energy shortage may be a threat to the Boise State community; bridging the gap between different cultures, and increasing awareness and cooperation among students and faculty members.

U.S. Congressman George Hansen, speaking to a group of students at Boise State University Saturday, stated that "OSHA has been killed" by 18 court decisions which declared warranties commonly made by OSHA inspectors unconstitutional. Hansen noted that one of those 18 decisions, the "Barlow" case, had been handed down to the U.S. Supreme Court, but he predicted that the High Court would uphold the original ruling.

The Congressman made these remarks to a group of students from throughout the Northwest who had come to the Boise State campus to attend a 2-day campaign training school sponsored by the BSU College Republicans and the Committee For Responsible Youth Politics, a conservative political organization based in Washington, D.C.

College Republican President Jim Marshall said the purpose of the political school was to "train young crusaders coordinators in order to insure the election and re-election of conservative candidates."

While at school Hansen also spoke against the adoption of the new Panama Canal treaty. Hansen said, "The U.S. paid the Panamanian and Colombian governments for sovereignty rights to the canal, therefore we have clear title to it."

The Congressman said he had joined several other Senators and Representatives in a court suit to require that the canal treaty be considered by the House as well as the Senate on the grounds that disposal of government property must be approved by both houses of Congress.

BSU Minority Cultural Board suffers drastic budget cuts

by Rick Mattson

At first, the Minority Cultural Board asked for $7265.45 to be split up between the four clubs on the Board. The Senate Financial Advisory Board (SFAB) started cutting it drastically. The Minority Cultural Board then came up with another budget proposal of $5865.45, and the FAB again started cutting the budget, starting with the Black Student Union and their entertainment budget.

Sonja Sanderson, who works with the Minority Cultural Board through the Student Advisory and Special Services Office, said that after the FAB turned down the budget, the second time, the fact came out that the Senate did not have the money to pay for it. She said that if the Culture Board was going to do a full budget for the upcoming school year at the end of last year, and on time, there would have been a better chance that they would have gotten their money. After those first two meetings, they thought that what was a reasonable request for them to ask for. The Senate Board said $2900. The Minority Culture Board was allocated $2003.42.

The money received between $450 and $500 each were Black Student Union, MECHA, Women's Alliance, and International Students. Two other minority clubs — Executive Task Force on the Handicapped Students, and Doma Soghop, an Indian organization, did not get a budget in time to submit it to the Minority Cultural Board.

The Minority Cultural Board was established by Senate Act 193. It was established to promote interaction, awareness, and cooperation between students of different races, and to bring about a greater understanding of the various ethnic, disadvantaged, or special groups. Some of the goals of the Board include "unity between minority students, white students, and the community; bridging student communities at BSU; promoting racial harmony; and promoting understanding of and a 'self-awareness' among women and handicapped students."

The newest minority club to enter on the Minority Cultural Board is the Black Students Union. After an unsuccessful attempt last year, Sonja Sanderson, Dr. Mamie Oliver and Mignon Bower decided this year to "just give it a try and see what happens!" The first meeting was a success. There are officially 31 black students in the organization.

The purpose of the group, according to Gary Nevins, president, is to keep BSU Students on track to being "counseling service to those in need; founding or supporting the Black student body and all those concerned; establishing credibility and recognition among faculty members; and creating an intellectually stimulating organization in order to provide both awareness and cohesiveness."

The Black Student Union was one of the minority clubs that suffered the most in its decrease in funds. Cut funds for films, and speakers for Black History Week. The Lounge has been affected with allocations for a trip to Pullman on organizing the Black Student Union. All the other minority clubs are trying to bring speakers in to speak to BSU, however. Dave Roberts, from the internal revenue, is scheduled to speak to the Black Student Union and the other minority clubs on job opportunities in the IRS.

CLEP exams available to Boise students

The CLEP examinations, both General and Subject, can be taken by any student and the individual who wants college credit for his knowledge. The cost of the exams are $20 per exam regardless of whether you take 2 which costs a total of $30 or you can take 3,4, or 5 at a time for a total cost of $40. This fee has always been paid by the person taking the exam at the time of the exam. The exams will continue to be available on this basis.

The Admissions Office has offered each spring a number of General Exams free of charge to a select number of high school seniors who were planning to go to BSU. BSU has paid the cost of these exams for this specific group. The money for this testing is no longer available and no more FREE CLEP exams will be offered. However, CLEP exams paid for by the individual will continue to be given and accepted at BSU. A list of the exams BSU gives credit for and the passing scores required are listed on page 10-11 of the current BSU Bulletin. The tests are given twice each month, the year round. For further information contact Darlene Flin, Library, Room 247, Counseling and Testing Center (BSU 1041).

‘Cheer to the campus’

“Cheer to the campus” is how ARA director Sam Marotto best describes the Dining Service’s Christmas Celebration Day, Thursday, December 15. The day-long festivities kick off at 11:30 at Santa Claus and elves visit the SUB snack bar with candy-canes and various goodies guaranteed to bring the Yuletide spirit to all. Those “kids” wishing to capture Claus with candy-canes and various elves’ visit the SUB snack bar off at 11:30 as Santa Claus and ARA’s Christmas Celebration continues.

A buffet luncheon Commences at 11 a.m., followed by the

Info campaign launched

On December 6, the ASB Senate heard plans for a "Speakers' Bureau" that would aid in the information campaign scheduled on the pavement issue, approved two appointments, and approved the Pre-Med Club Constitution.

Plans for a "Speakers' Bureau" that would present the pros and cons of the pavement controversy were outlined by ASB president Mike Hoffman. Hoffman has tentatively scheduled the presentations for the beginning of February and all Senators are asked to participate as members of the Bureau. The plan will allow all students to hear the justification for the facility as well as the suggested fee increase. There will be two or three presentations and one hearing a week, following the first two, that will make open hearings available to all interested parties. All students will be able to give their views on the matter prior to a final decision being made by the ASB Senate concerning the fee increase. A flyer within the ARBITER may also be presented during the same time.

Sharon Herrfield was appointed to the Building and Structures committee and Cathy Mason was appointed to the Student Handbook Advisory Board.

A constitution submitted by the Pre-Med Club was unanimously approved. The passage of the constitution for a recognized campus organization with all the rights and privileges of such.

Another constitution, submitted by Sigma Tau Alpha, was returned to the Judiciary for further review and clarification. A conflict arose when it was discovered that there was a conflict between the first and second clauses of the membership section of the document. Sigma Tau Alpha is a social fraternity of current and past members of the Rainbow Girls organization. Additional consideration of the constitution will be given at a later date.

Health Sciences Senator, John Ostercamp, reviewed a report issued by the special committee set up to review the Health Services Program to determine whether the A.S.B.S.U wished to institute a fee increase or some other type of service charge in order to continue the present level of service provided. Due to inadequate revenue, the Health Center has had to rely on reserves during the past several years. Based on information gathered through a survey and opinions given by Dr. Lester P. Nyberg, Director of Student Health Services, and Dr. David Taylor, Vice President in charge of Student Affairs, the committee concluded that a $2 fee increase would be in the best interest of the student body. A proposed user fee, such as a base $2 per visit and/or charge for lab work, seemed workable and more expensive and would benefit only a minority of the student population according to the special committee. The issue was put aside until a later date when a decision will be made as to whether student fees should be upped by $2 as recommended by the committee.

In other business, the Senate voted to accept a set of lobby survey questions as presented by the Student Affairs committee. Two attempts to delete questions concerning opinions on in-state tuition and a pavilion on the BSU campus were defeated. The survey will not be taken until the beginning of the next semester because of the lateness of the Senate's action on the survey format. Only selected classes will be participating.

ARBITER Editor, John Prickett, presented a proposal for the remainder of the fiscal year as requested by a legislative directive passed two weeks ago. No action, affirmative or otherwise, was taken on the presented budget.

Affirmative Action Director, Rosalie Nadeau, reviewed a set of priorities that a committee of women athletes had developed in an attempt to settle a complaint the ASB Student Services department filed against the BSU administration over alleged Title IX violations. No action was taken on the report. Two executive sessions were held during the Senate meeting. Both were concerned with the present selection of the ASB Lobby Director. No final decision was made as to who will fill the vacancy left by ISA president Will Roy who left as Lobby Director to take the ISA post.

Senate meetings are held weekly at 3:30 on Tuesdays in the Senate Chambers on the second floor of the SUB.
Alcohol criminalized?

It seems as though the Legislature might consider a bill that would raise the legal age for consumption of alcohol. The reasoning is based on the following rationale: First, it is suggested that persons under the age of nineteen currently have more responsibilities to society. Next, it is suggested that the rise in traffic fatalities and injuries relates to the younger drinkers. Finally, the rise in alcoholism among the young is an area of concern and the proponents would somehow link in the young drinkers as a cause of that condition.

Without hesitation I say “preteen brain ride again.” There is absolutely no validity to these conditions. The mystery question is, “Who would introduce such legislation?” Well, I’m not sure yet. There are many who seem to carry the beliefs outlined. I find that distressing; the conservative, religious stronghold in this nation. It makes little sense to me to pass laws that cannot be enforced. (I hereby charge that only a minute fraction of persons under the age of legal alcohol consumption are busted and pay any sort of penalty for those that are actually engaging in the alleged crime.) Alcohol laws are a job prime example at the Boise Stadium. Did you know that there is a no drinking law? Well there is and enough alcohol is consumed during the football games to keep the restrooms in a new and shiny state. This year the Associated Students of Boise State University may try to do something. I doubt they will get busted and BINGO; “The birth of the Krugger.” For those of you not familiar with the term it means that everyone meets in some God-forsaken place to swill down as much alcohol as possible and then drive back to town to find some action. It is in that drive to town that claims many lives. I am in favor with the possibility of such legislation in this State and would urge students to rally together on this issue for there are over 250,000 persons over the age of 30 compared to about 1,000,000 persons between the ages of 19.30. It is my belief that a vast number of persons over 30 as well as under 30 would support this legislation because it would help us all live longer. To my knowledge faces do not exist to support (it contamination and I must offer few following conditions as a reminder:

1. Eighteen year olds are considered adults accordingly.
2. Eighteen year olds are treated as adults in in adult court of law.
3. Eighteen year olds can sign a contract.
4. Eighteen year olds can join the military services.

There are, of course, a small minority of this group that act immorally with the newfound rights, but it is applicable to eighteen through 21 year olds only. No persons exist in all age groups that are irresponsible and direct themselves in a responsible manner. When will we understand that the transition from adolescent to adult does not occur at a magical age or at a mystical time? The transition from adolescent to adult does not occur at a magical age or at a mystical time? The transition from adolescent to adult does not occur at a mystical time? The transition from adolescent to adult does not occur at a mystical time? The transition from adolescent to adult does not occur at a mystical time? The transition from adolescent to adult does not occur at a mystical time? The transition from adolescent to adult does not occur at a mystical time?

Courage of your convictions

The best part of any newspaper is usually the “Letters to the Editors” Section. Every subject imaginable sooner or later gets crossed, discussed, and recussed. The newspaper prints something and someone, the pros say their piece, the cons rebut, then the pros and cons bash it out between them. Or the newspaper does not print something and someone, in either event, battle lines are drawn and both sides go happily to war.

Reading these letters over a period of time, one comes to recognize the soldiers, there identified with certain positions by virtue of their regular contributions, and the civilians, who only write now and again or maybe support the cause or once. Sometimes, tempted to sneer at the regulars for their fanaticism. I’ve brought short up by the thought, “at least they have the courage of their convictions.” On the other hand, the question arises, “Why don’t they spend their time improving the conditions instead of just writing letters?” Maybe no real courage at all is being displayed.

Especially does this latter thought occur when I read a letter saying something like: “This is a crummy paper. It doesn’t print the right news and when it does, it prints it wrong. Every day I read the paper and every day I think how can anyone in there right mind read this paper without going insane? There’s nothing in it except the ads; besides, it costs too much... p.s. Enclosed is my check, please renew my subscription.”

I get confused, in all this, as to just what the writer’s convictions are. The whole thing reminds me of a conversation I had with my friend, Barbara. Heading to a discount store, I stopped by to ask her if she wanted anything.

“She never shop there,” she said. “Their prices are higher than anywhere else in town. Even their sales aren’t sales because the staff still earns more on sale than at the regular prices at the other places.”

Since that was her conviction, not mine, I continued to shop at the discount store. Menus thing though, I kept running into Barbara, also shopping at the discount store. After the third or fourth time, I asked her if she had changed her mind. “No,” she said, “I just go there to check out the prices.”

“But every time I’ve seen you, you are buying something,” I protested.

“She have seen STAR WARS yet?” she asked.

Along the same lines was an encounter I had with a clerk in another local discount store. The rule of customers waiting at the registers to clerks running those registers was 4,000 to 2. And the 2 were discussing last night’s football game.

The couple in front of me were buying some baby furniture and wanted to write a check, acceptance of which involved fetching the check out from somewhere (Portland, probably). We waited. To help pass the tedious hours, I joked to the couple:

“The only trick is, you. They have no intention of letting any of us go. We’ve all been held for ransom from the Daum Corporation & at the rate they move, we’ll probably die right here in line.”

“Thank you for shopping with us. Have a nice day. Happy Holidy. Hello, how are you.”

Will this be all. Thank you for shopping with us...

Sometimes, it just didn’t seem as sincere as it might have been. But then, I have the problem of getting much sincerity out of the habit that takes over when two people attempt to go through the same door at the same time.

“Oh, excuse me,” says one.

“Oh, excuse me,” says the other.

Just what is it they want to be excused for? Going through the door? Taking up space? Being in the way? Being at the register. And who should either one have to make excuses to the other? I mean, this isn’t a case though either deliberately off- inged on the other. It seems to me to be like apologizing for living.

The habit has bugged me for a long time. I used to cope with it by saying, “Excuse me.” But that’s as phony as it ever was, so now I don’t say anything. This irritation still exists, however, and I’m afraid that someday I’m going to hear myself saying, to the sound of an “excuse me,” “I didn’t want brake it.”

Actually, if all this inconsiderate really bothered me as much as I think it does, and if I had the courage of my convictions, I’d sit down and write a letter to the editor about it.

Christmas traditions change

Christmas means many things to many different people, depending upon your religious persuasion, I suppose. Many times I find the deeper meanings of this holiday tend to get lost among the tinsel and glitter of the American method of Christmas celebration. But if we dig deeply enough, we may still find some remnants of the original intentions.

The original intention was to celebrate the birth of Christ by indulging in the demonstration of some of the finer human emotions as preached by Jesus. These emotions of sharing your fellow human, of giving and of sharing. Somehow over the course of the years, these things seem to have been buried in an avalanche of meaningless customs and just plain avarice. Is this trend going to continue, and worse of all, is it going to continue to gain momentum as time goes on?

Let's each of us take steps to see that it does not. One of the most important things we can do is to re-educate our children. Children are being taught to want, to consume, to pressure their parents and relatives for more and more THINGS! Why not make more of an effort to emphasize the giving aspect of the Christmas season? Help your children to make and do thoughtful gifts for everyone they know (not just relatives and close friends). A sense of excitement can be encouraged to grow over the making or the choosing of gifts for other people. The climax planned to come when they see the looks of love in others' eyes.

I'd like to say a few words to the BSU student body to withhold judgement of the ASBSU for all of their great work. I soon found that I would have needed the whole Arbitrator to do that. This servio to remind me just how many dedicated, hard-working, talented individuals are working to make BSU a better place for students to go to school. That really excites me. A lot has been accomplished this past semester. The student data processing center is fast becoming a reality, legal services have been expanded. The students are pioneering a faculty evaluation program which I believe, will someday be used throughout the whole university. The advising system is being improved. The students have been victorious in court cases. The list goes on and on.

The important thing is, the success of these projects is the result of students working to help other students. That's what it's all about. The ASBSU is a going concern. Please, after Christmas break, come up to the second floor of the SUB and find out for yourself. Meanwhile, have a great Christmas and a happy New Year.

Sincerely,
Mike Hoffman
ASBSU Senator

KAI'D TV to use satellites

KAI'D will be receiving their programming from two satellites resulting in what will be an increase in programming freedom.

The station now received their recording over AT & T power lines. They are limited in that only one signal can be transmitted at a time. Jack Schlaefle, of Channel 4, said that the station must record programs if they wish to show it at a different time than when it is presented to them.

With the advent of the satellites, two programs can be sent from each one at the same time, and his station can choose which one to pick that signal up.

For example, if a "masterpiece theatre" was shown at 9 p.m., BBS would transmit it at that time, KAID would either have to show it at that time (7 p.m. MDT) or record it and show it at another time. With the satellite, KAID can either pick up the signal at 9 p.m. or pick it up when it is shown live on the West Coast at 9 p.m. and show it then (10 p.m. MST).

A transponder, or receiver, will be placed close to Campus Elementary School to pick up the satellite signals.

Schlaefle said the system will be in place by Thanksgiving time. The new telephone method will increase the amount of video taping the station will do.

This is the first domestic effort of any kind to use satellites, but Schlaefle said it probably will not be used by the three commercial networks. Public Broadcasting stations will use this method by January of 1979.

New VA law allows extended eligibility

If certain health problems prevented your beginning or completing your education under the GI Bill, a new law may make it possible for you to turn back the clock and enroll again. VA Administrator Max Cleland said today.

The new program is available to veterans, spouses or surviving spouses of the GI Bill education benefits expired on June 1, 1976, or later, but who had not used all their schooling entitlement when mental or physical disability interfered with their training.

The disability must not have resulted from the individual's willful misconduct, the VA Administrator emphasized.

Cleland continued potential applicants they must provide medical evidence that mental illness or physical disability was responsible for their being unable to begin or complete schooling before the expiration of their GI Bill eligibility.

Under the law veterans have ten years from the date of their discharge from active duty to complete GI Bill training.

Columnist bids adieu: takes farewell bow

by Mark Ellsworth

A Final Flash

Sadly, but truly this column marks my last contribution to the renowned international periodical-the Arbiter. Alas, I leave with a heavy heart, and hopefully a heavy column. So, I thought that I'd give you a quick run-down on some of the local bars that don't let me mislead you. It's a nice, mellow place frequented by the younger business crowd. Entertainment: usually a folk guitarist or two playing kick back music.

The Other Office, located in the Belgradia Building on the corner of Fifth and Main, Atmosphere: in a basement, with stone wall, kind of like a medieval dungeon, but don't let me mislead you, it's a nice, mellow place frequented by the younger business crowd. Entertainment: usually a folk guitarist or two playing kick back music. Also The Other Office holds weekly dart throwing tournaments for all write-type specialty spots.

Pongfly's Saloon

Moving half a block west of Fifth and Main we have Pongfly's Saloon. Atmosphere: Very high-energy for the kind of small bar. Best place in town to make business deals. Entertainment: Folk guitarists and occasionally a boogie-woogie piano man makes the scene. The service at Pongfly's is one of the best I've seen. Highly recommended.

Levi's Alley

Located between Fifth and Capital Blvd. Atmosphere: Atmosthectic during cocktail hour. A great place for all types of all ages making their after office social. Entertainment: Basic folk-guitarist or two playing kick back music.

The Bouquet

Main Street between 10th and 11th streets. A real interesting variety of people with this bar. The decor in the Bouquet, old west meets Euro-westers, can't be beat. Entertainment: Variety. Selection: Some really cool cembo combos. I especially like it here when they have jazz. The ab's atmosphere is an excellent place to hang out and relax.

Winter sports schedule

The First Annual Boise State University Snow Shoe Relay Race sponsored by the BSU Army ROTC will be held during the Winter Spring Registration on 12-11 January 1978 in the area bounded by the SUB, SCPC Center and Gym.

Any organization may enter as many 6-member teams as desired. Team rosters should be finalized and returned to the Military Science Office by 11 Jan. 78. Each person may participate as a member of only one team.

Competition will be in three separate divisions: Co-Ed Teams, Men's Teams, and Women's Teams.

Student tax assistance available soon

Free tax assistance will be offered at Boise State next semester, beginning January 11 until April 15. Assistance will be offered at the Military Science Office, twenty-three BSU accounting majors will be helping their time to anyone wishing help in filling out and filing their 1976 taxes.

Naugler assures that the assistance will be competent and thoroughly reviewed by a representative of the Internal Revenue Service prior to filing.

Those interested are advised to come prepared with all wage and earning statements, as well as bank notes, and any information concerning income and itemized deductions.

The service will begin Wednesdays, Januaries 11, 15 and 26 and Wednesday through April 15. In addition Naugler said the service will be available every Saturday commencing January 14. All sessions are scheduled from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Bannock, Teton rooms of the SUB.

For further information contact Naugler at 377-1133; Frank Needham or Faculty advisor John Medlin.
Students may worry about (an) instructor retaliating, but the professor has to worry about the student returning.

In response to the questions, "Are you putting students at risk?" and "How are they used?" department chairmen replied: "Unless a student uses otherwise unacceptable language, his or her comments are carefully evaluated. Evidence of a personal attack or two reactions are extremely negative and extremely positive, however, are indications that the student gives extremely negative evaluations, we know we have a problem." It was added that students who perfectly determine what kind of comments are made, and that the student returns. No student, no class, no job."

The variety of the suggestions above and the comments expressed below serve as graphic illustrations of the administrative position on FE's. Describing the forms as a "computerized program," one administrator said, "They are a most useful tool," "they are a good thing," and "I believe in faculty evaluations by the students."

STEVE MARTIN..."...is once in a lifetime thing" by the camera of Ron Ferguson, as told to Ron Ferguson

After weeks of photographing mundane subjects like the governor of Idaho, BSU's All-American studded football team, beautiful women wearing expensive jewelry, and ASB president's birthday parties, I was really excited to discover I was going to shoot America's Martin. Life is a drag when you spend most of your time in a bag looking for something almost as good, because during the show I had the privilege of sitting very near to a lovely lady named Judith who is a very close friend of Steve Martin. Friday was her birthday, and she went to considerable expense to travel to Boise to see Martin perform on her special day. She was a delightful person, and she told me much about Steve Martin. "Steve is really nothing like the way he appears on paper," she said. "He is actually very shy. And he really is all the things they write about him—he doesn't smoke or drink, and he's a vegetarian. He's really straight." Her eyes wandered back to Martin as she glanced around the audience shout at him during a performance. It messes up his timing. He loves enthusiastic audiences, but not rude ones."

My powerwinder batteries were warm and my film chamber was full. I was ready for action. Then suddenly, the spotlighters were on, and there he was. I immediately went to work, trying to capture every expression, striving to get the sharp focus from the readers mind. For awhile it was great fun, but soon nothing suprised me because there was anything in the audience that would make my shutter flutter. All I saw were more disappointments. One group of people (the ones who refused to sit behind the first five rows of chairs as they were asked to do) had obviously intended to see a football game in Bronco Stadium but had gotten lost, for no sooner had they sat down than out of the coat came the thin green bottle of booze. And too, the ballroom looked like an Indian smoke-coat convention despite numerous requests by the Boise fire marshal that all cigarette (and other) things be extinguished. "Don't worry at all about taking photographs," Judiths voice snapped me back to me reality that Mr. Martin is "...a delightful person, and she told me about Steve Martin's perform ance (from a camera's point of view) was the vulgarity he sometimes resorted to get laughs. "It's probably not so much Martin's fault as it is the audience's to whom he plays nationwide. As this camera was part of our society in is sad shape when comedians are expected to include vulgar routines in their shows just so they get the big laughs. It's sad, too, that the more vulgar the joke that's told, the louder the laughter gets. Mr. Martin is creative enough a person to keep anyone on stitches with clean material—he doesn't really need the raunchy stuff. It amazes me that humans consider their reproductive and excretory systems to be so outrageously funny. These topics are treated much more freely in the psychology labs. Of course, we comedians don't worry about those kinds of things very often. Oh, you should have seen the Nikon I ran into the other day—she ever have a lens?"

"Why did you wait four hours to meet the man?" I asked to Ron Ferguson. "I couldn't have said it more accurately," said Judith as she glanced around the ballroom. "Steve doesn't usually try to audiences this small. What a contrast this weekend will bring for him? Tomorrow (Saturday) night he'll be playing to over 10,000 people. in Anaheim." She shook her head and chuckled softly. "No, he probably won't be back here in quite some time. It's too bad there isn't a bigger auditorium..." Her voice trailed off. Yes, it was a once in a lifetime opportunity for me, and I'm glad I got to photograph Steve Martin while he was in Boise.

Oh, I almost forgot! Happy belated birthday, Judith. And tell Steve we loved him, OK? An editorial note it has been suggested that BSU request Steve Martin to return to Boise to do some benefit performances, the proceeds going to build the badly needed multipurpose pavilion. The pavilion would be christened "the Steve Martin Recital Pavilion." Student recital planned

Associate Professor Medeleine Hsu will present her student Shari Tompkins, freshman, in a piano recital. The program will consist of Schubert's Wanderer-Fantasie, Chopin's Scherzo No. 1, Coursel No. 1, Chopin. This recital will be held on Friday, Dec. 16, at 4:30 PM in the BSU Recital Hall (MB-110). The public is invited to attend without charge.
Audience goes insane with Martin

by Barb Bidwell

You can't help but wonder what possesses a supposedly mature man to climb up on a stage, put on Sunny sneakers, do card tricks and run a full tilt for nearly an hour telling a string of high energy jokes. And, oh yes, leave the stage mentally and physically drained.

Martin's act ranges from juggling oranges, dropping oranges—"I love it when they go far away"—to having a sing along with Steve Sesnon. The words, sung in a girl scout like tune, made absolutely no sense...

"Be courteous, kind and forgiving.
Be gentle and peaceful each day,
Be warm and human and grateful,
And have a good thing to say.
Be pumpkins, obese and fat
cacti,
Be dull and boring and uneventful,
Be tasteless and rude and offensive,
Live in a swamp and be three dimensional.".

But it gave Martin a chance to make fun of and have fun with the audience, a thing he and they obviously love.

For all his on-stage antics, Martin is reportedly a quiet guy. A former comedy writer for such shows as the Smothers Brothers, Glen Campbell and Sonny and Cher, he started his career by selling guide books at Disneyland. He also managed to sneak in a few side trips to see other performers. From this he learned one of his most requested routines, fun balloon animals. Only true to form, Martin doesn't make balloon animals that are recognizable but rather VD viruses and birth control devices.

Despite his "Let's get small" routine, Martin neither smokes (tobacco or dope), drinks or eats "clean" food. This alone sets him apart from most of today's performers. Martin neither smokes (tobacco or dope), drinks or eats "clean" food. This alone sets him apart from most of today's performers.

So, you can be sure that this Christmas won't be half so nice if they hadn't been there. They weren't dropped after Christmas either but continued to be a part of the family all year. What nicer gift could children have than plenty of extra grandpas and grandmas?

Unfortunately Martin seldom performs in front of audiences as small as the one Boise State boasted. In other words, don't expect to see him back. But at least until Boise gets an adequate performing arts center. This can be added to the growing list of reasons why Boise needs such a facility.

There were a few incidents to mar the performance. Despite warnings from the fire marshal, some audience members persisted in smoking and a few bottles made appearances. Also the question of preferential seating must be raised. Just who were those 120 people sitting in the first five rows? Despite the shortcomings of the facility and some of the audience, it would be more than fair to say the Steve Martin performance, we were "having some fun" then.

Something was placed under the tree for them too. But most important, they were made to feel that Christmas wouldn't have been half so nice if they hadn't been there. They weren't dropped after Christmas either but continued to be a part of the family all year. What nicer gift could children have than plenty of extra grandpas and grandmas?

Somehow, though, as the years went by we gradually grew away from the custom. Who knows why? But it is something I miss very much and I don't intend that my children shall miss the joy of giving to people and of accepting people for what they are. So, you can be sure that this year, and every year, the custom is going to be renewed in my house.

Have a happy holiday and share a Merry Christmas everyone!

Several new and unique course offerings will be available to students in the spring semester through the Interdisciplinary Studies in the Humanities Program. In addition to the core course, Humanities: A View of the Nature of Man, two new "satellite" courses which relate to themes explored in the core will be taught by teams representing various disciplines.

Elms & its Perceptions of Man will explore various aspects of man: his nature, his values, and his relationship to society. Through viewing and relating to film as an instrument of perception, the relationship between film and the fine arts and the art of film as a vehicle of humanistic expression. The first course, to be taught by Charles Lutcher of the Theater Arts Department and Jim Hadden of the English Department has already generated quite a bit of interest among students who have learned of it in advance. The second satellite course will be available this spring through the Interdisciplinary Studies Program. The Dynamics of Change: In the 19th Century, Art and Literature. Dr Sander (English) and George Roberts (Art) will examine with the students the trends, theories and practices in art which eventually gave rise to modern art. The course will explore in detail how art and literature are expressions of the feelings and ideas of an age, as well as the experiences of the views of life of particular artists.

The experience of having instructors from two different disciplines conduct the course should provide a broadened perspective of issues and problems.

The Humanities core course, the six hour View of the Nature of Man will continue with Parts II and IV. Creativity and the Nature of Man will continue Part I and the Physics of Man. Again, a four faculty member team will examine with students, literature, art, philosophy, and history in an attempt to determine the nature of human values and the ways in which they affect our everyday lives.

The courses described above are all part of a unique grant which Boise State University received from the National Endowment for the Humanities. The purpose of the grant is to develop at Boise State a rich variety of courses dealing with the humanities. The unusual aspect of this grant lies in the fact that BSU was the first school of its type to be chosen for such a large grant (approximately $1 million over a five year period).

In the past, the NEH has chosen small, liberal arts colleges for its large development grants. This program, however, is designed to make available to non-humanities majors a unique learning opportunity which would stress the applicability of the humanities in everyday situations.

The Humanities Program got underway this fall with the six hour core course with approximately eighty students participating. In the spring of 1978 the two satellite courses mentioned above will be added on. In each following semester two new courses will be developed, offered to students in an attempt to provide a wide range of subjects and approaches. All of the courses will be taught and interdisciplinary in nature.

At the end of the five year funding period, as many as seventeen different courses will have been developed and offered to BSU students. To support courses, the grant provides for large library purchases in the area of the humanities and this should have significant long-term effects on the collection. The Humanities Program Model which develops a wide range of courses in a relatively short period of time and which involves many faculty members from different disciplines, is designed to provide a ground breaking opportunity having a great impact upon Boise State University and its students.
Effort to improve upon Dog is Strangled
by Sally Thomas
"Can't understand why I'm not used to Father God. I wish I were a little more," said God, as he took his usual position on the mat in front of your door.
But of course not!" said God.
"I don't have need of a dog because I haven't yet created thieves."
"When will you create, Father?"
"Never I am tired. Look here, five days I have worked and it is time for me to rest. Here you are, Dog, my best creation, my masterpiece. It is best that I stop here. It is no good when an artist wears himself out by going beyond his inspiration. If we were to continue to create, I would be capable of spoiling my handwork. Go, Dog. Go quickly and live on earth to keep you company. I have other cats to look after."
"I understand, Father God. If only I could create another today, I can tell by the feeling in my right hand, it would be spoiled.
"O, Father God," said Dog, "no one would make could be spoiled provided that I could follow him everywhere he goes and I could lay before him whenever he stops.
"God was astounded that he had created a creature so wonderful; so be said to the dog:
"God will do it again according to your heart.
And, returning into his workshop, God created man.
TAKENOTE: Man is spoiled, naturally. God had spoken well. But Dog is awfully content."

Mu Phi Epsilon offers concert on Dec. 14

Mu Phi Epsilon, national music fraternity, will present a concert on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 14, at 4:30 PM, in the BSU Recital Hall.
BSU's chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon is made up of young women in all fields of music: education, performance, majors and minors, non-major, etc. The public is invited to attend this concert without charge.

Geek Prince’ and Highsteppers rock out
by Terry McGaile
Handel’s traditional Christmas offering, "The Messiah," will be performed by the Boise Philharmonic under the direction of Wayne Richards. The 100 member group performs five numbers, featuring solos by soprano Myra Brand, and alto Beverly Croman. A Boise State family favorite, also composer Estelle Gressner and bass Keith Tackles will perform with the Baroque style orchestra. The performance portrays something of the Handel classic, giving it the "live performance" atmosphere.
If a very popular work...such as "Messiah," the audience will applaud as they receive their ticket at the door. Philharmonic representative Vivian Garrett said tickets will be $4 for season patrons, $6 for the public, for both performances, and $3.50 for each member of groups numbering twenty-five or more.

"We included other works...last year, Mozart, this year Bach," noted Stern, "several others and other appropriate to the season."
Brongos capture win over Santa Barbara

by Fred Davis

The BSU Bronco basketball team used some much-needed inside scoring and a tenacious defense to clobber the University of California-Santa Barbara by a score of 91-77.

The Broncos ran their season-record to 2-3 with the win, and snapped a three-game losing streak. The Gauchos are now 3-1, after beating Stanford University before coming to BSU.

Boise State went to the controlled running game early and, led by the passing of Steve Connor and Freddie Williams, built up a halftime lead of 19 points, 49-30. Connor, BSU's leading scorer on the year, was held to just eight points, but he assisted eight assists and ran the Bronco offense. Williams, the other starting guard, led the scoring by Jeff Perry who netted 16, and Pete Aronchick who had 15 points.

The Gauchos scored the first six points of the game, and looked like they would run away from the game, and continue the losing slump which the Broncos had entered. Boise State then outscored the visitors 20-2 in the next six minutes and were never headed after that, holding a lead of 26 points at one time in the second half, before head coach Bus Connor emptied the bench.

The Broncos will continue their current homestand with a game at 8:00 p.m. on Monday against Chico State, and then will meet Oregon State on Wed., December 21 before traveling to Reno, Nevada for the Wolfpack Classic on Dec. 22-23.

If the Broncos continue to improve as they showed they have Friday night, the round-ballers may find themselves as one of the leading teams in the Big Sky.

Big Sky Conference play will begin in January. The Broncos open conference play at home, hosting Montana and Montana State.

BSU women take apart Idaho State 64-53

Vicki Hileman, BSU's flashy junior guard, led the scoring charge as the Bronco basketball women took apart Idaho State 64-53. Hileman scored 18 points in the Boise State season opener, followed by senior front players JeAnn Burrell with 18 and Kim Erekson with 13.

BSU opened the season with a win at 9-0, against Idaho State and Burrell's offensive strength built the lead up slowly and consistently despite outstanding scoring drives by Idaho State's Mary Bond and Rhonda Bulcher.

Defensively, Burrell and surprising freshman guided Pam Davis each scored ten rebounds during the game.

After this first game, coach Connie Thurgen's travels to Utah for a 3-game stand against University of Utah, Utah State and Brigham Young this Thursday through Saturday. The Bronco women play four games on the road before their next home contests against Montana State January 19 and Montana January 23.

Broncos drop three straight in Colorado

by Fred Davis

Arbiter Sports Editor

The Boise State Broncos dropped three straight road games, bringing their away-game losing streak in nine and 13 of the last 16 in Colorado last week against Colorado State 90-79, Denver University 101-69 and Northern Colorado 66-62. What hurt BSU was a lot of different defenses, rebounding and turnovers.

COLORADO STATE

The Broncos went foul crazy and lost to Colorado State 90-79, losing the title by the score of 15-8, 15-9. Members of the Rams were: Phil Tull, Larry Baker saw his first action for coach Jim Willams, the starting guard, and passed the ball well.

COLORADO

The Print Shop beat out The Bumpers 59-40. Members of the Print Shop were: Steve Jensen, John Thomson, Kelly Kiler, Kelly Baird, Gene Lewis, Gene Dobakinski, Bob Berro, and Jerry Lehan.

Intramurals...

Bumpers, Printers take volleyball championships

Men's and women's volleyball came to an end last week with Bad News Bumpers and the Print Shop taking the championships.

The Print Shop beat out The Force for the title by the score of 16-14, 15-13. Members of the Print Shop were: Steve Jensen, John Thomson, Kelly Kiler, Kelly Baird, Gene Lewis, Gene Dobakinski, Bob Berro, and Jerry Lehan.

Basketball teams forming

The Intramural Spring Semester season will continue with 5-man basketball. We will have new leagues and teams. If you want the same team as this semester, you must submit a new roster. Usually it takes us three to four weeks to get started, but if we can get enough rosters before the end of this semester, we will begin the week after classes start. So get those rosters and we will have enough to play. If you don't get a roster in now, we'll still have time next semester. Also, we have Women's Basketball and Coed Volleyball next semester. Bring all rosters and questions to room 203 in the Gym or call 385-1131.

The Pioneers soared Boise State 101-69 by connecting on 10 of their first 11 shots from the floor to finish off their performance hitting 40 of 67 shots for the entire 40 minutes. It all added up to Denver's fourth victory of the season. The Pioneers effectively mixed a 1-3 zone and man-to-man defense to keep the Broncos confused. The DJ guards got into their offense quickly, and the execution resulted in a number of high-percentage shots.

Four players reached double figures in scoring for the Pioneers, Matt Trehon leading the way with 25 while Steve Bajema had 22. Teahan was nine of 16 field goals while Bajema hit in 10 of 13 shots. Tom Krosschell finished with five of seven and 12 points and Russ Swilley was five of 10 for 10 points. Swilley led a performance by Denver's bench that connected in 13 of 24 shots.

He didn't join the basketball team for workouts until two weeks ago.

Baker entered the game with 14 minutes left in the first half, and in a short stint was three for three from the field, two for two at the foul line, had three rebounds, an assist and a blocked shot.

He started the second half and added three more points, but was pulled out when he began to run out of gas.

With Baker out, it was up to senior center Larry Paige to carry the load under the basket against the tough Broncos, a fine team that is picked to win the Big Sky Conference Championship this season.

Paige responded with the finest single game of his two-year CSU career. He scored 24 points and hauled down nine rebounds, playing the last 10 minutes of the second half with four fouls.

The Rams had five players finish in double figures.

Denver University

NORTHERN COLORADO

The Broncos were on top 64-61 in the first half on the scoring of Steve Connor. Connor scored 12 of his 20 points in the first half as the Broncos dueled evenly with the Bears before going ahead with eight straight points in the final six minutes.

Boise State led almost the entire second half. With less than a minute left the Bears went ahead and then a BSU turnover with 25 seconds left handed the game to Northern Colorado. That loss drove Boise State's season record to 1-3 and continues their disappointing show on the road that stretches over the past two years.

The Broncos seemed to have the game won. They controlled play in the first half but were unable to break away from the Bears, a team that scored its second straight victory over a Big Sky Conference team. NC defeated Montana 76-75 a week ago.

The Broncos' control over the Bears lasted until the final minute of the game. With 5:03 left in the game, they forced forward Danny Jones hit a jump shot to send the Broncos to a 62-57 lead.

With 1:27 left in the game, Jones was called for an offensive foul giving Northern Colorado the ball. NC's Don Grant hit one of two free throws to make it 62-58, then Rod Smith stole the ball from Steve Connor and drove down for a basket to make it 62-60. The Bear's Robert Skinner made it 62-62 with a tip-in.

With less than a minute to go, Northern Colorado's Bruce Utter took down a Grant shot and put it back in to make the score 64-62.

The Broncos brought the ball inbounds. The Bears used a trap defense in the backcourt, forcing Boise State's Tony Hedges to throw the ball downcourt to Jones.

"D3" dropped the ball and it was out of bounds. The Bears took over, and with Boise State fouling, sent Don Grant to the foul line and sank both free throws making the final score 66-62.

Northern Colorado took the victory in an almost empty gymnastics arena. A crowd of only 225 spectators watched the Bears defeat Boise State in frigid weather conditions the temperature in Greeley was just 10 degrees above zero.

Steve Connor led the Broncos with 20 points, nine rebounds and Trent Johnson ended the game with 13 points respectively.
