False alarms plague Chaffee Hall

By Elizabeth Puckett

Currently, BSU does not have a policy concerning children accompanying students to class. However, BSU's resident director, Winnie Tong, is seeking a way to prevent false fire alarms in Chaffee Hall, where she is the resident director.

When asked what those consequences were, St. Clair said that if a resident were caught in the act of a false fire alarm, the resident would be required to pay for the cost of a mechanical failure.

The mechanical failure that week was caused by a false fire alarm. The Boise Fire Department generally sends four trucks when a false alarm is reported. Each truck cost the Boise State Fire Department $50 per hour, so during that week we had to spend $200 on false alarms.

St. Clair also said residents shouldn't be held responsible for the cost of a mechanical failure, but someone needed to be held responsible for the costs incurred by the panicked students.

The resident director put out an email asking if anyone had information about the prankster pulling the alarm.

The student who pulled the alarm is painting red, indelible fluorescent paint on doors when that alarm goes off. When pulled, the handle would knock the propellant's hand with the paint or ink, giving the resident hall managers the opportunity to spot them.

"The only drawback could be the cost of the installation, but we are looking into a cost-effective method," St. Clair said.

ASBSU Sen. at-Large Winnie Tong, a former book arts student who helped catch a masturbator in the library last spring, sits on the Senate. Tong said students should come forward in cases like this because it is the best way to handle false fire alarms.

"Each truck that responds to a false fire alarm costs us $50, so during that week we had to spend $200 on false alarms," St. Clair said.

UNIVERSITY OF PHILADELPHIA—University students celebrated National Hispanic Heritage Month with a series of events and activities on campus. The month-long celebration began on Sept. 15 and concluded on Oct. 15.

Hispanic Heritage Month is a time to celebrate the contributions of Hispanic Americans to the United States and to recognize their rich cultures.

Events included a Latin American Film Festival, which featured a variety of films that showcased the diversity of Hispanic cultures around the world. The festival was held in the_..._ news editor, Andy Benson

The campus’s cultural center will be planning meetings Monday, Oct. 7, in the Goldfinch Room of the SUB, and Monday, Oct. 14, in the Brown Room. The meeting is for all students and is to allow for continued service. The center is a wonderful opportunity for Boise State students to become, to you, your community. Ulappa said.

One of the events included was a lecture by Fred Calhoun, a 29-year-old student, also a management student at the Illinois Institute of Art in Chicago and plans to enter the gaming industry. Calhoun said he was interested in video and computer games and decided to pursue a degree in game art and design.

The game industry is growing at a breakneck pace and is expected to continue to grow at a rapid rate. According to estimates, the global game industry is expected to reach $26 billion by 2020, doubling in size in just five years. The growth of the gaming industry is driven by increasing demand for games and the availability of new technologies, such as virtual reality and augmented reality.

The school introduced the program in response to demands by the gaming industry for art and textile designers. Starting in October this year, it will offer a new bachelor’s degree program in game art and design.

Bush's camp split on Iraq policy

By Jennifer Bear

Thursday, October 10, 2002

A dozen other officials privately have deep misgivings about the terrorist network made up of different agencies reporting to Saddam. They charge that the Iraqi ambassador to the United States, Hanjour, used a student visa because he didn't want Bush's portrayal of the Iraqi threat who eventually must be dealt with, and none flatly contradicts statements made by military officers, whom he has deep ideological differences.

None of the dissenting officials, who work in a number of different agencies, would agree to speak on condition of anonymity. They say that Saddam poses such a threat who eventually must be dealt with, and none flatly contradicts statements made by military officers, whom he has deep ideological differences.

The facts are much less clear.

Indian gaming helps reservations prosper

By Erica Crockett

There are many rivers in Idaho.堪卡马斯河, 巴特尔河, and the Yellowstone River are all made navigable by tribal gaming. If you’re a bit of an avid tourist, you’ll likely have heard of Cutthroat Casino, which is owned by the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes. But what you might not know is that such gaming is constitutional.

The issue of constitutionality is a hot one. However, the issue of Proposition One will not have an impact on the federal Indian gaming acts, as Proposition One was passed in 1998. The practice of tribal gaming has been around for over a century, and the Idaho Statesman who say the United States government is the protector of Indian tribes, is just wrong.

Bah, I think you’ll see a very important difference between this and other issues we’ve discussed. When you act on any of the things you’ve put your minds to, you must accept the consequences of those actions and thereby move society toward attaining the greater good.

Lacrosse team to host tourney

Team jumps to Division I this year

By Aaron Barton

After a successful season last year, the men’s lacrosse team is back in action and is preparing to compete in the Division III national tournament.

Last season, the squad won the Division III championship in the Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Lacrosse League (RMILL). The upcoming season looks promising as the team looks to become half of the roster of last year.

This weekend, the 2023 squad will get its first chance to play together as the team hosts a fall tournament at Boise State. This is a “friendly” tournament meant more for team evaluations than competitive play.

It will be a chance for the team to get out on the field and get some practice in under the instruction of head coach Tad Arnt. Arnt claims the team has been improving every year since its inception in 1998. After the first few years, it was the program was getting going, but Arnt also incrementally developing each year.

This year will definitely be more of a challenge for the Broncos as they step into Division I play for the first time.

Boise State will face some other schools in the RMILL, Division I including BYU, Colorado State, University of Utah, Utah State and Washington State, University of Colorado and the University of Idaho.

Most of Boise State’s new opponents come from more established programs with larger budgets and are considered “virtual varsity” teams, although they are not sanctioned varsity sports teams, their expenses are covered by the university.

The Boise State team is still working on the little revenue coming from the university. About 30 percent of the needed money comes from fund-raisers, player dues, with the balance needed money coming from advertising campaigns for politicians to help raise funds.

A huge step up in competition,” Arnt said. "This weekend will be Gonzaga, a team to get used to the other level. The first few years it was another stand out season, as the team has solidified this fall. The roster for the regular spring season, which is played mid-February through the end of April will be solidified this fall. No one who is interested should contact the university men’s lacrosse advisor, Dr. Philip Kelly, in the Department of Kinesiology.

The Boise State Lacrosse team is a club sport and is still open to new players and for everyone to get some playing time, as well as for the coaches to evaluate the team,“ Arnt said.

Boise State has three matches on Saturday at 10 a.m., 12 p.m., and 2 p.m. as well as one match on Sunday.

All matches will be played on the intramural field and expectations of getting into the RMILL Division I play for the first time in the sport’s history.”

Brazcons look to keep streak alive

By Phil Dalley

The Broncos football team is on the road for the third time in four weeks, this time to Oklahoma to take on the Sooners. After competing on Saturday night at Stealth Stadium, the Associated Press released its weekly poll. ESPN continues to climb in the standing.

The Broncos are ranked No. 21-3 lead.

Tulsa is a young team led by head coach Dan Hawkins.

The layoff allowed several players for Tulsa to get healthy, including quarterback Sam Ryan. Ryan is a dominant force in the touch-

Chris Carr Honored

Boise State's Chris Carr was honored this week as the Western Athletic Conference's special teams Player of the Week.

Carr blocked a punt and returned it for a touchdown in Boise State's 30-23 win over Hawai'i. Carr's touchdown was one of three that he blocked in the span of just over two minutes in the first quarter that gave the Broncos a lead.

"If you cut a mold for the kind of guy you want on your team it would be Chris Carr," head coach Don Hawkins said. "He is a very solid player."

The turning of the screw

ITALIAN FLING PROVES COSTLY

By Ted Harmon

"Go!"
Press the pedal. Turn the screw.
Look for bubbles. Turn the screw.
"Go!"
Press the pedal. Turn the screw.
Look for bubbles. Turn the screw. Repeat.

I have reduced bleeding the brakes on my '73 Fiat Spider to a practical stumbling block of mechanical movements requiring a translation of fluid into the aging brake lines. Every pour of the pedal requires an exhalation of fluid, and pulls sparkling clear fluid into the hydraulic hoses, once supply and smooth, have become dry and cracked, threatening new leaks at the slightest provocation. We are unable to transport new hoses, however, because the car sells for too little for automakers to accept as equipment. Time spent apart and surrounding the three-year back cemented the brake lines in the car. Like an old woman, she will not change her ways for anything. All we can do is provide her with treatment to slow the delinquency process.

One day it was temperamental. A report in the folder suggested the brake lines were almost cracked, threatening new leaks at the slightest provocation. We are unable to transport new hoses, however, because the car sells for too little for automakers to accept as equipment. Time spent apart and surrounding the three-year back cemented the brake lines in the car. Like an old woman, she will not change her ways for anything. All we can do is provide her with treatment to slow the delinquency process.

My mental picture was a far cry from the reality of a car that has traveled 230,000 miles. Dents marked points of impact all over her body. Vital fluids dripped from numerous places, staining the garage floor. The cracked, eyes, flawless paint, and supple and smooth, that was not what I was seeing when I wrote the check for $750. "I'll muster the resources to see if it works," Dad says. "Let's see how it goes," I say, in my deepest voice. "It didn't work well," says, "in my deepest voice. "It didn't work well," I say. The torque wrench menacingly taps my open hand. "I'll get under the car, and you press the pedal when I say 'Go,'" Dad says. "We always do this when neighborhood ain't around."

The treatment regimen for my Fiat about six years ago sitting neglected in a garage downtown. The previous owner was a bodybuilder who had decided to donate himself to a younger, faster motorcycle, and instead the aging sports car. "She was a pretty thing once," Swede said. "This year and hard driving wore her out, that's all." I looked at her sitting in that company and couldn't help but think what a waste of parts, with pretty Girls, and sexy, and dangerous curves that beg hard driving and tight corners. Lecter's back in 'Red Dragon'

By Chris Hewitt

The lambs are silent again in Red Dragon. A graphic, sophisticated thriller more in the spirit of The Silence of the Lambs than the macabre Manhunter, Red Dragon is a sequel to the 1986 film Manhunter.

Both Red Dragons and Manhunter find FBI agent Will Graham (Edward Norton) calling on the jailed with intelligence and calm, if you look at it now, it's more compassionate, and it's better acted.
