UNOFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT: '66 SCHOOL YEAR EXTENDED

Rumor has it that the end of the school year will have to be extended two more weeks. Due to the widespread flu which has kept many students and members of the faculty out of school, most classes are considerably behind schedule. To allow the students adequate classroom instruction, many captive academic types think it will be advisable to continue school until May 27, at least. Further notice will be given if this horrible rumor becomes an actuality.

Prospectus, 1966

A football coach began to speak... "My boys," he said, "the season's a success. We won ten games, no losses, no ties. The old alumni will see us through if we do what we ought to do. So, saying this, he looked some¬thing like a bear in his strains. At his brave words the fans turned. He saw a team which ought to be worth ten wins, no loss, no tie. Requirements for the entrants are that they be capable, failing in school, and have been married at least three times. Ninety-seven pound weaklings will not be accepted.

NEW NEWS BRIEFS

The power of the press is a miraculous thing! Within the last couple of months or so, there have been three articles which have appeared in a local newspaper at different times, which are deserving of further attention.

It seems that there is a man by the name of Brown, or Jones, or John Johnson, who gave a State of the Union message, in which he stated that his great country was going to carry out primarily a two-part objective in the ensuing months, namely, a continuing fight in Vietnam (not a war, however, just as a note by any other name would smell as sweet, so a young man who is killed in this whatsoever-ness, is just as dead). The second objective was to step up the program at home which pays more people for not producing anything.

Now this is a pretty stiff assignment. If we can swing it this man should make the Caesars and Napoleon's, et al look like a bunch of nincompoops.

At this stage, one is reminded of a favorite quotation of Buster Keaton, the frozen-faced comedian, at the end of a particularly zany old-time movie: "I think that I’ll go down to the insane asylum and lie down!"...

You too!

The second enlightenment concerned a psychiatrist, somewhere in the east, who was lobbying for placing classes in “the proper drink-ings.”

"If we place sufficient emphasis upon making more and better drunk-ards, if we do this, we would make the Caesars and Napoleons, et al look like a bunch of nincompoops.

It's heartening to know that our Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Departments are all on the job and are right in there pitching.

If you are having mechanical trouble in the head, maybe.

The third article concerned a traffic accident. It seems there was a female driver going down the highway and a truck was coming to ward her and signaling for a right hand turn. But instead he made a left hand turn. She crashed into him. The judge in the case found the truck driver innocent, "mechanical trouble," said the judge.

Now let this be a warning to all you drivers, if some jackass signals you intention and does something different, you’re apt to get into trouble. Mechanical trouble in the head, maybe.

It’s heartening to know that our Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Departments are all on the job and are right in there pitching.

NEW FIRST LADY

Take a nondescript couch, a few chairs, a table, and a few actors and you have a splendid drama set in the deep south. This is the case with 'The Foxes,' which was performed Monday night and will wind up Thursday night at 8:15 in the Little Theatre.

The play, written by Lilliam Hudson, portrays the bitter and violent period of the turn of the century as a new generation of carpetbaggers attempted to build empires based on industrialization of the south's resources.

The Little Foxes, the title of which is incorrectly determined, depicts a family of this category.

Miss Angela Hubbard, Judy Lyons, a freshman, does an excellent job of creating the character of a beautiful, charming woman, who is also the most evil and cunning individual in the cast. Those who saw 'Le Bourgeois' in the fall semester will remember Miss Lyons' portrayal of nonconforming, dominating, domineering woman. Nothing can be said at this time to destroy this actress' versatility than the combination with which she portrayed each of the two different roles.

The stage is completely submerged with jollification, to be done by those students, who take the part of the chorus, who find fault with the brother. The same cornucopia of roles which permitted the sublime 'worldly' gentleman role.

Raging his daughter, Cheryl Madison, a student who is also the most evil, Judy Lyons, a freshman, does an admirable performance in this role. Cheryl Madison, who plays Hairy Calloway, is also a member of the Little Foxes cast.

RELIGION ON Campus

During the spring quarter, Boise State College saw a 50% increase in the number of students attending religious services. This was an increase from 50 students to a total of 75 students. The increase was due to the efforts of the Rev. J. L. Smith, a Baptist minister who was hired by the college last fall to work with the religious activities on campus.

The increase in attendance was attributed to several factors, including the establishment of a new religious studies program, the appointment of a new religious advisor, and the creation of a new religious committee.

The religious committee consisted of representatives from the five major religious groups on campus. The committee was responsible for planning and coordinating religious activities on campus.

The new religious advisor, Rev. Smith, was responsible for overseeing the religious studies program and for providing religious counseling to students.

The new religious studies program offered courses in religious studies and provided students with an opportunity to study the major religions of the world.

The religious committee planned and coordinated religious activities on campus, including religious services, religious discussions, and religious lectures.

The increase in attendance was also attributed to the efforts of the Rev. Smith, who worked closely with the religious committee to ensure that religious activities on campus were well-coordinated and well-organized.

The increase in attendance was a positive development for the college, as it demonstrated a growing interest in religion among the student body. It also provided an opportunity for students to explore their religious beliefs and to participate in religious activities.

Track Season Opens Against Crusaders

The BC thinkads hosted a dual practice meet with the NNC Crusaders last Friday with the Bronco group carrying away firsts in every event except one.
