Broncos Open 67-68 Season With Hawks

BASKETBALL COACH Murray Satterfield begins his third season as head Bronco cage mentor with games involving Columbia Basin and Spokane Community College Dec. 1 and 2. Satterfield, who led the BC Roundballers to NJCAA finals, came to Boise College in 1965 as assistant football coach early in the fall and basketball boss in the winter season. He has formerly coached SIC champs, the Borah Lions of Boise, Idaho.

Although the the offenese was exposed to, season was a "poor" one (6-4 as opposed to 9-1 in 1966), the team still gave a proper showing.

The offense completed 41% of their attempted passes as compared to a close 39% for the opposing elevens. And while the Broncos elected to pass only 119 times, their opponents threw the ball in half again as many attempts. These figures indicate an alert secondary on the part of BC which intercepted 18 passes and pressured receivers and passers to give up 91 tries.

The Boise offense lost nearly twice as many fumbles as the de-

Satterfield Faces Columbia Basin As Third Season BC Basketball Mentor

By HOWARD WRIGHT Roundup Sports Writer

Friday, Dec. 1, the Bronco fieldhouse will erupt with the cheering and excitement of the first cage clash of the season. As last year, the first tilt will be with the Columbia Basin Hawks from Pasco, Wash. Last year in double contests, the Hawks and the Broncos split both pairs of contests by nearly equal margins.

On the following night, the Boise crew will meet Spokane Community College. Last year the Broncos also split the series with Spokane.

"Both Columbia Basin and Spo-

Coach Murray Satterfield commented. "Last year Columbia Basin and Spokane battled to a onepoint difference in the regional championship. In fact, for the last six years, the Washington Junior College Conference has been fought out between Spokane and Columbia Basin!'

Three returning sophomores -Bill Otey, Wendell Hart and Keith from Paterson, N. J., who will Burke, who started last year—will form the nucleus of this year's Broncos. Otey, a rugged 6'41/2" forward from Washington, D. C., is a master with the ball and will add a lot of scoring, as well as kane are probably the toughest fine defensive play to the squad.

burg, Ore., has good range from close in and is also a very capable rebounder on the boards. Hart. also a native of Washington, D. C., is a fine shot from outside as well as from inside, Hart, 6'1", could play either in a forward or a guard spot on the floor.

Also on the starting lineup will be Ronnie Austin, a 6'2" freshman probably be in a forward position. For the fifth starter, sophomores Rodell Hill, Dan Bofenkamp and Phil Choules, along with freshman Don Cox are in hot contention for a starting bid. Bofenkamp and Hill return from last year's squad and Choules returns to BC from the Bronco squad of '64-65. Cox is a graduate of Emmett High School, where he played varsity basketball since he was a sophomore.

Freshman Joe Gillespie, a 6'7" center from Cleveland, Ohio, could also work into a starting slot, Joe is a fine rebounder and shot from inside, and will be valuable if oneof the big men up front gets into personal foul trouble.

Last year the Broncos compiled a 26-10 overall record, won their second ICAC championship, and finished ninth in the National Junlor College championship meet. With three returning starters, Satterfield is confident about good prospects for his squad this season, as he begins his third year.

SAX MAN Paul Winter leads off his group, The Paul Winter Ensemble, in a modern Jazz number, which will be presented in concert Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in the Boise College Student University of the Paul September 19 page 19 in the Boise College Student Cli-ion Ballroom. Sponsored by the Social Committee, the program will feature the best in modern music, played by "The Number One College Jazz Group in the United States."

WINTER ENSEMBLE PLAYS THURSDAY

A unique program of modern jazz will be presented by The Paul Winter Ensemble, Columbia recording artists, Thursday, Nov. 30 at 8:15 p.m. in the Boise College Student Union Ballroom. The entertainment is sponsored by the Social Committee and tickets are now being sold in the booth in the SUB foyer.

The ensemble, comprised of saxophone, classical guitar, flute, bass and drums, will present a highly varied program of modern music, part original, and part influenced by their travels in 25 countries.

Hailed as one of the most unusual and interesting groups in modern music today, the Paul Winter Ensemble originated at Northwestern University in Evanston Ill., under the name of the Paul Winter sextet.

In 1962, the ensemble, selected for both their musical ability and their academic, excellence, was chosen to begin an experiment in cultural exchange as the first student jazz group to go on a State Department tour.

The experiment included a sixmonth tour of Latin America, playing 160 concerts in 61 cities and conducting seminars in every major university.

Earlier that year, the group competed in the Intercollegiate Jazz Festival in Washington, D.C., of "The Number One College Jazz Group in the U.S.A."

An official tribute to the success of the tour came from the late President J. F. Kennedy, with an invitation to perform at the White House. In 1962, the group became the first jazz group ever Thorne, Harrison; Don Davis, Meto play in the White House and their concert was hailed by Ency- Larry Bean, Sweet; Gary and Juclopedia Britannica as one of the lian Jiva, Challis; Mike Millard, important cultural events of the Payette; Robert Williams, Banks year.

All members of the group attended Northwestern and all majored in subjects other than music.

DRAMA DEPARTMENT TO PRESENT ONE-ACT PLAYS, NOV. 30, DEC. 1-2

The Boise College drama department will present two one act plays by Eugene Ionesco Thursday, Nov. 30, Dec. 1 and 2. Curtain time on all three nights will be 8:15 p.m., in the old Student Union Ballroom.

The first play, "The Lesson," is a satire on the academic process and on the language used by professors and students alike. "The Bald Soprano," which is also a satire but with a touch of comedy is a comment on the middle class parlor conversation. The language style is that of a first grade primer, Dick and Jane, which heightens the comedy.

Directed by John Warwick, "The Lesson" cast includes Nathan Davis as the Professor, Janet Vetter as the Pupil and Kathy Brown as "The Bald Soprano," directed by Robert Dewey, is composed of Randy Kitzing as Mr. Smith, Lynda Callin as Mrs. Smith, John Charchalis as Mr. Martin, Opal Cooper as Mrs. Martin, John Poulson as the Fire Chief, and Jan Perkins as the maid.

Lighting will be by Bill Mc-Cracken and Jack Pederson, The set was built by John Poulson and publicity and concessions are being handled by Alpha Psi Omega. Tickets may be purchased at the door and Boise College students will be admitted with their acti vity ticket.
