Our 'Talking Horse' Tells Secrets

The new Boise College mascot is a "talking horse."

Your name?

Montana Prince J.

Your status?

1966 mascot for our great—no, greatest—football team in history! Don't forget to put me down as a registered Appaloosa stallion!

Is it true that you like to fool around?

That's what my owner, Bernie Jestrabek, says at our home at 4804 Bloom Lane. Boys, she's 20, you know—and I think pretty good looking.

You mean you are in love with Miss Bernie?

ROUNDUP PRINTS WORLD EXCLUSIVE

The famous North American Newspaper Alliance, which serves the greatest papers in the world, has volunteered to let the ROUNDUP print an exclusive international story weekly—in an experimental effort to bring the world to the doorsteps of college students.

The first story — about Red Chinese efforts to destroy the wisdom of Confucius—appears on Page 3.

That's an embarrassing question, sir! No comment! For an 18-month horse, that's a tricky question. You know my mother was a Princess—that's what they called her. We of royal blood must act with dignity.

Why?

Well, there are a lot of young people going to Boise College. They're too young to fall in love. Of course, I'm only 18 months old . . . of course—hum, hum . . . I won first prize last June in the Indian Costume Class at the Idaho-Oregon-Nevada Appaloosa Horse Show!

Is it true, Montana, that whenever Miss Bernie puts a blanket on you before saddling, you reach around and pull it off?

Yes, now that I think of it.

Is it true that you will bring the Broncos good luck?

Yes, now that I think of it.

Is it true that you are prepared to jump over a more than two-foot fire?

Yes, now that I think of it—what am I saying? Do you want to kill me? What is this—a conspiracy against my life? Didn't I read about that in Shakespeare's "Hamlet?"

But you are a smart horse; surely you can jump over a fire.

If you put it that way—I'll try! Never give up the ship, you know—or don't they teach that in history anymore?!

What was the name of last year's mascot? Was he Spyleche?

Stop, stop!!! Don't mention my competition. I'll show him a thing or two!

Am I hearing things—Are you really talking? Or am I daydreaming in class—too much math, you know!

You bet I talk! I have a loud voice, too. Everybody—say "hello" to me at the big opening game! Watch my mouth, and see if I don't talk to you! Do you think I'm a donkey or somethin'? See you at the stadium. Boy, what a time I'm going to have out there! I mean looking at those pretty cheerleaders. Oh, boy!

BOISE RALLY DERAILS FOE, 13-9

By MIKE BOWEN
Sports Editor

The Boise Broncos erupted for two late scores and handed the high flying Columbia Basin Hawks a 13-9 setback on the Hawks' home field in Pasco, Washington. The game was the season opener for both schools.

The win for Boise sets the stage for the opening home game against Everett JC, Saturday night at 8 o'clock, in Bronco Stadium.

Canadian freshman Gordie Lund powered over two fourth quarter tallies and guided the Boise College Broncos to an inspirational 19-13 victory over the Columbia Basin Hawks. Lund punched over from three and two yards, respectively, in helping the Boise squad wipe out the early 9-0 margin the Washington team had made.

The defeat was well satisfying to Coach Lyle Smith and his men. The victory evened the score for the 26-0 defeat that was handed to the Broncos in their season opener last year against the Hawks. It also snapped a 13-game winning streak the Columbia Basin team had going into the contest.

Praise was given by the coaching staff to the excellent job done by the defensive units. A total of four interceptions were credited to the Broncos with Linebacker Jim Cafferty grabbing two. Bronco defensive lineman, tackle Jim Mahan, picked off a CBC aerial and scooted back to the six to set up Boise's first TD. Halfback Rich Dickson stole the other CBC pitch.

The Hawks scored early when a bad snap from center by the Broncos was recovered by the Pasco group in the end zone. With a 2-0 lead, CBS then went on to score on a 26-yard pass play from quarterback Tom Jordan to Joe Carter, and the Hawks went to the dressing room with a 9-0 lead.

Lund's two touchdowns and Gary Stivers' successful conversion attempt insured the victory and a promising start for Boise College.

Glenn Yarborough, nationally known singer, will perform in concert at Boise College on Oct. 5, according to Julie Booker, member of the Social Committee.

Coach Smith—who, by the way, seemed to be a very happy man—was very satisfied with the victory over the Columbia Basin Hawks. Coach Smith declared:

Six New Song Leaders To Appear Saturday

Adding to the spirit and enthusiasm at Boise College are six new song leaders, who were selected at the senate meeting Monday night. The song leaders, Pat Turner, Joyce Strange, Nancy McClure, Sandy Calhoun, Sue Stover and Linda Eyre, alternate, will join the six member squad of cheerleaders and the group of 12 will make their first appearance together this Saturday at 8:15 p.m., at the Boise Broncos' first home game of the season.

A graduate from Capital High School, Pat Turner will join the song leaders in her first year at Boise College. Pat was a cheerleader for three years in high school and received the Miss School Spirit award in her senior year.

Sandy Calhoun, who was elected alternate cheerleader last week, will also participate in the song leader squad. She is a three-year varsity cheerleader from Boise High School and was Yell Queen in her senior year. Sandy also received the award of Miss School Spirit.

Active in Pep Club during high school, Nancy McClure is a freshman at Boise College and will be one of the six song leaders. She is a graduate of Caldwell High School.

The only sophomore in the song leader squad is Joyce Strange, who is in her second year at BC. A graduate of Caldwell High School, Joyce lives in Morrison Hall on campus and was its social chairman last year.

Editor of her school paper in high school, Sue Stover will also join the group. She attended Greenleaf Friends Academy and graduated from Meridian High School. Sue was a cheerleader for two years in high school and is participating in the play, "King Lear" at BC.

Alternate for the group is Linda Eyre, a 1965 graduate of Winnemucca High School. Linda holds the honor of being Miss Winnemucca 1966.

COMMITTEE OF 1,000 FORMED IN SUPPORT OF STATE SALES TAX

By MARCIE IRELAND
Political Editor

A committee of students is being formed statewide in support of the sales tax in the election referendum in November. The group is known as the COMMITTEE OF 1,000, Student Leaders for a Brighter Idaho Future, and declares its purpose to be the distribution of materials and the stimulation of voter turn-out for the election.

Two Boise College instructors are advising the group. They are Dr. J. Alfred McCauslin who is the BC advisor, and Mr. Avery Peterson who is the state financial advisor.

Boise College student Jim Jones is administrative director on the state level. "I think it is going to be a very stiff and difficult battle," Jones stated in regard to retaining the sales levy. "However, he continued, "I feel that the interest in the state's future will overcome the voters' reservations against the sales tax."

The organization has the support of both the college Young Republicans and the Young Democrats. It is also endorsed by Governor Smylie and many other officials and candidates.

According to Organizational Director A. Robert Marley, the group will "endorse no candidates for any office at any time but rather expects to be itself endorsed by the candidates." Marley echoed Jim Jones' sentiments when he said, "Right now it is an uphill battle and if the election were held right now the sales tax would probably fail."

The Committee of 1,000 made an informal presentation of its program to the Student Senate on Monday and will give a full detailed presentation and ask for campus approval and help in organizing this Monday. Membership will be by invitation only.

Many Idaho officials feel that this outspoken interest and dedication on the part of the college students will probably be the most effective force for the sales tax.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

An Open Letter to the Student Body:

It has come to my attention that many of the Boise College students are uninformed, or misinformed, on the position I took with regard to the 4-year status for this school.

In 1961 a similar bill was proposed in the legislature to transform the college at Pocatello into a university. This entails more than just changing the sign on the building. It takes considerable money because more instructors are immediately necessary to operate a more extensive curriculum. More equipment is immediately required to conduct a wider range of courses. More students are attracted and this, in turn, means more facilities must be provided for parking space to classrooms, lunch rooms, dorms, labs, etc. There was no money available in 1961 to do all these wonderful things at the Pocatello college, consequently, there was no point in voting to make it a university. Three or four years later the proposal was considered again and I was happy to vote for it.

At Boise College the situation was not much different. There was more to voting for a four-year institution than just changing the sign out on the campus. This change meant a great deal more money would be needed. We did not have the money, period. So, in order to do what we could not afford at that time, the bill enacting the four-year status at Boise College necessitated additional taxation of 10 mills on the property of only people living within the city of Boise. You see, a responsible legislator must consider the people who pay the taxes along with many other details when voting on these bills.

While Boise was not my home town, I could recognize the unfairness of putting the whole burden of this tax on one limited area when, in fact, this burden should be financed at least by the whole Treasure Valley; or, in my desire to see more educational progress at BC, as Governor, I would ask the legislature to look into the feasibility of making Boise College eventually fully state supported.

My stand on the four-year status for BC was discussed with a number of faculty members. They agreed that my viewpoint was understandable and tenable.

Campus Beat

A false fire alarm freed students in 1 o'clock classes in the Administration building on Monday from their classes for a short time. It seems that some prankster pulled the lever to break the glass and set off the alarm. The Administration discourages this practice, as it is illegal.

Boise College students have been known to have some strange extra-curricular activities but Stan Jonasson, IK Duke, has a pastime that beats them all: He seems to enjoy spending his Sunday evenings swinging on the swings in Julia Davis Park.

Dr. Rotz was seen casually sitting on the Administration Building steps the other day, which is nothing unusual except that the position he was sitting in resembled that of Sitting Bull. Dr. Rotz, where did you say your ancestors came from?

A REMINDER

Homecoming is advancing faster than you think. Clubs planning on entering a float in the Homecoming parade should make some definite plans; Oct. 15th isn't that far away.

Dear Editor:

The Young Democrats are an organization whose objectives include dispensing information about the Democratic party, supporting Democratic nominees and our constitutional processes in elections.

The last meeting of the Boise College Young Democrats was held on Thursday, Sept. 15, at 4 p.m., in Room A112.

Things discussed were the time for taking our yearbook picture, the election of officers for next semester, plus showing a film on John F. Kennedy. The late Charles Herndon, Democratic candidate for governor, had been slated to speak. A social function for this year was also discussed.

Anyone interested in joining the Y.D.'s who missed the booth at the end of registration should contact either Dr. Caylor at 344-7075, or at his office at A118, or Jack Raymond, president, 343-9048.

Dear Editor:

Please, before owners of Honda Hawks, Lammba 250's and 305's, Suzuki X-6's and so on, form a line to wipe me out—I didn't say a Honda 160 is the biggest Japanese cycle (Someone left out a sentence). I said a Kawasaki 650 is the biggest. And there's plenty of difference between a 160 and a 650.

Back-to-School Slump?

'Mono' Returns To College For A Repeat Performance

By JOAN KICKHAM

As millions of students return to classes, school and college physicians and nurses soon will be faced with long lines of young men and women complaining of feeling tired and listless and having other difficult-to-pin-down symptoms.

Some students will simply be suffering from laziness. But many others will have a legitimate reason for "back-to-school slump"—infectious mononucleosis—a common back-to-school disease which in the past has been more difficult to diagnose than to treat.

A theory that "mono" is transmitted by close personal contact has led college students to romantically call it the "kissing disease." Yet, when it strikes, infectious mononucleosis can be one of the most miserable experiences in a student's life.

Recovery can be slow and every day lost from school can endanger marks and play havoc with education plans.

Now, experts have found that it can be an indicator of emotional stress.

Recent studies conducted by the Tulane University School of Social Work in New Orleans revealed that high school and college students who were being treated for mono were momentarily depressed at the time they became ill.

Thus, mono becomes a trigger for drop-outs, an excuse for failing to repeat a year, a last straw for requesting medical excuses for postponement of examinations.

In addition, mono is also a serious problem because of its ability to mimic other ailments including appendicitis and hepatitis. One authority, in fact, reports that no fewer than 29 separate maladies can be mistaken for mono if diagnostic procedures are imprecise.

These ailments may call for exploratory surgery to verify or potent drugs to treat, while the usual treatment for mono is three to six weeks' bed rest, aspirin and gargles.

Therefore, because of the possibility of a mono patient being subjected to the risk of being diagnosed and treated incorrectly, physicians have been searching for a quick and accurate test to confirm or rule out the disease.

The Tulane study further indicates the need for early detection of the disease since postponement of needed bed rest adds to the stress and makes for emotional as well as physical complications.

This year, however, it will be less difficult for school health officials to tell whether a listless student is discouraged about his exams, malingering, seriously ill, or another victim of mono. Pharmaceutical research has come up with an important new development—the "Mono-Test"—a simple, inexpensive diagnostic test which quickly, and happily for the patient, reveals the presence of mono in only two minutes.

Using the new test, physicians can now immediately order bed rest and spare the patient further diagnostic procedures and delay in treatment.

With the new "Mono-Test" diagnostic blood-testing for mono becomes readily accessible.

"Mono-Test" is so simple that any medical technician can report immediate results in two minutes.

It can be performed by a doctor in his office using only a glass slide, a blood sample from the patient and the control samples provided in the kit.

In addition, this new diagnostic test is inexpensive.

To screen an entire school or university class costs only about one dollar per student.

Before the introduction of this quick screening method it would have been almost unheard of to test a large number of students because conventional diagnostic techniques were too expensive and too time-consuming.

She Tells About Her Club—Phi Beta Lambda's Accomplishments

By CAROL DRUASH

Business students and all those interested in any field of business are invited to Boise College's own Business Club, Phi Beta Lambda.

Find out what a truly exciting, interesting and advanced field your interests lie in. Meet people of your own age group and enjoy with them the many and fascinating sides there are to the field of business.

Club President Scott Rogers and Vice-President Gary Cowles urge you to attend this first meeting to see for yourself how many benefits this club has to offer you, socially and academically.

Throughout the year noted businessmen will be called upon to speak to you at meetings; there will be special tours arranged so that the most interesting and up-to-date aspects of the business world may be explored by you.

Last year when the Phi Beta Lambda chapter of the state Future Business Leaders of America attended the state convention in Nampa, it came away with many honors—Jack Stahanczyk is this area's representative; Edle Ry-dalch was elected Miss Future Business Teacher; the club's activities report was named the best in its field; the club's vocabulary team won the competition against NNC in word definition.

This year the convention will be held on our campus and is an experience that no one should miss.

Phi Beta Lambda is very proud to say that the vice president of the state F.B.L.A. is to be a member of its ranks this year, too.

If you are interested in leadership and in exploring all of the possibilities offered to you by Phi Beta Lambda, come to the first big meeting to be held on Wednesday, Sept. 28, 1966, at 7:00 p.m. in the SUB ballroom.

Meet the new officers, who are, in addition to Mr. Rogers and Mr. Cowles:

Treasurer, Gary Bengochea and Secretary, Wilma McTavish. The club's advisors are Mrs. Helen Johnson and Mr. Walter Voskuil.

'Red Guards' War Against Confucius; Story Tells of Brutalities In China

By RON G. WHITEHEAD North American Newspaper Alliance

HONGKONG (NANA)—The great sage, Confucius, honored by Chinese of all classes for 2,500 years, has been singled out for special abuse by the militant "Red Guards" of Canton.

Portraits of the "scholar-saint" are reported by mainland arrivals to have been paraded through the city streets of the South China metropolis by gangs of young activists. Attached to each portrait was a banner reading: "I am an ox, a demon, a snake, and a devil."

The "Red Guards" told the people that Confucius was "the No. 1 criminal of feudal thinking" and they threatened to launch another "down with Confucius" campaign, but much more severe than the one launched 16 years ago when the reds first took over.

Stepping up their "revolt" against traditionalism and capitalism the young "cultural revolutionaries" have ordered various fresh restrictions in Canton.

They have made the authorities there issue, under pressure, a 4-point directive ruling that cremation must replace traditional burial (this is an insult to ancestors); that landlords are not to collect any more rent (two landlords are reported to have already committed suicide as a result); no more interest is to be paid to former capitalists who have become shareholders in joint state and private enterprises; and overseas Chinese have been forbidden to withdraw deposits from banks without approval (prior news of this led to heavy runs on the banks, sources said.)

Besides these official moves, the young "Maoists" claim private doctors exploit people for "their own gain" and medical men are considering dropping their practices before they get into trouble.

THE BON MARCHE

With the fall season upon us, it's time to consider coats. If last year's "model" is moth-eaten or threadbare, "fill the bill" with a car coat, such as DUBARRY'S cowhide leather jacket, lined and trimmed (collar and cuffs) in fluffy acrylic. This fashionable car coat comes in taupe, with dark brown wooden buttons, and sand, with light brown buttons. Similar, but shorter, is a HOLIDAY sand-colored corduroy jacket with side-slashed pockets.

On a more feminine note are fluffy fur (modacrylic) numbers by PRIDE'S CROSSING, which are available in brown and light beige. Other modacrylic furs are a navy and rust plaid, pile mackinaw, and a shaggy, light gold "fur fun" coat, both by WHITE STAG.

The outstanding feature of nylon-wool NORTHLANDER car coats are black knit sleeves, which give the coats a cape-like appearance. Two styles in brilliant red are one with black buttons, and a collar which buckles, and one with a black pile lining, silver buttons, and a black-trimmed collar. A double-breasted camel-colored coat, with black buttons, and a rounded black knit collar will surely match any outfit. The knit collar and sleeves also trim a red, navy and gold plaid NORTHLANDER.

In keeping with the "Military Look" is a navy sycamore pea coat (HRAMA by WAHREN), complete with gold buttons and side-slashed pockets. The pea coat, designed for year-around wear, contains a zip-out lining, thus it is "two coats in one."

Even Teahouses Affected

Teahouses, the traditional gathering places of all classes of Chinese during their leisure hours, are now permitted to open only at certain times of the day and the "red guards" are advocating the eating of more nutritious "red and coarse" rice, instead of the higher quality, better-tasting white rice which most Cantonese prefer.

Even pedicab drivers are chary of taking passengers for fear of being labeled "capitalists" and the latest mainland reports say a driver's union meeting has been called in Canton to discuss this urgent problem menacing the pedicab men's livelihood.

Arrivals here claim that a former Hongkong Cantonese opera star, the curvaceous Miss Hung Sin-Mui, famous in Red China as "the Red Thread Girl," had her clothes torn off by red activists at a public meeting where she was charged with "receiving a salary and not working for the people."

Her own daughter was among the teenage crowd who demanded she get out of the country, the arrivals said. Subsequently she was reported to have been sent off to Shanghai to "reform herself."

Seamen returning here from Whampoa—big port on the Pearl River which serves Canton and Kwangtung—say that the Canton Moslems have been hit by the current purge. They have been forced to eat the pork which their religion forbids, the "red guards" holding that pigs are reared for food, while cows and oxen are valuable "tools" which can be used to cultivate the land!

Moslems Escape to North As a result Moslems were trying to escape to the north, the seamen said, hoping for better things up there.

A teenage girl, back here from a visit to her mother in Canton, claimed one of her close relatives was on the verge of insanity after seeing her husband publicly humiliated by the "red guards."

She said: "They took him out onto the streets and forced him to sit for hours in the sun to 'purify himself.' They invited all her relatives to watch the spectacle so they could learn it does not pay to buck the cultural revolution," she said.

His mistake had been that "he wore a checkered shirt"—its colors offended the "red guards" because they said these represented "western thinking."

Do Intelligent People Have More Children?

Boise College educators are split on whether brainy people tend to have more children than those with lower I.Q.'s. The reaction came in the wake of a study by Dr. Carl Bajema of Grand Valley State College in Michigan.

He found that persons with an I.Q. of 120 or more had 2.6 children while those in the average range of 95 to 104 had only two children.

"There is no doubt much merit to the study," declared Dr. William S. Bronson, a leading Idaho psychologist. "In Boise, I have found large numbers of children among intelligent families."

"I think that many people tend to get confused as far as money and intelligence is concerned. Those with money are not necessarily intelligent. In fact, there are indications that the more money a person has, the less number of children he or she may have."

Dr. Bronson declared that birth control pills may, in the future, be responsible for more babies by intelligent people. The less brainy people, he said, tend to use these pills not to have children at all. But the more intelligent use these pills to space their children according to plan.

"However, I fear that these pills in many instances are not good for our moral structure," he added. "I have come across a number of cases that support this fear."

Dean of Faculty Acel H. Chaburn said that studies have shown that, in many cases, intelligent people are heavier and taller and that, contrary to popular opinion, they are more adjusted emotionally and socially.

"They are by no means odd balls," said the dean. "They, in turn, tend to have more children. But I think it is a mistake to take I.Q. standings very seriously. I.Q.s may not be able to assess a particular form of intelligence. There are several kinds of intelligence in the human being."

Prof. Edwin E. Wilkinson, a psychologist and dean of men, admitted that many American educators are indoctrinated to believe differently than the findings of Dr. Bajema's study.

"Many of our scholars are taught that the more intelligent a couple is, the less children they will likely have. This contrary Bajema finding has apparently come as a shock to many," he declared.

Wilkinson added that he believes that family environment is very important. Children, he said, should be exposed to finer ideas and challenged in all aspects of life. Parents can be rich, he added, but they may be "interested chiefly in parties and will often buy off their offspring. A youngster coming from a negative environment will not be apt to be interested in raising a nice family of his own."

According to another professor, I.Q.'s at Boise College are around the same as in the city of Boise—with approximately 5 per cent being in the "genius or gifted" category. The professor pointed out that a number of these "gifted" persons fail in school, and that even an over-200 I.Q. does not insure learning success.

Quoting another study done with scientists on the faculty of Cambridge University (in England), showing that persons who have a higher occupational status than their fathers want and probably will have more children than their fathers, it was found that these scientists only have an average I.Q. of 126. There are many in Boise, said the professor, who have greater I.Q.'s.

One college psychologist was skeptical about both studies. Dr. Wallace Gould declared that the researcher of the brainy people-children topic "stuck his neck out. I believe the subject is still open to controversy."

POLITICAL COLUMN

By MARTHA IRELAND

The tragic death of Democratic gubernatorial candidate Charles Herndon has brought sorrow to his political opponents as well as to his friends. In his memory an outward moratorium on political activity has been voluntarily imposed by Democrats, Republicans and Independents. Beneath the surface, however, the wheels of politics spin wildly.

The questions include, "Who will fill Charles Herndon's shoes?" Many Democrats leaders wonder, "Will it be me?" And every other candidate asks, "How does this affect my chances?"

The Democrats have a wide choice of nominees. They will probably choose State Senator Cecil Andrus, an action which may cause a split in their party.

As for the effect of this tragic and untimely event on the other candidates, one can only hope that the people do not resort to a sympathy vote. We must remember that no one can vote for Charles Herndon now and a vote for his successor will not restore him to the scene.

As always, voters must choose the political program that will best preserve the freedom and the dignity of the people of Idaho and of the nation as a whole. This choice should be made with the head, not with the heart alone.

WHAT HAPPENS IN A DRESSING ROOM?

By BILL WINKLER

Ever wondered what goes on in a dressing room during halftime at a football game? Well, the Bronco fans at Saturday's game with the Columbia Basin Hawks must have been wondering.

After a game which started like the continuation of last year's, with a 9-0 score against them at the half, the Broncos came out of that dressing room like a new and polished team.

They went into that second half determined, and came out with a pair of touchdowns in the fourth quarter to win 13-9, and start them on to another winning season.

This was the second time in five meets with the Columbia Basin Hawks that the Broncos have beaten them. Last year the Broncos suffered an embarrassing 25-0 loss at home.

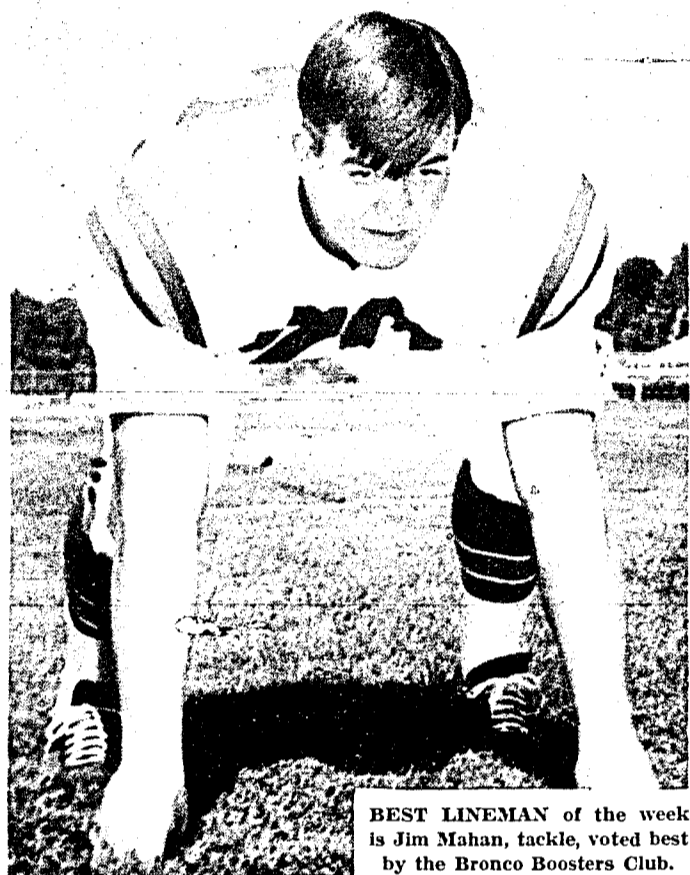

The outstanding player of the game was hard to pick, although Lund who did the scoring on both touchdowns, must be considered. Other outstanding players were Williams, Mahan, Poole and John Kameenui.

All in all it seems that this game was played by a team that is determined to win. Of course, as is expected in all opening games, there were a lot of errors, but these can be worked out.

It just goes to show that what you need to win ball games is practice, a good coach, and plenty of that 'team spirit'.

This weekend we have a chance to show that spirit as the Broncos meet Everett Junior College at 8:15 p.m., Saturday at Bronco Stadium.

Let's go out and show our team that we are behind them 100 per cent.

BEST LINEMAN of the week is Jim Mahan, tackle, voted best by the Bronco Boosters Club.

'Clean Break' for New Season

GETTING DOWN TO THE ROOT OF THINGS are these Boise College athletes, who made a clean break for the upcoming season. Many of the Bronco football promises had their heads shaved to denote the fighting spirit that was in store for the coming season. Players (left to right) include John Kameenui, Rodney Lima and Ken Thomas.

BEST BACK OF THE WEEK: Pat Williams, fullback, voted best back by Bronco Boosters Club.

but they can be corrected."

After watching the films of the game, I must concur with him. The first half was all Hawks, but after the start of the second half, it seemed that all the mistakes and errors mentioned had been corrected.

Coch Smith remarked:
"The most gratifying point of the ball game was our defense hung in there real well.

The voting for the best lineman and best back in the game was:

Jim Mahan, offensive tackle, best lineman.

Pat Williams, fullback, the best back. — B. W.
