Former student says her right to free speech was violated

By Andy Benson
The Arbiter

A former student at Boise State University said she was suspended from the university as a result of allegations made by university officials and that she filed a lawsuit against the university for violation of her rights to free speech.

The former student, who asked not to be identified, said she was suspended from Boise State in April 2002 for allegations of "violating the standards of academic behavior." She said she was suspended because she had written a critical essay about the university's academic standards.

She said she was told by university officials that she had violated the university's code of conduct and that she had to resign from the university or face expulsion.

She said she was also told that she could not return to the university after the autumn semester and that she would have to take classes at a community college.

The former student said she was suspended because she had written a letter to the university's president, Dr. Bob Kibler, expressing her concerns about the university's academic standards.

She said she was told that the university had received numerous complaints about her writing and that she had to resign from the university or face expulsion.

Voting does make a difference

Since the 2000 elections, life in America has been quite different. The 2004 election was no different. The atmosphere of the election, the candidates, even the nation itself, was very much the same. Many decisions have been made or are at some time expected to be made, depending on your point of view. The selection of the government, the government itself, is very important. We do not have a government, as the government we expect to have. On the contrary, we have a system that is not fair to everyone. We are not sure how to change that system. The best we can do is to try to create a system that is fair to everyone.

I am very unhappy after trying to make sense of the BroncoWeb online negotiation site. I could not find the correct change section for my current course. I turned in due dates for my assignments, but the grades were not calculated on the site. I received a failing grade for my first exam, and another failing grade for my second exam. I would like to know what I need to do to pass my class. I have been working on this assignment since I signed up, but I have not been able to get it right. I am not sure what I need to do to pass my class.

I was told as a child that wherever you go at home there are three things: reading, painting, and something else. I was told ever since that whenever you eat something, there are three things: reading, painting, and something else.

Preseason pick: Broncos top WAC

BSU ranked as high as 30th nationally

By Phil Dayley
The Arbiter

This time of year preseason college football publications, Web sites and newspapers all predict the fate of the nation's top college football teams. Or in reverse, how bad the nation's worst teams.

Some publications only pick the top five teams, while others rate more than 100 Division I-A programs. This summer has been unlike any other for Boise State.

Collegesports.com predicts the WAC has stability for the first time in a decade and picks Boise State to place first in the conference.

However, it is now the best pick team.

WAC.com, the WAC's Web site, has Boise State as its No. 1 pick for the fourth straight season.

Boise State's position is even more impressive, considering it is an honor not only given to Boise State, but to Fresno State by national champions-the same publication that ranked Arizona State 28th in the nation.

The Broncos play the Rainbowdoms in Fayfairville on Sept. 7 and are ranked 10th by sports analyst Phil Steele, but on the other end of the spectrum, a lonely 51st by the Sporting News, who have been more consistent to the Broncos in recent years. The Broncos did win their opening game over Eastern Washington, who had only six losses last season.

A look at the seeds of the WAC:

Six quick outdoor trips

By James Patrick Kelly

The Arbiter

With classes beginning Monday, outdoor excursions are not a priority for students. But with Boise’s close proximity to great hiking, camping, and mountain biking, it doesn’t take long for one to get away from the stress of school. Here are six picks for outdoor enthusiasts with busy schedules.

Hiking: The Boise area has many options for hiking trails. The most popular is the Owyhee canyonlands. Spectacular views of the canyon are available from the Owyhee range and surrounding canyons. Spectacular desert scenery and an oasis-style waterfall can be found in the Boise foothills. The park has a wide variety of campsites available. The climbs are moderate to advanced. The area has something for every style of hiker.

Camping: Southfork Idaho boasts a wide variety of camping possibilities, ranging from mountainous to rugged desert locales. For a quick getaway or an extended weekend trip, the Boise area has something for every style of camp.

Getting there:
- Take the Mountain view and interstate 94 to head south to Kuna. Turn south on the Snake River. Rust-colored bands of sand dunes into the lake is a popular activity. The campsites are ample and spacious ($11 a night). The climbs are moderate to advanced. The area has something for every style of hiker.

Mountain Biking: The Boise area is home to the Boise foothills. The foothills offer excellent mountain biking and hiking possibilities, ranging from moderate to advanced. The area has something for every style of hiker.

Getting there:
- Take Main Street road. Take right (east) on the signed gravel road. Turn left (east) on the signed gravel road. Then go 1.5 miles to end of road. The climbs are moderate to advanced. The area has something for every style of hiker.

Boise Area State Park: 5 miles north of Boise State University. The park is a great place to get a vertical workout. The climbs are moderate to advanced. The area has something for every style of hiker.

Jewel"s latest album, titled "Thearends," is a powerful collection of songs that reflect her personal journey and the lessons she's learned along the way. The album is a testament to her musical growth and her commitment to storytelling. Jewel's voice, as always, is a guiding light, leading the listener through a journey of self-discovery and exploration.

The album opens with "I'll Be," a track that explores themes of resilience and perseverance. It's a song about facing challenges and coming out stronger on the other side. "Independence" is another standout track, where Jewel sings about the importance of self-reliance and the power of being true to oneself.

"The Big Easy" is a bluesy number that captures the essence of New Orleans, a place that has always held a special place in Jewel's heart. The lyrics are rich with imagery, transporting the listener to the vibrant streets and lively music of the city.

"The Love You Love" is a tender ballad that speaks to the depths of human connection and the beauty of unconditional love. Jewel's vocals are heartbreakingly pure, and the music is simple yet emotionally powerful.

"Stomp" is a driving, upbeat track that gets the listener up on their feet. It's a celebration of life and the joy of being alive. The song is a reminder to embrace every moment and to dance in the rain.

Overall, "Thearends" is a deeply personal and emotive album. Jewel has once again demonstrated her mastery of storytelling through music, creating a collection that is both introspective and universal.

Jewel is performing at Sandy Point Beach on Monday, Aug. 26. Tickets can be purchased at all Ticketweb locations or by calling 426-1494 or online at ticketweb.com.
