Welcome to Boise State University. I wish you the very best as you prepare for your first year of study on the Boise State campus.

It is often not that the president and new students share the experience of arriving on campus for the first time. My first year at Boise State began just three weeks after I became the President in July. It was my first introduction to the Boise State community, I could not do anything in my position except make your college experience the very best that it could be. I knew that our faculty and staff have worked incredibly over the years to achieve just that goal.

If you can think of anything we can do to improve on this pledge, please do not hesitate to contact me.

I look forward to our time together on the Boise State campus. I am confident that we will continue to experience great moments together, perhaps with a bit of a mark of distinction in your studies.

Best wishes,
Bob Kustra

Parking decals demystified

So you registered for classes, bought your books, and arranged all the credits and dates. Do you have a plan of attack for parking? According to Kent Everett, director of Parking and Transportation Services, it’s simple.

"The role of thumb is: the earlier you get your decal, the better," Everett said. Parking permits can be purchased at Parking Services, located across the SUB on the corner of Garages. The garages charge 75 cents a free one. Special to The Arbiter.

So you registered for classes. Lincoln and University Prices vary, depending on the level of convenience one is seeking. Reserved permits cost $10 per credit hour, and general permits will cost $7.50 for non-student permits and $37.50 for general. If one wishes to keep a permit, there is always the option of seeking out free parking on the aggressively penalized streets around campus. You can park in the new parking garage. The garage charge 75 cents per hour. They don’t inspect the cars, though, a $20 (Handy Garage) reserved permit will get you in for free.

If your permit is lost in the mail, Parking Services can help you out, too. Boise Urban Stages has a facility that allows students and faculty to ride gratis. However, to prevent non-BSU members from taking free rides, you will be required to obtain a sticker from Parking Services that you can affix to your ID card. Everett said his aim is to prevent that BSU isn’t paying for non-affiliated persons catching a free ride on the university’s dime.

"We need to control costs and be sure we’re serving our true customer base," Everett said. The BSU will also continue to provide shuttle services on the Boise campus. For more information on parking, go to the Parking Services Website at http://www.boisestate.edu/parking/.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Parking Services has a lost and found. Do check the washers-and-dryers to make sure all clothing items are present and accounted for. That person you have a crush on will find your bra or boxers. And it’s embarrassing to ask for underwear at the lost and found.

1. Do check the washers and dryers to make sure all clothing items are present and accounted for. That person you have a crush on will find your bra or boxers. And it’s embarrassing to ask for underwear at the lost and found.

2. Do not put ice cream in your mini-fridge. Not even if it’s pint-size, and not even if the mini-freezer is adorable.

3. Do not ask Victoria’s secret catalogs and such items to your dorm address. Do you realize how many people see your mail?

4. Do wash your dishes. Your mama doesn’t live here.

5. Do not surf for porn in the computer lab. You will get caught. And no one will believe that you opened some junk mail by accident.

6. For rooms on the first or second floor — Do practice the art of curtain closure or your naked self might just gather a crowd in the parking lot. See Crush above.

8. Girls — Do not put up pictures of Abercrombie and Fitch boys up in your suite. Guys will just tear them down when you’re not there.

9. Do make friends with the janitors — they clean up your mess. After a party weekend you had better pray they clean out the suite bathroom.

10. Do not make out with your significant other if your roommate is in the room. Not even if it’s late at night, and not even if Hot Pants just flew in from Ottawa to see you. And remember, those residence hall walls can be pretty thin.

Get Wild in the Wilderness

So it's the last week of summer and your friends are madly trying to get their school supplies together. But you, on the other hand, signed up for Wilderness Quest and now are sitting on top of an 8,000-foot peak, learning to rock climb with all of your friends on the other side. Your adventure started on Monday at the new Student Recreation Center. After meeting all of the other students and instructors, you loaded into a van and headed north to the mountains east of McCall, Idaho. Gathered around the campfire on the first night, conversations start flowing. "Where are you going to school? Who are good friends? As the campfire cools the students and instructors share with you the details of your wilderness adventure. In the morning the group will pack their backpacks and head toward a lake on the north side of the Salmon Mountains. The lake will act as a base camp for day hikes and rock climbing instructors.

On one of Idaho's many sunny days take advantage of the many activities and adventures the Student Recreation Center has to offer you this summer. Whatever your needs are, we can help you on your way to better health and fitness. For more information, contact the fitness program director at 426-1992.

Fitness Tips

Shopping an exercise program or returning to exercise sounds like an exciting challenge, but for many, it proves difficult to sustain. Here are some tips to help you stay on track.

1. Start small. For small emotions goals each week. For example, "I'm going to do cardio 3-4 times a week for 20 minutes." Or "I'm going to walk 3 days a week." In the early morning, we have fewer excuses not to work out. If we wait until lunch or after school or work, naturally things come up. So, for consistency's sake, wake up early and head to the Rec."

2. Find an activity you enjoy. You're more likely to stick with something you find enjoyable than something you don't. For example, if you like working out on the elliptical and hate jogging, then by all means, work out on the elliptical. I am constantly asked, "What's the best exercise?" My answer is always the same: "One that you enjoy doing."

3. Exercise first thing in the morning. Morning exercisers are the most consistent bunch of people. They have the most energy for the rest of the day.

4. Make an appointment with yourself. Schedule your exercise each day and keep your appointment. Remember, you and your health are just as important as other meetings and agenda.

Women's Center provides support and resources for BSU women

Awareness, empowerment, networking. These were the describe the Boise State Women's Center's educational programs and support services.

The Women's Center works to educate people about services, programs, and support for all students through its educational programs and support services.

The center focuses on topics of importance and opportunity in educational programs and support services for women, as well as the men of their personal development, empowering them in their roles, dreams, and actions.

Finally, the center provides a variety of networking opportunities for people to network together to increase networking at the center.

The Returning Women's Mentorship Program's mission is to foster a network of interns and volunteers to interview the women at the center for a safe place for people to explore their roles.

One myth, for example, is that women are more likely to experience sexual assault than men. The Boise State Journal recently published an article that highlighted this concern, which is currently being promoted in order to raise awareness about this subject.

In conclusion, I hope these tips help you through your first semester at Boise State. To be totally cliché, your experience will make you who you are. You will make mistakes, but you will learn from them. As you assume the position, you will come back from vacationing in Singapore.

In this instance, a little creativity couldn't hurt; here are some out integral calculus problems between Kamikaze shots.

Where am I?

By Brian Mayer
A&E Editor

So, you're new to town and you need someone to show you around, or you've lived here your whole life and still haven't discovered the best place to let yourself go. Let me help you out. While I can't take you everywhere, I can tell you about the places I think are worth checking out. Think of this as 101 for the year to come.

Boise is a growing town, it is still very small. This is as much of a strength as it is a weakness. You can take in highly attended outdoor concerts, or you can be cramped in a basement listening to a national act. While there are countless bars on Main Street to fix your nightlife fix, I would like to offer you some other choices other than the intersection of 6th and Main St or the events on campus. So come on, don't be afraid, it's going to be fun.

Study Spots

You need this. The library is still a good place for quiet study, but if you are anything like me a little noise and coffee helps me get in the mood. My personal favorite is Flying M. This coffee house is a must if you want to be seen studying, as it's full of art, music, gifts and people. This place is all about atmosphere; it changes by the hour and is great for people watching. It's like your junior high school cafeteria with a hip make over. The shop isn't open very late, so get there early for a sweet spot on an old sofa.

Music

Boise has come a long way in regard to music. There are many choices and many styles to check out on any given night. I personally don't care for the giant packaged shows that seem to dominate the area. The small venues and shows provide the opportunity to be close to the music you love without the massive crowds or ticket price. Places where you can witness the birth of a band, check out a local favorite, or see a national act on the rise. There are a few other places where you can witness something special. Another place to check out upcoming shows is www.angrypotato.com.

The Neurolux. If you are 21 or over this is a good spot for you. They have shows two to three nights per week, and OJ's on the weekend. A variety of acts from all over can be seen at this Boise staple.

The Record Exchange. The only decent record store in town also has live in-store performances from time to time.

J.D. and Friends. It's an all ages club with a full bar, featuring punk, hardcore, indie-pop and hip-hop.

Just like this town, this list is subject to change. And although this is not a complete list, breath easy, I will be your guide for the rest of the summer and into the fall.
