COEDS TO VOTE FRIDAY FOR KING; ANNUAL BALL TICKETS ON SALE

Voting dates for the King of Hearts, who will reign over the Sweethearts Ball, have been re-set for Friday, Feb. 11 for elimination voting, and Friday, Feb. 18, final election, according to Janine Talley, Associated Women Students president. Ineligible for competition this year are freshmen men.

Boise College coeds will vote for 20 men students in the primary election, and will select the 13 finalists a week later. The King of Hearts and his court will be presented during the 10:30 intermission, escorted by the AWS officers.

Tickets for the girl-ask-boy dance will go on sale Thursday, Feb. 10, in the library. Nancy Underkofler, AWS junior representative, will be selling the tickets at $1.55 per couple.

The Mountain Home Air Force band from the base will supply the music for the formal dance in the SUB Ballroom from 9 to 12 midnight.

The dance is being held on Monday, Feb. 21 to allow time for decorating over the weekend. Tuesday, Feb. 22 is a holiday, celebrating George Washington's birthday.

Boeing Recruiters To Visit College

Representatives from Boeing Company will be on campus Monday, Feb. 14 and Tuesday, Feb. 15, to interview Vocational students for possible employment. The recruiters will hold interviews with any Vocation student interested in joining Boeing after graduation. Mr. Claude Waln, head of the Vocational-Technical division, advised.

Some of the positions under consideration are drafting, auto body mechanics, electronic technicians, dental technicians and machinists.

Liberal Arts Building Design Okayed As Plans Are Made for New SUB, Dorm

Two additions to the Boise College campus are progressing almost two weeks ahead of schedule. Due to the favorable weather, Cain and Hardy, constructing the Vocational-Technical building addition, and G and M Contractors, builders of the Science Building wing, have gained on the work schedule set for completion dates. Jedd Jones, of the architectural firm, said the Vocational-Technical Education building addition should be ready for use next summer. The Science building addition is scheduled to be ready for classes next fall.

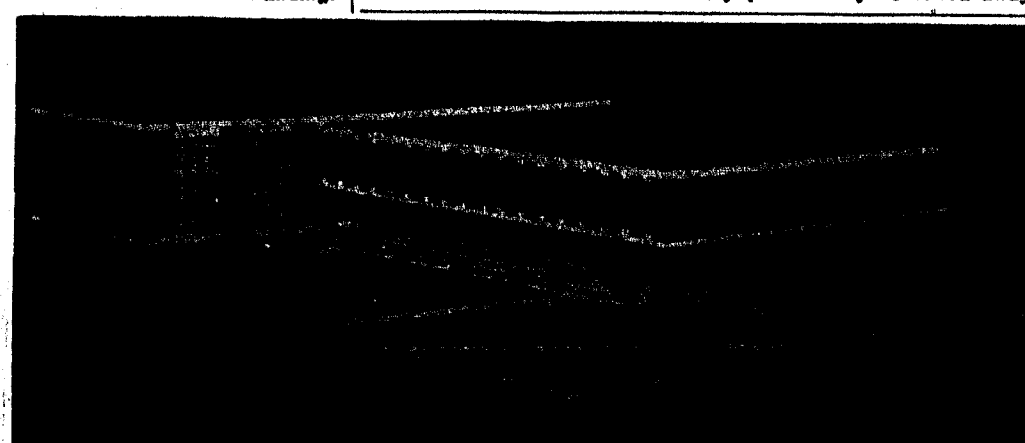

Other plans and specifications also are being prepared for bidding by an architectural firm. The firm hopes to call for bids on the Liberal Arts building the last of February or early in March. The Board of Trustees gave approval to the proposed design of the building, estimated to cost about $860,000, as presented in the model form by Architects Hummel, Hummel, Jones and Shawver.

Late this spring bids will be let for the construction of a 300-man dormitory. The two existing dorms will be used as housing for women.

Traffic will be re-routed on College Boulevard adjacent to the American Legion hall and the First Christian Church. The reclaiming of this additional ground, which was part of Boise's original airport, will add additional ground for the new Student Activity building. This and the new Liberal Arts building, which will be east of the Administration building, will constitute the core of permanent buildings for our new four-year institution. College officials hope that all of the buildings will be finished by the fall term of 1967. Parking and traffic facilities also are being taken into consideration for the expected growth in enrollment.

SCALE MODEL of the future Liberal Arts Building to be completed in 1967 has been submitted by Architects Hummel, Hummel, Jones and Shawver and approved by the Board of Trustees. The building will face the library, and will be due east of the Administration building.

BOISE COLLEGE OFFERS MUSICAL WEEKEND

Boise Choristers Offer Greek Opera

The Boise Choristers, under the direction of BS voice instructor Georgia Standing, will present a benefit performance of the opera "Dido and Aeneas" this Friday, at 8 p.m., in the auditorium, to support a pipe organ scholarship for a Boise College student.

Pamela Tillman, winner of last year's scholarship, will perform a special number during the intermission for the offering taken in lieu of an admission charge.

The opera, which was written by Henry Purcell, has been termed a "master in miniature." Staged in the Grecian manner, it has a minimum of stage properties and without full dramatic impersonation. The plot, based on Greek mythology, concerns the love of Dido, queen of Carthage, for Aeneas, a Trojan prince. The antagonist appears in the form of a sorceress and witches who conspire to bring the love to a tragic conclusion.

The Choristers' benefit is an annual event.

Current addresses of all students must be on file in the offices of the Deans of Men and Women. Students who did not list their new addresses during registration, or whose addresses have changed since that time, must report the change to the office in the Ad building, room 108, immediately.

February 18 Deadline Set For Student Teachers

All students planning to enroll in student teaching next fall at either the Elementary or the Secondary level must make application at the Boise College Education office by Friday, Feb. 18. Dr. Jerold O. Dugger, head of the department, has announced.

"In order to arrange placement of all student teachers, it is necessary to plan from a semester to a year in advance," he explained. "Early applications will be a factor in allocating the available student teacher openings."

At present, approximately 100 freshmen and 60 sophomores are elementary education majors. At the secondary level, the student must be recommended by his advisor.

College Symphony To Give Concert Sunday Afternoon

The eighth annual Youth Artists Concert presented by the Boise College Community Symphony in cooperation with the Boise Public Schools is scheduled for this Sunday at 4 p.m., in the South Junior High School auditorium. Mr. John H. Best is the symphony director.

Selected from a field of 24 hopefuls to perform with the orchestra was Jeffrey Shumway, seventh grade piano student of Carrol Meyer; Sherwood Scribner, a senior at Borah High School and violin student of Kathryn Eckhardt Mitchell; and pianist Frank Smith, Boise High School sophomore and student of Adelaide Anderson Marshall. The soloists were chosen by audition from aspirants from southwestern Idaho and eastern Oregon.

Continuing a feature of last season's concert, original compositions of Donna Mae Hawks, sixth grade Gooding student and Roger Jahnke, Borah High School junior, will be performed.

Music for Youth

The program will also include the Scherzo and Nocturne from Midsummer Night's Dream, taken from Mendelssohn's incidental music to the Shakespearean play. They paint tonal pictures of a world of fantasy, where the impish Puck goes about dropping love potion on unsuspecting eyelids. The Night on Bald Mountain depicts a different type of fantasy—that of the midnight dance of witches and Satan atop a secluded mountain, broken by the sound of church bells at dawn, whereupon the evil spirits disperse.

These and the other selections are geared to the understanding of a youthful audience and prepared especially for their enjoyment. Brochures inviting public school students to the free concert are being distributed this week.

Applications Available

A few applications have been taken out for entry in the Miss Boise College Pageant to be held Saturday, April 2. The deadline for applications is March 1. All interested coeds are urged to contact Mrs. Dorothy Lee or Mr. John Woodworth, club advisors.

Students who park on the streets are reminded that private driveways should not be obstructed, according to an announcement from the Vice President's office. Such parking violations are subject to traffic citations, and cars illegally parked may be towed away.

I do the very best I know how—the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference. Every man is said to have his peculiar ambition . . . I have no other so great as that of being truly esteemed of my fellow-men, by rendering myself worthy of their esteem.—ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Congratulations Extended

It's a universal assumption that people attend college in order to obtain an education. If college students don't attempt to gain knowledge, their purpose is defeated. Although earning high grades is secondary in importance to acquiring knowledge, the grade one receives in a subject is a reliable indication of the amount of knowledge accumulated and the degree to which the student has accomplished his goal in attending college.

We, at Boise College, can be proud of the fact that 141 high honor students have been named to the Dean's list. Nevertheless, many pupils should be congratulated for efforts extended during the past semester, regardless of whether they made the Dean's list. After all, individual abilities, opportunities, department and varying circumstances may account for a person's presence on the list.

Front page recognition has been given to the honor scholars, since we believe that they frankly deserve it because of their accomplishments. They are the "Big Men (and Women) on Campus." They have proved that Boise College is NOT a winter playground.

Opportunity Knocks at BC

Did you ever stop to think that by being a college student you are a part of a very unique culture? There are many cultures in this day and the college crowd is one of the fastest growing ones we have.

Every culture offers some advantages to those that are willing to work for them. The college that you are now attending is loaded with opportunities to learn and gain knowledge. However, these opportunities are not found bolling around by the sidewalk or under a hamburger in the SUB. Opportunities can be found only through honest effort and a willingness to do your best to work. It doesn't really matter why you enrolled in college. The opportunities are here for everybody. This college culture that we live in is the best chance that we will have to take advantage of the opportunities in the field of knowledge.

So while you are sitting in class thinking about the skiing trip this weekend or the date tonight, remember that there may be an opportunity lurking behind the closed covers of your book.

Dean's List Analyzed

Our hats are off to these winners winners in the contest of grades at Boise College the first semester. Scholarship being at least a side line at most colleges, and Boise College being no exception, there are those of us who say congratulations to all of those 141 students who made the Dean's List for last semester. It is a prideful thing for those who find time from their activities and extra curricular projects to reach this high level of achievement. The women just barely edged out the men by a count of 76 to 65. But the local students held a considerable edge over the out-of-town students, as one would expect, since the local registration far exceeds that of those from outside Boise. There were 102 Boiseans and 39 out-of-towners who made the list.

The Department of Business led the other departments with 27 of its students on the honor roll. Liberal Arts rated second with 21, and the third highest number was in the Department of Education with 17. English, Engineering and Music were the next three highest departments, and there were 21 other departments represented.

We are just beginning a new semester, and we all know the rules of the game of Scholarship. Here and now is a wide open opportunity for all students to compete for these coveted honors at the end of this semester.

A Bipartisan Campus

With the reorganization of the Young Democrats on campus, we are again a two-party school, just as we are a two-party country. There is a definite need for differences in opinion in a democracy, both nationwide and on campuses. The give and take of politics, the compromises between liberals and conservatives bring about the best solutions for the majority of people.

The advent of the opposition also will create new life in the Young Republicans, as they will try to compete for the support of students. The YD's have some interesting speakers coming up in the near future and the YR's will be anxious to retaliate with leading political speakers from the Republican party. Thus, everyone on campus will benefit from the competition.

Let's all get out and support the campus organization of our choice, whether we be Republicans or Democrats. These Boise College groups will add to the maturity and knowledge of the students who take advantage of their activities.

Library Changes Rooms, Adds Personnel to Staff

Mrs. Catherine Talley has returned to the library staff after an absence, and Mrs. Gloria Miller will remain on the regular staff on a part-time basis. Four new students also have been added to the student personnel in the library, bringing the total to 24 student assistants. The new employees are: Laura Stroud, an education major who worked in the library last year; freshman Toni Reece, a psychology major; freshman Suzi Towle, a P.E. major, and junior Noreen Wright, an English major.

The college library has made several significant changes lately, and more are anticipated in the near future. The former smoking room has been converted into "The West Reading Room" or "The Quiet Room." This change makes more room for those who want a quiet study area, eliminates the noise, and relieves the over-crowded condition. The lounge furniture has been replaced by two study tables.

The periodical display shelves have been rearranged, so that only current issues are on display, according to Miss Ruth McBlirney, head librarian.

WICHE Aids Students In Fields of Medicine

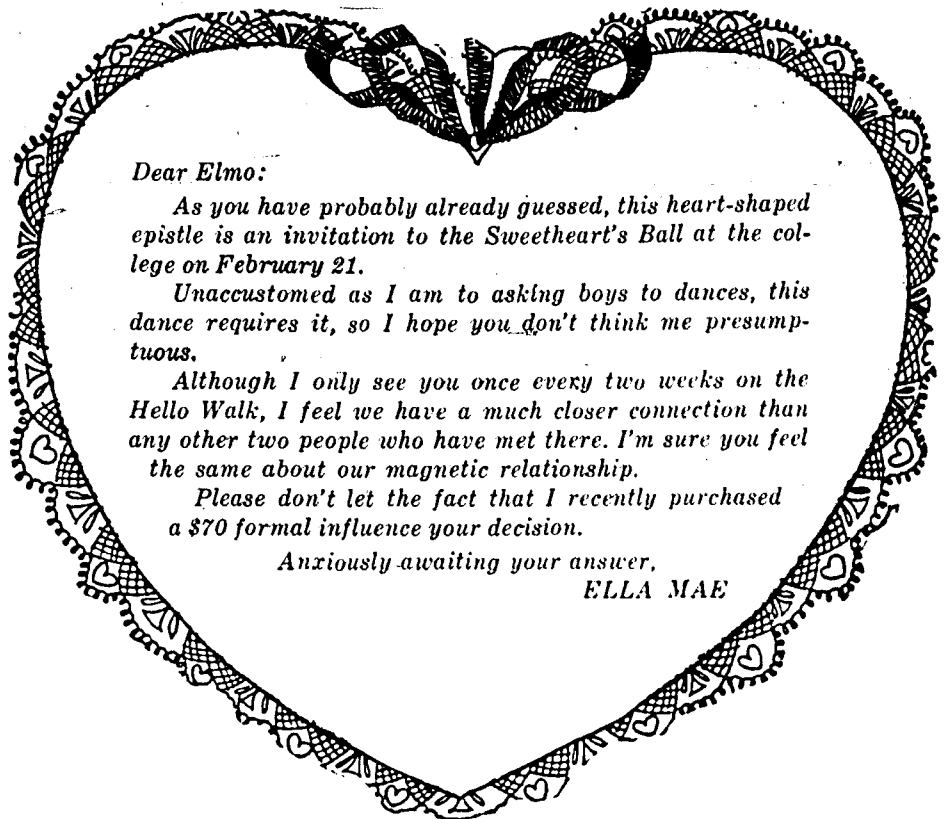

Under the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE), 79 Idaho students studying medicine, veterinary medicine and dentistry are "exchange" students in another western college or university.

Idaho, which is represented on the commission by Boisean Dr. A. M. Popma, participates in the exchange program through the dental hygiene program at Idaho State University. The Idaho legislature has set aside $136,800 to help in sending students to other states. According to Dr. Popma, there are more than 500 participants in this year's WICHE program.

Coeds Feted at Tea

Approximately 100 coeds were feted at an informal tea hosted jointly by the Golden Z's and Valkyries on Feb. 4, the first time in the history of BC service clubs that such an affair was held. The informal social was held to acquaint all interested girls with the aims and activities of the clubs. Prospective members will sign up today from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the office of the Dean of Women.

Like roosters some men believe the sun rises because they crow.

CAMPUS BEAT

A former Boise College student, Dennis McPherron, was a good Samaritan while traveling to New York by bus. Mrs. Roland Thomas, who became ill on the bus, was aided by McPherron, who also took charge of Mrs. Thomas's granddaughter until they reached Des Moines, where the ailing woman was taken to a hospital. Dennis completed three semesters at Boise College as an Art major, and was traveling to New York where he hopes to work his way to Denmark and enroll at the University there.

Building Supervisor Tom Hazard was considered for nomination for the "No Bell" award, reports Mr. Robert Sylvester, BC history teacher. The award was considered because of lack of a bell in the lecture hall of the Science building. The nomination was rescinded when the condition was remedied during the holidays.

Mr. Avery Peterson was the only person who was disappointed with the recent International Relations Club dance. He and his wife hoped to dance together, but the band played "suitable music" only once.

A member of the ROUNDUP staff was stopped by a policeman while driving through town with her boy friend. The officer said that by sitting next to her boy friend instead of in her own bucket seat, she was "impairing his driving." It's against the law!

Some colleges call those "older than average" men and women students seen in increasing numbers on campus members of the "DAR" or "D Average Raisers."

AWS sweatshirts are now available for all BC coeds. They can be purchased at the BC Book Store in the Administration Building for $3.00 apiece.

Memo From the Editor

The ROUNDUP publishes the news as it receives it from the various organizations on campus. If the publicity chairman or director from your organization is not getting correct information into the Publicity office by the deadline, Friday noon, the information for your group cannot be published. The school paper can be of great help to any club on campus by informing members and student body of upcoming activities with complete coverage. If your publicity director has not come into the office, your organization is not getting the coverage it needs.

CLUB NEWS

PI Sigma Sigma

The Pi Sigma Sigma's held their annual formal initiation and dance recently in the Candlelight Room of the Owyhee Hotel. Paul Bradley, the former president, installed the new president, Jerry Hill, as well as the other officers. New members installed are: Jerry Witt, Dave Sellman, Denny Sauers, Bill Allen, Rod Harrison, Mike Rowland, Jim Hill, Chuck Vauk, Tom Masters, Robin Norris, Steve Smith, Jim Jeffries and John Molenaar. Judy Walker, the reigning First Lady, presided over the formal dance.

Spring pledging will begin this week. Any interested male students are urged to contact the present members for any information concerning pledging. Pi Sig's is a service club which sponsors such activities as the President's Ball to be held on March 26, a raft race near the end of the semester, and a fund raising drive to help cure children's diseases. The club produces the Student Directory and promotes the girls' football game in November. Since no service club can function without the help of the school staff and faculty, the club is starting a tradition of each month presenting a traveling rose to the person who has helped the club the most during the past month.

Young Democrats

Newly elected officers of the Young Democrats are Jack Haymond, Jr., chairman; Larry Clabby, vice chairman; Joniann Storer, secretary-treasurer, and Audrey Cloninger, membership. Membership dues are $1 per semester.

Club pictures for the annual, LES BOIS, will be taken Monday, Feb. 14, at 9:35 a.m. in room 112 of the Administration Building.

Esquires

The Esquires recently entertained prospective members to help them become acquainted with current members and the club's activities. Ex-service men who were guests included: Army—Robert Austin, Larry Dresser, Tom Olson; Navy—Charles Riddle; Marine Corps—Gary Hackney and Ed Ralkenstien; Air Force—Russell Le Bourdois; Air National Guard—Ross Job, and National Guard—David Hansen, James Moulton and David Light.

BOISE, IDAHO

Girls, are you in a dilemma because you don't have an appropriate gown to wear to upcoming formal dances? Don't fret! The Better Dresses section of the BON MARCHE has much to offer in the way of reasonably priced, full-length formals.

In keeping with Valentine's Day and the "Sweetheart's Ball," perhaps you'd like something in red. A simple, sleeveless red velvet gown with a rounded back is the epitome of elegance, as is a wine velvet and white crepe creation. The wine bodice, with scalloped sleeves, is separated from the white skirt by a strip of satin, forming a bow at the back.

A pastel gown is suitable for any seasonal ball. Lace and bows are "in" this year. Especially feminine is a white, spaghetti-strap, empire waisted frock adorned by horizontal layers of lace and an encircling royal blue bow at the "waist."

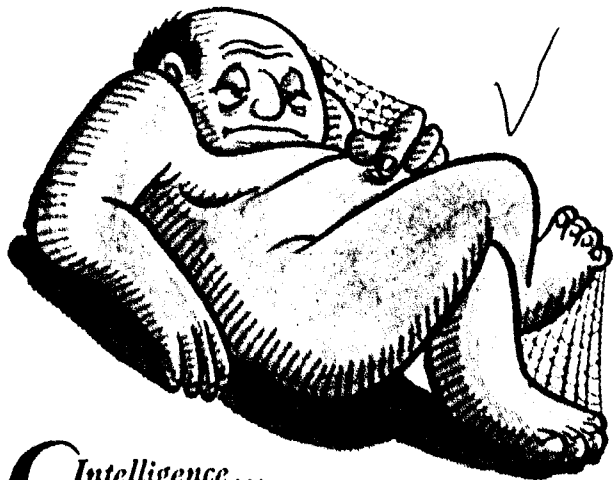

A pink, acetate-lined, quilted sleeveless dress is unique but lovely. Bordering the bodice is a hot pink velvet ribbon which meets in front with an artificial rose.

Another "bow" style is a yellow satin overlapped by white organdy lace, a yellow satin tie is at the waist. A snap-on bow is a special feature of a light blue gown with a lace-covered bodice and a nylon-topped skirt.

You're bound to be the "Belle of the Ball" in any of these elegant originals.

Final Court Action at Home Friday and Saturday

BRONCOS SPLIT CAGE CONTESTS

The Bronco quintet will host Dixie in what appears to be the deciding factor for the conference leadership this Friday night at 8 o'clock in the BC gym. The Dixie crew handed the Broncos their only league setback. On Saturday night another conference game is on tap, with BC hosting the crew from Snow.

Basketball fans who enjoy the half-time entertainment as well as the games will get a last look at the Boise College Broncettes this weekend at two basketball games—Friday and Saturday nights. This will be the last appearance of the BC drill team for this year.

The Boise College Broncos divided their court action with a win over the Mesa Mavericks and a loss to the University of Utah freshmen squad in early week action. Their divided turnouts put the Broncos at 12-9 for the year and 6-1 in season play, one game behind league leading Dixie.

Broncos Blast Mesa

Sophomore forward Lee Harvey pumped through 26 points in leading the Broncos to a 95-81 victory over the Mesa Mavericks of Grand Junction, Colo., last Saturday night. Harvey, in one of his better nights, hit on 10 of 20 from the field and a perfect 6-for-6 from the charity line. Going into the second half the BC crew was down 17 points as Steve Loveless and Wayne Auer started hitting from the floor to close the gap. Auer ended the night with 17, his season high, and Loveless came up with 14. Nep Lynch also chipped in with 14 points.

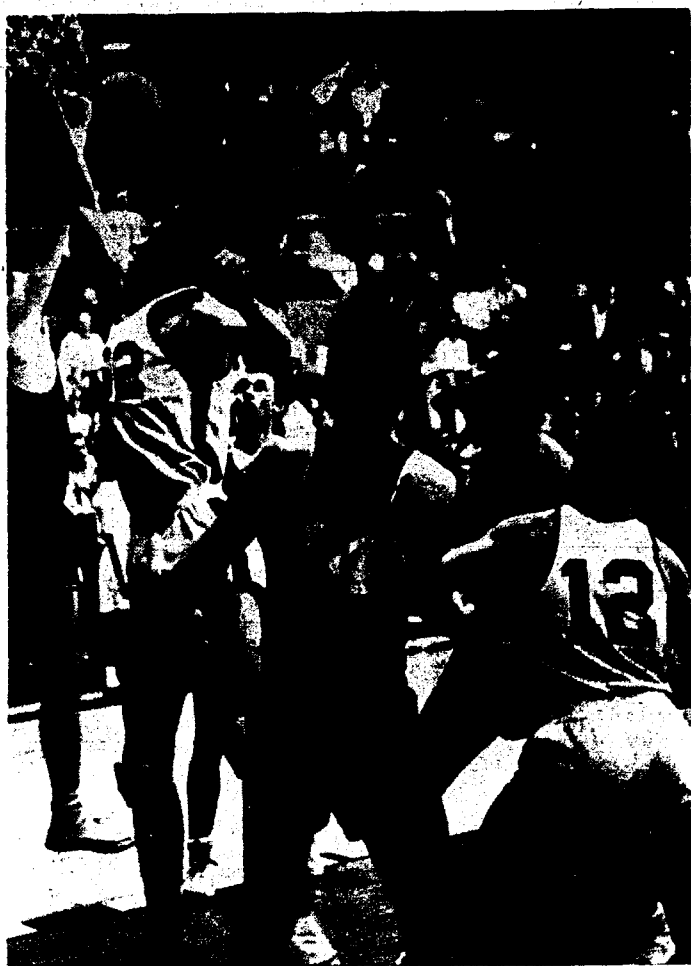

Baby Utes Down Boise

The freshmen from the University of Utah jumped to an early lead and stood off a late Bronco rally to hand the Boise crew an 85-72 setback Tuesday night in Salt Lake City. The loss, Boise's ninth in 21 games, posts their record to 12-9 for the season.

The Broncos, hitting a cool 40 per cent, connected on only 9 of 37 attempts in the first two stanzas and wound up with 30 of 82 from the floor. From the line the Broncos fared better, going 15 for 31 tries.

Down 15 points going into the dressing room, the Boise five came out fired up, with Lynch, Harvey and Bart Chaffee all connecting. The Utah squad finally settled down and held the ground against the charging Broncos. Lynch was high scorer with 19 points, followed by Harvey with 18 and Layne Broyles with 14.

There is a close relationship between hard work, a light heart and a clear mind.

BIG CENTER Bart Chaffee (52) rebounds for the Broncos while back-court man Steve Loveless (12) waits to bring ball down court in their game with the Ricks College Vikings.

Where the Action Is Perrin Takes Post At Mesa College

By MIKE BOWEN

The development of the body is equally as important as the development of the mind. The people who are today's leaders are those who have strived to develop their mind and body as perfectly as possible.

Boise College is bringing out its share of scholastic honor students as well as athletes who have gained honorable recognition. Many of the students are both. Men like Lyle Smith, Murray Satterfield, Ray Lewis and Jack Perrin have all left their mark in the scholastic fields of life and have certainly all made good records in athletics.

Jim Evenson, Boise College All-American, has kept his own in athletics and maintained a good level of study while at BC. Students on the Dean's List first semester included many athletes.

To insure some greatness in studies a person needs to spend a lot of time and also needs to receive a lot of help. The same thing is true in athletics.

Previous recognition has been given to the Esquires for their role in promoting school spirit. Also deserving recognition are the rest of the players who support their fellow members in every action. The cheerleaders, Broncettes and Pep Band deserve a big hand, too.

The "in" crowd today consists of both athletes and scholars.

Boise College will be losing one Perrin takes over the helm at of its coaches this spring as Jack Mesa Junior College in Grand Junction, Colo. Perrin will assume the head football and track responsibilities at the Maverick school.

"I've really enjoyed my stay in the Boise area," said Perrin. "I'm really glad to have had the opportunity to serve under such fine coaches as Lyle Smith and Ray Lewis."

An inventor, as well as an athlete, the coach invented the "charger," a muscle-building apparatus that works on the principle of spring action. This new exerciser sold nationally at both high school and college levels. Perrin's replacement has not yet been announced.

MACOMB BROTHERS GAIN DECISIONS

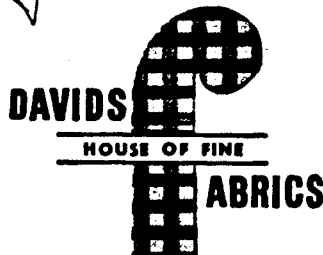

The Boise College wrestling unit traveled to Rexburg Wednesday to take part in the meet with Ricks College on the Vikings' home mat. The first meeting of the two schools found the Broncos going into the match supporting a 0-4 mark with losses to EOC twice, TVCC and ISU. Newcomers Steve Ball and Bill Kell should add strength in both the 137 and 167-pound weight divisions.

Brothers Larry and Garry Macomb came out the only victors in Boise's last match with EOC, both gaining victories by decisions.
