Class Incompletes To Be Removed By Oct. 29 Deadline

Incompletes must be removed within the first half of the semester after the student returns to college. If the incomplete is not made up within this time it will automatically become a "Failure" unless special extension of time is granted by the instructor and the Dean of Faculty.

The final date for incomplete removals this semester is Oct. 29. See page 41 of college catalog concerning incompletes for more information. Mrs. Alice Hatton, Registrar, recommends.

Marriage Go-Round Assembly Features Dr. Paul Popenoe

The nationally recognized authority on marriage and family relations is being brought to Boise under the auspices of the Ada County Mental Health chapter.

Boise Psychology Major Sue Hunter will introduce Dr. Popenoe, who will discuss subjects of special interest to young people, including preparation for marriage, problems involved in early marriages, etc. The "Marriage-go-Round" institute, to be held for three nights, starts Tuesday in the First Christian Church. Students will be admitted free.

Foreign Film Series Opens Friday With Prize Winning Russian Production

By GREG MATHEWS
An opportunity for Boise Valley residents to see foreign films not usually available in this area will be provided free of charge by the Lyceum Committee beginning this Friday evening at 8 o'clock in room 106 of the Science building. A Russian film, "Ballad of a Soldier," is to be the first presentation of the year.

Acclaimed by Time Magazine as "the best Russian movie since World War II," the film won top prize at the 1960 San Francisco Film Festival in addition to awards at the Cannes Film Festival in France. The playwright has taken the simplest of plots, that of a young soldier returning home from the war front, to communicate the basic emotions of love, sympathy, and the pathos of war.

HEALTH ADVICE

Students suffering with colds are not permitted to take the flu shots at the Health Center, Mrs. Jerline Brown, the nurse, advises. Students wishing to consult Dr. Bruce Budge at the Center must report in between 8:30 and 9 a.m. Excuse slips are issued in those instances where students must be late to class.

Pictures presented by the Foreign Film Committee are not visual-aid films for use in the classroom, but foreign-produced movies shown in public theatres throughout the world. In attempting to make the motion picture media a real art form, the directors have utilized photographic and scenic effects, unusual lighting, and superb acting to give the viewer a more complete and real theatrical experience. The dialogue is in the language of the country in which the film was produced, and has either English subtitles or a dubbed-in translation.

Members of the Foreign Film committee are students Effie Neth, Julie Grimm and Barbara Streiff, with Mr. Charles Davis and Mr. Neal Metcalf of the English department as the faculty advisors.

When opportunity knocks, you will hear it only if you have a head full of knowledge, a heart full of willingness and a pinch of luck.

College Traditions

It is hard to believe that at one-time Boise College, or what we know of as Boise College, did not exist. Instead of a big, beautiful campus, there stood a stately brick building on Idaho Street, the site of which is now occupied by St. Luke's parking lot. Above the entrance was a lintel with the engraved words, "St. Margaret's Hall, Annex 1906 AD, Veritas Vincent."

Although it could not compare to what we have today, it was a great school; one of which we can be proud. Every graduating class of St. Margaret's left a gift consisting of their class motto engraved in the stone of the building. With the destruction of St. Margaret's Hall, Mr. Gottenberg did his best to preserve as many of these as possible. In addition, he retrieved the cornerstones and the lintel which had rested proudly above the entrance.

Presently they are stacked behind the Vocational Shops among rusty tin cans, piles of wood, wire, and weeds. If we could have these stones imbedded around the plaza in the horseshoe-shaped drive, and continue where the former students left off by leaving our own plaques, it could mean the founding of another tradition for the flourishing Boise College, and a reminder of our first roots.

Does the College Need a New Song?

The question has been drifting around campus lately on the possibility of replacing the old "fight song" with a new one—one, they say, that would be more appropriate for a four-year college. If this be the case, what about the rest of the "old" things on campus. When a building begins to look run down it is not replaced by a new one; it is just repainted and the worn-out parts are replaced.

The present fight song has been accepted as a standard for BJC and it would still be a fine school song if only a few of the words, such as junior, were deleted or replaced. To many of the older graduates it brings back many fond memories of days at BJC. When they hear it they are filled with the old school spirit. To many of us going to college here now it sparks the flame of spirit in us whenever we hear it at the pep assemblies of the football and basketball games.

Alternating a few of the words seems much more appropriate than completely burying a school song that has meant so much in the past. Indeed, there are few if any students on the campus who even know the words to it. They identify it solely by the lively beat. Perhaps the service clubs and the other organizations should require their members to know the words to their school song.

Many of the students here have already become accustomed to the present school song, however, we can help determine what school songs we will have in the future. Perhaps a contest to write another song for Boise College would be beneficial in adding a new list of pep tunes to the music library and surely it would be gratifying to know that the 1965-66 class had a hand in making it all possible.

Flu—the Current Fad

The signs of fall are everywhere. The air is crisp and cold, and the once green trees are now gold, brown and red. Football games are the item of most interest. In fact, only two things draw more attention than the games—the colds and the flu. The newest fad seems to be carrying a box of tissues under one arm and books under the other.

The flu, however, is a poor joke; so are colds. Because these illnesses spread so easily, and because they cause absences from class, it is extremely important to prevent them before they start. The Health Center, just off College boulevard on Sherwood, provides flu shots for any Boise College student wishing to take them. The price is a small sum of 35 cents.

So, don't hesitate to wear that jacket or coat, and don't hesitate to get the flu shots. Fall is here and the cold season with it. No one wants to stay in bed when there is a football game or dance. Your health is your responsibility. Take care of it.

After Graduate School—What?

Not too many years ago a person was supposed to be sufficiently educated if he graduated from high school. Nowadays, of course, a college education is considered a necessity. In the future, even that won't be enough, in all probability. Graduate school would be the next resort, but that scope of learning might become inadequate too, eventually. After graduate school, what? Maybe a graduate's graduate school?

In the meantime, high school graduates, motivated by their own high ambitions, and perhaps by society's pressure on them, tussle to be accepted into already over-crowded colleges. Subsequently, they must strive to remain. It's a never-ending process. Granted, a majority of those who finish college do attain success in later life, but do they like what they've made of themselves?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear ROUNDUP Editor:

One of the things that makes Boise College such a great school is the friendly atmosphere around here. Here's a suggestion that will help everybody be friends with everyone else on campus. One of the traditions on the campus of an eastern college is to greet everyone with your own name. So, Karen would say, "Hi, Karen!" and Paul would reply, "Hi, Paul!" This would surely make it easier on those of us who have terrible memories for names, and I'm sure the professors would be friendlier if they knew who they were talking to!

How about some opinions, fellow students?

Signed,

A Friendly Persuader

(Editor's Note: What did you say your name was?)

Dear Editor:

I found my last issue of the ROUNDUP in the Science building, lying in a pile on the floor. The fact that they were on the floor (very unsanitary) doesn't bother me too much but when I got home I found someone's footprint right in the front page.

Perhaps the student body should finance the construction of several portable folding stands upon which the papers could be placed to get them off the ground and keep them from getting all messed up. These stands could be placed in strategic spots in the buildings and around the campus where everyone would have access to them.

I have heard many people complain that they can never find a paper. I am sure that the students in the woodworking shop of the Vocational department would be able to build these racks easily and inexpensively. I feel also that

In the Library

New books received at the library are placed on a special shelf, for a short while, just inside the library doors. Some of our more recent acquisitions include: Situations, by Jean-Paul Sartre; The Poets and Their Critics, edited by Hugh S. Davies; Introduction to Russian Realism, by Simmons; The Philosophers of Greece, Brumbaugh; and Foreign Policy in the Sixties, Hillsman and Good.

The display case on the left will have a special Homecoming theme, starting Friday.

For the past two weeks, students visiting the Library have had the opportunity to see a wine distillery, although they probably didn't realize just what it was. The display entitled, "The Science of Chemistry," includes several beakers, a condenser, a flask and a Bunsen burner. Models of various colored styrofoam balls show the structure of various molecules which Chemistry students should know. In addition, various books on chemistry available in the library are shown.

Mr. Jack Dalton provided the equipment for the display, and Bernie Jestrabek did the arranging.

Gateway to Ideas

"Freud and 20th Century Literature" is the topic of this week's program on the "Gateway to Ideas" series to be heard this Monday night over KIDO at 7:35. Moderator for the discussion will be noted author and critic Virgilia Peterson, with panelists Dr. Benjamin Nelson and Dr. Phillip Wellesman.

CLUB NEWS

Scholastic eligibility forms for new club officers must be filled out by all clubs and delivered to the office of Dean of Men. This should be taken care of as soon as possible, according to Dean Wilkinson.

DECA

Members of the Mid-Management Advisory Board comprised of approximately 30 representatives of business firms, will meet on campus for a luncheon meeting next Wednesday noon in the SUB. The board will discuss the DECA program in which Mid-Management students at Boise College are employed.

Local and state president of DECA, LeRoy Larson, with Mr. Duston Scudder and Mr. Leo Knowlton, Mid-Management teach-such facilities would help in the keeping with the program of upgrading the maturity of a four-year institution.

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Esquire Club I would like to answer a letter which appeared in your column. We have the responsibility of raising the flag every morning, weather permitting. A flag lowering ceremony each evening has never been a club activity. We did lower the flag to half-mast the day President Kennedy was assassinated. Club members cannot recall any other time we have lowered the flag.

(Editor's Note: The flag also flew at half-mast upon the death of President Herbert Hoover.)

Religion on Campus

Inter Faith Council

An organizational meeting for the Inter Faith Council will be held this Friday at 4:00 p.m. in the SUB. Election of officers will be the order of business. All student religious groups are urged to send representatives to this meeting. Dr. William Fung is the advisor.

Methodist Student Movement

The Methodist Student Movement will meet Friday at noon in Room C of the SUB. The advisor for the group is the Rev. Dwight Williams of Hillview Methodist Church, and faculty advisor is Mr. Jack L. Dalton. Discussion of Dietrich Bonhoeffer's book, "Life Together" will be continued.

UCCI

The UCCI will hold their third breakfast forum on Wednesday, Oct. 20 at 6:45 a.m. in Room C of the SUB, according to Rev. Robert A. Gruwell, president of the UCCI. Canon David Blackaller, chaplain of St. Luke's Hospital, will speak on "Greatness and Suffering." The cost of the breakfast is 50 cents.

LDS Institute

The Friday Forum this week will feature Mr. Richard Darling as guest speaker, who will discuss "The Mormon Pavilion at the World's Fair."

The newly formed Baptist Student Union met Tuesday in the SUB. They will be meeting every first and third Tuesday at 8 in the ballroom, according to John Kunz, president. Pastor Norfleet Wheeler was unanimously elected as pastor director of the club.

Everyone interested in the club is welcome to attend the meetings, said John.

LITTLE MESS ON CAMPUS

STUDENTS DESIGN VOCATIONAL-TECHNICAL MODEL

THE COLLEGE BUILDING EXPANSION program will begin with the construction of the addition to the present Vocational-Technical building. The scale model which was built by Mr. Allen Weston's Drafting and Design students shows the present structure (at right), to which will be added a center section for offices, and a new wing duplicating the current building. Classrooms and laboratories will be located in the addition, with women's vocational classes on the second floor to include a complete dental laboratory for Dental Assistants' instruction, Mr. Claude Wain, director, explained.

ROUNDUP REPORTER MEETS ROCKY

By MARCI McKEETH

Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York arrived at the Boise airport at 3:30 p.m., an hour later than scheduled, on Oct. 7. His trip was motivated by the College of Idaho anniversary ceremonies. He was greeted by approximately 75 persons and, after joining Idaho's Governor Smylie, he shook hands with nearly everyone in true campaign style.

At the press conference in the Kitty Hawk Lounge, Rockefeller said that his wife was absent from the party solely "because of the children." He then played the part of a proud father by showing off a picture of Nelson, Jr.

The New Yorker claimed that his friendship and respect for Smylie, plus his admiration for education had influenced his decision to come to a small college in Idaho.

He asserted that his political plans are to "run for governor again next year." Rockefeller also expressed hopes of helping his Republican party regain control of the New York legislature which it lost in the last election for the first time in almost 40 years. The governor further indicated that he would work for John Lindsey, a "Republican" who is running on the Liberal as well as the Republican ticket in his bid for mayor of New York City.

Rockefeller exclaimed, "I'll say - I sure do!" when asked if he felt that the Republican National Committee, under Smylie's leadership, is heading the party in the right direction. He paid further tribute to the Idaho Governor when he refused to mention any names of possible Republican presidential candidates in 1968, because "I haven't had a chance to talk to Bob (Smylie) about it yet."

Asked if there is any likelihood of a "Watts" in New York, the Governor replied, "No. I don't think so. We had some problems last year in New York and up in Rochester. It didn't get out of hand, as in California, because we were prepared for it."

The subject of his evening speech, "The Preservation of the Responsibility of the States," he believed would probably be a major domestic issue in the next presidential campaign.

The assemblage at the airport for the most part voiced the opinion that the trip was politically motivated, the 75th anniversary of the College of Idaho notwithstanding.

A unique language experiment is entering its second year at Indiana University. Last September, the history of western civilization and a course in fine arts were taught in French while Latin American history and economics were taught in Spanish. This year, these offerings are being expanded to include some additional sections of last year's courses and a new section of western civilization in German.

Saga Makes Survey

Boise College students will have a chance to voice their food likes and dislikes on Nov. 4, according to SAGA Manager Phil Campbell. That is the date boarding students will be invited to complete Saga's 143-item Food Preference Survey.

The new, revised survey for 1965 lists food items in eight categories, such as salads, dinner desserts and luncheon entrees. Students can register their preferences on a scale ranging from "Like Very Much" to "Dislike Very Much." The survey takes less than 15 minutes to complete.

"I hope every student will feel it's well worth 15 minutes of his time," says Mr. Campbell. "The data obtained here at Boise College will be separately tabulated and returned to me. Then it will be my job to see that your preferences are reflected in the menus served in the dining hall."

INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS CENTER EXPANDS EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

By COLEEN LITTLE

The Instructional Materials Center located on the second floor of the Library, maintains not only a wide selection of films, filmstrips, tapes and visual aids available for college use, but catalogs which are sent to elementary, secondary schools and colleges in Western and Northern Idaho. For a nominal charge, the services also are available to civic, government and religious groups.

Not only has there been a marked increase in films and tapes, but new machines to facilitate the teaching process have been added, new projectors, including fully automatics; Ditto machines; overhead projectors; opaque projectors, and a new system using transparencies for English and History departments.

Mr. Kenneth Hill, director for the IMC, also teaches classes in Introduction to Education and Visual Aids, in which future teachers receive instruction in the use of these teaching aids.

Mrs. Millie Frost has assisted in this department for almost ten years and now is in the process of training a new assistant to help handle the increased volume of requests. In the last few years, more than $35,000 has been expended for instructional materials in the Center.

A former BJC coed, Doris Betts, has been named editor of the ISU yearbook, the KICKIUP. Doris has been working in Senator Frank Church's office in Washington since leaving BJC, where she was co-editor of the 1961-62 LES BOIS. Doris is majoring in Business Education.

Boise Squad Travels To Mesa For ICAC Contest

Broncos Turn Back Wenatchee Knights

"Disappointed, to say the least," might have been a typical Wenatchee football player's remark, as the Boise Broncos turned their visitors away with only a story of defeat, 21-7.

It was a different story for the Broncos whose main attribute for the night was a brilliant defense. The Boise linemen, in this instance, were truly the heroes of the hour. Another headliner of course, was Jim Evenson, the land-grabbing fullback, who claimed a total of 122 yards rushing.

John Granby claimed a spot on the score sheet Saturday night when he snagged an Imel pass to go in for the first score. Mike O'Shea, who was chosen back-of-the-week in last week's encounter with Snow, reviewed his form for the fans and drove into the end zone twice for the other two Bronco scores. Gary Stiver's three kicks were all successful.

Displaying defensive excellence for the contest were Brad Cermak and Steve Grayson, who both recovered Wenatchee fumbles, and Rick Dickson's interception. Not to be ignored was Jim Mahan's quick response and run back of the Knight's attempted short kick-off in the fourth quarter.

PULLING GUARD, Del Stubblefield looks for a blocker ahead, to provide pass protection for quarterback Ron Imel during the Wenatchee-Boise game last Saturday.

Grant, O'Shea Standouts for Broncos

Chosen to represent the Boise Broncos as Back and Linemen-of-the-Week for the Snow game are Mike O'Shea and Louie Grant. Mike brought in two touchdowns while Louie led the defense in the attack of Snow College.

Mike O'Shea, a P.E. major, who came to Boise from Kansas City, is just in his second year of organized football. Although he participated in grade school programs, Mike did not play high school football until his senior year. His coach persuaded him to be a three-sport letterman his senior year. Prior to his senior year, he concentrated on basketball and track. As a member of his basketball team, Mike aided Center High School to take second place in state competition, with a fantastic record of 32 wins and one loss. More incredible is the fact that 6' 180-lb. Mike was the second largest man on the team.

With a scholarship to Utah State, Mike came to Boise to become acquainted with and adjust to college life. He holds the school broad jump record in Kansas City with 22'5".

Louie Grant, a graduate of Caldwell High School, chosen Lineman-of-the-Week for his performance in the Snow game, states, "Boise College is a beautiful school with so much extra room—plus a new library that I especially like for studying."

Louie has participated in football since his fifth grade, and "switched to the line as I grew older and bigger." Standing 6'3 1/2" and weighing 222 pounds, he is one of the largest players on the Bronco squad this year. While at Caldwell, Louie lettered three years varsity and was named All League S.I.C. tackle in his senior year.

He says: "College sports seemed difficult at first but the adjustment is coming. The biggest problem was becoming accustomed to the extra hard contact of college football."

LOUIE GRANT

Future plans for Louie include a desire to play for the U of I and possibly play pro ball. When not in season he can be seen working on the weights or operating his "cherry" little '57 Ford. Louie likes to hunt and fish and hopes to make his home right here in the northwest.

Team Aims at Victory Over Mesa of Colorado

Colorado here we come! The Broncos, now supporting a 3 win, 1 loss record, will travel to Mesa College in Grand Junction, Colorado, for their second conference contest of the season.

The Mavericks will be up for a victory reprisal of their last year's stomping under the hooves of the Broncos, 41-7. Mesa was the Boise squad's first victory last year. This will be the third game since the Mesa-Boise series began.

With four games under his belt, fullback Jim Evenson has rumbled his way to over 100 yards apiece in three of the four, with a total of 97 gained as a minimum. This trend in yardage gained would indicate that with 10 games in the 1965 season and an average of 100 yards gained per game, that Jim has the possibility of finishing with a sum of 1,000—which is excellent in any man's game.

A neck is something if you don't stick out you won't get in trouble up to.

SPORTS SCRIPT

By STEVE LAWRENCE

Going away to college is an initial and exciting first step toward meeting life as a mature person. This should be an experience of all college freshmen. This is the time to become acquainted with the ways of the adult society which college will prepare you for. A community college does not afford the home town residents this beautiful opportunity.

So what is the point of such an introduction? The point is that students who remain at home and go to the community college more often than not, retain some high school ways. The spirit and tradition of a college is highly symbolized in its athletic program. Why, then, must this college symbolism be minimized by the home town student's passion for his old alma mater?

Typical Student Union pastime conversation consists of who will win the SIC conference or who the victor will be of the Borah-Boise classic. This is to say that the majority of interest seems not to be concerned with the Broncos. Why aren't the 2,500 some odd students all in Bronco stadium at game time? Is it because they went to a Borah or Boise game the night before?

Let's break away, kids—this is your school now!

Intramural football activities will start at 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Stadium with a powderpuff contest between IK-sponsored coeds and Pi Sig coeds. At 2 o'clock the Pi Sigs and IKs will compete in their traditional "toilet bowl" game. The IKs currently hold the trophy.
