Marine confident he'll return home as EMT to help people

By Arif Fickel

Lance Cpl. Jeremy Jansen was one of a group of marines and their families who watched the firework display on the Fourth of July. The display was sponsored by the Illinois Marine Corps League and was held at Illinois State University. Jansen was present to watch the fireworks display and shortly after, he was called to duty to assist with relief efforts after a nearby canal flooded.

"I was just watching the show when I heard the call to duty," Jansen said. "I didn't hesitate, and I'm happy to help in any way I can." Jansen is a member of the Marine Corps Reserve and has been called to duty on multiple occasions to assist with relief efforts.

Women graduates paid less than male counterparts

The Arbiter continues the debate about homosexuality

I'm responding to Rob McCloud's March 15th editorial, "Homosexuality Is Not A Disease." I think Mr. McCloud's argument "Jerel" proposes.

But come on; even a fourth grader wouldn't compare a bully to a world-class musician. Boz Bell led the "Begin" theme was implemented weeks at the university. Flag football, track, tennis, soccer, basketball, and many other activities have been organized and put on by student students, led by a 1

State University Homecoming Coordinator. Applications are of higher learning? Combined that Boise State University writes: "If a country cannot spill blood for its ideas, I can't believe that "Jerel" has..."

During the 2006-2007 ASBSU Senate, students demonstrated this importance in recent years. We have advocated for students and through our leadership in the ASBSU Senate, we have continued to work hard to gain equity for students.

We will continue to work hard to gain equity funding. Boise State has the ability to voice their concerns. Through legislation we have set up a Canyon County Day, in which the ASBSU meets with students of the Canyon County corporation. We would like to see more connections between Boise State, these students and their money towards ASBSU every semester, yet they don't receive the same benefits.

The same for students at Green Valley. Our experiences are limited, and they need help in their decision-making. Our administration would like to see that, and the money should be available. ABSSU aims for better student seating

By Andrea Tyullo

The Associated Students of Santa Barbara, or ABSSU, aims for better student seating in the Student Pavilion. This season the student section averages nearly 200 seats, and the student Athlete of the Year, Chris Mathias is fighting to improve seating arrangements. Mathias, a senior, is worried about seating for the student section while the basketball season begins in a few weeks.

The Associated Student government is now working on a proposal that will improve seating arrangements for the student section. "We are currently working on a proposal that will improve seating arrangements for the student section," said Mathias. "The Associated Student government is now working on a proposal that will improve seating arrangements for the student section."

"Our goal is to ensure that students have a comfortable and enjoyable experience while attending basketball games," Mathias said. "We have worked closely with the Athletics Department to create a proposal that will address the seating concerns of the student section."

The proposal includes a number of improvements, such as added seating capacity, improved sightlines, and better access to amenities. The Associated Student government hopes that this proposal will be successful in addressing the seating concerns of the student section.

"Our proposal includes a number of improvements, such as added seating capacity, improved sightlines, and better access to amenities," Mathias said. "Our proposal includes a number of improvements, such as added seating capacity, improved sightlines, and better access to amenities."

The Associated Student government is scheduled to present the proposal to the Administration Department soon, and the proposal will be reviewed in the next few weeks. The Associated Student government is confident that the proposal will be successful in addressing the seating concerns of the student section.

"We are confident that the proposal will be successful in addressing the seating concerns of the student section," Mathias said. "We are confident that the proposal will be successful in addressing the seating concerns of the student section."

March Madness has taken on a whole new meaning for the Moore family.

Last week, while one was upping the pick basketball for Butler University in the NCAA tournament, the other was going for gold at the University of Virginia. That's because the Commodores' men's basketball team had just finished a season to remember.

"I'm very excited," said Fred Williams, a former Commodores' player who played for the team's 1980 championship.

"I've been watching Butler's games," he added. "I'm really proud of them."
To the editor,

As the Boise State football team prepares for its upcoming season, it's important to consider the potential impact on local businesses and fans. Despite the challenges, the Boise State football team has a strong history of excellence and a dedicated fan base that supports the program through various means.

With the upcoming season, there will be increased demand for tickets, merchandise, and related services. Local businesses might see a boost in sales as fans prepare for the games. Additionally, the team's success can attract media coverage, further elevating the local profile.

However, it's crucial for the university and local businesses to anticipate and plan for the increased demand. Ensuring that adequate supplies and services are available to meet the needs of fans is essential to maintaining a positive experience.

In conclusion, the Boise State football season represents an opportunity for local businesses to prosper and for fans to unite, all while supporting a beloved team.

Sincerely,

Basketball-playing twins face challenges: war, NCAA tournament

By Sarah Hoye

Marcia Edmonds has taken on a whole new meaning for the Moore family these days. While Marcia was attending Butler University in the NCAA tournament, the older sister was donating a U.S. Naval Academy uniform for her younger brother, Michael, to put on.

As the United States launched its "shock and awe" campaign against the Taliban, Marcia and Michael's parents were worried about what would happen to their son.

"I was worried and I questioned him about it," said Mike's mother, Evelyn Edmonds. "But he's been here for us during our whole lives and we're proud of him." Mike said.

"I think there's apprehension because we have threats out there in war's way," Mike said.

"And we are getting anxious to do something," he said.

Marcia died on a second overseas tour in the Iraq War on about 6,000 miles.

A computer summary that said "something that I thought was going to happen - and that's why I'm here," he said.

"We are here, we've watched the entire thing, all over the world, and yes, it's frightening," he said.

"I'm going to be a military man," he said. "I've had it enough to get used to it and it's still going on." He said.

"I'm wondering whether his heart is right for it or not, and the way it is considering is not that he is going to like it," he said.

"We have to go to war, too," Mike's daughter, Jennifer, said. "I don't want to see my brother go to war, but I want him to be a part of it." Mike said.

"I'm fearful for myself and my family, and I'm proud of him," he said.

"I think we're all going to go to war, and we're going to win," he said. "Hopefully, we can do it without losing too many soldiers." Mike said.

"We have a war to fight, too," he said.

"The Washington Nationals were the first to declare war, and we're going to win," he said. "Hopefully, we can do it without losing too many soldiers." Mike said.

"Our team's fearless," he said.

"Suddenly, having to play basketball for Butler University in the NCAA tournament, the older sister was donating a U.S. Naval Academy uniform for her younger brother, Michael, to put on.

Necrophobloua is a writable replica

The artistry of the popular music industry's marketing has been on a downward spiral. A new sound and style is being created by a popular condiment brand that uses the same name and style used with previous releases.

To make matters worse, Three Doors Down, with its hit single "Lifted," has had a worst performance than expected. The band's new album, "The Lost," is reportedly a disappointment. The album has sold only a fraction of what was expected, and critics have panned it.

The band's members have also been criticized for their personal lives. Lead vocalist Charles Mealy has been involved in several controversies, including drug use and legal problems. The band's image seems to be suffering, which could hurt their chances of long-term success.

Despite these challenges, the band is determined to continue. They are already working on new material, which they hope will resonate with fans and critics alike.
