Students may subsidize tax cut

Stromy economy could lead to more education holdbacks, increase likely

By Brandon Flaig

One of the state legislature's largest budget boosts in recent memory could lead to more education holdbacks, fee increases and even more tax cuts.

Governor Otter's budget includes $103 million for education, $15 million of which is designated for the Idaho Bicentennial Scholarship Fund.

"If we were to hold back any portion of that money, we would need to work on the budget to make sure we were able to do that," said Rep. Kenneth Robison (R-Bolse), chair of the House Education Committee.

The reduction, only a small percentage of the current budget, could change if future economic conditions warrant it.

Women's fitness event draws 16,000 participants from all over

By Ashley Gettings

The Boise State women's basketball team will host the annual Women's Fitness Celebration this weekend hosted over 16,000 participants.

The Celebration originated in the 1980s as part of a Boise State United Women's Conference. The Conference has hosted this event for the past 25 years.

The Celebration offers free and low-cost workshops in the health and wellness in any form. The Celebration is not just about exercise but for the participants but for their friends and families.

Celebrate Hope, the Celebration beneficiary program provides and educates to community members.

In the past two years, the "Get Good" program has been the most popular. The "Get Good" program focuses on providing food for those in need. It has a 90 percent placement rate for our graduates.

"We are looking for volunteers to participate on its Lectures Committee. The Center for New Directions is sponsoring the annual Women's Fitness Celebration. This year, the Celebration will be held on October 5th and 6th at 9 a.m.

The Celebration is about developing, planning, and putting on lectures for the community. It is responsible for developing, planning, and putting on lectures for the community.

The Boise State University's Women's Center creates new theater group for students, faculty and staff interested in theater. The group is called "Theatre of the Mind" and is open to all majors.

The "Anne Audain Achievement Award" is a $1,000 grant that is given to female high school students who balance a commitment to community involvement and leadership and community leadership.

The Celebration Education Program, "get good," is a free program designed for adults and children who want to improve their health and wellness. The program provides and endorses a variety of community outreaches including: "got go?", "got food?", "Girls on the Run" and the "Anne Audain Achievement Award".

College: A four-year bender

The study further confirms our stereotypes of our college student counterparts. High blood alcohol levels and binge drinking are seen as hip and trendy for college students today. This is probably because it is accepted as a social norm. Furthermore, I believe it is accepted because people think it is acceptable for college students to act like this. This is probably because of the novelty of the opportunity to do these activities. I am about to go to college and I am very excited. I am also a little worried about what my college experience will be like. I am hoping that I will be able to make the most of my college experience. I am also hoping that I will be able to find a good balance between my social life and my academic life.

Money, that's what I want

By Brandon Nally

Since it's almost the weekend, I decided to go out and see what's going on at the Boise State University. I went to the student center and got a takeout lunch at the food court. Then I went to the bookstore and bought a new book for my class. I also went to the student union and checked out the new movies. I saw that the student union was showing a new movie every day, and I thought that was pretty cool. I decided to watch the movie that was playing that day.

It is just me, or is it hard to find any tradition when it comes to Boise State sports? I’ve tried to find some interesting sights around the university that has anything traditional about it. I look at other colleges around the nation. I look at Texas A&M, Florida State, and Notre Dame. I see all the stuff they do for each season or individual games and how the students get involved. Sometimes there are even turn events that happen before certain games. How they do things on the field or in the stands. Then I look at Boise State and think why we can’t get behind and call our own. Do we have the tradition?

I don’t know if I am doing this but I feel like the tradition, if it is not traditional at all. To me it feels generic. I may get an undergrad inside football stadium, or I see the blue turf, but I mean that isn’t a tradition.

I see other schools and I see other things involved. How they have certain traditions. We can get behind and call our own. But I hate the blue turf. To me, it’s not traditional at all. To me it’s an obvious gimmick. We have a perfect opportunity to get rid of that.

We also have the tradition of playing Oregon and Utah. If you call that tradition, then good, go ahead and do that. To me it’s generic. It’s not something that has no tradition. It’s the fault of the teams, not the schools. The schools can’t help that the two teams are close. I think Boise State should move to the WAC. That is a conference that has its history and its tradition.

There are plenty of cities in Idaho that Boise State can move to and play. If that’s what you want to call tradition then go ahead. But the problem is that they just don’t want to do it. Boise has a lot of points in the city and the football stadium. They can’t imagine playing football in a town of 50,000 people and losing.

But something that has no tradition to me is the student fans. If you ask any student about Boise State and tradition, they will say there is no tradition. We don’t have any. We don’t even have a tradition of going over to Chili’s at halftime.

California school’s notoriety could improve Boise State recruiting By Clinton T. Hahn Special to the Arbiter Boise State’s football team got its wish granted when it moved to the WAC — a better profile opponents as well as increased recruiting power to adopt as this year’s bandwagon Cinderella team.

Sophomore Camile Widdison, who is one of the four returning seniors who helped the Lady Broncos win their first game of the season, said in a news release.

"A" is for Antonio Woodfield. Woodfield, a senior quarterback, led Boise State to a 26-23 win over Cal Poly in their season opener.

Other players who should be mentioned are senior guard Andra Smith, who averaged 13.7 points per game last season.

Along with senior Cotnia Pugh and Andra Smith, Vaughan is looking forward to providing leadership and a strong presence on the Lady Broncos bench.

Boise State — Louisiana Tech football game rescheduled

New schedule announced

Boise State Sports Information

The Boise State University — Louisiana Tech University football game, originally scheduled for Nov. 24, will now be played on Nov. 30. Kickoff for the game will be at 11 a.m. (MST) in Ruston, Louisiana.

Boise State Athletic Director Gene Bleymaier, and Louisiana Tech Athletic Director Jim Oakes, announced that the game has been moved to Nov. 30, at 11 a.m. (MST), with kickoff at 11 a.m. (CST).

Boise State and Louisiana Tech have moved up 11 days to make it easier for fans to attend.

The change was made after discussions between the two programs and the Mountain West Conference, which is a co-sponsor of both the Boise State and Louisiana Tech games.

The new game is now scheduled for Nov. 30, with kickoff at 11 a.m. (MST).

Boise State head coach Chris Peterson said the move was made in an effort to accommodate scheduling conflicts.

"We are extremely happy with this move," Peterson said. "It will allow us to better prepare for the upcoming game against Nevada."

CD Review

New ‘Car,” same wacky ride for Giants
By Sarah Stein
Cavalier Daily (U. Virginia)

Let’s play a game. When you hear the name of a rock group blurt out the first five adjectives you think of. Don’t worry, the person next to you won’t mind. Ready? Time we go. They Might Be Giants.

If, you fail to say that the phrase “They Might Be Giants” refers to a musical ensemble comprised of John Flansburgh and John Linnell and a number of other names including Mike Doughty of Soul Coughing. Together, these guys have created what first album listeners years old the CD Working Undercover for the Man and the second album, Mink Car. The latter album appears in number 17 on this album’s track list.

They Might Be Giants has dedicated its 15-year career to producing what often is referred to as “geek rock,” a silly combination of catchy tunes that can never be put into a single genre of music, but will be sure to stick in your head for the next 10 years. This description falls true for the Mink Car. With a variety of amusing visuals and witty wordplay, Mink Car will — if nothing else — catch a listener’s attention.

To introduce the band’s bizarre lyrics, the first track on the album is “Bangs,” a song entirely based on a women’s hairstyle that was popular in the 1980s. Some other highlights include “Yeh Yeh” and “Mink Car.” “Yeh Yeh” comes complete with a mambo bass line, catchy lyrics and an infectious need to tap your foot and bob your head.

The title track, “Mink Car,” on the other hand, more resembles something Mr. Rogers might have created after a session with Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young. It brings to mind visions of happy Brady Bunch children holding a double “thumbs up” and swaying from side to side with a look of absolute tranquility. That is, until you listen to the lyrics, which chant, “I got hit by a mink car/hit by a mink car driven by a guitar/And the silver chauffeur says/that it’s all in your head/when you’re 24-carat dead.”

Just when you thought the album couldn’t get any further off the wall, “Wicked Little Critta” rolls in on his mini-bike, and “She Thinks She’s Edith Head” pinpoints that high school girl who went on to develop a foreign accent to go with her ego.

Whether or not Mink Car is worth the $18 and change that you will shell out for it depends on how seriously you take it. If you pick up this album with hopes that a handsome young pop star will serenade you with his generic love ballads, then you may appreciate “Another First Kiss” but that will be about all.

If you pick it up expecting songs similar to Depeche Mode’s early “How to Save a Life” you will be pleased with “Man, It’s So Loud In Here,” the album’s technicolour techno-pop. Furthermore, if you are among the ranks of individuals who just adore the movie “Child’s Play,” then you will coo at the endless references to Chuckie in “Cyclops Rock.”

Whatever you want to hear, Mink Car has at least some of it. Everyone will be able to find one song on this album to call “great.” They Might Be Giants has created another wacky ride for Giants.
