Faculty Senate proposes longer semesters

By Elizabeth Puckett

The Faculty Senate is proposing a bill to make the spring and fall semesters one semester longer. The current lengths are currently set at 15 weeks, with a week set aside for final exams. The proposed bill would change the semester to 20 weeks, allowing room for 17 weeks of instruction and 3 weeks of final exams. The proposal was developed in the Faculty Senate, with the Faculty Cabinet in support. If passed, the bill would go before the Board of Trustees, which has not yet responded to the proposal.

Others have already spoken out in support of the bill, saying that the current semester lengths are unreasonable. "The current semester lengths are too short for the amount of work that we have to do," said one professor. "We need more time to prepare our lessons and for our students to learn." This sentiment was echoed by many other faculty members, who said that the current semester lengths are not long enough for them to do their work effectively.

While there is support for the bill, there are also those who are opposed. Some say that the extra weeks would mean less time for students to recover from the previous semester and prepare for the next one. "We need to give our students time to relax and recharge," said one professor. "The current semester lengths are already too short for them to do that." Others have concerns about the cost of the proposal. "The proposed 20-week semester would cost an estimated $2,000 per student," said one professor. "That's a lot of money that we would have to come up with." But proponents of the bill say that the longer semester would benefit students in the long run. "A longer semester would allow for better learning outcomes and better preparation for the next semester," said one professor. "It's a small price to pay for a better educational experience for our students." The Faculty Senate plans to continue to promote the bill and work with the Board of Trustees to make the change.

Department debate teams tourney

By Colleen Underwood

The Faculty Senate recently approved a bill to create a debate team for Boise State. The team will be made up of students who are interested in debate, and will compete against other schools around the country. The bill was approved with the support of the Faculty Cabinet, and will now go before the Board of Trustees for a final decision. If approved, the debate team will be housed in the Information and Ticket Office, and will be coached by Brian Johnson, an assistant professor in the Communications Department.

"We are excited to have a debate team at Boise State," said Johnson. "It will give our students an opportunity to compete against other schools and to develop their skills in public speaking and critical thinking." The team will start competing in January, and will compete in several tournaments throughout the year. The bill was supported by the Faculty Senate, and was backed by the Faculty Cabinet.

The debate team will be made up of students who are selected based on their performance in the team's tryouts. The tryouts will be held in the Information and Ticket Office on January 1st. Those interested in trying out should contact Brian Johnson at bjohnson@boisestate.edu for more information.

Laptops available for checkout in SUB

By Colleen Underwood

The Faculty Senate recently approved a bill to make 20 laptops available for checkout in the SUB. The laptops will be available for students to use in the SUB's 24-hour study area and in the SUB's reading room. The laptops will be available on a first-come, first-served basis, and will be checked out for a maximum of two hours at a time. The laptops will be checked out at the SUB's Information Desk, and will be due back at the SUB's Information Desk within two hours of checkout.

The bill was supported by the Faculty Senate, and was backed by the Faculty Cabinet. The Faculty Senate was impressed with the proposal, and felt that it would be a great benefit to the students. "The laptops will be a great help to our students," said one faculty member. "They will be able to work on their assignments wherever they are, and will be able to access the internet from anywhere in the SUB." The Faculty Senate plans to continue to support the bill, and to work with the SUB to make sure that the laptops are available to all students who need them.

Boise State Radio reaps desert wind

By Patrick Kelly

Boise State Radio is currently building a wind-powered radio station in the Nevada desert. The station, which will be called KBSJ 91.3 FM, is being built by the Radio Department at Boise State University. The station is being built as part of a larger project to harness the winds of the desert to provide power for the station. The station is being built by the Radio Department at Boise State University.

"The winds of the desert are strong, and we are using them to power our radio station," said one faculty member. "This is a great way to use the resources available in the desert, and to provide power for our station." In six short years, Chadwick Byrd has turned his ambition to be an accountant into volumes of international business experience. Byrd (BS, account- ing, '99) is the corporate controller for Fred Olsen Cruise Lines, a position he secured in Oslo, Norway.

Byrd, who played strong tenor for the Boise football team from 1995-98, has been in the recreational line of work since his return to Boise. But he's not bored. Byrd said he can deal with the lure of more international travel because his wife Camilla, their daughter, Kayah, and his Russian-trained wife, Svetlana Nagachevskaya from Moldova decided to learn Russian, was living in Russia after earning a master's degree in piano performance from the Russian Academy of Music. Nagachevskaya spent eight months learning English to get her and Svetlana a scholarship to Boise State.

With Parkinson and other Boise State music professors, Nagachevskaya, 28, has gone through the backgrounds of famous composers, studying their music to help her interpret their work. Because she has been mentored by French com- poser Maurice Ravel’s piece "Le Tombeau de Coustou" which he wrote about six friends who died in World War I.

"It helps me to understand their emotion on the level," she said.

"When you are reading the book [about Ravel], his friends become your friends and when you read about them dying you feel like your friends are dying," Parkinson said working with Nagachevskaya on her artistry has been "brilliant." The two have been trained in Russian tradition which is technically exacting.

On her way to completing a master’s degree in piano performance this May, Nagachevskaya learned to speak a computer she had never used before. She only had a few words in English.

She became a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society and has enjoyed every minute at Boise State, which she calls a paradise.

She plans to continue her studies in music at the University of Arizona.

Single parents club picks male president

By Melissa Hancock

Boise State's Single Parenthood club held their first meeting this fall with their first-ever male president last Sunday.

Jake Levinski is the first male officer in the club, but the members consider themselves open-minded to everyone. Levinski is the father of a 4-year-old son named Alexander Levinski and has a lot and provided experience to apply to his studies.

"Alexander has taught me innocence, and patience," Levinski said.

"He helps me with my house, doing an education paper," said freshman Kyle Tate, a spokesman for Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa. "He helps me with my job, what purpose does it serve?"

"It's a self-reported field," said Shawn Heller, the UI associate director of Financial Aid, adding that it is the way of verifying an applicant's past.

"There's someone who knows what your going through, finding this support was like finding a light at the end of the tunnel," Levinski said.

"The kids, who are welcome to all the club events, can interact with other children and find friends," Levinski said. "It's a self-reported field," said Shawn Heller, the UI associate director of Financial Aid, adding that it is the way of verifying an appli-

The question appears on the financial-aid form as a "yes" or "no" field. Applicants with a "yes" answer are flagged. They are then contacted by a "communication" caseworker to retain eligibility.

"Many people in higher education have requested its removal and strongly oppose even hearing the question," said Collins. "If there's no way of policing it, what purpose does it serve?"

The U.S. first chapter of the group for a Sensible Drug Policy group will meet every Monday night to begin canvassing on campus about drug laws.

"Most students don't even know about the Higher Education Act provisions," said freshman Kyle Fritzgerald, a co-founding member of the University of Washington, D.C.-based organization.

"These kinds of changes to the Higher Education Act are usually made at the ends of the current congressional session."

"This kind of changes in the Higher Education Act usually come when the entire Congress is ensembled," said Tate, a spokesman for Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa.

"The group is a Washington, D.C.-based organization that is working to repeal the provision. A resolution in the House of Representatives calls for the provision's removal and has 89 supporters, but legislation on it probably won't be addressed before the end of the current congressional session."

As the war drama seems to reach its conclusion, the United States starts to prepare for the post-war problems. The Bush administration is trying to build up the idea that the United States has saved the world from Saddam Hussein, the supposed threat of the near future.

The war in Iraq that began after the attack on the United States on September 11, 2001, was originally started to overthrow Saddam Hussein, who was suspected of having weapons of mass destruction. The United States, assisted by its allies in the United Nations, invaded Iraq with the goal of removing Saddam Hussein from power. The war lasted for less than a year and resulted in the destruction of the Iraqi military and the capture of Saddam Hussein. The aftermath of the war included the establishment of an interim government in Iraq and ongoing efforts to rebuild the country.

The war in Iraq was a significant event in modern history and had a profound impact on the United States and the world. The war resulted in the deaths of thousands of people, both military and civilian, and had significant economic and political consequences. The war also led to the rise of new political movements and the spread of terrorism. The United States and its allies continue to face a number of challenges in the aftermath of the war in Iraq.

It might only be the fifth game of the year, but the Boise State-Washington State game is already looking like a big one for the Broncos as they fight for the WAC title.

Last week, the Broncos (1-4) looked ready to upset the second-ranked Utah State (3-1) winning a fourth straight conference game with a 28-7 win over the Aggies. Boise State's quarterback Ryan Dinwiddie had another solid performance passing for 182 yards and running for another 42 yards in a game (321) as well as two total touchdowns.

With the loss of first-string quarterback Chad Owens to the NFL; Owens is now the go-to-guy on the team, Boise State doesn't have a lot to show for it.

Owens set two NCAA records last year against BYU with most combined return yards in a game (342) as well as most punt return yards (321) in one game.

The Broncos ended 14th in total offense, 18th in total defense, and 4th in punting.

Petersen himself had a historical season. He broke the school record for Off of the field, Petersen's offensive teams crashed the school record for single season school record in rushing as well.

Petersen believes the goal for this year's team is to get to the Western Athletic Conference early in the season. Petersen's offensive teams crashed the school record for single season school record in rushing as well.

Petersen is the offensive coordinator and "quarterback coach," Petersen said.

"We (the Broncos) work with the quarterbacks every day," Petersen said.

"Starting quarterback Ryan Dinwiddie suffered an ankle injury during the game against Wyoming. He was a key factor for turning the game against the Warriors. We have a lot better and improve with every game." Petersen said that Dinwiddie's absence would allow Chad Owens to play a lot better than we have been playing in the past few weeks to win the game.

"We're a very well coached team," Petersen said.

Chad Owens and the Hawai'I Warriors invade Bronco Stadium on Saturday, 6:05 Saturday night. The Broncos look to continue their success on the blue turf. Petersen is no stranger to coaching in pivotal games.

"They are probably the best team we have played so far including BYU, I think it will still be the best test," Jones said.

Colorado State coach Sonny Dykes believes the WAC is on the rise and that Boise State has a good shot at the conference title.

"This is only the fifth game of the season and I think they have a good chance of winning the WAC," Dykes said.

We know Miami's good. The Hurricanes stormed into and out of Indiana thanks to the 23 points scored by quarterback Philip Rix. They're not taking anything for granted, as their next opponent, Louisville, is coming off a win over Wake Forest. But Miami is playing well, and they're going to have to be prepared for a challenge. The Cardinals have a good defense, and they'll be looking to slow down the Hurricanes. It's going to be a tough game, but Miami has the talent to pull it off.
