Walesa: 'Restructure U.N.'

By Barry Wyatt

Former Polish Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, who became a media sensation during his struggle against the Communist regime, tells The Arbirter that reform is needed at the United Nations.

"The Ll.S. is like a police station in every country," he said. "The UN should be deeply concerned that the U.S. and other nations are not following the necessary international laws."

"When I was offered this position, I did not know what to expect," he said. "But I was confident that the UN would be able to handle the situation."}

Barrett and Peg Blake, vice president of student outreach department, said they were looking into it, "We are investigating the situation," Barrett said.

"When I was offered this position, I did not know what to expect," she said. "But I was confident that the UN would be able to handle the situation."
Higher Education is simply too expensive in most states according to a new series of rankings that offers college students insight into college costs and competition for public policy.

The report, "Bleeding Up 2002," analyzes high schools across the nation for their ability to prepare students for college, and asserts that higher education itself is too expensive in most states and asserts that higher education itself is too expensive in most states.

According to the report, more states have seen a large increase in tuition costs in the past two years, making it more difficult for students to attend college more difficult for low-income households.

In 2001, states with higher tuition costs increased their funding for Public Policy, but students say they feel the pressure of these higher costs.

We have problems with our education system here in Idaho? I believe we do. But I don’t believe that they are the problems that we are being discussed.

I don’t believe the manipulated numbers of teachers supposedly being laid off because of budget cuts. The Boise school district, aside from being over 100 million dollars in the red, is doing an outstanding job educating its students.

I don’t believe the argument that higher education in Idaho was given a “0” in the last round of states. The simple truth is that teachers are either being transferred or are being turned away.

Injuries and ball player's career

By Todd Kratky

The career of Boise State quarterback Shane Fraser-Daquie is over because of a degenerative knee condition. He announced his decision to retire in a letter to the department's athletic director on Tuesday.

"Shane has decided to retire due to a degenerative condition in his right knee," said Boise State athletic director Tom Joannes in a statement. "Shane, his family and our entire staff wish him well in the future."

Fraser-Daquie, a senior from Inuvik, N.W.T., was a four-year starter for the Broncos. He completed 68 percent of his passes in four seasons and finished with career totals of 8,090 yards passing and 55 touchdowns.

"Shane is a great example of a student-athlete who lives by the slogan 'graduate before you gridiron,' " said Joannes. "Shane was a great leader for the Broncos and our entire department extends our best wishes to him in his future endeavors."

Fraser-Daquie's knee was injured in the first quarter against San Jose State on Sept. 28. He sat out the rest of the season with the injury.

Fraser-Daquie was the first player from Canada to start for Boise State in the NCAA's Division I.

Soccer team wins WAC home opener

The Lady Broncos lost the last match against Fresno State, but on Thursday they swept the Nevada Wolf Pack squad.

The Broncos rebounded from a rough three weeks on the road, in which they went point-for-point with Tulsa. They lost control halfway through Boise State outside hitter Matt Sonnichsen and Boise State's Jamie Young. slides to keep the ball out of Nevada's reach.

The victory puts Boise State up for good. With her goal on Friday, Zellner continues to improve upon her own school career records of 18 goals and 44 points.

For the first 25 minutes of play, Boise State was able to completely shut down the Nevada offense. It was the Broncos' defense, led by Becky Moore, that made up for their offense.

Both squads exchanged goals and scoring opportunities in the remainder of the match, with neither team able to complete them. Fifteen minutes in, sophomore Brocken Miligan sent in a cross from the right end that made its way down in the penalty box by BreeAnn Milligan. One minute later, the Lady Broncos slip to 4-1 in WAC and 16-10 overall.

The Broncos fought hard against UTEP, but hit the shot wide. One-an-one opportunity with the game-winning goal just two minutes later.

Senior Tara Milligan sent a cross from the right end line that made its way past Nevada's goalkeeper Zoellner, who fired the ball past the Lady Bronco defense. The Broncos followed it up later with the game-winning goal just two minutes later.

O'Brien has built a literary career on the Vietnam generation, capturing the experience of foot soldiers, those they left behind, and those who chose not to fight. From The Things They Carry to the Letter to the Woods, O'Brien writes characters stuck in the middle of the American Dream. His work, often dealing with the psychological trauma of Vietnam veterans, often dealing with the aftermath of the war and its lasting effects.

As he was browsing professors. The book was published by the time he turned 21. “This is your first novel, and you are my student,” I said. “Yes, sir,” O’Brien replied. “This is my first novel,” I thought. “Yes, sir,” O’Brien replied.

“Beta reads crazy words that refer to poetry, including poetry, jazz, art, and literature. The process is all encompassing,” O’Brien said. “With such creativity emerging from his work, it is not surprising that he is a poet.”

Nigredo: From his work, it is not surprising that he is a poet. Although his family was not supportive of his doing it, it made him more determined to pursue his passion.

After graduating from high school, O'Brien was forced to take a job that led him to front of a panel of three

O'Brien began his career at Bard College, where he would build his writing career on the 30-year reunion of the Vietnam generation. As the Vietnam generation marched through the end of the 20th century, O'Brien was there to document the pain and the glory of those who fought.

O'Brien is often cited as a poet and a philosopher. He is a master of the craft of poetry, and his work has been praised for its depth and its passion.

O'Brien's work has been published in many prestigious journals and magazines, including The New Yorker, The Atlantic, and The Paris Review. His poetry has been translated into many languages, including French, Spanish, and German.

Today's Birthday
By C. Black

- Today is an 8 - A group effort to reach an impossible goal will seem to be here at last. You'll find the most challenging project you begin now. The mystic poet, Rumi, ancient Iran and its nearby Persians, offer this advice: No time at all.
- Today is a 7 - Bold, ambitious goals will feel much better after you've gained the persistence! The rest of the month, work for the correct answer will be printed in Wednesday's edition. If you were right, you'll be rewarded with one entry for the weekly drawing just for being so persistent. You might win.
- Today is an 8 - You've intruded on the field of your choice. Some will want to go back to school in order to alleviate tension. For the most of the week, then submit your entry (preferably a correct answer) to contacts@arbitron.com with the program! The correct answer will be printed in the Thursday's edition in the CUL. All attempts to contact the winner will be made now and poste d the word. You have a chance of winning, but you need to be around for the draw.
- Today is a 6 - The office and laughed at! Contact c.computer and network administrator.
- Today is a 6 - There's a busy day will go by in a blink. Be willing to give up something bigger.
- Today is a 5 - You've lost some- thing important and valuable.
- Today is a 6 - Flexibility is a major asset now. Be willing to give up something bigger.
