New Basketball Coach Named

by Bud Humphrey
Arbiter Staff

"The bottom line comes up win," said Dave Leach. "We're going to play excellent basketball -- team concept basketball..." and hopefully get some more W's on that record."

Leach, 37, was named head basketball coach at BSU last week after Athletic Director Lyle Smith had received over 50 applications for former coach Bus Connor's job. The former assistant coach at Oregon State University held a press conference for local media Monday morning, and made it clear there would be changes in Bronco basketball.

"We'll probably ban the triple early on," said Leach. "I'll be passing a lot, and using all 90 feet of the court. There are three major ways to lose ball games, and two of them involve defense," he remarked, and added that any player who would not adjust to a more team-oriented defensive game "will probably sit on the sidelines a lot."

In addition, aggressive defense opens up opportunities in offense. "You see players taking the last break, going for the easy shot, and you might say, 'that offense is really rolling now. But the good defense makes that possible,'" Leach said he learned many of these team concepts at OSU, which earned high national rankings this season. He coached

ASBSU Candidates Debate

by Gunnar Anderson
Arbiter Staff

BSU-ASBSU Presidential candidates Neil Wilson and Sally Thomas and Vice Presidential candidates Beth Young and Steve Muram debated for two hours in front of about 30 people in an attempt to make their positions clearer on such issues as the establishment of a BSU PIRG, the multi-purpose pavilion, and student involvement in ASBSU politics.

The biggest issue out of the three was student participation in student politics. Candidates agreed that student participation in ASBSU politics was lacking and that something needs to be done. The student government needs to get involved and take upon itself the responsibility of communications with students on campus. For the student government to be effective in the protection of student rights it needs an involved and concerned student body," according to Neil Wilson.

Candidate Thomas agreed that there should be a strong and responsive student government but warned against students not participating in the political process.

"It will do no good for us to say we will be strong if we don't know what we're strong about, if we don't have the kind of student to make that strength a reality, not just a hollow threat," says Thomas.

The vice-presidential candidates stand, as far as student participation is concerned, center more on making known student lawmakers decisions.

"The students don't know what student government is doing and I want to push for more publicity of what student government is doing," said Steve Muram.

Young said a Student Information Center is one step toward

Students Look for Solutions

BSU—What problems will mankind face in the 21st century? How can they be solved?

About 100 gifted students and their 30 coaches from four Northwestern states will explore these questions at Boise State University in the first Northwest Region Problem Solving Bowl, March 9-23.

The bowl competition, sponsored by Boise State with a three-year grant of $38,000 from the Northwest Area Foundation, promotes creative thinking from students about world problems of the future, according to project coordinator Carol Dee Cornelius, Mountain Home.

"We know that futurists predict that many of our grade school students today will change patterns three times during their existence yet," she said.

"Our schools are geared to deal with middle school thinking skills," she said. "We need to promote the abilities of these gifted students so that they can help us solve some of these future crises," she said.

Competing teams in the event have been chosen on the basis of crises, shortages, outer space and underwater colonization, and the difficulties of aging. They will compete in grade school, junior and senior high divisions.

Youths participating in the bowl competition will be given situations to study and asked to brainstorm what problems are inherent in them. They will be asked what to do about these problems and to put their solutions into workable forms which answer the basic questions of survival. Who? Why? Where? Why? When?

"The creative problem solving process, although fruitful, is rarely not used. Problem solving helps develop the ability to cope with changes," Cornelius said.

Evaluators trained this year by Cornelius and selected from BSU faculty members and graduate assistants, Treasure Valley and out-of-state educators, will score the bowl competition. Each step of the teams' problem solving approaches will be judged, along with their solutions. Winning teams in each division will travel to national competition in Lincoln, Neb., later this spring. Teams from Wallace, Idaho Falls, Lewiston, Moscow, and Boise will compete with Washington teams from Mercer Island, Gig Harbor, Spokane, Silverdale, and Tacoma. Teams from Oregon will come from Oregon City, Roseburg, and Portland. Also attending the bowl competition will be students from Colstrip and Great Falls, Mont.

The Northwest Area Foundation, administered by the heirs of the Great Northern Railroad and Timber Industries, funds grants in rural and youth education, including programs for gifted and talented students. It also grants awards to research about teaching performance, learning motivation, and higher education in arts and humanities, education, environment, medicine, and the social sciences.

Power Practices Tried

The master metering standards of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission will be investigated at a public hearing April 3 at 9:30 a.m.

Some apartment complexes and single family homes have one meter which is read monthly by the owner or one meter which is divided equally among tenants, called master metering.

"It's not fair to someone who is single to pay the same for utilities as their neighbor who has two children," said Chris Friedley, a Boise State student who contacted the Idaho Public Utilities Commission about master metering.

According to a utilities information official, master metering also encourages energy waste. The hearing, to be held at 472 West Washington, will examine the workability of present master metering systems.

The public is invited.

Governors Internship Provides Needed Exposure

by Terri H. Rawley
Associate Editor

Once again, the Department of Administration is planning for the Governor’s Summer Internship Program for 1980. This program provides funding and placement in State agencies for ten college students. The goals are three-fold:
1. To educate college students in the operation of State government through interesting job assignments;
2. To complete important and substantial projects in State agencies by employing college students;
3. To interest top college students in future careers with the State of Idaho.

This year’s Governor’s Internship Program will be held from June 9 through August 8, 1980. Interns will be paid the Federal minimum wage, $3.10 per hour, and are urged to arrange for credits through their university or college.

As in the past, resumes must include and selection will be based on:
1. Background and qualifications;
2. Reasons for seeking the internship;
3. Letters of recommendation.

All interns must be Idaho residents. Applications must be received by the Department of Administration by April 4, 1980 and selection of the ten interns will be made by April 28th.
Information is available in the Honors Program Office, Education 707.

A more informed student body. An information center would consist of a past history from which student would have a base of information to base decisions on. "Students are so apathetic, it seems, I often wonder if there is real apathy or whether it's just a lack of information," stated Young. Wilson stated he believes that the representatives of the student body should take a share of the responsibility to inform and find out what student opinions and ideas are. Also, he sees the media helping to solve this communications breakdown.

"Possible addressers in the Arbiter and on KBSU are weekly or weekly report letting students know what is going on in student government that week," were part of Wilson's solution to get government information to students.

Wilson's program to curtail the communications gap between students and their elected student officials is a "State of the University" message to be delivered annually by the ASB president. "We have our own programs that she would like to see implemented as well as the buildup of communication between student elected officials and the student legislature. Thomas favors the creation of an internal system through which students could communicate their ideas. Also, a system of fiscal responsibility for the treasurer and student legislators would be set up. Another program favored by Thomas is the holding of a one-hour break so students might watch an ASB/SU program. "Students would be free to minor in subjects another during that period of time and truly begin to reap some of the auxiliary benefits a campus experience has to offer," stated Thomas. The vice-presidential candidates also held opinions about a variety of topics. McMcur's ideal's centered mostly on student knowledge of their elected officials' decisions, what he dealt with the campus student apathy. Getting seniors to get in touch with their peers is one of McMcur's main concerns. To do this he favors greater visibility in the Arbiter of ASB/SU sponsored events and seniors setting up information tables in their respective schools.

But, McMcur's opponent in the race for vice-president, Beth Young says, "We need to lengthen our strides, we need to go further. We need to implement (the information center) right away. We need to expand it until it becomes a working vehicle for interested students." Young, instead of not stop there in her proposals.

"My second major goal is to start a campus veterans organization," she said. "There's a large veteran's population on campus and if people ban together and use the experience of the veterans we'll be better off," according to Young.

freshmen and JV teams, in addition to assisting head coach Ray Miller, for ten years at CEO. Before that, he attended Idaho State and coached high school teams in Victoria, Kansas. Rumor that several players who could return are talking about leaving do not intimidate him, said, "That's a typical reaction, they may be a coach's player, they may be a coach's son, they may be a coach's daughter. But when they meet the new coach, they find out the world isn't going to end." He stated that he didn't feel any of the returning players were "seriously considering quitting." Academic considerations will also be a part of his game plan, Leach said, and stressed that he would encourage players to earn degrees. "That's the primary purpose of attending a university. Everybody wants to be a pro when they get out of college, but it doesn't work that way. They should do their best to get a degree."

Another goal he will reach for is the Big Sky (Conference). "I'd prefer to have a guy in the program from two-year colleges and then look at the players and decide who would employ to get its three dollar fee.

Wilson and Young were the only ones at the debate to announce their support of the student money, student control policy for the pavilion, the other two candidates didn't announce that issue at the debate.

Both. presidential candidates agree that students should participate in lobbying for education bills at the Idaho Statehouse next year. Both support a permanent lobby controlled by Idaho's three universities.

All four candidates support the Idaho PIRG, although two of the candidates, McMcur and Wilson, say they do not support the negative check-off system which PIRG would employ to get its three dollar fee.

The television advertisement sponsored by the Boise State University Foundation has featured nutriages a local media personage spars: "Citizens, send fifty tax deductible dollars to help build the Boise State Pavilion and get your name inscribed on a granite plaque that will remain prominently displayed in the lobby of the Pavilion until archeologists from a future society remove it to study its religious significance." Or words to that effect.

Now I'm all in favor of soliciting the people of the local community to help out with the costs of Super-Gym, after all, they are going to be benefited by the Pavilion as much or more than the students, and the more the community pays the less students will have to pay. But by the same token, I'm also in favor of equal treatment for students, which means that any students who shell out for four years worth of Pavilion tax should get their name on that charming edifice exactly 6.4 times. However, if this equal recognition of student payment were to take place there would need to be an increase in the size of the Pavilion in order to take up all the names, which would run up the cost of the Pavilion; which would necessitate more contributions; and of course, with as many names that the Pavilion would be the size of Australia. Vwah!

Fortunately for everyone concerned, the powers that be have found a solution to the sticky dilemma that could be created by a Pavilion of such magnitude (just imagine trying to watch a basketball game with 50,000 names above your head). They've decided on the Portico name for the simple means of not bothering to put up the names of students at all—a wise decision because students, unlike people from the community, are expected to pay for the Pavilion regardless of whether they are offered little ego boosting treats or not. End of problem for the Pavilion.

The problem with the name plaques is that they are just part of a physiological play to gradually take control of the Pavilion from students and put the names of those not in control into a position of control over the cost of the Pavilion, from the people who actually had to forgo some of their life savings and live on a diet of the pork and beans on offer at their fees by the Pavilion. The play being used against students seems to be founded on the idea that if the part students playing in building the Pavilion is ignored as much as possible everyone will soon forget that the students have any claim to the Pavilion at the first place, leaving those who paid for it no value in how it is run. "Of course they can't have the Beatles reunion concert in the Pavilion that night, the ice Capsades are already booked.'

The play to take control of the Pavilion is taken forward by the names on the wall, the committee to name the Pavilion has been established, and the students on a--a situation that is just bound to end with the Pavilion named either after a businessman seeking immortality through donation dollars, or after an athlete/coach who was dead and forgotten twenty years before the Pavilion was even a gleam in its mother's eye. Instead of choosing an imaginative source of names for gymnastics I propose that the Pavilion be called "The Boise State University Students Pavilion." This name will serve two purposes: one, it is anathema to those who sacrificed most to bring the place to a community that was too tight fisted to pass a bond issue for their part, and two, it will be an argument for reducing the size of the pavilion. This is not doing the students any favors; it is just a matter of fact that anything less than the Pavilion the students will be able to afford.

Students Show Goal Changes

Campus Digest News Service – Women students have become especially more materialistic and ambitious than their male counterparts. This is just one of the findings of a study that has recorded the dramatic changes in student attitudes during the past decade.

This new national profile of college freshmen shows that while men are more interested in money and success than their counterparts of 10 years ago, their female classmates are a lot more interested. Important or essential goals of 1979 freshmen have changed when compared with those of 1969.

Nearly 104 percent more women, but only 26 more men, want to contribute to scientific theory. Being well off financially was cited by 26 percent more men, but by 77 percent more women.

About 41 percent more women, and 21 percent more men, want recognition among their peers. Becoming an authority in one’s field was important to 20 percent more men and 30 percent more women.

The survey of last fall’s freshmen found that there is a counterright of declining interest in public affairs and personal development.

Women showed the greater change. About 36 percent fewer women and 26 percent fewer men found developing a philosophy of life an important goal.

Keeping up with political affairs was less important to 33 percent fewer women and 18 percent fewer men. While 17 percent fewer women wanted to raise families, only 2 percent fewer men registered a change in this attitude.

The survey is sponsored by the American Council on Education and administered by the Laboratory for Research on Higher Education at the University of California at Los Angeles.
Digital Discs:
Record by Number

There’s a revolution afoot in the record-making business. The effects are so dramatic that anyone with even an average stereo system will be able to hear a real difference in the sound of the records they play.

The main instrument in this technological breakthrough is the digital mastering system of disc production. And the key to digital’s amazing sound is that the medium used to transfer music to plastic records is numbers.

"Presently, most discs are made by recording music sessions onto a master tape, which is reproduced on a master disc used to make hundreds of thousands of records," explains Jon R. Kelly, president of Audio-Technica U.S., Inc., a leading distributor of digital recordings.

"This tape step is the weak link in record production," Kelly continued. "Tape has some serious recording limitations. It stretches, causing distortion; it picks up sounds from other parts of the tape, called print-through; it has limited range of highs and lows; and there is always some background hiss."

Digital recordings, Kelly explains, are made by recording music onto computer tape. The breakthrough is achieved with an A/D or analog-to-digital converter, which translates music into 16-bit numbers at a rate of 50,000 numbers per second. The result is accuracy far beyond the range of human hearing.

When it comes time to press the record, the grooves are cut according to the numbers on the tape, so there is no speed variation, distortion or background noise. And there is no limit to tone range, which means the softest sounds of music are perfectly clear, and a battery of cymbals is so powerful and undistorted it sounds real.

In fact, digital process broadens the dynamic range so much that one distributor of these records warns listeners to keep the volume at a reasonable level to protect their speakers.

"The difference between conventional recordings and digital is the difference between building a house from looking at a blueprint of it, and working from a blueprint that has measurements and dimensions down to the tiniest fraction of an inch," says Kelly.

The price of these records is somewhat higher than for conventional because of the new technology involved, the great care used in making the discs, and the special equipment necessary for production. Many music critics point out, however, that the difference in price is more than compensated by the improvements in sound quality.

A catalog of many digital recordings is available from Audio-Technica U.S., Inc., 33 Shiawassee Ave., Fairlawn, Ohio 44333.

Be Kind to Your Records

You eagerly slide a new record from its sleeve for the first time. Nothing could look cleaner than those shiny, untouched grooves. But there’s more to dirt than meets the eye.

If you play that record right away, you may never hear the best sound it can offer.

A new disc is virtually a magnet for airborne microscopic contaminants. Once your stylus grinds them deep into the record groove, the album may be instantly "old."

Static electricity is the culprit. A static charge imparted during pressing draws dust and lint—some of it invisible—and holds it to the record surface. No record, no matter how well-made, is immune from this destructive condition.

Because a good hi-fi system must be sensitive enough to pick up the most subtle undulations in a record groove, it also will "play back" any foreign matter lodged there. Unfortunately, dirt doesn’t sound as good as music; it’s mostly loud cracks and pops. But as phonographs have become more sophisticated, so has record maintenance technology improved.

"Basic record care requires only a few seconds before each playing," says Jon R. Kelly, president of Audio-Technica U.S., Inc., maker of a full line of record care accessories. "With a few precautions and careful handling, records can easily last a lifetime."

"Babying" a new record is critical. Before playing the new disc—even once—clean it thoroughly, using a good record cleaning product.

Next, apply a preservative and lubricant solution. Choose a brand that does not contain silicone, which can build up over repeated applications, and leave the disc unplatable. The life-extending solution will keep the record from wearing out. Choose a product that will help minimize the static charge and fight dirt. It’s still important to clean each record before every play.

Finally, Kelly advises using stylus cleaner before every "session" of record playing. "A filthy stylus can do just as much damage as dirt on the record surface," he explains. "And stylus-cleaning takes only about five seconds."

These three solutions will be a "fountain of youth" to your record collection. Some other important tips to remember are:

- Tear off the plastic wrapper that comes on the record jacket. It can shrink, bending and warping the disc.
- Never touch the record surface with your hand. Invisible dirt and

Phono Cartridge Plays the Key Role

Tiny, delicate, based on space-age technology and painstaking laboratory refinements, the phono cartridge is a critical part of any audio system. It is a com-paign that is a necessary complement to the other basic structural elements of a home stereo system, especially the turntable.

But most hi-fi owners don’t understand how a cartridge creates music. There are many references available with more detailed information on microphone specifications and design. Use one guide prepared especially as an on-the-spot "trouble shooter" or "trouble shooter" is a note of the problem, which can help raise some common miking headaches. A "sound engineer" is often not equipped with knowledge crucial for good results—a fundamental understanding of microphones.

Oil can mar the grooves. Don't play the same disc twice in a row. A temporary change in the groove shape occurs with each playing, and requires about 25 minutes to "repair" itself. Use the dustcover on your turntable. It works.

Store records upright, side by side. This not only prevents warping, but can help "cure" previous warps through sideways pressure.

Keep albums away from heat and sunlight. The sun can warp records even in a room that feels cool.

Never, ever, stack discs on the turntable. Although you won't see the scratches, you'll hear them.

Faculty Senate Introduces Resolutions

by Wilma M. Woods
Associate Editor

BSU-In the Faculty Senate Meeting of March 13, a resolution was introduced that would provide the faculty member with legal counsel. This proposal recommends to Boise State University's president that legal aid be provided for faculty in all cases where faculty member instigates or causes to be instigated disciplinary proceedings under Boise State University rules and regulations. The legal counsel shall be available upon request of the faculty member.

Another resolution asked that a procedure be followed to use by the faculty when "grieved unjustly by students." This motion also requested that the Professional Standards Committee prepare a forum to advise faculty of what action they may take when a suit is brought against them by a student. The Faculty Senate directed the Grievance Committee to work out a specific policy.

These resolutions were introduced to allow the faculty member protection and certain rights when brought before the ABSSU Judiciary Board, initiate grievances against students or are accused unjustly by students.

Further business of the senate includes the passing of proposals from the Curriculum Committee and the Graduate Council. Senate approved the changing of state University rules and regulations. These resolutions were introduced to allow the faculty member protection and certain rights when brought before the ABSSU Judiciary Board, initiate grievances against students or are accused unjustly by students.

The Tekes Serve Public

TKEs, a Greek fraternity on the Boise State campus for 31 years, is a very prestigious organization, according to President Jim Burns.

They hope to instill social and academic values in their members and their group is a vehicle for becoming involved in campus activities, according to Burns.

For five years they have been responsible for the off-campus blood-drawing. This year they are responsible for the annual St. Jude's Run between the University of Idaho and Boise State University, the Easter Seal's Raceathon and they recently took an afternoon to construct a sandbox for the children at BSU's Day Care Center.

The TKEs have participated in the St. Jude's Run for five years. Last year they ran from Boise to Moscow, the year before they ran from Moscow to Boise.

The group will dress as bunnies this Easter to visit the Children's Hospital, the Day Care Center, and the old folks homes.

Old Boise Days, which took place last weekend, also had help from the TKEs. They set up a kissing booth, staffed a volks-wagon and held a golden wheat-drawing exhibition for downtown residents, said Burns.

The Broncos, 18-0 in the overall season and undefeated against NCCVSA Regional Gymnastic-Small College competition, will be attending this two-day meet, with the top eight divisions will be coming from Portland State and possibly the University who is healthy for each team," said BSU coach John Head. "The main competition in our division will come from Portland State and possibly the University of Montana. A lot will depend on who is healthy for each team," said Head. BSU defeated Portland State twice during the regular season. The first meet BSU won handily, 130.10 to 125.25. The second meet was extremely close with BSU pulling out the victory, 101.70 to 101.60. BSU defeated Montana 123.20 to 123.25.

There are so many teams and so much going on all the time at regionals that we can only worry about what we are doing and not get involved in any head-to-head competition," added Head.

Boise State Track Team Travels to Corvallis, OR

[BSU]—The women’s track and field team travels to Corvallis, OR to compete in a dual meet against the powerful Oregon State Beavers. BSU’s team is made up of many national level competitors, including Connie Wisteter, the 1979 AAU Jr. National pentathlon champion and the national championship-two-mile relay team of Robin Blaine, Kath Costello, Kris Trom, and Karen Osburn.

"This meet will be quite a challenge for our team. It will also be the first meet in which we will field our entire team. Our distance runners have been in training up to now. Our team can only benefit by meeting this type of competition," said BSU coach Genger Fahleson.

Over the weekend, BSU hosted and won its own invitational track meet at Bronco Stadium. The Broncos took the meet with a total of 138 points. The College of Southern Idaho finished second with 99 points, Treasure Valley Community College was third with 74 and Northwest Nazarene College had 43.

In spite of the blizzard-like conditions which forced the cancellation of the first two events, six meet records were broken. In the javelin, OSU’s Laurie Larson threw 138-2, shattering the old record by 26’. TWC’s Susan Stork set a new record in the 100 meter dash with a 12.4. The other four records belonged to Boise State.

Tel Moore had a very good day, winning the 100 meter hurdles and the 400 meter hurdles. The 400 meter hurdles was run in a very strong wind with heavy snow,” said Coach Fahleson. "Tel’s time of 16.3 in the 100 meter hurdles set a meet record. ‘The 400 relay team had an excellent time, considering the weather and a poor first hand-off," added Fahleson. The relay team of Karen Ostdia, Val Desvoix, Joyce Taylor and Connie Tator set a new record with a time of 50.0. Other records were set by the 880 yard medley relay team (1:53.3) of Karen Ostdia, Connie Taylor, Val Swonk, and Ann Demiano. Freshman Demiano also set a record in the 400 meters, running her personal best of 60.2.

BSU Wrestlers Face Tough Competition

(UA)—Wrestling against the toughest competition in the nation, Boise State’s four wrestlers at the NCAA Wrestling Championships in Corvallis, OR didn’t fare well as they were eliminated in the opening round of competition.

Representing the Big Sky as conference champions, Scott Barrett at 126 pounds and Bill Braseth at 177 pounds, each lost their opening round match.

"Their first round opponents needed to win their next two matches to enable the Broncos to re-enter the tournament in the consolation bracket. Unfortunately, each of these wrestlers lost and the BSU grapplers were out of the tournament.

Barret lost to Mike Guastilia of Tennessee, the meet’s 12th seed. 15-5 in his opening match. Guastilia lost his next match and Barrett was out of the tournament.

Pugmire was decision 17-5 by Bill Braseth, also of Tennessee. Fritz lost his next match and Pugmire was eliminated from the tournament.

The Big Sky’s outstanding wrestler Kevin Wood, was put out of the tournament by Date Walters of the Air Force when he lost a tough 8-3 match.

Bill Braseth lost a heartbreaker to Jim Hall of Oklahoma 4-3. Hall went on to beat the fourth seeded wrestler in the tournament, Don Brown of Oregon, 6-4, but lost in the next round eliminating Braseth from the tournament.

Boise State University track team takes a weekend off before going to Pocatello for a triangular meet with Idaho State and Utah on Saturday, March 29. A previously scheduled trip to Portland for the Portland Invitational on Monday, March 17 was canceled by Track Coach Ed Jacoby because he felt too much school would be missed by his team.

The Broncos competed in the Oregon Invitational this past weekend in Eugene, OR. Greeted by cool and windy weather, the Broncos did not turn in one of their better performances of the young spring season, but did see some excellent competition in the large field of teams.

Gary Little won the 440 meter intermediate hurdles with a 54.3 blocking and came back to finish second in his section on the 110 meter hurdles in 15.22. Sean Calffety posted a 54.3 in the 400 meter hurdles.

Bad Karma and Mind Games

by Jerry Richards

So the NCAA moguls thought they'd do some of the big conferences a favor and expand the post-season tournament to 64 teams, instead of the relatively sane 32 they had up till two years ago, eh? I'm sure the move was made on some rationalization, such as some of the smaller Division I schools don't usually get recognition would have a better chance for representation.

But what actually happened was that some of the bigger schools that don't nearly the comph of some of the aforementioned smallies made it onto the court and provided tuneup games for the consistently-winning lesser-known schools.

Well, what happened? By now Louisville is the only team in the final four that was given status in the top fifteen in the country at the end of the season. DePaul, Oregon State, Kentucky, and several other classy outfits that should have made it there were knocked out in the second or third inflated rounds.

Some of the magic right—i.e. they screwed up their karma anyway. When they had 48 spots and refused to grant the Big Sky any more than one.

Speaking of basketball, good old Bronco State has a new coach to go along with its upcoming pavilion. Rumor hath it Dave Leach handled last Monday's press conference with flash and aplomb, but from some of the questions my connections tell me were asked by the press, there are some undertones that go with the job.

Question: "Had you mapped out long-term any career plans when you applied for this job?"

Translation: At this point, you can only hope you're prepared to play mind games as well as basketball games.

BSU Women's Tennis Team Loses 6 of 9

BSU—In weekend competition, the Boise State University women's tennis team met the Boise Racquet and Swim Club, dropping 6 matches to 3. The Boise Racquet and Swim Club team, organized by club pro Barbara Chindle, took 4 of the 6 singles matches and 2 of the 3 doubles matches.

We were hoping to wear out the BSRC women—men they held on to win most of the third sets," said BSU coach Joan Boyles. "The players enjoyed playing the BSRC and did a much-improved job. We went to three sets in three of the four matches we lost.

BSU was victorious in 2 of 6 singles matches. Junior Sue Servick playing in the number one singles slot, defeated Chris Christensen, 6-4, 6-4. Sophomore Lisa Kagi oustedlasted Roberta Vanwick, winning the match, 6-2, 2-6, 7-6.

In the doubles competition, Patrice Reimer and Servick won their final match 9-2 over Nancy Knudson and Tootie Speer. The teams played pro sets in the doubles competition.

The tennis team, now 0-3 on the season, will take a weekend off from competition. Their next meet will be March 29 in Valia Whittaker, V.F.A., against Whitworth College.

Baseball Team Drops 2 on Road

(UA)—The Boise State baseball team exhibited some fine pitching performances but lacked any real power at the plate as they dropped three out of four games to Eastern Oregon State College over the weekend.

The Broncos lost a doubleheader Saturday in Adrian, OR., 1-0 and 5-4. Sunday back in Boise, BSU won the opener 2-1, but lost the nightcap 3-2 to bring their record to 4-6 for the season.

Boise State's Mike Minn threw a one-hitter at the Mountains in the first game, but the Broncos could only come up with two hits themselves as they lost in a tight 1-0 game.

Mike Wright got the only BSU win when he spaced out six EOSC hits in the first game on Sunday as the Broncos took a 2-1 lead. Mike Enright and Scott Williams paced the Broncos' efforts at the plate as each collected four hits.

Boise State heads to Las Vegas where they will play four games against the University of Nevada, Las Vegas March 22-25. They they will take on University of Southern California in two more games on the 26 and 27.

Summer 1980 Internships

Placements are available with police departments, public defender's offices, prosecutor's offices, court administration offices, juvenile detention facilities, probation and parole, prisons, halfway houses, community treatment centers, planning agencies, and shelter facilities at the local, state, and federal levels.

Placements are generally available throughout the Northwest.
Men's Tennis Begins Season

(BSU) - The men's tennis team begins the 1980 season this weekend with matches scheduled against Weber State College on March 23, the University of Utah on March 24, and BYU on March 25.

BSU and Weber State appear to be contenders for the Big Sky Conference title this season while Utah and BYU should be fielding outstanding tennis teams again this spring.

"We will be getting some of our toughest competition of the spring this coming weekend," BSU tennis coach Don Owen said. "All three teams are excellent with some great individual players."

Although challenge matches are continuing this week, Owen's ladder of players has sophomore Steve Appleton playing number one. Freshman Eddie Perkins is number two, while senior March Jackson is number three. Sophomore Greg Ketterman is number four. Senior Rob Stevenson is five and junior Kris Nord is six.

the intermediate hurdles and won his section of the highs with a 15.1 time, running into a strong wind.

"I was not totally happy with our performance, but we did get good efforts from our old standbys," Jacoby said. "We weren't as competitive as we have been, but I think the weather was a major factor."

BSU got a good effort from Dave Kerby in the pole vault when he cleared 15-6 and just barely topped the crossbar at 16 feet. A former Bronco, Rod Pearsall now running for the Aggie Running Club, won the 400 meters in 51.9 and Kenrick Connerud finished with a 50.5.

In the 1,500 meters, three BSU runners clocked with Howard Conley placing fifth overall in 3:54.4 ahead of Tom Rothenberger with 3:56.8 and Scott Blackburn in 3:56.5.

Dave Steffens ran the 3,000 steeplechase for the first time this spring and was seventh in a field of 20 with a 9:18.5. Karl Knapp clocked a 31:22.0 in the 10,000 meters.

Medin Field won his 200-meter section and placed third overall with a 22.5 while Dave Bridtoun turned in a 22.6 effort in the same event.

In the long jump, Carl Pollard was fourth with a 22-21/2, edging teammate Rand Heidenreich with a leap of 22-2. Chris Smith cleared 6-6 in the high jump and Bill Bailey lofted the shot 50-1 and the discus 151-0.

Freshman Gordon Siek is the seventh man on the team. In doubles, Owen will play Appleton and Jackson at number one, Perkins and Ketterman at number two and either Stevenson and Nord or Stevenson and Siek at number three.

BSU's match with Weber State is on Sunday at 2 PM. Monday's match with Utah and Tuesday's match with BYU are at noon.

Hit you should be around when the Warren Buffett Library is trying to theatre its annual budget. You'd lender better. Actually, this church did acquire a $20,000 bowl for a new church in the very old days of our nation. English colonists introduced their version of The Church of England, which was natural that many of these "big men" became the wealth landowners, the merchants, the owners of this young nation. George Washington, Alexander Hamilton, and a third cousin of the signers to the U.S. Constitution became Preachers of the Anglican Church. But today, the Episcopal Church represents the essential church of the entire United States. People of every vocation, social status, race and political persuasion gather under the same roof. Episcopalians believe that the church is a proper meeting ground for men's differences. Christianity, they say, represents the world's greatest gift to the world's greatest hope for reconciling the divisions between one man and another.

You don't have to agree with your fellow worshipers, you only have to live with him. Your personal Episcopal Church experiences and thoughts for others are somewhere else. Boise Civic Opera in cooperation with Boise State University will present "The Ballad of Baby Doe," an American opera in four acts, on April 1, 3 and 5 in the BSU Special Events Center.

Written by Douglas Moore, the opera was inspired by newspaper accounts of the death of Baby Doe Tabor, the former "Silver Queen" of the west. She was found frozen to death in a miserable mining shack in Leadville, Colorado in March, 1885.

Set in the silver mining days of the late 19th century, Moore's sometimes moving, sometimes lyrical score brings to life the romantic rags-to-riches-to-rags story of millionaire silver king Horace Tabor and his lovely wife, Baby Doe. The cast and chorus of the Boise Civic Opera production is composed entirely of local talent under the direction of Pam Abas. Mrs. Abas is well known to Boise audiences for her direction of last summer's Shakespeare Theater's "The Merry Wives of Windsor," as well as "Gianchi Schichiti" for the Boise Civic Opera, and most recently the Boise Little Theater production of "Inspector General."

Musical director is Ed Zimmer, an accomplished theater and opera talent. He served as president of the Boise Civic Opera for four years, and has been in many local productions. The role of Baby Doe will be sung by soprano Julia Keith; Keith Tackman plays Horace Tabor; and the part of Augusta, Horace's first wife, will be sung by Catherine Elliston.

Tickets are available at three Boise locations: Donkey Music, Hoisinger Music and Andrew Bar Ltd.

Further information: Pam Abas, Director, 378-2974, and Sharon Kohlts, Publicity, 377-6369.

The Talkies —
exhilarates both intellect but succeeds in boring the audience to tears.
Only when allowed to view the trials and tribulations characteristics of the marriage of Mason and Caan can we see the true acting ability of these two. Mason, helplessly and rejected from her husband, is superb. Her portrayal of pain, anguish, and agony, which speaks from actual experiences, is unquestionably the real thing. Caan is equally as powerful as Mason, though in not the same light. If you insist on seeing this movie, see for the drama because there isn't much humor.

Neil Simon's autobiographical screen adaptation of his Broadway hit is the most daring attempt Simon has made yet to blend drama and comedy. He succeeds, Simon toyed briefly with drama in his past efforts, but none have been as balanced, witty, and poignant as Chapter Two. Mirsha Mason, Simon's real-life second wife, delivers perhaps the most demanding role of her career with sensibility and style. James Caan, not exactly well known for his comedic flair, handles this genre-switching between comedy and drama with charming ease.
Valerie Harper still looks as thin as a Cambodian refugee, but she and Joe Bologna lend the lead characters solid support.

There are many irritants in Neil Simon's latest exercise in slick, middle-class mindlessness.
Pepisco is apparently underwriting the film; Pepsi Cola and Pepsi-Lite (in bottles and cans) star in many scenes. Mrs. Neil Simon (Mirsha Mason) gets to wear a new Oscar De La Renta outfit for each new scene, while James Caan gets to make fun of women who dress differently than Mrs. Simon. Mrs. Simon and Mr.
Caan, tearfully rehearsing Mr.
Simon'saesthetic stichotomy, are trapped in a film whose plot and pace are predictable and small's and whose photography is by Chamber of Commerce (the site of St. George, Carribbean).
The only relief for BSU students is the knowledge that this movie is too new and too expensive to, be included in this year's campus film series—all too notable for its fondness for such fluff.

Night on the Town—
(*) Bouquet—For good ol' loud rock and roll, this is the place to go. The band, "Ace Pancakes," plays everything from The Rolling Stones to the Cars, and plays them well. The dance floor is crowded but the music is worth it.
On Monday nights local punk, rock, and jazz bands are featured.
There is a $1 cover charge on Friday and Saturday.
Due to intoxication we didn't make it to the Hideout which we understand has a pretty good hard rock band. We did visit the Flip Club and Gamekeeper which sometimes have bands, but not on the evening of our pilgrimage.
We feel our thorough research has proven two things: there still are good places to dance to live music in this city, and five Margaritas on a school night are not conducive to a scholarly attitude the following morning.
