Ruch faces scrutiny
Legislators list complaints against BSU President

By Dana Kelly

Ruch has said he is ready to resign, although Peterson is the driving force behind a petition calling for Ruch's resignation.

"We don't have a bank of litmus that matches your bank of money," he said.

"We can't blame you for feeling like you've been short-changed," Peterson said.

"There are things that Ruch cannot restore," Peterson said.

"There is no question that Ruch is the one who has brought us here," said Sen. Nate Peterson, R-Boise, who graduated with a 3.0 GPA from Boise State.

Peterson agreed with ASBSU leadership on some, "but I think there needs to be some fence mending between the administration and the student body."
Budget cuts to limit campus transportation

Third shuttle has to be dropped from schedule

Bea C. Harris

Usage of the campus shuttle buses dropped by 3,100 last year, with budget cuts only part of the reason, said Boise State Shuttle director Cathy Safety. In the previous three years, the shuttle has dropped by 20%

Two shuttle routes originally served the campus beginning with the program's inception, however, during years of peak usage the then-student government asked that an additional third shuttle be created.

Following years of steady increases, ridership dropped off.

Safety says, in part because of the completion of the Student Union. As a result, the program was restructured to get the shuttle frequency to 2 per hour.

Currently, these buses have relatively light loads, according to Safety. He says he's requested to see a half-hour shuttle schedule.

The Boise State shuttle route spans the campus, operating 7 a.m. until 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 7 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Fridays. During the academic year, the route is 2 per hour and the shuttle frequency is 9 per hour on Saturdays.

Due to contractual obligations, the number of buses cannot be increased.

With Boise State and the nation's higher education systems facing serious financial difficulties, many schools are looking for ways to cut costs and redirect funds to other priorities. Boise State University is no exception, and the administration is taking steps to reduce its budget.

Administrators attempt to stamp out student dissent with false unity

Boise State University President Charles Ruch has faced criticism from students and faculty over the university's budget cuts. Despite Ruch's efforts to present a united front, some students remain skeptical of the administration's actions.

Cuts present challenges for the University

"The following is a letter to the students of the Boise State University community." (Editorial)

In early December I presented a letter to the students of the Boise State University community. In the letter, I outlined my vision for the future of the university and explained how we are working to ensure its long-term sustainability.

"I believe that it is our responsibility to ensure the continued success of our institution. In order to do so, we must make difficult decisions that benefit the students and faculty who make up our community."

"As we move forward, I ask that you join me in supporting these initiatives and helping us achieve our goals."

tage tag line that sums up all the anguish that Boise State students feel over the news this week that President Robert Ruch is stepping down.

We are always looking for the quality students who can help us build our program," says Kevin Riehnenbach, the Founding President of Boise State's student Government. "But it is not all work for example about all the students are going to San Diego for this years Regional Meeting. Boise State misuses scholarship money

BSU students who signed up for the Idaho legislature this year, Pedersen must be graduated on or at least a 3.0 grade point average. They have 10 scholarships that are available to all freshmen and sophomores. The BSU administration reportedly offered that the money would be used to match the scholarship money, but not the scholarship money, that was given by the Idaho legislature.

The Boise States wants to be the first to offer matching scholarships. "That's the best part of the scholarship," said BSU President Robert Ruch.

Public radio show gains popularity

In Glass does something most people don’t very often do: he listens.

Glass said, “The American Life” is the first radio show to be distributed to a national audience by Public Radio International (PRI) that is produced by an American company. Glass said the show “is not just a longer version of an existing show,” but instead “is a show that gives newsmakers an opportunity to tell their stories with a more in-depth approach.”

On lighter notes, Glass mentioned some of the show’s quirkiest stories, such as a woman in Los Angeles who had a $30,000 bottle of perfume that she claimed was a super-smelling, the teller at a gas station who claimed her dog could work at the cash register. Glass said that the show is not, however, a show about people who let their dog do their jobs.

Field's new film, “In the Bedroom,” is about a couple who purchase a private investigator would use to track down a man who claimed to be a private investigator in their city, a couple who grow marijuana plants, a couple who fix their boat, and a couple who grow their boat with some moorage. The couple then let their dog do their jobs.

Glass said that the show is not, however, a show about people who let their dog do their jobs. Instead, it is a show that gives newsmakers an opportunity to tell their stories with a more in-depth approach.
