State Board And Pavilion Decision

 of requests, BSU President John Keiser stated, "I'll be surprised as a brass monkey if there is any profit" to the BAA from the sale of the Pavilion seats. Should any "excess" money be generated, Keiser said, "it will go back to operations and maintenance through the athletic department."

Concerning the governing board, Keiser told the packed room that he, "as the responsible officer, would retain authority over the appointment and dismissal of the facility's manager. We do have the Student Union Board as a model and it is that model that I've committed myself to."

The figure of 600 seats, Keiser said, are necessary. The BAA does not have the opportunity to raise the $4 million without the seats according to Keiser. He further stated that he intends to exchange an official memo with the BAA concerning the sale of the seats "on the model of the arrangements of the University Club (in the Stadium)."

When asked about raising student fees in order to provide funds to maintain and operate the pavilion facility, Keiser stated, "We will need appropriated funds in the first year, when we open. This need is, in part, based on the fact that the structure includes academic facilities. Projections do not show student fee increases ahead." Keiser told the Board that the university would charge the athletic department... "rent for the times they would use the facility."

In response to Hoopes question about the official agreement between the University and the BAA "When that agreement reaches the Board, it could be rejected or passed on by it?" Keiser answered, "Yes."

BAA president Tom MacGregor assured the Board that the $4 million would be available as scheduled upon the completion of the structure. He also stated that the BAA probably could not raise the money without the 600 seats.

When the comment was made student body leader Cramer, "We are concerned that the BAA can use the money generated from the sale of the seats for athletic commitment. We do not want to provide you with a vehicle to generate funds for the athletic program and that possibility appears to exist," President Keiser stated that the sale of the 600 seats would not exceed that $4 million pledge plus the pavilion's operating fees.

The issues of need versus want versus financing were brought to the attention of the Board by Brad Cramer Says He Won't Fight Pavilion Building

Martin, a student at Boise State. "Students wanted it (the Pavilion)," he said, "but they said they did not want to pay for it." Martin continued by saying that the students were adults and "could make intelligent decisions just as any other taxpayers could." He asked the board members to "put through a motion to halt the (Pavilion) action for a time and to make a review of its decision."

Both Cramer and Silva supported Martin's comments by stating that the issue was that students were adults and were not being treated as such by the State Board of Education. Silva called students "captive and as such are easy to tax." She pointed out that the City of Boise has twice voted against the Morrison Performing Arts Center, although it was a need, "it was not an economically feasible need."

Board member Dr. John Swartley pointed out that "the complexities of funding higher education are difficult at best. It is unfortunate that we have to charge fees of any kind for higher education."

The Board thanked the students for their concern and their presentation and the agenda moved on to other business. UA additional fee increases if construction expense proves greater than estimated and that the $40 pavilion fee will be dropped when the bonds financing the construction are paid off in 25-30 years, and alumni rights to the use of the building. He noted BSU president John Keiser plans to exert hiring and firing authority for the pavilion manager.

Cramer also mentioned that he will ask the student senate to investigate the possibility of selling seats in the basketball arena of the building, with revenues possibly directed toward the BSU library or the general university fund. Keiser has stated that after his agreement to allow Bronco Athletic Association to sell 600 seats in the arena, he is "through giving away seats," but indicated such a deal between the student senate and the Pavilion Board of Governors was not impossible.

Senate Votes To Convert Revenues In ASB Reserve

by Joy McLean

Last week the ASBSU Senate decided in a 7-6 vote not to allow the Programs Board to keep any profit they made on the Battle of the Bands concert that Programs Board sponsored Sunday, May 13. Programs Director Glade Williams told the Senate that "We can probably make $5000 to $10,000 on Battle of the Bands and all we're asking is to be able to keep what we earn."

Outgoing Public Relations Director Pat Thomason explained, "Programs has had a budget of $80,000 in past years. Now, they've got about $35,000. To bring in the big concerts like John Denver and Seals and Crofts that they've been able to in the past, Programs need big dollars up front. That's why they need the revenue from Battle of the Bands—so they will have the capital they need to work with."

Senator Lynn Peterson, who voted against the motion to let Programs keep the concert revenue, complained. They didn't come to the Financial Advisory Board with the request. They just came into the Senate meeting and dropped the request on us with no warning."

Senators Virgil and Wilson also voted against the motion. Virgil noted, "Programs Board has been making every effort to use up their (78-79) budget before the end of the fiscal year." Money left in the Programs account on June 30 of this year would be transferred to the general ASB reserve account.

Wilson added, "We need the money from the concert to build up our reserve. That's in line with the (Cramer) administration policy. If Programs wants to come back to us next fall and if they show need and their (account) books are in order, I would vote to give them the money they need."

It was not determined, as of this writing, how much profit or loss was realized from the Battle of the Bands concert.

Also in the meeting, the Senate voted an allocation of $80 allocation and $500 loan that the Financial Advisory Board had recommended.

A member of the Sign Language Club said they needed the $80 to pay for office supplies—stamps and postcards—for a Handicap Awareness drive. They wanted the $500 loan to buy handicap awareness buttons to sell in a booth at the Western Idaho Fair.

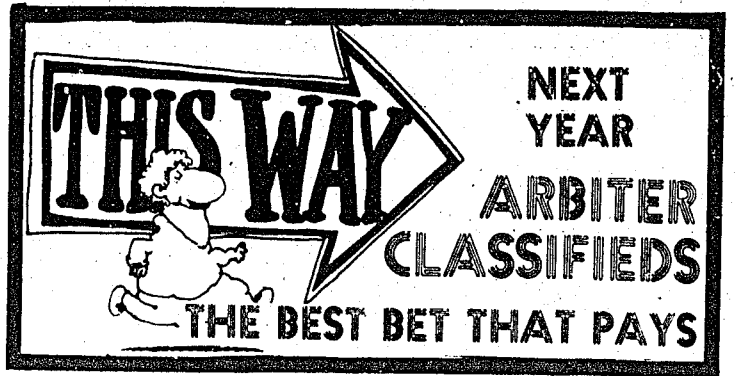

The Senate passed resolutions supporting three policy positions: the 2.3 million acre conservationist River of No Return Wilderness Area proposal, disagreement with the foreign student fee increase, and endorsement of the findings of the random sample survey on student opinion of the pavilion fee increase.

In addition, they ratified and Dead Week policy previously passed by the faculty senate that gives students the option to insist upon taking a final exam during finals week.

The Senate accepted a new contract between the ASB and the Arbiter organization. The contract will cost the ASB $37,560, about $5000 more than the contract negotiated by the outgoing Senate and administration. But the new contract, requested by President Cramer, provides for 32 issues for the school year, as they provide now. The old contract would have only provided for 27 issues.

Cramer said about the new contract, "The Arbiter last year started with a $20,000 debt, pulled itself out of it, and has now won a second place certificate in all around performance in a national campus newspaper competition. I think that really says something about the effectiveness of that organization. I think they deserve a new contract and the students deserve more issues in order to stay informed." UA

Scholarships

Scholarships worth between $100 and $2000 are available to qualified BSU students. Specialized scholarship funds are seeking applicants from among minorities, Spanish students, graduates of Elmore County high schools, and women at least 25 years of age. For more information, contact the office of Career and Financial Services, Room A117, phone 385-1664.

Honors

The BSU Honors Program was represented at the Western Regional Honors Council (WRHC) Conference this past weekend at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, by 11 students, the Program Director, Dr. William Mech, and Kathy Day, of the Program's staff. Sixteen colleges and universities from 8 states were represented in what amounted to be a productive and enjoyable conference.

BSU fared well at the WRHC Business meeting. Although San Diego State University won the bid to host next year's conference, the enthusiasm of the BSU Student Honors Council prompted an unprecedented decision to name BSU as the host for the 1981 conference.

The administration of the BSU Program fared as well. Kathy Day, of our Honors Program, was elected president of the WRHC. Kathy Day is a former BSU Honors Student and a graduate of the University of Idaho. She has been a guiding force in the growth of the Honors Program since 1972. Dr. Mech is currently serving as the WRHC Executive Secretary. These 2 positions bring all the resources of the WRHC to BSU during the academic year 1980-81.

We encourage any students or faculty interested in the Honors Program to come up to the 7th floor of Science Education BLDG for more information.

Library

The Library plans a major relocation of collections and service points this summer. Major segments of the move include the relocation of periodicals and periodical microforms to the first floor, maps and documents to the second floor, and the book collections from the first and second floors to the fourth floor. The first relocation, the most disruptive in terms of service to patrons, will be the move of periodicals to the first floor; this move is scheduled to take place between the end of Spring semester and the beginning of Summer school, May 18 to June 11. It will be extremely difficult to make use of the periodical collection and the book collections on first and fourth floors during this period. Requests for materials will more than likely have to be left at the Circulation Desk on the First Floor for retrieval by Library staff and pick-up at a later time. The Library hopes to achieve an arrangement which will be more convenient to library users and allow for a more economical staffing pattern by the time the Fall 1979 semester begins. In the meantime patience on the part of students and faculty at Boise State University is most earnestly sought.

Conservation Info.

The BSU Conservation Information organization is announcing to BSU students an opportunity to express their views on the River of No Return Wilderness Issue. First, there will be two workshops at the Idaho Conservation League office, 413 W. Idaho, Thursday, May 17 at 7 p.m. and Saturday, May 19 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to help and inform those who need testimony for the hearing on the wilderness, May 24. The group reminds interested persons that those who plan to testify at this hearing should have a written copy of their statements to hand in either immediately before or after their presentations.

Also, the River of No Return Wilderness slide show is being shown Tuesday evening, May 15, in the public library.

Position Open

A vacancy will be occurring for 1979-80 within the Student Advisory & Special Services Office for the position of Student Assistant to the Dean. This is a part-time job involving approximately 20 hours per week for $300 per month for 10 months. The Student Assistant to the Dean of Student Advisory & Special Services should be an upper-class student with a minimum 2.5 G.P.A.

The job involves serving as liaison from the Student Advisory & Special Services Office to disabled, ethnic, and women student organizations for the purpose of providing technical assistance; counsels students contemplating withdrawing from the university; assists with the editing and publication of the official B.S.U. Student Handbook; and assists with facilitation of the B.S.U. Tutorial and Referral Program.

Students interested in applying for this position should come to the Student Advisory & Special Services Office, Room 114 of the Administration Building.

Mike Cramer

Although there remain those who have never truly known my position on the pavilion, most people are aware that I was attempting to represent the wishes of my constituents as accurately and conscientiously as possible.

As reported to the State Board of Education last fall, students were not willing to financially support a multi-purpose pavilion. Consequently, I have felt it to be my responsibility as a representative to reflect that attitude and to oppose its construction. Now, a few days after the state board meeting, a number of people will probably point at my efforts and criticize what they consider to have been a waste of energy and time. Those who believe that are wrong.

Because of the resistance that I and a significant number of other students demonstrated, the State Board, BSU administrators and powerful interest groups have been forced into acknowledging one very important message—students will not acquiesce to unethical impositions. When dealt an injustice, they possess enough moral strength and personal integrity to fight, even though it means engaging in a hopeless contest where they will be insulted and ridiculed before finally being defeated. That sort of spirit demands respect, which is something that in October the State Board failed to show BSU students.

Some people might argue that the result of the May 10 meeting indicted the State Board continues to have little regard for student opinion. I am not convinced of that. Board members seemed receptive to the five points of student concern that I delineated. They instructed me to try and resolve the issues with President Keiser; at this point that appears to be a formidable task, but one that he and I should be capable of accomplishing.

The five points to be negotiated are as follows:

ONE: If the Bronco Athletic Association, because of the 1900 seats given to them by President Keiser, generates revenue that exceeds their $4 million pledge, the excess monies will be channeled into the library fund, or into the general university fund, or into a special fund to help defray the students' incurred $10 million cost of the pavilion.

TWO: special Alumni privileges be afforded those students who have made a financial contribution towards the pavilion.

THREE: if the projected revenues fall short of covering the projected cost of maintenance or construction, that written assurances are given to the students stipulating that they will not be imposed with an increase in fees to cover that unexpected cost.

FOUR: when the bonds for the pavilion are retired, student fees are dropped accordingly.

and FIVE: that a board of governors, consisting of 51% student membership, be immediately established and that its delegated responsibilities would be to determine the policies and to appoint the manager of the pavilion.

I did not request the State Board to terminate the pavilion project. The reason I made no such plea was due to the results of the Senate survey which was completed and handed to me a few hours before the state board meeting.

My focus was on the question

"...are you so opposed to helping finance the pavilion that you would like to see its construction stopped?" After computations, approximately 60% of the general student body indicated they did NOT want the pavilion's construction stopped.

As I have stated previously, my responsibility is to represent as accurately as possible the wishes of my constituents; therefore, I should and will from this point on no longer oppose a project that a majority of students are now willing to see completed.

Because of the overwhelming concern expressed by students in regards to not only the $40 fee increase (which 80% of BSU students feel is too high), but also to the negative impact of the 1% initiative, I feel it is necessary to initiate as expeditiously as possible some type of relief strategy. What I propose is the selling of 2,000 pavilion seats.

Questions about the exact number of seats to be sold, the sale price, and the length of ownership would need to be refined by the ASB Senate. No doubt, they will be sensitive to the students' position. The terms of the contract (especially length of ownership) would need to be evaluated on an annual basis to ensure BSU students are not being precluded from viewing activities within a building of which they financed the greatest bulk.

The money generated through the sale of these seats could be spent towards reinforcing the academic excellence at BSU; priorities should include improving the library, raising faculty salaries, strengthening weak programs, and providing a wider curriculum from which students can choose.

The ethics and legality of using state-owned property to raise must already have been resolved, otherwise President Keiser and the State Board of Education would not have allowed the BAA 1900 pavilion seats to use as a means to meet a $4 million obligation.

President Keiser has recently stated that he does not intend to give away any more seats. Such requests now must go through the pavilion's board of governors, which he feels should be established in a couple of years.

That almost appears to be an example of a double standard. If the BAA can receive seats by coming to a gentlemen's agreement with President Keiser, they why can't BSU students? After all, the targeted area for the revenue created by the sale of these seats would be to support academics at BSU. I fail to grasp why such an effort would be thwarted.

Letters To The Editor

Wilderness Protection Advocated

Editor, The Arbiter:

Why protect 2.3 million acres of the remaining wilderness in the Salmon River Country? There are good reasons for every acre included in the River of No Return Wilderness legislation which Congress will consider.

1. So Idaho will have in the future wild salmon and steelhead runs.

2. So Idaho will continue to have a large wilderness elk herd, plus bighorn sheep, mountain goat and other species dependent upon wilderness.

3. So Idaho can continue to be a state with a large high-quality wilderness.

4. Because the values for water quality, salmon and steelhead, wildlife and wilderness recreation are far greater than the potential for other uses.

5. For the sake of diversity. We have opportunities for recreation on several million acres of forested lands that are roaded.

6. For the sake of posterity. Future generations should have the opportunity to experience wilderness adventure, just as our ancestors did. This high quality wilderness is an important part of heritage, just as such national monuments as the Gettysburg battlefield or Independence Hall are.

We don't have to spend millions of dollars for this wilderness. It's already there. All we have to do is keep it.

Hearings on the River of No Return Wilderness will be held in Boise on May 24, 1979 in the City Hall. I urge that those who share my concern write to Senator Church's office, 8th and Bannock, Boise, Idaho 83702 asking to have the letter included in the hearing record. Express your views to the Representatives who will decide the fate of the River of No Return Wilderness.

Appointment Merits Thanks

An Open Letter To:
BSU President John Keiser

At this time, I would like to thank you for the recent appointment of Mr. Rodger C. Couch to the BSU Pavilion Committee.

I believe that Rod will be a good asset to this special committee and to the University itself.

I'm quite aware of how much this Pavilion means to BSU students and especially to Rod. He has spent many, many hours doing research on this project and many others also. A lot of these hours have been spent beyond the call of duty, and without proper wages, and time could have been spent on his academic studies.

Dr. Keiser, my thoughts and prayers are with you always as you continue to serve as President of Boise State University.

May God Bless You Always.

Science And Three Mile Island

The Three Mile Island affair reminds us that America has had a love-hate relationship with science, mildly vacillating between idolatry and iconoclasm. Science is our blessing or our bane. Reactions to this incident give us prime examples of both these attitudes.

On the one hand, we hear that man cannot turn back lose nerve, abandon the scientific effort. "Our cap is thrown over the wall," as President Kennedy said. We must follow it, no matter what.

This used to be considered a liberal argument. I remember the day when William Buckley used to mock the maxim that "we cannot turn back the clock." Now it is the right wing that says only cowards will hesitate to follow technology's inexorable progress.

But this talk of courage is oddly servile. It boils down to the iron rule that man must do what man can do—a strange way of celebrating human freedom. The moon is there. The technology to reach it is there. So man cannot say no.

Yet iconoclasts talk of similar nonsense. Science is making us slaves. We are robotized by our robots, helpless before the computer. The rule about programmable material is true here: garbage into the computer, garbage out. Slavery in, slavery out. If we think the computer is telling us to be slaves, that is only because we told it to tell us that.

The real trouble at Three Mile Island was not with science. It was with the people using and misusing what they took to be science—the business owners who encouraged shortcuts and evasions; the career-oriented workers who did not blow whistles; the people who faked an expertise they did not have; the regulators who did not regulate; the local populace that did not want to entertain doubt; the press that did not want to say the unwelcome.

Nuclear reactors, like computers, pass on the human garbage that goes into them. Our problem is not with science, but with the fake science of those who talk about human progress as a mechanical given, or human slavery to our own gimmicks as caused by those gimmicks.

We reduce the originating questions (like "what should we do?" and "why?"). Then we blame our slavish attitude on procedure. Nuclear reactors are neither good nor bad in themselves. But people who refuse to be honest about them—about waste, regulation, public knowledge, scale of risk, comparative benefits, social priorities—are bad, as all dishonest people are bad. Our robots do not bless us or curse us. We do that, by accepting or surrendering human responsibility, using robots or asking them to be our savior-demons.

Praise of Science, or attack on it, is beside the point. Science is just one of man's attributes, one mode of his "knowing" (which the word means).

It makes no sense to anthropomorphize Three Mile Island. It did nothing good nor bad. It is just a place, with some things on it. Only men or women are moral agents—or immoral ones. What we do not want to face up to is the immorality of the human agents who owned, ran, regulated and reported on the Three Mile Island installation—the little cumulative greeds, career corner-cuttings, deferences, influences, slackness that could have led to major tragedy. Both sides are wrong in saying Science failed or was vindicated. Man failed again; and can only be vindicated by recognizing that fact.

Cooper, 62, Dies At Home

Department of Physical Education Chairman, Dr. Gene Cooper died recently of natural causes at his home. Cooper was 62. He has been a member of the Boise State faculty since coming to Boise in 1967 from Willamette University in Salem, Oregon.

Cooper was a member of the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation; the Idaho Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation; the Western Society for Physical Education, and Recreation; the Western Society for Physical Education, and the National Intramural Association.

Reverend John Dawson, a BSU faculty member, officiated at the funeral services which were held May 9 at the Meridian Cemetery.

Memorials may be made to the Capital City Kiwanis Club toward the Gene Cooper Memorial Athletic Field Fund and the Scholarship Fund at Boise State University or a favorite charity. UA

Students To Participate In Social Work Decisions

While the well-known badge of 1970s students is the ubiquitous cry of apathy, at least some students are quietly finding a means of active involvement in determining their education. One recent example is the decision of the BSU Social Work Department, at the prompting of the Student Social Work organization, to involve students in departmental faculty meetings and decisions.

Earlier this semester, the students and faculty in the department were polled to find out what kinds of department decisions they felt students should have a voice in. Chris Nelson, Student Social Work president, said the people were for "almost complete representation... the exclusion being that the student representatives should not be allowed to participate in meetings where an individual student's academic progress is being discussed."

Therefore, the department and the student organization came to an agreement that the social work students elect two representatives to be voting members in department meetings. This effectively gives the students a voice in determining the social work curriculum, deciding on instructors' status and tenure, and other crucial points in the department's operation.

Department chairman Doug Yunker, in support of the move, said, "I don't see how we can not allow students to participate in decision making in college, and then expect them to participate when they get out." Yunker also stressed the benefit of such student involvement in an education in social work, since many of the program's graduates will probably be responsible for some form of public policy making in the future, he explained.

Nelson said the move, as well, has already helped to "bridge and enhance the communication between students and faculty."

Cosgriff Donates Billboard To 'Hoboes'

Cosgriff Signs has donated billboard space to the BSU Vo-Tech Hobo March, to give the participants opportunity to publicly thank the merchants and several individuals who helped out in the fund-raising drive, according to Kermit Jackson, publicity chairman for the event.

The sign will be displayed at the Cosgriff office, on Boise Avenue near the BSU campus and visible to Capital Boulevard traffic. UA

SAC Plans Judicial, Political Steps

Stating that their next steps are political and judicial, members of the Student Action Committee called their hearing before the State Board of Education "not a fair one." Chairperson Samantha Silva said the board "cut me off" during her testimony and that she had not expected better treatment but that she had "hoped." Faculty Advisor, Richard Mabbutt stated that the Board members' "minds were made up," and that the Board does not ask "hard questions, instead they take blank assurances" from those who appear before it.

The Committee said plans to file an injunction against construction of the Multi-purpose Pavilion at Boise State University on the grounds of misrepresentation of the BAA seating arrangement to students was a possible option it would take. The committee also has grave questions as to whether or not the facility can be operated and maintained once it is built, as there is no provision for any such funding. Silva maintained that the facility will have to be scheduled from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. each day in order to raise operating expenses and that those events scheduled would have to be money making ones, meaning there would be no time for student events. She pointed to the Special Events Center as an example of a facility built with student money but said that "student events are often set aside for events that will raise money."

Mabbutt added that the presentation by university officials is a "typical thing. They grossly underestimate the costs and overestimate the revenues in advance and down the road the thing does a complete turnaround."

Acknowledging that the trust fund was not yet legally set up, Silva said that it was yet unclear if the administration could keep students out of the university if they (the students) placed their contested $40 per semester assessment in a trust fund pending the outcome of court proceedings. Mabbutt cited the rent strike principle as an established precedent and said he thought a sympathetic judge would rule in their favor over the protested fee.

Silva declared that "we do not want to hurt other students," and that a test case over the summer could be used to establish the rights of students to not pay the fee yet enroll in the university.

Noting that "we do not need 1400 people" to investigate the legality of our position, Silva appeared confident that the "core group" of the Committee would continue to pursue their goals during the summer.

Mabbutt, an instructor in the Political Science Department at Boise State, said that he became the Student Action Committee advisor almost by accident. "I watched this thing evolve from the beginning and I knew that it (the pavilion) was something that the administration wanted." It was not apathy last fall on the students' part he stated, but cynicism based on a feeling of "how do you stop it?" He added, "You don't get spontaneous participation from that kind of attitude." UA

Samantha Silva, Student Action Committee chairperson, said the student group may seek court action against the construction of BSU's proposed pavilion.

Nothing Cut From Summer School

Despite rumors to the contrary, BSU's summer sessions will open with a full slate of classes June 11. Because of tight budgets, many prospective students are asking if summer school has been cut or eliminated. But that won't happen, said Bill Jensen, director of the program. In fact, he said, there will be more classes this summer because the second five weeks session that was dropped last year has been revived.

The main reason BSU's summer school hasn't been hard hit by budget cuts is because fees pay most of the salary expenses. Classes must have an average enrollment of 20 in order for the school to break even. Last year education averaged 26, business 21, and arts & sciences, 18.

"Basically, summer school depends on fees from enrollment, not state appropriated money," said Jensen. Last Year about 2,500 took summer classes, including 900 graduate students.

This year over 230 courses from almost every department are in the summer school schedule, including 46 special workshops. The second five weeks session will feature 57 classes. "We went back to the extra session to give students more flexibility in their schedules," Jensen said.

All graduate classes and undergraduate offerings in English and math will last eight weeks.

Traditionally, many of the summer school classes are basic introductory courses that fill general degree or major field requirements. But there are also several workshops and special topics classes offered, ranging from business and geology tours to Mexico to an archaeological dig at King Hill.

One of the biggest programs in the summer is run by the School of Education, which offers "core" and other courses for graduates. About 30 courses and workshops will be tailored for education students, including topics like nutrition, storytelling, instructional television, ecological education, and newspapers in the classroom.

Session starting dates are: First five week - June 11-July 13; Eight weeks - June 11-August 3; Second five weeks - July 16-August 17.

Registration periods in the BSU gym are June 9 from 8 a.m.-noon for the first five week and eight week sessions, and July 13 from noon-3 p.m. for the second five weeks. UA

More Women Hired In Public Colleges

(CPS) —Women administrators at public colleges, virtually nonexistent at the beginning of the decade, now make up over one-fifth of the ranks.

That's the finding of a survey of 106 major public universities by the National Association of State Universities and Land-grant Colleges (NASULGC). The survey results, when compared with 1973 and 1975 data, show steady and significant increases of women in almost every category of administration. The statistics also show a continuing trend of women administrators concentrated in the low management positions.

In 1970-71, a NASULGC survey of 49 schools charted the median number of women administrators at zero. In 1973, the median at these schools was nine, rising to 13 in 1975 and 19 in 1978.

In total, there's been a 30 percent increase of women administrators since 1975, with several administrative categories showing dramatic increases. The number of women assistants to the presidents and chancellors, for example, increased by 89 percent from 1975. A 61 percent increase in women chief officers of administrative divisions was also reported.

Yet more than half (58 percent) of all the women in the survey held positions which were categorized as associate or assistant director, the lowest category. This percentage has actually grown since 1975, when 59 percent of these positions were held by women.

Only three of the campuses included in the survey had women in top administrative positions. These included Lorene Rogers, retiring president of the University of Texas-Austin; Barbara Uehling, chancellor of the University of Missouri-Columbia; and Claire Van Ummersen, acting chancellor of the University of Massachusetts-Boston.

And, while the number of women in second-line positions (vice-presidents, vice-chancellors, deans and directors) increased from 18 in 1975 to 46 in 1978, they all reported directly to the head of the institution.

The number of chief officers of academic/research units decreased by 11 percent since 1975. The percentage of women in two traditionally-female areas, home economics and nursing, dropped from 58 percent in 1975 to 28 percent last year.

But while women administrators were found in more non-traditional areas, the survey did not list any women departments heads in such areas as engineering, law, community service, and journalism.

Intramural Reports

The Fighting Gamecocks beat Bhan Whar Gupa 11-9 and Delta Tappa Kegga again stayed anonymous.

The Ball Bangers had all kinds of luck on their side and beat The Grand Slam 14-12. Tuesday brought rain but the ball players played on.

Goodtimers won an 18-7 victory over the TKE's. TKE's turned around and beat AFC 13-8. AFC came back to beat Martyrs 15-10.

Then the LDS beat the Martyrs 17-13 and Geophysics-Geology 17-15. Busy night of softball.

Plaza's won a powerful 1-0 forfeit over Towers 5, and the Shockers shocked A-1 and T-7 with a 19-5 victory. P.U.B.T. won over Ballsofts 16-13 in a hand-fought battle.

Aggies won a 20-11 sweep over Mike's Maulers and AZ & Associates struggled and beat Magicians 22-18.

Once again Battimer's was awesome but the Sig Eps and Gird were equal to the challenges-the final score 69-69.

Despite the rain and general bad weather, the semi-finals for Intramural Softball played on. Plaza's Players whopped AZ and Associates 21-10 and the "The Ball Bangers" pulled together to beat the Goodtimers 14-10.

The Championship game was played May 9. Plaza's Players were up for the game and held the lead during most of the game, though the Ball Bangers did pull ahead once. The final score was 15-11 in favor of the two-time champions, Plaza's Players, a softball powerhouse.

Athletes Sign Letters Of Intent

Four more high school seniors have indicated they will attend Boise State University this fall.

Beth Bergin from Portland, OR, Barbara Machado of Arnold, CA, and Kristi Brockway from Pocatello, ID will join the varsity volleyball team while Cynthia Steward of Idaho Falls, ID will be a field event competitor on the track team.

Bergin, who is 5-7½ and 120 lbs., attend Wilson High School in Portland. She has played four years of high school volleyball and is also a member of a United States Volleyball Association (USVBA) team. ## Big Sky Players Rank High Although baseball isn't a Big Sky Conference sport Northern Arizona and Boise State have players ranked among the nation's best according to the NCAA Statistics Service.

At last look at the NCAA Baseball Stat's the Broncos Steve McMannon was ranked second in the nation in batting with a .500 average.

He also led the nation in RBI's with 66 or a 1.69 average in 33 games; was 19th in the nation in home runs with 11 round-trippers and was tied for 11th in triples with seven.

Not to be outdone Northern Arizona's Jerry Fontes and teammate Mark Seeger were ranked 3rd and 33rd respectively in batting with .411 and .406 averages.

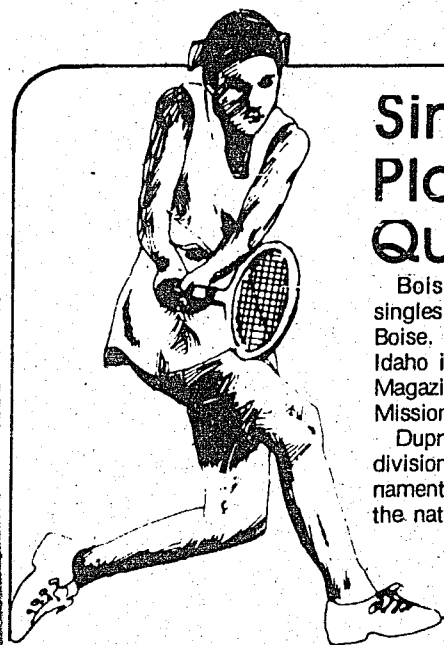

Fontes was also ranked 11th in the nation in doubles with 14 for a .39 per game average while Seeger was third in triples with nine.

Another NAU teammate George Brandt was 15th in RBI's with 1.31 per outing.

As a team Northern Arizona was ranked first in the nation in team scoring (10.8 runs a game) while Boise State was 14th in the same category (8.0 runs a game).

The Lumberjacks were also ranked 5th in team batting with a .346 average. UA

Single's Player Qualifies

Boise State's number one singles player, Phyllis Dupras of Boise, will represent the state of Idaho in the National Seventeen Magazine tennis tournament in Mission Viejo, CA May 14-20.

Dupras won the Idaho age 21 division of the Seventeen Tournament in July 1978 to qualify for the national competition. UA

Woman Goes To Nationals

For the first time, Boise State will have an entrant in the National AIAW Track and Field Championships which will be held May 23-26 at Michigan State University in East Lansing, MI.

Karen Osburn, Boise sophomore, broke her own 100 meter dash record on May 5 in Bozeman, MT with her new time of 11.75. Karen had qualified previously for the Northwest Regional Meet in several events. Her new 100 meter time is low enough to send her to the national meet, as well. UA

29 Students Take Advantage of N.S.E. Program

The N.S.E. Program, now in its third year on campus, was designed to provide students the opportunity to spend up to one year at another American university on the program, while remaining enrolled at their home institution. In the 1978-79 school year, B.S.U. sent 22 students to various universities and hosted another 18 students. These students enjoy special privileges such as in-state tuition and fun activities designed to acquaint the N.S.E. student with the campus and the surrounding area. This year the N.S.E. office provided events such as a fair banquet, a cross-country ski trip, and a recent picnic at Ann Morrison Park.

The N.S.E. Office is looking forward to a very busy 1979-80 school year filled with new faces and new places. If you are an interested student, give Brenda Freeman, student coordinator, a call at 385-1280.

Twenty-nine B.S.U. students will have a unique educational experience next fall due to their participation in the National Student Exchange Program. This year has been one of phenomenal growth for the program, as 43 applications were received for 1979-80 exchanges. Twenty-nine of these students will be attending N.S.E. universities next year.

America's Love Run

The disadvantaged of our society are benefiting from the advantages of running. Fund raising runs have proliferated, and in recent months running programs have been established for groups of the disabled who once thought they would never be active.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is expanding its Texas Love

Run Fund Raiser of 1978 to the entire nation for 1979. Now called America's Love Run, it will take place in May and June 1979. Each participant's total training mileage for the month, multiplied by pledges of at least 5 cents per mile, adds up to a lot of money for the fight against muscular dystrophy. Last year, the Texas Love Run had 1,050 entrants who ran 48,000 miles and raised over $76,000. This year MDA hopes to attract over 100,000 runners.

MDA's event chairman is Frank Shorter and its slogan is: "Run For Those Who Can't." For more information, contact your state MDA Office at 2206 W. Fairview Avenue, Boise, Idaho, 83706, or call 343-3683.

"Experimental Television": Modern Dance

For those of you who have spent this last semester in the library or behind a book, finding few classes really interesting, there was something else. A joint class offered students interested in modern dance and those who wanted to learn how to produce a TV show a unique opportunity. vision: Modern Dance, was a joint idea of Richard Boylan, Communication professor, Rick Tessman, Producer-Director at KAID-TV, Barbara Boylan, dance instructor at B.S.U., and Kim Stevens, Communication student. What started out as "small talk" has evolved into an introductory course combining basic communication skills and their application to create a record of the production with the goal of airing the final project.

According to Dr. Boylan the completed project could have a two-fold purpose:

- (1) The documentary being aired on KAID-TV depending on quality and a time slot.
  - (2) If the show can't be aired, then dance segments could be used as "Filler" material for KAID-TV.
- Upon completion, the class will submit to Channel 4 their production for the station's evaluation for broadcast.

PERSONAL NOTICES

I, graduate student at Boise State University, currently in the process of appeal under the ASBSU Judiciary, known by collective given name from birth as Russell Edgar Smith, Jr. (who is a multiple-personality, transsexual, non-surgically changed, known as the individualities Russell E. Smith Jr., (a.k.a.) Ms. Laura Lynne Smith, and/or Miss Lori Lea Smith ("The LORE-LEI")), wish to publicly proclaim, under personal word of honor, the truth that at no time prior to February 8, 1979, when I, Smith, was thrown out of class by Dr. Professor Peter Buhler, Visiting Professor in the History Department of BSU, and embarrassed before and during the class by class participants of Dr. Buhler's course "Living Human Religions: A Comparative Historical Study", did I, Smith, even as much as think, much less speak, anything of a derogatory nature about Dr. Buhler, or as stated by Dr. Buhler, "degrading" in nature. In fact, I, Smith, up to February 8, had the highest regard for Dr. Buhler, as evidenced by the fact that I enrolled in this, the second course I had taken under Dr. Buhler. However, any thoughts or feelings which I, Smith, may hold about Professor Buhler's and class participants' treatment of me in that class February 8 and consequent to that date may be changed, due to what I, Smith, consider very wrongful treatment. I intend to seek by due process, and in proper channels, remedy of any injurious wrongs done me in the above mentioned incident.
