Students of Boise State College
Boise State Negro Students To Discuss Racial Problems

"The Negro In the White Community" will be discussed by four Boise State College students in the second panel discussion of "Encounters Idaho," a forum for young adults, which will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the YWCA, 720 Washington.

Panel moderator will be Mrs. Lynn Dorman, BSC sociology professor, and panelists are Claude Gray, Cleveland, Ohio; Wendell Hart, Washington, D.C.; Renee Rush, New Jersey; and Richard Madary of Boise.

The panel members will discuss the various roles in which they have lived and their life at Boise State College. They also will explain their feelings and their impressions of the problems a Negro encounters in relation to the white community.

Sponsored by the YWCA's Young Adult Committee, chaired by Lillian Reis, the program is presented to help acquaint young adults with their personal feelings involved in racial problems.

The discussion is open to the public.

Wind Ensemble Forms

A new music group has been organized by the music department of BSC, composed of select woodworking, brass and percussion players. It will be known as the BSC Symphonic Wind Ensemble, and the first performance will be given at 8 p.m. Feb. 27 in the college music auditorium. The program will include "Symphony No. 1" in D minor, "Opus 44" by Allan Hovhaness, and "Etrusca," by VACL Nakhelf.

According to Mel Shelton, director, the wind ensemble was organized to offer the concertgoer the experience of hearing wind music at the same artistic level as found in the concert ensemble or the full symphony orchestra.

Tartuffe Nears End of Subal Run

"Tartuffe," a vicious conman played by Steve Drehbold, center, proves a better benefactorOrgan, the tormented host played by Sam Johnson, left, and Organ's son Damo, played by Steve Welker, in a scene from Molie's play now being performed in the Subal Theatre. Free to BSC students with ID cards, the play will continue through Saturday beginning at 8:15 p.m. each night. Tickets may be reserved at the Subal box office.

ASB Election Kickoff • Scheduled Tomorrow

Provisions for March 7 Associated Student Body elections will begin Friday as students file into the ASB offices in the Student Union Building to pick up their petitions. Petitions must be signed and back in the office by Feb. 28.

Jim Gray, ASB vice president, announced this week that petitions will be given to those students presenting him or John Olson, ASB publicity director, with a resume of the candidate, which includes age, hometown, major, basic likes or hobbies and a wallet-sized picture. "Any students seeking candidacy without a resume and picture will not be issued a petition," Gray said.

The campaign assembly is scheduled for March 6 from 9:30 to 11 a.m. in the SUB. Balloting will take place in the six major buildings, excluding the dormitories.

Also announced this week were posting rules for the entire campus with a warning from members of the Judicial Committee that "any violation of the posting rules shall result in the automatic disqualification of the candidate that "any violation of the posting rules shall result in the automatic disqualification of the candidate" and "any violation of the posting rules shall result in the automatic disqualification of the candidate who posted the rules," the program is presented to help acquaint young adults with their personal feelings involved in racial problems.

The discussion is open to the public.

Peter Sellers Stars

"The Mouse That Roared," starring Peter Sellers and Jean Seberg, will be shown as the Sunday Night Music at 8 p.m. in the West Ballroom of the SUB. The movie is free to all BSC students under the sponsorship of the Student Union Board.

"The Cat on the Bit," written by Charles Dicken and "The Hound of the Baskervilles," adapted by Charles Dickens, will be read by the Boise State College English Department, including Terry Seitz, Susan Clark, Mary Olds and Joyce Mcgowan, all in the college Music Department.

Also included in the posting rules are as follows: please look out for your personal safety (ie. no hanging over buildings to hang a banner); posting on glass is allowed at the discretion of Buildings and Grounds (please remove posters if asked to do so by a custodian); no handbills on cars (eg. parking permits); no posting is allowed in the Snack Bar area of the SUB; and no campaign materials shall be allowed on campus after midnight of March 6 (ie. posters, banners, etc.)

Drama of Insanity Set For Friday
by Sister Mary Ida Wasmuth
Friday night "The Eternal Mask", a Swiss movie (German language with English subtitles), will be shown in the Liberals Auditorium.

A psychological drama, this movie is specially known for its psychological gags to give the feeling of insanity. One of the authors of the story was a psychiatrist and supervised the part of the production to make it authentic.

The second feature, "An Occurrence on Owl Creek Bridge (1863)" will be the short story by Ambrose Bierce. Bierce lived in the town of the Creek Bridge.

Bierce's life was similar to the day's life, and in the story it is said that he left his apartment one day and never return it until after roll call, therefore they watched for him.

This particular story is about man being hanged on a gallows, but what happened to him must be seen to be appreciated. The film was one of the academy Award for short subjects.

These two features make a good pair, for both deal with the insane and abnormal.

Next Bob Hope stars in "Road In Rio"

Snow Party Scheduled
March 1 is the date set for Boise State College's first annual Snow Party. The ball, tentatively will be held in the vicinity of Idaho City. The fun includes transportation up and back, a day of极大 excitement, games, gags and others that will carry you down the hill and all that is necessary to make this a memorable good time. They want everyone to go and have a good time.

Boise State College's first Snow Party will be held in the SUB foyer. The Snow Party Committee has begun to plan for the party, and all are invited to attend. The committee is working hard to make the party a success, and everyone is welcome to attend.

Spirit-The Family That Plays together

A more appropriately named band has been selected for this year's "Spirit". This band was chosen by the faculty and students in the college, and it will play at the annual Snow Party. The band is called "Spirit" and will be performing a variety of songs.

One is the latest single released by "Spirit" and is entitled "Ode to Joy". The song is a very good example of the band's musical style and is sure to please their fans.

This story is documented by Rampart Magazine, San Diego, California. This is a very good example of the band's musical style and is sure to please their fans.

Dear Editor,

In the line of school spirit, I have a challenge for you. I challenge you to justify the actions of the United States concerning the situation at the stockade in San Francisco. The people of California are not entertained. The government is not entertained. The people of the United States are not entertained.

Dear Editor,

The Esquires arc a service to the nation in its darkest hour. Their actions reminded me of the great sacrifice of the United States in the Second World War. Their dedication and courage are an inspiration to all who have fought for freedom. They are a true representation of the spirit of our country. We are proud to support them and their efforts.

Dear Editor,

I was at the basketball game on Feb. 14, acted like the former guard, and 24 to 30 feet shot Bunch in the lower back, and killed him. The guard was shot down from the slope, and the shooting was from a distance.

McDonald Warns School: ‘Watch Student Feedback’

By Art gala
Arbiter Staff Writer

"College faculty members and the administration can do well to listen to students and become acquainted with concerns of college students and how problems appear to them," commented Dr. Paul MacDonald.

The faculty and administration are going to be able to provide a better program by giving attention to feedback of the students.

Dr. MacDonald, associate professor of teacher education, pushed back in his chair a moment as if to stretch while he considered my next question, then he said the urge to help students by counseling them "... came to me while I was preparing to be a teacher."

MacDonald, Ed. D., is in his first year as a full-time instructor at BSC, after having taught at Idaho State for a year. Prior to that, MacDonald has taught during summer sessions at both the College of Idaho and Boise State campuses.

In 1952, MacDonald became a counselor at Boise’s North Junior High. While that was the only junior high serving the community, during the last years that he held this position, Boise’s second junior high came into existence, South.

MacDonald then moved up the secondary school ladder to a counseling position at Boise High, and he was there until the fall that Booth High was opened.

After serving as a counselor in the public school system, he became the supervisor of the Boise Public Schools’ Guidance and Counseling Program which soon led to reassignment as the school psychologist-in-charge of the IPS psychological service program.

According to Dr. MacDonald, a listing of the responsibilities of the counselor at one time were diversified and inclusive. Included in the list of duties were attendance, disciplinarian, lunch room monitor, and policing the halls, etc. The counselor was the assistant principal, attendance clerk, and student activities advisor as well as substitute for teachers who leave the building on school business.

"All the years have seen progress," in the field of counseling, Dr. MacDonald continued. At one time, a counselor served sixty-seven hundred students, while he may now serve two or three people a day.

A more logical counseling load would be 250 to 300 students, but a counselor "can budget his time," in order to help 400 or less students effectively.

When I asked the doctor if the problems facing students today were of a different type, he said that they are basically the same as the students have always frustrated students.

"True, conditions have changed... greater stress causes an inability to determine choices... and approaches to problems are complicated. Each person has important needs, a need to be successful, a need to belong in someone, a need to feel worthy."

"In the beginning, I think, I had some desire to be a forester. This was a line of work I could test out in my summer vacations. I later decided I would like to teach, and (later) then decided to move into the realm of pupil-personnel counseling."

Dr. MacDonald and his wife, Roberta, have four children, two married daughters and two boys at home. The oldest boy seems to be interested in counseling and psychology. "I’ve asked him, and he doesn’t know for sure. But he may because he has empathy for people... and that is important."

Entry Blanks For Pageant Due Friday

The deadline for entrance in the Miss Boise State College Pageant is February 20. Any girls wishing to enter. Entry blanks are available from any Golden Golden and Cathy Wentz at 343-7175.

Boise Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a pageant to be held on campus.

Talent Show to be Held at Both BSC and Boise High

Boise State College students are invited to "do your own thing" at auditions for the first annual All School Talent Show planned for the March 20-21 Auditions begin today at 4 p.m. Room 111 of Music Drama Annex and continue Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the same room.

Paul Dobbs, talent committee announcer, told the show is open to all talent including bands but that at least one person in the act must be a BSC student. Other members of the talent committee are Doug Swanson, Valerie Grant and Donna Beatt.

The talent show will be held April 30-31 in the afternoon at the Boise High School Auditorium and May 2, 3 and 4 at the Music Audition on campus.

Admission price is 50 cents for Boise students with ID cards, 50 cents for high school students, and $1.50 for adults. All proceeds will go towards vocal scholarships.

The Chargers have exhibited championship basketball in every game. Outstanding college basketball is no stranger to each of the 12 men on the team, however. Many of them have attained recognition that some basketball players only dream about.

Bob Floyd, for example, was a two-time Chimer, Honorable Mention, and third team NCAA College Division All-American while at Augestana College in South Dakota. He was also named All-Conference for two years and was Outstanding Senior Athlete. At Northwest Nazarene College John "Babe" Pryor won the Most Valuable Player award in both 1967 and 1968. He also was named Most Inspirational Player. The captain of the NAIA and also Small College Division All-American team was the Russel Valley product. Pryor is the quickest man on the team. Here he puts in two more points to give him an extraordinary team work has accounted for their balanced scoring in the last several games.

Boise 94, Scotts 75

By Steve L'Abbe

Wendy Hart and Renee Ruth displayed their "unconscious ability" to hit on shots from outside the key, pacing the Broncos with 15 and 14 points respectively. The Scotts struck first when Van Schepan pilfered a Bronco pass and went in for an easy layup. The Broncos soon overcame this deficit and built up a lead of their own which was maintained throughout the remainder of the contest. Hart and Ruth combined for over half of the Broncos' tally in the first half, netting 15 and 10 points, respectively.

In the second half, Ron Austin took charge in the scoring column dumping in 15 of his 23 points and nabbing the Broncos to a 86-78 triumph over Hiram Scott of Scottsbluff, Nebraska, 94-75.

IN HIS BIGGEST NIGHT as a Bronco, Ron Austin (50) pumped in 23 points and led Boise State over Hiram Scott. Here Austin pulls in a rebound against the Scotts' Jim Seward.

No doubt, the Chargers are able to provide some top competition and our men, as they make their tour. But their purpose is much deeper than simply to play basketball. The 12 men are part of a much bigger team of over 1,300 who are dedicated to making a positive impact for good in the United States and the World. World Athletes in Action is a division of Campus Crusade for Christ International, an interdenominational movement. No question, the Chargers are leaving Boise and will have appeared in some 23 cities across the nation. The Chargers have met such powers as the University of Utah, Louisiana State, Wichita State, Tulsa, Bradley, Utah State, St. Mary's College of Southern California, Seattle and Oklahoma City University, just to mention a few.
