Students of Boise State College
Flying Broncos Eye Plans For Memorial

by Stan Olsen
Flying Bronco President

The Flying Bronco of Boise State College have turned their heads to the ground this fall. In addition to their flying program, they are working on the Boise State College Aviation Memorial.
The memorial will be dedicated to Vanwyer Airlines (now United Airlines) which claimed it was the oldest scheduled airlines in the United States.

Vanwyer was based here when the Boise Municipal Airport was the Boise State College campus. The Vocational-Tech shops near the stadium hangered the old hanger machines.

In cooperation with the BSC administration and United Airlines, the Flying Broncos are planning to construct a memorial in their name. Located near the Science Building, the structure will fit into the new building plan and balance the Esquire Mall.

A large compass rose and sundial combination bearing a Bronze needle is among preliminary plans. The actual plans will be worked out with United Airlines and the B.S.C. administration.

As an initial fund raising campaign, the Flying Broncos are asking for donations. The Broncos will award a free trip for two to Reno, Nev. for three days and nights for some lucky donor.
The trip will include round trip transportation on United Airlines, three night's lodging, meals, cocktails, shows and as a bonus, tickets to the International Air Race to be held September 20, 21, and 22. If the winner is under age, the Flying Broncos will award a portable television to be displayed in the Student Union this week.

Donations will be taken the end of this week. Booths will be set up in several places on campus. The Flying Broncos will distribute numbered receipts for the donations and a drawing will take place Monday, Sept. 16, on the library steps. Persons need not be in attendance to win.

The Flying Broncos are welcoming new membership applications. For information, see Club Advisors Wayne White or Carl Tipton on RM. 218.

"America, the renowned nation of speed and efficiency," but not so to Nicole Kureutz who arrived in the United States only three weeks ago to take a position as French professor at Boise State College.

She was soon to learn that in spite of America's complex and fast moving society, her traveling problems were just commencing rather than terminating. After finally reaching San Francisco, Miss Kureutz put her luggage in a locker at the airport and prepared to return for the evening.

The following morning she returned to obtain her baggage and board the plane to Boise. However, she was unable to locate her locker or obtain information on how to find the number which matched the number on her locker key.

Consequently, she missed her plane and was forced to spend an extra day in San Francisco on stand by. There are only two flights daily from San Francisco to Boise.

An interesting and versatile woman, Miss Kureutz was born in the small village of Kaysenborn located in the southern part of Alsace. Incidentally, this same small village was also the birthplace of the famous humanitarian, Albert Schweitzer.

Miss Kureutz's secondary education included emphasis in the classical field. She studied Latin and two foreign languages at a private school in a small town nearby.

In France, a high school student may embark upon any one of four chosen academic fields which stress either liberal arts, science, mathematics, or economics.

Upon passing the national examination, Miss Kureutz studied Fine Arts in Paris for two years and spent an additional two years in Italy and England.

She then attended Strasbourg University where she obtained her "licence", which is similar to our Bachelor of Arts degree.

When she returns to France in a year or two, she plans to take further examinations. She presently has her Maister, a degree equivalent to that of a Master's Art.

SAM JOHNSON reads his portrayal of Macbeth for the BSC Subal Players' production of "Macbeth", opening Sept. 12 in the Subal Theater. The play is said to be the most elaborately mounted play in the history of the college, according to John Warwick, chairman of the Communications Arts department.

Opening night, Sept. 12, is a scholarship benefit night for an invited audience. There are 15 dates open to the public from Sept. 13 to Sept. 29, excepting the 16th and 23rd. Monday nights when the theatre will be dark. All performances begin at 8:15 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 for students, $5.50 for adults. Reservations may be made through the Communications Arts department office.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, the Boiser:

I was dismayed by William P. Jones' column in the August 30 issue. I was dismayed by the sophomoric reasoning used in the argument against gun controls. Amidst the frivolous suggestion that cans be registered because people can't get drunk on them, one could point out that registration is required for our most precious right; the right to vote, so why not the "right" to bear arms. We must remove access to firearms from the incompetents and nuts in society.

Contrary to what the gun lobby would have us believe, the vast majority of accidents and murders with firearms are committed, not by the "criminal element", but by acquaintances and family members. In fact, 1961-1971, 31% of all murders were committed within immediate family units. Given, a murder can be committed with almost any object for a weapon. The real point is that the vast majority of the killers know the victims, know the victims, know the victims. nylon stockings, dowels, etc, are utilitarian devices, whereas a gun can serve only as an instrument of death. Let's get on with gun controls the smarter, the tougher, the better.

Ballot Box for Techs

Heated discussion arises every year at the time of student body elections primarily because the alumni, of course, would like to have a voice in the voting process. At the same time, the Boiser Student government has continually asserted that students alone must determine who serves them. This assertion is made on the grounds that alumni are not up to date with the policies, procedures, and happenings of the campus and therefore would not be able to make intelligent decisions on the issues confronting the student body.

As a student, I must question this policy. It seems to me that alumni, especially those who have been actively involved, have an opportunity to learn the campus climate and the issues through the alumni newsletter. The alumni are also in touch with the developments in the area of business, engineering, and other fields of specialization. The former students, even though they are busy in their careers, would be interested in the development of Tech, and their contribution to the campus would be vital.

I therefore propose that the alumni have a voice in the student body elections. They should be allowed to vote for candidates and have a say in the matters affecting the campus. I believe that this would lead to a more informed and responsible student government, which would reflect the priorities and interests of the alumni.

Signed, a Concerned Alumni

Diplomats Tell Students:
"Learn Sweep of History"

By Liv Tucker

"A sense of History—the sweep of history of our own country and of the world at large, in perspective with the men in the equipment needed to join the ranks of foreign service," advocated Abram E. Manell, special assistant to the Secretary of State, when he spoke last Wednesday at an assembly in the Liberal Arts Auditorium.

Manell, a foreign service officer with over 20 years experience, was introduced to the assembly by Avery Peterson, assistant professor of political science, himself a former member of the diplomatic corps.

Manell opened the discussion with brief reflections on his own career in Foreign Service. He said that "the underlying conflict of man has never stopped," and that he had learned that "this conflict must be reckoned with and prepared for." To the students he offered the prospect of the foreign service, reminding them of their responsibility to serve, self, city, state, country, and world.

"Frenchmen often have heard it, to see one with a mustache. She also said that such American styles as Bermuda are common in her country.

Much American Folk Music, is popular in France. Bob Dylan and Joan Baez are well liked.

Popular, too, among the young people is "Franzisk, a combination of the French and English languages. English words, such as "parking, luge-box, weekend are used because there is no foreign translation for them. Young adults in France are often heard to say, "Let's go to Le Restaurant and have un sandwich."

Miss Kuentz stated that although a large majority of Frenchmen are born into the Roman Catholic faith, many find the liturgy too pompous and do not attend church regularly. She also freely speaks German, Italian, and English in addition to her native tongue.

Names a 'Changin'

Last spring the student journalists at old BC were heading for the LAST ROUNDUP with their eyes set on a new year, a new paper, and a new name. The ARBITER is now a reality, yet with all the changes on and around the BC campus, students are still in the process of adopting the new name."

The ARBITER planners felt that with the change in school policy with the advent of Dr. Barnes, a name should be chosen to express the new look of BSC and the potential of a Boise State University. In addition, the newspaper became independent financially last May in an effort to assume editorial independence. If one wonders an arbiter as a person who goes into a situation as a witness or judge for the sole purpose of arbitrating the matter. The ARBITER stands between factions on campus or comments on actions taken when opposition is necessary. The Arbiter does not create controversy for its own sake, thought may seem that way, but tries to represent the student who is not heard either because he is a pacifist or ignorant. Journalism on a college campus is as important as a newspaper in a metropolitan area because the student must have a voice for his own feelings and needs when the time approaches when he has become a number in a computerized system of education.

The ARBITER serves its community of students as any professional paper would serve its public. Items will be judged by professional standards to see if they are worthy of printing, and perhaps in this way the student body will have that is not only well written but well read.

King Court Contest To Begin Monday

Contests for the annual King Court and Court Contest will be regulated and shared Monday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the SUB barber shop members of the Valleyvike service club. The competition is open to all BSC male students, who will be required to pay a $10 entry fee. The contest will last eight weeks and will conclude with a formal homecoming celebration on Nov. 1.

The Boise State College Library has been subject to a few changes from the preceding year, according to members of the library staff, who have increased expansion and duties.

Two new positions have been added including one held by retired Air Force Major Robert T. McDowell, Technical Services Librarian. These duties include buying and processing new books. Having just completed his training for this position, Major McDowell comes to the college from San Jose State, California. Mr. Darryl Huskey is the new head of the periodical department within the world of newspapers and magazines, now responsible for all the titles. All the government documents have been moved there. A take away result of this is much needed space. More room seems to be the norm among all the libraries, and a minor rearrangement is forever taking place.

A new face to be seen at the head desk is that of Miss Beatrice Boles, whose duties include Nearly all the books are being located in the new main card catalog. Other services are available, like the typing room in the corner of the southwest stack and reading area, which has been recently located near the card catalog.

Expansion has also included the hours the library staff works. From Monday until Thursday the library is open from 7:30 until 10:30. Friday, from 7:30 to 5:00 and Sunday from 2 to 5.

Library Adds New People To Handle Book Expansion

by Jane Dunn

The Boise State College Library is not only well known for its quality service, but also for the number of people it can accommodate at any given time. The library has undergone several changes in the past year, including the hiring of new staff members.

Recently, the library has added two new positions: a Technical Services Librarian and a Periodical Department Head. The Technical Services Librarian, Robert T. McDowell, has been responsible for buying and processing new books, which has allowed for increased space and organization. The Periodical Department Head, Darryl Huskey, has taken over the responsibility of managing the world of newspapers and magazines, which has freed up much-needed space in the library.

Another change has been the expansion of the hours the library is open to the public. From Monday to Thursday, the library is open from 7:30 to 10:30, and on Friday, from 7:30 to 5:00. This expansion has allowed for more resources to be available to students and faculty.

In addition to these changes, the library has also undergone a minor rearrangement. This has resulted in more space for the government documents, which were previously located in the main card catalog. Other services have also been made available, such as the typing room in the corner of the southwest stack and reading area.

Overall, the library has made significant improvements in the past year, and it continues to strive for excellence in service and organization.
Boise State College unveils its four-year athletic program on Saturday, September 21st when the Broncos host the Linfield Wildcats at Bronco Stadium. This is the first year for new head coach Tony Knap and he and his staff are optimistic about facing the upcoming season.

The Broncos, under the new four-year program, will be playing under the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics rules and regulations.

Knap states that with juniors, sophomores, and a large crop of freshmen, the team will be young but eager and willing. On the 75-man squad are 27 juniors, 16 sophomores, and 32 freshmen. This also includes the Junior College transfers and the red-shirts. Overall, the club must be classified small but show plenty of desire and enthusiasm.

Paul Hone at 255, a defensive tackle in the heaviest member of the squad while fleet-footed Puddin' Grayson tips the scales at 150 for the lightest Bronco.

Knap has 23 lettermen from last year's squad. Included in these are three co-captains Rocky Lima a 225 junior from Honolulu and Hal Zimmerman 194 junior from Parma.

Former Bronco performers who again will show their talents on the gridiron are Butch Fressch (Melba), John Kameu (Tualatin), Tony Maher (Huntingdale), Vern Morse (Boise High), Jim Murigto (Meridian), Ken Thomas (Saltan, Ore.), Gary Stivers (Boise) an excellent place kicker two seasons ago, who will again handle the punts and field goal situations.

There are 11 transfer players with the top prospect being Faddie Tillman, 6'6" and 225 from Western Oregon. The roster is also dotted with names from Washington, Oregon, California and Canada.

Under his pro-style offense Coach Knap will be putting the ball in the air a good share of the time. The Broncos will perform from a professional defense with four linemen, three linebackers and four-man deep system.

Working with coach Knap in whipping the Broncos into shape are Dave Nichol, and student coach Del Stub now.

Boise State College enters the Big Sky for the lightest Bronco, under the new Lima schedule. The program would include the Junior College future and 1968."
