"Sock It To 'Em, Broncots!" the theme of Boise State College's seven day Homecoming celebration, is being spread over the northwestern states on posters, news releases, buttons and T-shirts as preparations are finalized for the Oct. 27 through Nov. 2 festivities.

Dick Hamm, homecoming general chairman, said the week-long celebration was deemed "the largest college homecoming ever held in the Northwest" by students from Washington, Oregon and Idaho, who attended a student leadership conference earlier this month.

Beginning Sunday, Oct. 27, Homecoming Week "kicked off" with the traditional "Toilet Bowl" and "Powder Puff" football games. Members of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity and Intercollegiate Knights honorary fraternity did battle on the field with winners receiving a hand-painted toilet bowl to display until next year. Following the men, two groups of women, representing the TEKEs and IKs, carried the pigskin in the "Powder Puff" bowl.

Queen Gets Crown Tonight

The BSC student body and faculty will crowd into the Bronco Stadium at 8 p.m. today, Monday, for the pep rally, which will feature the announcement of the homecoming queen and her court. The election was held Friday, Oct. 25.

Other traditional activities at the rally will be the selection and crowning of King Beard (male contestant who has grown the best looking beard within a period of eight weeks), a pep band contest with surprise roll callings, yell contest between campus organizations for the honor of possession of the Spirit Jug, and the burning of the "B" on the side of Tablerock. All rally activities are being coordinated by the Valkyries, a women's service club. (See page 11)
Homecoming day starts early with a breakfast from 8 to 10:30 a.m. in the student union ballroom. Sponsored by the TKE fraternity, the breakfast is open to the public with everything you can eat for $1.

A pep parade of decorated cars and trucks will weave through downtown Boise at noon, Saturday, Nov. 2, and end up at the Bronco Stadium in time for the 1:30 p.m. football game between BSC and Idaho State University.

A reception for the alumni and friends will follow the parade and will be held at the EHS Lodge from 4:30 to 9 p.m. "Today's Reaction" will provide the music for the homecoming dance at 9 p.m. in the SUB ballroom.

Special to the homecoming week are homecoming bonnets, special half-time activities with spectate participation and lawn displays in front of the women's residences.

Boise Junior College and BSC alumni will return to their alma maters Tuesday of homecoming week to attend "Night Club Night", which will begin with an alumni dinner at 7 p.m. in the BSC Student Union Ballroom followed by a dance at 9 p.m. Music will be by "Today's Reaction".

An old-fashioned carnival and masquerade dance will be held Thursday, Oct. 31, in the student union ballroom. Beginning at 7 p.m., the Valkyries and Intercollegiate Knights will host their traditional carnival with everything from a troupe of dance hall gals to a staring booth. The dance will begin a 9 p.m. and everyone in costume will be admitted free. Others will be charged 25 cents for admittance.

Parade Friday

Wylocks and a bonfire in the lot of the Bronco Stadium. Wood for the bonfire will be provided by clubs who will collect the wood all week long in competition for the "Smoky Bear" award. Dick Hansen, who will present the award, wouldn't tell what the prize will be but said, "How about a 300 pound, stuffed Grizzly Bear?"
Dental Head Gets Appointment

Mrs. Jean Macinnis, instructor in charge of the Dental Assisting program, has been notified of her appointment to the National Commission on Dental Assistant Association. During the meeting, Mrs. Macinnis and the four other members of the board will draft standards and define polices relating to the accreditation procedures of the association.

Boise State College has the only Dental Assisting program in Idaho. It is taught through the Vocational-Technical Division. Twenty-one girls are currently under going training in the one year program.

FBI Agent To Speak

A former FBI undercover operative will speak on the Boise State College campus today in the Liberal Arts building, room 106, at 4 p.m.

For a period of nine years, Julia Brown worked within the Communist party as an undercover operative. The appearance of Julia Brown on campus makes it possible to learn first-hand of Communist techniques of infiltration and penetration within the civil rights movement. "Dr. R. E. Bullington, DSC, Vice President, said.

SERVICE CLUBS

Service and class clubs, religion and special interest organizations, loving groups and publications are operated on the Boise State College campus for the students and by the students. Their contributions to the campus are immeasurable.

MADAM BUTTERFLY

Olivier, who Directs the National Theatre and one of its leading performers, describes the filmed "Othello." It "is not a photography of stage performance. It is the film of a performance shot against a film set, not stage sets, but backgrounds to the situations, offering as little visual intrusion as possible from Shakespeare's intentions or our interpretations of them. Yet, the sets do represent, in simplified form the places in which the scenes are played."

Frank Finlay, in the role of Iago, has had a career of acting interspersed with being a jack-of-all-trades. His first appearance with the National Theatre company was as First Gravedigger in Olivier's production of Benjamin Britten's "The Last of the Mobiles." Between 1955 and 1961, he directed more than 40 plays for BBC television. He also directed the feature film "There Was a Crooked Man," Twice before, he played "Othello," first with Brecht Mason and then for the Yugoslav National Theatre.

ADA THEATRE TO FEATURE CLASSIC PLOT

From WARNER BROTHERS SEVEN ARTS PRESSBOOK

"Othello," starring Laurence Olivier in the Warner Bros.-Seven Arts Technicolor motion picture presentation of the most widely acclaimed production of Shakespeare's drama in recent times, will be shown for two days only at the Ada Theatre on November 13 and 14 at 2 and 8 p.m.

William Shakespeare's "Othello" is deemed by many authorities to be not only Bard's finest tragedy, but also his most perfectly structured play. Shakespeare freely adapted the plot of "The Tragedy of Othello, the Moor of Venice," from a French translation of an Italian tale. The story came originally from the "Hecatommithi" of Giovanni Battista Giraldi written about 1635. Under its original title, "The Moor of Venice," the play was first performed at Court at Banqueting House, Whitehall, London on Nov. 1, 1604.

The filming of "Othello" is the latest of the many times the production has been transferred to a motion picture studio and shown without any structural changes. The cast is exactly the same as from director's field and remains faithful to stage director's production of the National Theatre production.

Olivier, who Director of the National Theatre and one of its leading performers, describes the filmed "Othello" thus:

"It is not a photomontage stage performance. It is the film of a performance shot against not film sets, not stage sets, but backgrounds to the situations, offering as little visual intrusion as possible from Shakespeare's intentions or our interpretations of them. Yet, the sets do represent, in simplified form the places in which the scenes are played."

Senior Wins Competition

Stan Olsen, BSC senior, was a second-place winner in competition at the national convention of Phi Beta Lambda, Future Business Leaders of America, last summer in Washington, D.C. Also attending from BSC were Michelle Morrison and Mrs. Marlin Williamson, assistant professor of office administration. The convention enables business students to get together and compete against one another.

Olsen first had to pass a written examination, then become one of eight semi-finalists given personal interviews to determine the winners. The American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear presented to him a $50 certificate for the purchase of clothing.

The local Phi Beta Lambda chapter has invited anyone interested to join members in a visit to Northwestern College for a meeting from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., October 29. A local businessman will speak and refreshments will be served.

Anyone interested is asked to call chapter President Stan Olsen 343-1628.

Traditions???

A Season of the Past

by Mitch Rowland

Just around the corner is November and with the coming of this month we wrap up the last segments of football around some 600 college campuses. According to the sports writer for Friends magazine, (who will remain anonymous), he tells that with fall comes a sort of madness known as "traditional football feuditis".

This madness usually strikes in November because that's when most college and high school football teams play their longstanding rivals.

Feuditis Starts in 1869

As tradition has it, football feuditis was first discovered back in 1869, when Princeton and Rutgers met in what is recognized by gridiron historians as America's first intercollegiate football game. Such great rivalries in college football are: Army-Navy, Harvard-Yale, Texas - Texas A & M, Kansas-Missouri and scores of other greats. Locally we see BSC clash with ISU and for high school ball we once looked forward to seeing the traditional Borah-Boise clash now intermittened with newcomer Capital High. These are just some of the many local clashes around the state.

The painted cars, the stolen symbols and all the bright array of posters will all come and go. Your favorite runners make their fantastic leaps and bounds achieving crowd pleasing yardages. The bands, the drill teams and all the enthusiasm of the fans will long be remembered in "a season of the past".

It was a great season; the thrills and excitement have died, but many will remember that "certain moment of pleasure". Basketball and Wrestling are almost upon us, and the same "traditional feuditis" will be demonstrated as in the "season of the past".

Student Affairs

Campus activities, both traditional and contemporary, play a large part in keeping the balance between studying and relaxing. A social chairman is appointed by the student body president to provide adequate entertainment and a social committee is organized to assist the chairman.

Boise State College debaters participated in the Lewis and Clark College debate tournament held in Portland, Oregon, October 18 and 19.

The six debaters, Eugene Brown, Pat McDermott, Gary Johnson, Chuck Mark, Lois Joslyn and Janet Beattow, debated a total of 17 debates.

Among the opponents were Stanford University, University of Minnesota, University of Oregon, University of Washington, Pacific Lutheran, Western Washington, Washington State University, and many others. Harvey Pimentel, coach, stated that a total of 27 colleges entered the tournament, which was won by the University of Minnesota.

Boise State debaters next will enter the Western Speech Association tournament to be held during Thanksgiving holiday at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

Health Center

Offers ‘Shots’

A mass immunization clinic will be held at the BSC Student Health Center, Nov., 4 and 5, in an effort to bring student immunizations up to date. The clinic will be free of charge with the cooperation of the Idaho State Health Department. The health center is sending letters to the students informing them of the program, the date, Nov. 4 and 5, and the time, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Students are requested to bring their letters with them when they come.

Three types of injections are to be given, including Tetanus-Diphtheria, Smallpox, and the Tuberculosis Skin Test. Also, flu injections are still available for 35 cents, at the center.

The immunization is protection not only for the student, but also for the community. According to Mrs. Jerine Brown, R.N., “You never know when you may decide to take a foreign trip, and you need countess shots.” This free program is designed for convenience as well as protection.

The important job of getting Boise State College on the newspaper falls into the laps of two women, Janice Neilson, left, and John MacMillan. Don covers the eastern end of the campus, publishing material on the athletes. John handles publicity for the college in general.

The job of the secretary is vastly important in the communication world. Karen King has become a sports writer and Janice Neilson has learned to push college news into local and intermountain newspapers.

Leibendorfer has been out of town occasionally. He was in Spokane last weekend with the football team. Karen answers phone and types Don’s material while he is out because it is the only chance she has to catch up with her boss.

Janice has been doing the job of her 6’4” boss while he has been absent on an emergency leave. For three weeks she has answered phone messages, booked photos, and has kept up with her regular work, all in an eight hour day.

The job of secretaries is difficult, and it is not any easier when the pay envelope is presidents of Northern Montana College, Southern Colorado State College, College of Southern Utah, and Sacramento State College.

The meeting is sponsored by the three secretaries. They have had to pick up the boss’s end, too. Therefore, a great deal of application goes out to all secretaries in that pay envelope along with the check.

College Executives Meet

For Title III Seminar

Presidents of four western colleges and executives from five other schools are on campus today and tomorrow to participate in a discussion called “Developing Institutions’ Seminar Number One.” It is one of three seminars planned to study the roles, functions and objectives of a “developing” state senior college, according to BSC President John Barnes. The event is funded by the U. S. Office of Education Title III Grant to the College.

Attending the conference are presidents of Northern Montana College, Southern Colorado State College, College of Southern Utah, and Sacramento State College.

Discussion leaders will be Dr. Don S. Patterson, president of the Independent Colleges of Washington, and Dr. A. J. Brumbaugh, Atlanta, Georgia, a member of the Southern Regional Educational Board. Also represented are Fresno State College, Weber State, Arizona State University, Northern Arizona University and the University of Oregon.

Dr. Gerald R. Reed, director of the Office of Special Projects at BSC, is in charge of arrangements.

Officials Dedicate Mound

After ringing doorbells on businesses around the valley, some of the construction themselves, the Equirues, a group that completed the monumental task of constructing the monument. Though not as large as originally envisioned, the mall will form a focal point of the college building plan.

In ceremonies October 22, public figures from Idaho contributed last few months.

Master of ceremonies was Caruso Bollinger, president of the Idaho State College of Trade and Business.

The military ceremony included the laying of a, dedication plaque by Mrs. Anthony Bellamy. Herron, Anthony Bellamy’s daughter, and Mayor Harry Don Samuelson, Governor Don Samuelson, and General Trail of the Idaho Air National Guard.

HIGHEST POINT OF THE DEDICATION was the unveiling of a dedication plaque by Mrs. Anthony Bellamy. Herron, Anthony Bellamy’s daughter, and Mayor Harry Don Samuelson, Governor Don Samuelson, and General Trail of the Idaho Air National Guard.

In the past, we have witnessed the tactics with which Dyke Nally pursues his duties as Boise State College student body president.

During the Pete Seeger fiasco, it was shown that Nally was diplomatic and tactful in his release to the press.

Though it was evident that the Seeger concert would not be what his opponents feared it would be, Nally still did not go far as to say anything detrimental to School Community relations.

However, Nally blundered when he, along with the student body presidents of ISU and the University of Idaho, endorsed the proposed spending plans of the Idaho Board of Education in a letter to Governor Samuelson.

The plans of the Board placed Boise State College below the other two state schools in educational spending, and Nally, in "his" letter, seemed to reflect the administration of Boise State College by endorsing the figures of the Board. But the entire story shows that perhaps Nally was not completely at fault, for he did not have it said that he or Boise State College did not favor a "community" relation between the school and the University of Idaho, or the other two state schools.

If Nally signed a letter that he knew was going to Governor Samuelson’s desk. Yet he said that letter to endorse "friendly relations among the three schools.

At that time, Nally was hesitant, saying that, though he did not think the figures entirely fair, he would not have it said that he or Boise State College did not favor a "community" relationship between the school and the University of Idaho, or the other two state schools.

And Nally signed a letter that he knew was going to Governor Samuelson’s desk. Yet he signed that letter to endorse "friendly relations among the three schools.

Craig have? No one really knows. Hostility that greets BSC during this anniversary year, a year of strides.

Arguments are strong against the fledgling school, but perhaps the strongest of all arguments can be directed against all three schools.

Idaho has long been regarded as a conservative state. So conservative, in fact, that easterners still imagine Idahoans fighting renegade Indians and living in sod shanties.

Until Idaho becomes a leader or among the leaders in the American system of state government, it will remain a conservative state, not only in thinking, but in actuality.

The three state schools of Idaho are not fostering liberal growth in this state when they constantly argue about the apportionment of education funds. ISU and UI, for years, should pause to help BSC grow into university status as fast as possible in order that Idaho take that step toward liberalization.

None of the state schools should be made to gain by the accelerated growth of Boise State. The system of higher education should be revamped to place emphasis on all three schools by utilizing the offerings of their separate environments.

The argument over the fledgling school is that it is too early to judge what Idahoans are doing. Yet students should be understood for what they represent, and that is a devotion to what they deem theirs and the systems which they cherish most.

Welcome, alumni and visitors, to the first Boise STATE College Homecoming. This year the Broncos meet their first Big Sky competition. Having dropped a game already to the Weber Wildcats, the Broncos under Tony Knap will face the second big team of the year, ISU.

Those of you acquainted with the ROUNDUP of BJC and Boise Collegewill undoubtedly be amazed by the change in the name of the newspaper, the ARBITER fits the new image of Boise STATE with its increased content and more modern style.

Enjoy the Homecoming Parade and the other fine events brought to you compliments of Boise STATE College.

On January 1, 1968, Lyle Smith stepped down from his position of head football coach after 22 years to become Boise State College's first full-time athletic director. With him went what must have been one of the finest, if not the finest records in NCAA football.

In his reign Smith compiled 162 wins, 26 losses, and six ties. His teams have continually won, their own_intermontane College Athletic Conference championships, numerous bowl appearances and was consistently atop the Junior College rankings throughout the years. In 1966 his team was rated best in the nation.

He was at the helm of the Broncos from 1946 to 1967 with the exception of a hitch in the early 1950's. His unquestionable record during this time included five appearances in the Potato Bowl in Bakerfield, California and one trip to the Little Rose Bowl. His 1958 squad won the National Junior College Athletic Association Championship.

During his period at BSC he molded some 20 All-Americans, some of which are still in the pro-ranks, and shaped the lives of many men through competitive athletics at the college.

Smith played center on the University of Idaho football team during 1936-37. He was also a member of the basketball team during the same years.

Forrester was phenomenal in general, not just another word around the Smith family but a way of life. In 1964, under his father's tutelage, Bill Smith was selected to the first team All-American squad, in the junior college ranks. Like father, like son. The center and went on to star for the University of Oregon. Upon completing his senior year he was drafted into the world of professional football.

With the job of full-time athletic director comes added stress. Smith's duties will include recruiting, and scheduling of games, to name just a couple. Perhaps he has set one of his largest goals in pursuing an entrance to the Big Sky Conference. This would certainly mark another milestone for Boise State College and Lyle Smith. His efforts are unending in working with President John Barnes and Big Sky officials toward attaining this goal.

Smith said recently that if our application is turned down it would certainly be a blow but not the end of the world. "We could find opponents but we couldn't wait around forever. There are many problems being an independent-difficulty in getting schedules and the necessity of traveling long distances for games" being one example.

If his records and accomplishments on the field are any indication of the kind of job Lyle Smith will do Boise State College athletics are resting in the hands of one of the finest and most competent men in the nation.

Chancellor Relates Story Of First Homecoming

by Lyn Heine

The advent of homecoming 1933 for Boise Junior College marked the first year of intercollegiate football play for the Broncos who played St. Joseph's High School and Albion Teacher College's team. University of Idaho equipment was largely cast-offs from Boise High School football, according to Dr. Eugene Chaffee, Boise campus president. In 1932 he was a member of the original faculty and 1932 and was president of the college from 1936 through 1967.

BSC Literary Magazine

Impulse Preparation Begins

A wide range of literary and photographic creative achievement will be displayed in the fall issue of Impulse, which is now being prepared by interested Boise State College students. The literary magazine, Impulse No. 5, will consist of poems, and short stories and essays (if literary) submitted by students to Tracy Thompson, advisor, in LA Room 234. All art should be given to Howard Huff, art instructor, in LA Room 252D. This year two editions will go to press, Fall and Winter, under the editorship of James W. McGuire and Janet Cane, associate editor. Other staff members include Tom Warner and Carma Fretwell. Thompson said the Impulse No. 4 was sent to every publisher in New York City for criticism. Alfred A. Knopf, biggest publisher in the world, wrote, "I cannot believe this is a college magazine." Thompson added Knopf's impression was shared by almost every publisher in New York City. Both Impulse No. 3 and 4 are now available in the BSC Student Union Building book store. This year's cover is a black and white photograph by art major, Bill Koger. AT RIGHT: Bill Koger's photographic creation of an Idaho weed gone-to-seed will appear on the cover of the fall issue of IMPULSE, which will go to press in December. The black and white photo was chosen for the literary magazine from entries submitted by BSC students of photography.

When Idaho State and Boise State get together for the first time in their gridiron history Saturday it may be for an exciting afternoon of football.

Boise of the open brand of football installed by new head coaches at both schools battle for the aspects of a real crowd pleaser, no matter who wins.

There will be the traditional compartmentalized Boise 7, Idaho 0 score, but for the fans a battle of the talents will be for overall scoring in "Joe the Toe." The terms are under head coach Tony Knap.

"Exciting afternoon of football," according to Idaho State's Gary Stivers, Boise's Ed "The Flea" Zimmerman and Abe Brown. Veteran Ed "The Flea" Zimmerman leads the Bengal pack with 18 points apiece. Also is a major scoring threat after crossing the fifty-yard line.

Gary Stivers, Boise's kicking specialist, is currently riding in known around Bengalland as a consistent booter. The meek in the backfield. Williams injured is currently leading the Bengals in four fields for 27 points. Two teammates, Mike Brown at halfback and Larry Smith in the backfield, are close behind with 227 yards in 49 carries and Tony Maher leads in receiving with 250 yards on 10 catches and a pair of touchdowns.

Boise has been a boost with additional 42 outstanding transfers from junior colleges. Five among these were Faddie Tuckum, 6-0 and 225 pounds from Western Arizona; Dallas, Texas. Faddie plays a strong defensive end and slot. Van Garrison, Rick College standout at another team that is important on the transfer list, as well as several California and Canadian prospects.

The punching chokes have been split. Senior Herb Harris and Garrison. Baird is a strong and consistent holder. Zimmerman and Rocky Lima counterparts lead the Orange and Blue on the field this season. Both are juniors and played for the Broncos last season in the Jaycee Activity Tickets.

Dave Nickel

Boise State College's newest assistant football coach, Dave E. Nickel, would be the first to tell you that although he is a newcomer to Boise's previous coaching experience makes him clear that he's no fledgling to Coach Tony Knap's methods. Nickel served as Head Football Coach at Westminster College in Salt Lake City, Utah, for two seasons. Prior to that time, he was a graduate assistant, under then Head Football Coach Tony Knap, at Stanford University, for one year. Dave graduated from the University of California at Berkeley, where he received his Bachelor of Sciences degree at Utah State University in 1965. Nickel is married to the former Linda Finlay of Fremont, California, and they have one son.

Dave Skrien

Another welcome addition to the Boise State College coaching staff is David A. Skrien. Although he is the newest member of the coaching staff his previous experience makes him a tremendous asset.

From 1959-67 Skrien was coach of the Vancouver Mounties in the professional Canadian Football League, five years as head coach. Skrien was named "Coach of the Year" in the league in 1963.

Skrien was a successful quarterback as a Bronco Assistant coach, spent two years as assistant on the University of Minnesota under Murray Warmath. He served a year as head coach at Bill State College in Indiana, and one year as head coach at a Minnesota High School. In 1967, his team was named All-Coast First Team and All-American in his senior year, at the University of Idaho. Skrien, who is serving as assistant football coach at Boise State College, is one of those "Jack-of-All-Trades He is a ski instructor, a swimming instructor, a bowling instructor, a first aid man, a deputy sheriff, a "whee, "true" and only graduated from college last year.

Bill Jones

Bill Jones, Bronco athletic trainer, is one of those "Jack-of-All-Trades He is a ski instructor, a swimming instructor, a bowling instructor, a first aid man, a deputy sheriff, a "whee, "true" and only graduated from college last year.
