felt she was defending the children. The prosecution in the case asserted that she had in fact enticed the men into the house, and introduced as evidence of this, the tape recording made at the time Yvonne talked to the police to report the crime. "I was convicted by the tone of my voice. I was not screaming on the phone. My form of hysteria is expressed differently." The decision in this case was reversed in the Washington Appeals Court in 1975, a two to one decision, because the tape recordings were ruled inadmissible evidence. Being a split decision, the prosecution has appealed it to the Washington Supreme Court. The case was heard in February of this year, the decision is pending.

Whatever the decision, this case merits widespread attention. Yvonne feels that she has been "victimized by the courts because I am a woman and an Indian and because I am poor." There are many questions, much controversy which surrounds this trial. Persons concerned with fair and equal treatment for all should consider this case and its implications.

As organizations working toward fair and equal treatment for women, we support Ms. Wanrow's right to present her case to the public. Her plight is not unusual. Such discrimination takes place in many courts. We urge you to attend and consider Yvonne's situation. It could happen to anyone!

Yvonne will be in Boise on May 7, and will speak that evening at 7:30 at the Y.W.C.A.

She is being sponsored by the Women's Center of the Y.W.C.A., Rape Crisis Alliance, and the Women's Alliance of BSU. She will also appear on the Womankind show, Channel 4, KAID Wednesday, May 26 at 7:30 p.m.

Guzie wins awards

BSU music student Andrew Guzie won two awards for music composition. Guzie won first place for his composition "American West Suite," for two guitars. His second place was for "Mississippi Heritage," for violin and piano.

Guzie won the awards in the Compton Composition Contest, which is recognized by the National Federation of Music Clubs. The contest has been run for the past 15 years and is open to all Idaho college students under the age of 27.

Guzie, Charles Bufe and Lonnie Mardis will present an original composition in the Music-Drama Auditorium on May 4 at 8:15 p.m.

Senate Report

Hertling, Kim to face State Board on food issue

by George Neils

The Senate Tuesday allocated $274 sending Lenny Hertling, ASBSU President and Nate Kim, past ASBSU President and current head of Student Services, to the State Board of Education meeting later this week in Idaho Falls. Hertling told the Senate that the main reason for the trip was to inform the State Board that the ASBSU was "going to take a negative stand toward signing" a food contract next year with SAGA foods. One of the reasons Hertling gave for opposing the SAGA contract was that there was "no student input" when Dr. David Taylor, Vice-president of Student Affairs, considered the change from ARA to SAGA.

Another reason, in the words of senator Holly Welsh, Health Science, was she had eaten SAGA institutional foods and "I wouldn't wish that on anyone."

Hertling pointed out that Taylor in making the decision had felt he was acting in the best interests of the students. He said though, "our student rights have been violated due to a lack of student input."

Senator Welsh asked Taylor why he had not contacted the officers of the ASBSU. Taylor said that he always had the students in mind. Whenever there was impact on a large number of students the "intent has been to involve them in these decisions." He went on to say he wasn't doing anything other than representing students."

Taylor said that when ARA presented their budget for the new year they included an "inordinately high increase" in the amount of money asked. He said there was "not a satisfactory justification" from ARA for this increase (12 and one half per cent to 24 per cent over last year).

According to Taylor, there was a Food Service Committee comprised of residence hall students which was suppose to keep in touch with the manager of the food service. Hertling later pointed out that "there is no committee."

Hertling said that at the State Board meeting he would be "arguing against a new food service" contending that "negative input" from students about SAGA food quality was the primary reason for differing with Taylor's decision.

The Senate questioned the advisability of sending two people to Idaho Falls rather than one. Tracy Miller, Arts and Science, said that in this case there would be two administrations working together. Bob Naugler pointed out that it would "do the students good." Miller observed that this meeting would be a good introduction of Hertling into the procedures of the State Board. Kim would be there to bring to Hertling's attention the interests of the different members of the Board and how best to approach them.

Senator Welsh brought a resolution before the Senate asking that a letter be sent to the State Board asking that the Board drop their attempt to dismiss the alcohol suit. Nate Kim said the last time a resolution similar to this was brought up, the ASBSU lawyer felt that he was slapped in the face by the action of the Senate. He felt that the Senate was not placing the trust that had been given him when the contract was first signed. He contended that the course the action was taking was the proper course, and that there were no problems with the Courts.

Senator Chris Hayne concurred. He said "We're paying our lawyers to do that so why don't we let them handle this matter?"

The Senate was asked if they would participate in a class which, running concurrently with the Senate, would teach the basics of leadership, assertive training, and other requisites for successful conduction of represented affairs.

Senator Pam Kalbfleisch, Arts and Science, feared that "if we dropped the class we'd have to drop the Senate too." The Senate tabled the consideration of the class.

Summer jobs available

For those of you who haven't decided what you want to do this summer, check out the job placement office in the Administration Building because they have job listings that can help you decide.

If you wanted to, you could be a camp counselor at a national park in either Idaho, Oregon or Montana or work as a 21 dealer in a Las Vegas casino. A lot of the major hotels in Las Vegas and Reno also hire summer help.

Local merchants are also looking for help, if you plan on staying in Boise this summer. Positions range from clerical and restaurant work to teaching aides at summer schools.

There is no limit as to what type of job you can get. All you have to do is check it out.

Poor prospects for class of '76

(CPS)--Those who have hit the resume route have already found out the latest news on the job market for college grads: employment prospects are bleak. To be more exact, this year's graduates face possibly the worst job outlook ever.

The number of job offers for students graduating in the spring is smaller than last year's figure, according to a recent study released by the College Placement Council. "And just about everyone agreed that 1974-75 was a tough year," said the council, an organization made up of career planning directors at universities.

Job offers to students at 159 colleges are 16 per cent lower this year than last year for B.A. candidates, the report said. For master's degree candidates the decline is 25 per cent; for doctoral candidates, 32 per cent.

The biggest drop in job offers appears to be for students graduating with degrees in the humanities and social sciences. Offers for B.A. candidates in those fields decreased by 26 per cent from last March.

The next largest drop--23 per cent-- was for engineering students. Then came the sciences, with a 12 per cent decrease, and business fields with a 4 per cent drop.

The drop in engineering and business fields is puzzling, that council said, because estimates from employers last November indicated that job prospects were expected to be good in those fields.

Accounting, banking, insurance and chemical and drug companies made about the same number of offers as last year, while offers rose from the automotive, electrical machinery, research-consulting and tire and rubber firms.

Starting salaries at the B.A. level range from an average high of $16,788 for engineering students to $8,580 for humanities majors, the council said.

One bright spot in the council's report was that undergraduate women received 27 per cent more job offers this year than in March of 1975. Job offers to women were also 36 per cent higher at the master's level.

Job offers to men declined 20 per cent for undergraduates and 13 per cent for master's candidates.

Nevertheless, the number of jobs offered to women is still only 16 per cent of the total offered to B.A. candidates and 15 per cent of the number offered to master's degree candidates.

The bad job news for college senior this year is only the latest chapter in a continuing bleak economic story. By the end of this academic year about 1.3 million people will receive bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees, according to Harvard Economist Richard Freeman. This is nearly double the number of degrees doled out ten years ago.

Yet during the same time, says Freeman, the number of professional, technical and managerial jobs in the U.S. has grown by barely more than a third.

Gwendolen Haste...

Montana poet publishes

Gwendolen Haste, a Montana poet now living in New York City, returned to the literary spotlight this week as the second author published by Boise State University's Ahsahta Press.

Editor Orvis Burmaster says "Selected Poems" of Gwendolen Haste "record vividly" the lives and hardships of Western ranchers and homesteaders in the 1920's and '30's. The new 63 page Ahsahta book will feature 40 poems, some of them printed for the first time.

Burmaster says Haste is considered a Western poet, even though she has lived in New York since 1925. She spent several of her most productive years in Billings, Montana helping her father edit the "Scientific Farmer" and contributing poems to numerous national magazines.

One poem titled "The Ranch at the Coulee" shared "The Nation" poetry prize in 1922 and was reprinted widely, as were others from her "Montana Wives" series. Individual poems have been reprinted in many anthologies, and the best of her early work was collected in one volume called "Young Land" published in 1930.

Burmaster says her poems "often expose the stereotype of the hearty and hardy ranch wife who brings culture and calico curtains to the log and tarpaper shacks strewn across the Western landscape.

"Now, 40 years after the homestead days in which she wrote many of them, Miss Haste's works still speak strongly to women anywhere--on a ranch, in a suburb, in a city--and to others who know the vast rangelands and rigorous life of which she writes."

Haste moved to New York in the mid-Twenties, where she joined the staff of Survey magazine, and later served as secretary of the Poetry Society of America. She presently lives in the Bronx.

Haste's "Selected Poems" is the second volume by the Ahsahta Press, a new Boise State University press founded to publicize poets of the American West who have not been widely known.

The Haste book will be followed by editions of poetry by Peggy Pond Church, a New Mexico poet, and by Marnie Welsh, a young Sioux Indian poet from North Dakota.

Burmaster selected and arranged the "Selected Poems" of Gwendolen Haste and Carol Mullaney wrote the introduction. Both are English professors at Boise State.

The first two Ahsahta volumes, priced at $2.00 each, are on sale at the Campus Store, Boise State University, 1910 College Boulevard, Boise, Ida. 83725.

ON THE TOWN

Here's the entertainment schedule for the next few weeks at 121 Club:

Beth & Clyde with Cousin Jess through May 8.

Ceramic artists hold exhibition

The Ceramics Department of BSU announces an Open House Exhibition and sale by students and instructors. Over one hundred students and four instructors will participate in this event.

Works include utilitarian and sculptural objects in porcelain, stoneware and Raku. The event will be open to the public during May 8, 9, and 10 from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. in the University Gallery of the Liberal Arts Building.

Free parking is available anywhere on the campus on Saturday and Sunday. On Monday, free parking will be available at Bronco Stadium.

Recital features students' compositions

Three upper-class composition students are presenting a recital of original compositions at 8:15 p.m., May 4, in the Little Recital Hall in the MD building on the Boise State University Campus.

The students, all studying under Dr. C. Griffith Bratt, BSU Composer-in-Residence, are ANDY GUZIE, LONNIE MARDIS, and CHARLES BUFE. The concert will be a varied one of vocal music, percussion, guitar, piano, and strings.

Two prize-winning pieces will be present when Andy Guzie's "American West Suite" (for 2 guitars) and his "Duet for Violin and Piano--Our Mississippi Heritage" are heard. They won both first and second place prizes in the 1976 Compton Composition Contest.

The public is invited to attend this concert without admission charge.

Summer Music Theatre puts on 'South Pacific'

The Boise State University Summer Music Theatre (Department of Music) announces the summer session production of the Broadway Musical "South Pacific", during the first five week summer school term.

Singing, acting, dancing, tech crew, and pit orchestra talent are invited to participate in this "Bicentennial Year" production in the new Special Events Center. Interested students should contact a member of the directing staff for further information: William Taylor (Music Department), or Dr. Charles Lauterbach and Frank Heise (Theatre Arts Department).

At the gallery... Randy Meinach's photos in 'Idaho's Own' exhibit

Randy Meinach is an Idahoan, a photographer and a country music artist. And his work is on exhibit at the Boise Gallery of Art through May 16. The photographs in Meinach's Idaho's Own are part of his larger study of other areas of Western American culture.

In photographically studying the western segment of people in Idaho, Meinach found they had a very strong sense of personal identity and group unity. He attempts to portray a soundness of mind and spirit, spirit that keeps the West alive in people who are the backbone of society.

The exhibition opens and runs concurrently with two other shows. Suburbia, a photographic essay on life in the suburbs, and paintings and prints by Portland artist George Johansen.

Gallery hours are Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday from 12 noon to 5 p.m. The Gallery is closed Mondays.

Amarcord means "I remember" in dialect Italian, and this gorgeously realized movie is a sentimental journey into Federico Fellini's own past. His recollections of growing up in a provincial town in the 1930's under Chruuch and Fascism inspire colorful, bawdy vignettes peopled by sometimes outrageous, always magnificent characters. The movie, Fellini's 14½th, is an unforgettable mixture of realism and fantasy.

Dorms go porno

(CPS)--Someone has been making pornographic movies in the dorms at San Jose State College in California for the past two years, and the productions have opened to mixed reviews.

"The whole college thing has come together for me for the first time, gushed one coed who took part in the filming. "Drinking, drugs and sex, all at once."

"Obscene behavior is clearly contrary to university policy," harumphed college president John Bunzel, who has launched an investigation into the incident.

"I tried to be a cool reporter but I must have turned 12 shades of purple before they were through," admitted Louise Randall, a writer for the student newspaper who hunted down the action for two months and then witnessed the filming of a couple scenes.

"Most of them are clean, well-raised, mom-and-apple-pie types you wouldn't pick as porno chicks," commented the director, speaking of the nine female students who acted for him. One male student also starred in color films which are being marketed for $1,000 each.

The students were paid up to $100 for their parts, although the director said he had to hire prostitutes for the "unusual" sex scenes.

The filming went undiscovered because of an elaborate lookout system that enabled the sets to be dismantled and the crew to disperse in 60 seconds.

Henry's Lake State Park

April 19, 1976 - Henry's Lake State Park will conform to Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation rules and regulations and there will be no overflow camping in the parking lot this year, R.P. Peterson, acting director, announced.

"Board policy and department regulation have specified 'camping will be permitted only in designated areas' since the department was initiated nearly 11 years ago," Peterson said. "However, in recent years, the rules have been relaxed at Henry's Lake State Park to allow overflow camping in the day use parking lot."

Henry's Lake State Park has 32 camping spaces. "When those spaces are filled," he said, "camping will be closed."

He pointed out that not only board policy and department rules are violated by allowing camping in the parking lot, but health regulations also.

Peterson said that additional accommodations are available at private campgrounds in the Island Park area and in nearby U.S. Forest Service campgrounds.

Seven Samurai to be shown

Seven Samurai (The Magnificent Seven), one of the greatest films in the career of Akira Kurosawa, is scheduled to play at the Boise Gallery of Art on Wednesday, May 5 at 8 p.m. This free-to-the-public showing is made possible through a matching grant from the Idaho Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

The film is a successful blending of elements from American westerns and gangster films into the classic Japanese Samurai movie. This epic tale is more than an exciting adventure film. It is also a moving, compassionate drama of men fighting to protect their way of life, no matter what compromises they may have to make.

Takashi Shimura plays the samurai leader with Toshiro Mifune providing comic relief as an ex-farmer who wants to become a samurai warrior.

Dental program under fire

The curriculum and procedures of the BSU Dental Assistants program has come under fire from the Southwest Idaho District Dental Society. The dental society lodged complaints with BSU officials in the form of a letter. The letter called for the removal of Jean MacInnis, an instructor in the program and listed general inadequacies in the program.

The Competency-Review Committee, comprised of faculty and students, met last week to identify the problems of the program. The committee interviewed several faculty staff members of the dental program, including MacInnis, and the director of the Vocational-Technical School, Don Miller.

The Committee then asked the Tenure Committee of the Vo-Tech school to review the instructors, procedures and curriculum of the dental program. When the Tenure Committee has reviewed the dental program they will turn their findings over to the Competency Review Committee.

Meanwhile, the office of the Executive Vice-president, Dr. Richard Bullington, has completed a survey form that will be sent to area dentists to attempt to identify the problems with the Dental Assistants Program at BSU.

HEADHUNTER

HEADHUNTER clues have to be broken down. Rarely do they make sense taken as wholes. The "real" definition, the one actually sought, is almost always at the very beginning or very end of the clue. Constantly search for SYNONYMS for every word or phrase, however vague or far-fetched the connection, until the logical alliteration emerges with the right number of letters emerges. The three main types of clues:

ANAGRAMS, often signaled by words like broken, scrambled, tangled, mad, sort of, perhaps, now becomes crazy, stupid, now changed, anything indicating the rearranging of letters.

DOUBLE DEFINITIONS, as in game for a teacher, 11, 10 (11).

HIDDEN WORDS, from the word or spanning words in the clue and sometimes signaled by among, in between, etc. Example: "In here, a word?" A word for a word? (11) REWARD. Sometimes signaled by the words "find" or "construction methods."

Clue words often are literal, "en brace" can simply mean one word or rounding another. That is, may indicate an "and" or "in" in the answer about may hint at an abbreviation, and so on. Find the clue words, the clues leading to its solution.

Raft race

A big success

Thirty-six rafts converged on Barber Park Saturday morning to compete in the annual Tau Kappa Epsilon Raft Race. The rafts started their descent of the river between noon and 12:30, with a crowd of 1200 well-wishers in attendance.

There were no serious incidents to mar the race, thanks to the numerous parties donating their time as potential rescuers and several 'shore crews' made up of BSU Greeks who patrolled bridges over the race course. The crew of the Alpha Chi Omega raft in the womens' 8 or more passenger class capsized before the third set of rapids, which are located near the Gate City Steel plant. All crewmembers were able to get out of the river safely, and their unmanned barge went on to win that division's trophy with a time of 1 hour, 3 minutes, 15 seconds.

Rafts entered ranged in construction from innertubes lashed to planks, fibreglassed wooden rafts to rubber rafts. Two rafts carried kegs of beer and many vessels carried at least one six-pack of the amber brew.

The two rafts that were outfitted with kegs were entered for the 'Half-Assed Last' prize, which goes to the crew that takes the longest to navigate the river, but finishes before 3 p.m. The Alpha Kappa Psi raft, commanded by James 'Crash' Crawford, made the voyage in 2 hours, 30 minutes, 3 seconds, crossing the finish line at Ann Morrison Park at 2:58:03 p.m. The TKE/Olympia Beer entry turned in a time of 2 hours, 44 minutes, 14 seconds, but they crossed the line at 14 seconds past three, thus disqualifying themselves.

Dorm rights

member suspects that stolen property is in a student's dorm room. At Lehigh University in Pennsylvania, the person with the complaint must obtain a "dean's warrant" which gives them the right to enter and search a student's room and seize the stolen property if they find it.

The Delaware attorney general's office has begun an investigation into the search and seizure policies at the University of Delaware where dean's warrants are available when someone has reasonable cause to believe University rules have been broken. Attorney General Richard Wier said he thinks the dean's warrant is a "blanket warrant (which) may not comport with the Fourth Amendment."

Since violations of university rules which would require a search would also probably violate civil law. Wier said, a dean's search might constitute an inappropriate enforcement of the law.

At the University of North Dakota, dorm resident assistants and head residents can go to the Personnel Dean for written permission to enter a student's room if they think a "serious violation of university or housing regulations is taking place within the room."

The housing contract at Northwest Missouri State University specifies that University officials reserve the right "to enter a student's room when probable cause has been established." The director of safety and security at the Missouri school claimed that "discretion is used at all times when entering a student's room," but probable cause seems to be interpreted loosely.

An example of probable cause, according to the security officer, would be an unidentified telephone caller reporting a stolen television in a specific room. More generally, the university can enter a student's dorm room for the purpose of determining if the general "order and security" has been violated.

Some legal observers doubt the legality of the internal search warrants even though the Michigan court advised the plaintiff in the case to explore the possibility of using university warrants for searches. An associate professor of law at the University of North Dakota said he was "quite skeptical that the university could or should implement a system of internal authorization "based on the Michigan court's opinion." The whole tenor of the opinion is against administrative officials serving in such a position," he said.

Employment agencies—pay for work

(CPS)--Lightweights, in the business, are recent college graduates with little or no experience in their fields. The business is employment agencies and hundreds of thousands of lightweights will be flocking to their offices this year in search of those very elusive jobs.

Since private employment agencies earn their money by placing their clients in jobs, the more people who shuffle through their offices, the better. Ten years ago, said one agency vice-president, "if you didn't find the right job for the applicant you had failed." Nowadays, employment agencies are turning themselves more to the needs of the businesses they serve than to the job hunters who come to them for help.

But agencies do have some of those precious few job listings that are becoming harder and harder to find. Many agencies have full-time employees whose job it is to call local businesses and inquire about job openings.

Some employers only list their openings with employment agencies which will do a preliminary screening job for them. Checking out employment agencies is sometimes the only route to a job but almost always the most expensive one.

Private employment agencies are generally paid by the job hunters although many companies will pay the fee if the worker stays for a certain period of time. Fees vary from agency to agency but can be very steep. Frequently the agency charges a percentage of the worker's monthly or annual salary. Occasionally it will be a flat fee.

Fees of $1000 and up are not unusual for finding professional or semi-professional positions. A few states have set maximum fees that agencies can charge for their services but most states leave that up to the competition.

In fact, regulations of employment agencies are fairly slack in many states. Most states have statutes which set down the rules governing employment agencies but abuse is common and disciplinary action, rare. For instance it is against the law to advertise jobs that do not exist. But students who have seen alluring ads for "Journalist" or "Counselor" often find that the jobs have disappeared between the time they saw them in the newspaper and the time they called. But as long as they're on the phone, the agent will gladly describe other kinds of jobs they have which might not be quite as tempting but "with the job market the way it is...etc."

Another trick of the trade is to run an ad for a job a few days longer than the opening exists. This isn't technically illegal and the effect is to draw people to the office with this prospect and then quickly divert them with something else. The only recourse for job hunters who have been hoodwinked by agents is to file a complaint with the state regulating agency which will conduct a hearing and possibly revoke their license.

Another common hustle is for an agent to study your application and then call around to companies and try to sell you. Most of the time the answer is no anyway, but if they do connect with a possibility while you're sitting in the office with them, it is very difficult to decline the interview. And once they've got you to the interview, chances are pretty good they'll be counting their fee soon.

Agents are always on the lookout for more jobs to list with their company so many times they will ask applicants where they have already applied for jobs. Then when the customer is gone, the agent will call up the business you just told them needed an employee and try to sign the job up with their agency. Other employment agents always advise clients to refuse to answer that question.

If the agency does find you a job, most of your fees are tax deductible. But even if the job and you don't get along, you'll still owe something to the agency regardless of whether you quit or are fired. In most states, if you leave the job for any reason except layoffs within the first 30 days, you are still liable for 20 per cent of the agreed fee. From 30 to 60 days, you must pay 40 per cent of the agreed fee. And so on.

Signing yourself up with two or three private employment agencies isn't a bad idea if you want other people to do the hard looking for you. But it is a good idea to shop around for fees and payment plans before you start doing business with any of them. And avoid being persuaded to take a job even for a short time just because your counselor tells you that times are tough. Getting you into any job makes times much less tough for employment agents.

We've got it!

Almost anything goes ?

Almost Anythings Goes competition was held behind the SUB last Wednesday. The event was organized by the Kappa Sigma Stardusters in conjunction with Greek Week. The team from Alpha Kappa Psi/Alpha Chi Omega took first with 27 points, followed by Sigma Nu/Gamma Phi Beta with 17, Kappa Sigma/Delta Delta with 15, and Tau Kappa Epsilon/Alpha Omicron Pi with 9.

During the first event, "Blind Football", no points were awarded because no one was able to complete a field goal blind-folded. The second event, "Princess & the Frog", was won by Gary Underhill of Sigma Nu and Gamma Phi Chris Leverria with their time of 1:02.3. The "Sack Race" was adapted to a six-man hop when the sacks disintegrated early in the first heat. The first heat saw the AKPsi/Alpha Chi's defeat Kappa Sig/Tri Deltas, while TKE/AOPi downed Sigma Nu/Gamma Phi in the second heat. The championship heat was won by the AKPsi/Alpha Chi with their time of :32.1.

In "Back Seat Driver", a blindfolded Rob Elwood of Kappa Sigma heeded the directions of Tri Delt Janis Muldur and drove a golf cart around a one-eighth mile course in 1:01.5 to take first. Sigma Nu/Gamma Phi was second in 1:12.3 (including a 5-second penalty for running over a pylon). AKPsi/Alpha Chi was third with 1:26.3 (5-seconds penalty), and TKE/AOPi was fourth with their time of 3:03.6 (25-seconds penalty).

The AKPsi/Alpha Chis handily won the "Tug-O-War", and took second in the "Egg Race". The egg race was won by Kappa Sig/Tri Deltas with their time of 2:19.6.

Olympia Brewing Company, Olympia, Washington "OLY"

In a world buffeted by change, consider the unchanging church key. On a fateful day in October, 1919, Mac C. Rosenfeld received Patent #1,260,321 for it. A gleaming symphony of spring steel, the church key was used by three generations of thirsty collegiate Oly drinkers. Not until the twist-top was its utility questioned, although the discriminating Oly drinker will always keep one on hand for fav-Stubbies and Oldtime bottles.

The design of the church key hasn't changed because it was made with skill, ingenuity and simplicity. A great beer doesn't change for many of the same reasons. If it's done right going in, you'll have an unchanging standard of quality. Some things never change. Olympia never will.

Varsity slips past Alumni in annual clash

by John Steppe

Before an impressive crowd of 12,561 spectators the Bronco Varsity was challenged by the BSU Alumni last Saturday night.

The skies were clear and the temperature was in the mid 70's when the Alumni entered the stadium via beer trucks and were they ready to play ball. The Alumni hit hard and fast. Their second drive ended in 6 points for their favor. The games first TD came when ex-BSU star Jim McMillan hit Ross Wright for a three yard pass. The Alumni conversion attempt was no good. On the third kickoff attempt the Varsity took control of the ball and drove to within one yard of pay dirt and there they fumbled and lost the ball.

Two plays later McMillan pitched back to Hailey and he was hit and dropped for a two point safety. One fumble and seven plays later the Alumni carried the ball again for another 6 points on a one yard drive by Ross Wright. The PAT was good and the score was Alumni 13-Varsity 2.

With 13:22 left in the second quarter, Greg Stern carried the pigskin on a one yard keeper for the first Varsity TD of the game. The foot of Avi Rofe was in style and the score was now Alumni 13-Varsity 9.

The next score came 13 plays later when Rofe split the up rights on a 27 yard field goal to bring the Varsity within one point of the Alumni.

After the kickoff the Alumni drove for 86 yards and another 6 points when McMillan passed to John Crabtree for 24 yards. The PAT was no good and the half ran out leaving the Alumni in the lead 19-12.

Second half action began with a four play drive by the Alumni "back up squad", which scored a TD that didn't count. Even though the TD didn't count the crowd loved the players of the "back up squad".

Regular play resumed and the Varsity who had received the kickoff was forced to turn over the ball and within nine plays the Alumni had scored again. This TD was made by John Crabtree after a 24 yard pass from Jim McMillan. The following play the Alumni made was good on a two point conversion by Clint Sigman. The score was now 27-12 for the Alumni.

The third quarter ended with no change in the score and it looked like the Alumni had it in the bag.

Three seconds into the last period the Varsity got on the board with an 8 yard run by Sean Beaton. This TD brought the Varsity to within 9 points of the Alumni.

After the kickoff (seven plays after) the Alumni were forced to turn over the ball.

A 78 yard drive ended in another Varsity TD and now they were within 2 points of their opponents. With 10:16 left in the game the Alumni started a 47 yard drive only to turn the ball over once again. Play battled back and forth until with 13 seconds left in the game the Varsity found themselves on the alumni's four yard line. At this point head Bronco coach Jim Criner sent in Avi Rofe to attempt a 3 point field goal and he did from 21 yards out. The score was 28-27 and the clock ran out on the Alumni for this year. With this varsity win comes the end of spring ball and the time has come to look forward to this fall.

MEN-WOMEN

Join the people who've joined the Army.

A lot of young men and women have discovered a good place to invest their time. The Army. What they've found here, they may not have been able to get anywhere else.

Some came to learn a skill. With training in over 300 kinds of jobs to choose from. Some came for the chance to work in Europe, Korea, Alaska, Hawaii or almost anywhere in the U.S.A.

Some came to meet a unique personal challenge. Like the responsibility of doing a good job at an early age. Some came to get a start on their college education. With the Army paying up to 75% of their tuition.

And some came to do something positive for their Country. Which is a pretty good reason in itself.

Seattle at Boise State (2), 12 noon

Sunday, May 9

Gonzaga at Portland St. (2), Civic, 12 noon.

Playoff (if necessary), May 11 - site determined by coin flip.

Game Procedures

Visiting teams will bat one hour before game time for 30 minutes.

Ground rules will be posted in dugouts and copies supplied to Nor-Pac coaches and umpires - and filed with Nor-Pac commissioner.

Every attempt must be made to play the games as scheduled. However, common courtesy demands traveling teams be notified if fields definitely are unplayable.

Alternate field sites should be considered by home coach in advance.

If teams have not travelled, games will be rescheduled by the commissioner.

All midweek rainouts should be rescheduled at first open date of both teams.

Weekend rainout priority (visiting team has traveled): If both games are rained out first day (Friday or Saturday), second-day schedule will be kept (Saturday or Sunday), and first-day games played following day (Sunday or Monday); if second day games rained out, they will be played following day; if all four regularly scheduled games rained out, second-day games will be played following day.

Protests must be communicated to the commissioner as soon as possible to expedite rulings. Delay negates any purpose in even considering the protest.

Suppose they'll provide telescopes?

THE BROADWAY MUSICAL IS ALIVE AND WELL (Cont'd.) A new show by Richard Rodgers opened in New York April 25. Titled "Rex", it's based on the life and wives of Henry VIII. Meanwhile, "1600 Pennsylvania Avenue", a collaboration of Leonard Bernstein and Alan Jay Lerner, opens May 4. Original cast albums undoubtedly will follow. Also, Columbia will release a 20th Anniversary original cast set of "My Fair Lady", featuring the cast of the current Broadway revival.

CLASSICAL NOTES...Deutsche Grammophon has taped 3 albums with the Chicago Symphony, Carlo Maria Giulini conducting, including the orchestra's first recordings of Mahler's Ninth Symphony and Prokofiev's "Classical" Symphony. No definite release dates. Two American operas are high on the classical bestseller lists. Scott Joplin's "Treemonisha" and Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess". Both sets are the first complete recordings of the works.

Want something to do with your spare time ?

Student Union Board of Governors

Establishes policies for the operation of the Student Union. The Board is composed of eight student members, three faculty members, and four administrative members. The Board recommends policy to the University President regarding building use and general programs and assists in the formulation of a food service policy.

Les Bois

University annual published by the Associated Students. Five staff members are needed immediately.

Financial Advisory Board

This Board scrutinizes all requests for ASBSU funds, and makes its recommendations to the ASBSU Senate.

Programs Board

The Programs Board is composed of eight committees which include Special Events, Lectures, Concerts, Pop Films, Foreign Films, Outdoor Activities, Coffeehouses, and Publicity. Each committee consists of and is chaired by BSU students. The committees actively pursue all students to help in deciding what events to bring to BSU. Committee chairpersons are needed.

Financial Management Board

Provides accounting services for various organizations on campus.

KBSU Radio

The Broadcast Board is looking for people who are willing to work on plans for Boise State's new radio station. KBSU will be on the air in early fall, so work must begin this summer. Apply for Station Manager, News Director, Operations Manager, or Chief Engineer.
