Positions Open in ASB Committees

by Laurie Johnston
Associate Editor

If you have always wanted to exercise a little power but the lack of campaign funds has nipped this urge in the bud, the solution to your problem is at hand. You can get involved in decision making at Boise State University without hanging a single campaign poster.

About twenty positions with varying degrees of power are open in the administrative area of the Associated Student Body.

Mary Lou Virgil, student assistant to the personnel director, said a wide variety of committees need student members to sit with faculty and administrative members to make decisions affecting Boise State. Depending upon your particular inclination, you can have a say in the details of this year's commencement, the modeling of the snack bar or the policies governing the Arbiter. Other openings include the Tenure Committee—Arts and Sciences, which handles complaints toward tenured teachers and faculty evaluations; the Financial and Management Committee which assists the Associated Student Body Business Manager.

The Personnel Selection Committee, the Affirmative Action Committee, the Academic Grievance Committee and the Alumni Board of Directors all have openings for student members.

Foundation Needs Kidneys

by Cecilia Kelly
Arbiter Staff

"You can’t take it with you," as the old saw goes, but the Rocky Mountain Kidney Foundation can offer you an opportunity to leave it behind.

The Foundation’s Idaho branch is vitally concerned with spreading the message that kidney donors are greatly in demand here. Of the large number of people throughout the state afflicted with kidney disease, some 100 (800 must spend hours each week undergoing costly dialysis treatment.

One such person, Boise State’s Dr. John Caylor, described the program as "a marvelous opportunity" to help others. Caylor, a BSU Professor of History, who underwent a successful kidney transplant some time ago, spends three afternoons weekly on a dialysis machine.

Though he would not now benefit from the program, he enthusiastically promotes the Foundation’s efforts to increase donor program membership. "It’s a case of what you get when you give," Caylor said. He explained that although there is currently a 6-month wait in Idaho for kidney donations, many patients could tolerate dialysis and will die without transplants.

Caylor also pointed out how easy it is to become a donor. As of January 1, 1978, all Idaho driver’s licenses issued bear an extra category at the bottom marked "Organ Donor.

The license may indicate his desire to donate a kidney upon his death, and this, along with the Foundation’s Uniform Donor Card, will insure that the gift of an organ will be used.

The cards may be obtained through St. Alphonsus Hospital, which sponsors the program locally, or on campus by contacting Dr. Caylor at his office in the BSU History Department.

In 1978 alone, there were 3,200 Idaho driver’s licenses in the U.S. 800 of these were from patients’ relatives and the remainder were new. It is estimated that there are currently 14,000 Americans medically eligible for transplants but that only a fraction of that number will find donors. Because of limited tolerance for dialysis, it is possible that many of these people will die.

Morrison Center Gets Boost

(BSU)—The University Community Arts Association announced Nov. 11, that Boise businessman J.R. Simplot has donated $1 million toward the construction of the Morrison Center for the Fine and Performing arts that will be built on the Boise State University campus.

The center will be located along the Boise River between the Towers dormitory and the BSU Business Building.

"We view this gift as a sign of faith in the institution, and we certainly believe it goes a long way toward making the Morrison Center a reality," said BSU president John Keiser.

The building will include a 2,000 seat performing theatre along with classrooms offices, recital halls, and studios for music and theatre arts departments.

The projected cost of the Center is between $12.5-13 million. The classroom portion will be funded from $8.2 million in state appropriations while the performing theatre will be paid for by private donations.

The Simplot contribution is the third large donation toward the building. In June of 1979 the Morrison Family Foundation contributed $3.5 million. This summer Funday, a Boise fundraising organization, also donated $350,000.

This winter the university will ask the legislature to appropriate an additional $2.5 million to complete the state funding for the classroom portion. The Simplot gift brings the private total raised to over $4.8 million.

President Keiser said he hopes private fund-raising will be complete by the end of the year, and that the legislature will appropriate the final amount this winter.

"I’m confident that if the private monies are there by the end of the year, that the public monies will follow," Keiser said.

Motorcyclists Want Fair Shake

By Marianne Flagg
News Editor

Despite attempts made by the movie industry, television, and law enforcement agencies to portray them as leather-jacketed terrorists, motorists are, on the whole, up-standing and uninfected harrassed citizens.

David Anderson, president of the Boise district of A Brotherhood Against Totalitarian Enactments (ABATE), said that the American public needs to be re-educated in its evaluation of motorcyclists, and that law enforcement agencies should cease their "harrassment" of the biking public.

Anderson said helmet laws and citations for excessive noise are the most common methods of harrassment.

Although Idaho's helmet law has been repealed by the Legislature, officials in the Division of Traffic Safety in Washington have, in recent weeks, said that they would like to see the implementation of helmet laws in all 50 states.

Anderson accused the Boise Police Department of handing out "easy tickets" to motorcyclists for violation of noise emission standards, and said the only difference between car and motorcycle standards is in "the way they are enforced."

"They give tickets for the slightest muffler modification," Anderson said.

Boise Police Department Detective R. Worley said the department does not discriminate between car drivers and motorcycle riders when writing citation "We don't single them (motorcyclists) out any more than we do anyone else," he said. "We look for noisy vehicles."

Motorcyclists may also stop because they call attention to themselves by the way they ride, rather than conscious effort on the part of the officer to stop a motorcyclist.

Worley said. "They give tickets for the noise on their motorcycle while riding, rather than the danger the helmets themselves pose to riders."

"Helmets may prevent a collision, but they will break you neck," he said. "We need educate people about how to ride and teach them how to fall!" they don't present a danger themselves or others, Anders said.

Anderson said Boise motorists need to respect the views of town motorcycle riders.

"They biggest myth abot motorcyclists is that we all belong to a motorcycle club or gang, and that's just not true," Anderson said. "We have a lot of public relations work to do with the public."

"The C.C Rider, Easy Rider, Hell's Angels image and the multitude of motorcycle movies and television shows" have given riders a highly negative public image they neither need or deserve, he said.
Anderson said the vast majority of motorcyclists have jobs and may conduct public service projects such as giving Christmas toys to needy children.
"People have to stop, when they see someone on a motorcycle, thinking they're Barney Badass," he said.
According to the Hurt Report, 60 percent of all accidents involving motorcyclists are caused by motorists, Anderson said. He said the great majority of the motorist-caused accidents occurred because a driver did not see an approaching motorcycle.
"It's pretty depressing when there's not much I can do when someone pulls in front of me and then later says he didn't see me," Anderson said.
These accidents could be greatly reduced, he said, if motorists would make a concerted, conscious effort to be on the lookout for cyclists on the road. The biking public, in turn, must do everything possible to be visible to motorists and to stay out of their blind spots.
Due to the widespread availability and use of motorcycles in any state in the country, including California, Anderson said.
Due to the widespread availability and use of motorcycles in Idaho, driver education programs and motorcycle safety programs should be upgraded and more stringently practiced.
Motorcycle safety "is not being funded in Idaho," Anderson said.
"Only one-quarter of the Idaho Driver Education instructor's manual contains information on bike safety," he said.
He supports mandatory helmet laws for bike riders under the age of 18, and said all youths interested in riding a motorcycle should first undergo training on how to ride a bike safely, while they are still in school.

Whose Liberty?

On November 15 Idaho’s anti-paraphernalia law will go into effect. The anti-paraphernalia law will most likely serve to drive a few small businesses across the Snake River into Ontario, or out of business completely. The law will also serve to break down individual freedom by providing policemen with a new source of probable cause to search people and their property, and since anything from alligator tails to cigarette papers can be interpreted as paraphernalia, such probable cause won’t be hard for a policeman bent on a search to dream up. Of course one thing the law won’t do is prevent sinners from smoking marijawns, or using any other drugs, because before paraphernalia was big business it was homemade, and it will be homemade again. Cigarette papers can be paraphernalia, but what is going to follow? The freedom of expression, the freedom not to worship if you choose, the freedom to read what you like or see the kinds of plays and movies that you like which doesn’t apply just to sin, but to any books or movies that deal with topics or ideas the Moral Majority can’t stomach could very well be in danger from the new moralists.

The new right swept into office with the promise that it would bring back the freedoms we enjoy without thought now may be missed only when the kids out driving around in the V.W., but doesn’t envision the lawmaker’s definition of honest citizen probably envisions dad, mom and Mordred.”

So what is the ABBUSU doing? If this question puzzles you as you walk between classes on your way to get a pizza, or before you fall asleep at night, read on.

ALCOHOL AWARENESS: A committee meets regularly to determine the best way to bring about a multi-faceted program of alcohol education on the BSU campus. Approaches discussed include counseling, classes, hotline, and seminars. If you have any suggestions or ideas, contact ASBSU Senator Helen Loovy.

Organization of the ABBUSU lobby staff continues and work is proceeding on gathering information about issues, legislators’ backgrounds and approaches, and university and student needs. We are considering forming a student-run, wide organization consisting of 28 students responsible for Idaho’s 28 legislative districts. These 28 people would contact political people in their legislative districts to contact their lobbyist concerning critical issues. Call Debbie Mills, Lobby Director, if you are interested in participating.

KBSU: The station continues to strengthen the Broadcast Board. An engineer, needed for upkeep and maintenance as well as the installation of the higher wattage, demands some creative approaches to the necessary funding and the station is working with on students, faculty, and administration. Give a call to Tom Irons, KBSU Manager and give your ideas to him.

PROGRAMS BOARD: With a successful Homecoming under its belt, the Board continues to work on features and activities, while keeping the films going on. The term of all Board members December 31 so applications are now being accepted for all positions. Contact your ASBSU office, Chris Eyron at the Student Programs Board office for more information.

The contract for next year is now under review with recommendendations due at the next State Board Meeting. Because of a change in the Board’s meetings, there is not much time to work on constructive approaches to the board plan, but it is not too soon to think about ways in which you think improvement could be made. Talk to Sally Thomas about your ideas.

The ABBUSU is beginning to work on next year’s contract. If you have suggestions or ideas, contact Helen Hutt, Health Advisory Board Chair.

TUTION AND FEES: Through Associated Students of Idaho, ASIDU is represented on the Board of Trustees with an attorney to discuss the legal options available to students. An opinion will be available in a week or two, and that opinion, combined with the Board’s sources, will determine what—if any—course of action is to be taken.

PAVILION: Students sit on the Pavilion Policy Committee and on the Student Activities Committee. The Community Committee meetings are open to all interested students. Contact Roy Michel, ASBSU Senator, for information.

SPACE does not permit me to mention any of the other one-hundred plus clubs on behalf of the students. If you want to know more about any, just go to all of them and ask questions.

The Good News Days

by Arthur Hoppe

I woke up on the morning after the election last week to the sounds of my wife, Glynda, cheerily singing "America, The Beautiful" down in the kitchen. The sun was shining and, sure enough, when I reached the breakfast nook, beaming at me from my plate were two perfect double-yolked eggs.

"Gosh, Glynda," I couldn't help saying, "that's sure great being an American again!"

"Yes, dear," she agreed, expertly rolling dough for a scrumptious apple pie, "I love being feared and respected all over the world."

"And strong at home, too," I reminded her. "Gee, I feel sound enough as a dollar."

"Speaking of dollars, dear," she said, wiping her hands on her starched white apron, "would you mind if I quit my job as chief of neurosurgery at the university? I want to devote full time to taking care of you and our two wonderful children, Malphasia and Mordred."

"Hook, no, darling," I said, "I believe it's the job of us men to keep you girls happy. And don't worry your pretty little head about the money. Our 30 percent unemployment and 30 percent unemployability.

Well, speak of the cute little devil. Malphasia bounced into the room wearing new saddle shoes, a plaid skirt, a cashmere cardigan and cultured pearls.

"Hi, Mom; hi, Dadyskins," she said. "Is it okay if I have my Moral Betterment gang over tonight for Bosco and Oreos? We're making up Thanksgiving baskets for the poor and give people."

"That's nice, dear," said Glynda. "But I think they prefer being called Negroes. Anyway, if it's all right with you and your father..."

"I don't know," I said, frowning. "I was going to do it together at McDonald's and take in a movie. There are a lot of swell double features around. 'Gidget Goes to Washington' is at the Roxy and it's Dish Night."

"Have I seen it three times, Dad," said Mordred, coming in from the garage and rubbing a manly hand through his crew cut hair. "It's all right with your father, isn't it?"

"I won't," I promised with a smile. "I guess it's time for me to go down to the office and type up a little column about the results of the presidential election."

"I have a nice day, dear," said Glynda, kissing me on the cheek. "And don't forget the parade."

"Right," I promised a With a smile, for the next four years.

Boise State Fans Travel to Cal-Poly San Luis Obispo

So the Broncos have their fifth Big Sky Conference football championship sewn up.

The problem is this: if they expect to play any games after one or two more wins out of the November 22, the Boise State Broncos, in addition, would have to qualify somewhere. This is no small order, except for the fact they qualified last season with a mere struggle to qualify alone.

In fact, the Broncos' next foe is the hungry-for-revenge Cal Poly-SLO team, which has its own counterpart to BSU's four Horsemen on offense. BSU stomped Cal Poly at home, 56-14, last season.

In this Saturday's 3:30 p.m. MT contest, the Mustangs would love to repay Boise State for spoiling Poly's chances for Division II playoffs six years ago.

Big Sky football coaches Jim Criss and Matt Yurachek are the Mustangs' are "probably, year in and year out, the best non-league opponent that we have."

The 11-year rivalry between the teams has "always been extremely competitive, especially down there (San Luis Obispo)," he added.

BSU's leading receiver, David Hughes, was named to the prestigious all-star games this year: the steadiest was the running back, who leads the Big Sky Conference in rushing.

Field Hockey Readies for Season Finale

(BSU) Getting ready for the season’s end, the Bronco field hockey team travels to Nampa, ID, this weekend for the final tournament of the season. The Broncos, 10-7-4 on the season, will participate in the NCVSSA Conference Tournament in the culminating action of the 1980 season.

The Broncos open action Friday at 8:30 against Washington State University, a team BSU has tied 1-1 and lost 2-0. At 1:30, the Broncos face Southern Oregon State College, another team BSU tied 1-1 earlier in the season.

On Saturday, the Broncos face Oregon College of Education at 10:30 and Pacific Lutheran University at 1:30. BSU has not faced either team this year.

“...understand both teams are improved over last year and both should be good games,” commented coach Jayne VanVansenhove. “I’m glad for the rematch with SOCC because the last time we didn’t play very well. The game against WSU should be a defensive game, as usual,” she added.

“We will need a total team effort this weekend. If we can generate some offense and stiffen up our defense, we should do well. The pressure of qualifying for nationals is off now, so we can go out and play at full force,” stated the coach.

The Broncos placed third behind Northwest Nazarene College and the University of Idaho last weekend in a qualifying tournament in Moscow, ID. This all-important tournament decided the Region IX representative to the national tournament at the University of Southern Illinois at Edwardsville, Nov. 21-22.

BSU dropped a 3-1 decision to NCC on Friday and suffered a 5-1 loss at the hands of the Vandals. NCC defeated the U of I 3-1, and will advance to the national tournament.

“Things just didn’t go right for us against NCC,” commented coach Jayne VanVansenhove. “We had a lot of injuries that hurt us tremendously and a couple of our players were playing with the flu.”

“If we can execute better overall game than we did. We were very upright and nervous,” added the coach. Tracy Allen scored the lone BSU goal on a Laura Rolette assist.

Volleyball

(BSU) Downcast by the losing end of a hopeful season, BSU’s volleyball team travels to Pocatello this Saturday for a 3:00pm match against Idaho State University and a 5:00pm match against BYU’s junior varsity team. The Broncos, 15-15 on the season, battled BYU two weekends ago at the BSU Invitational, dropping the decision 15-4, 15-10, 15-7.

“After failing to qualify for the regions in our league, we were disappointed. We are hoping to end our season on a positive note,” said BSU coach Darlene Bailey. “We went three games with ISU last time we played and did’t execute well. They took advantage of the situations and played a very aggressive game.”

“NNC, however, had a much better overall game than we did. We were very upright and nervous, and didn’t execute well. They took advantage of the situations and played a very aggressive game,” added the coach. Tracy Allen scored the lone BSU goal on a Laura Rolette assist.

BSU to Hold X-C Regional

(BSU) In a near duplication of a meet in mid-October, the Boise State University cross country team will be hosting the 1980 District 7 cross country championships Saturday, Nov. 15, at noon. Seventeen teams in total will be running a 10,000 meter course at Eagle Hills Golf Course just outside of Boise.

Conference championships in the Big Sky and Western Athletic Conferences will be decided at the meet. The Big Sky will have all the WAC will also have eight and Nevada-Las Vegas will be running as an independent.

“We are pleased to be hosting this meet and expect an outstanding race on Saturday,” BSU track coordinator Ed Jacoby said. “The University of Texas, El Paso is of course the odds on favorite to win the meet as well as win the NCAA meet.” Jacoby said. UTEP is in the WAC and has an outstanding team of runners.

Jacoby said Nevada-Reno is the favorite to win the Big Sky title but added that Weber State and Montana are also strong contenders. Montana, especially, has been running very well lately. Jacoby will enter seven runners who have competed all season for BSU. The seven are Dave Steffens, Brian Gough, Tom Rothenberge, Tony Timmerman, Howard Conley, Kent Newman and Dan Will.

“...more than anything that, because of the disillusionment, we might not have qualified.”

Somewhere, though, the Broncos did qualify, and this weekend in Seattle, Smith and her teammates will get another shot at proving themselves.

How does Neff feel about qualifying for Nationals? “I think it’s fantastic,” he said. “I expected we would qualify without doubt, and I expected we would finish (in Regionals) where we did.”

Neff, however, hardly takes all the credit to Boise State’s first trip ever to the Nationals as a team.

“I have no delusions about what I have done, I have given all the credit to Basil—he recruited these athletes, and he has brought them to where they are today.”

Regardless, both Neff and Dahlstrom, not to mention the athletes themselves, have to be pleased with the success Boise State has experienced this season.

But the Broncos are hardly complacent; Neff looks for his team to finish high in Seattle. And with the return of a healthy Aronson to the squad, it seems that Boise State should fare well.

“We’ve got a lot of good players. We’re not going in with the attitude that we’re going to be in the top ten or the top five,” said Neff. “We’re going in with the attitude that we can place as high as we can, not as individuals.”

Maybe for once the Broncos will get a break. It certainly couldn’t happen at a more opportune time.
ENTERTAINMENT

The Northwest Dance Symposium, being held November 13-16, will feature modern dance by both the Bill Evans Dance Company and the duet of Karen Attix and Virginia Matthews.

Through national dance companies and internationally known dance artists, the Symposium will provide a showcase of excellence for the public.

Talkies

To say the least, this movie is bizarre, though not devoid of entertainment. Dennis Christopher stars—and there is good character development here, in addition to some inconsistent acting. If you're looking for hyperbolic horror in this one, forget it. If you want to see a different spin on an overdone theme, go see it.

Anthony Burt () (1/2)

(How appropriate a title, in light of recent political events!) Fade to Black is about a greezy, creepy named Binford, a movie freak, who looks like he works for the Moral Majority of Dan T. D. Like them, Fade to Black is relatively big-budget, which is odd for a horror film. And the films. Even the supporting characters look like famous movie stars. Binford's mother, for example, is a screamingly funny replica of Shelley Winters: what a delight to watch Binford let wheelchair Shelley topple down a flight of stairs and smash her skull! And yet, the money's made a glossy film, an artsy one. Horror films need immersion. Give me Drive-In Massacre! (Now there's a political thought...)

GARFIELD™ By Jim Davis

It's great to see you, Grandpa. Why, I'll bet you're still the best ratter in Middletown.

I gave that up.

Why?

Ever try a rat?

Tell me about my youth, Grandpa.

You were born in the kitchen of Mama Leonis' Italian restaurant. You prollyched in the pellucine, rolled in the ravioli and ate all the lasagna in sight.

I must have done some eating records.

Not to mention a few health codes.

This is great to see you! Ha ha! Why, I'll bet you're still the best ratter in Middletown.

It's great to see you, Grandpa.

The amazing history of man's search for flight, here recorded in text and a wealth of illustrations.

The frontiers town of hell, a place where everyone has his own ideas about law and order...

...One man against a jungle of espionage, ancient customs, and a mission to survive. A novel as exciting as it is suspenseful.

How much can we shape our own sexual and emotional lives?

From actual diaries & memoirs, Gillian Avery has created a picture of the 18th Century England far more vivid than any historian's summary.

This book is addressed to parents whose children are handicapped in any way—mentally, emotionally, or physically.

...the frontier town of hell, a place where everyone has his own ideas about law and order.

This is not yet another book on how to play bridge but, rather, by description and by analysis, a vivid study of how the top players make the top contracts.

Romantic, energetic, at times wickedly funny, it is the humorous tale of the complications of a young Englishman.

They lived dangerously moving swiftly by night, frequently cutting telegraph lines that might reveal their purpose and destiny.
