Freshman Honors Program Scheduled for Fall 1969

Boise State College is instituting an Honors Program for scholastically superior Freshmen, fall semester 1969. Dr. Richard E. Bullington, Executive Vice-President announced recently.

"An Honors Program is intended for outstanding scholars and allows for a more flexible approach to a college education," he stated.

Top freshman scholars admitted to the program can enroll in courses for independent study to pursue in depth their academic interests. However, in certain circumstances, lower division courses may be waived whereby the student can proceed more quickly to advanced study. Bullington added.

"Honors students will have the opportunity to take proficiency exams in certain basic courses and receive college credit without enrolling in the course," Dr. Bullington said.

"During each semester, we will schedule several Freshman

BROTHER, CAN YOU SPARE A QUARTER, or a dollar or more, ask Ray Knight and Dennis Morris or Tom Wutherick. All are students of the Vocational-Technical Division of Boise State College, and they are preparing for the annual Hobo March in Boise all day Friday. Students of the vocational fraternity Tau Alpha Pi and other vocational students will be soliciting funds to be used for scholarships next year in the Vocational - Technical Division. Last year the club raised over $2,000 for scholarship awards. Knight is president of TAP, Morris is Vice-president and Wutherick is the promotion chairman of the club.

THEY SAY, "PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT" but for Tau Kappa Epsilon pledges, from left, Tom Gano and Steve Hilton, it only makes bruises. The men were seen this week on the campus sidewalks, testing their vehicles for Wednesday's tricycle race in front of the SUB. Steve wears a World War I flyer's helmet for good luck. Hope it works better for him than it did the Red Baron.

Following acceptance at Boise State College, an application must be submitted to Dr. Bullington's office for Honors status.

Applications for scholarships, grants and other financial aid should be directed to the Office of Financial Aids.

Sen. Church To Speak Here Today

Senator Frank Church will be featured speaker at dedication ceremonies for the Freedom Shrine which has been presented to the college. Dedication will be in LA 106, Friday at 9:35 a.m.

The Boise Exchange Club selected Boise State College as recipient of the Shrine this year, already placed in the library, it consists of an enlarged series of significant historical documents which have guided this nation.

Others participating in the dedication program are student body officer, Dr. Mack McCray, president of Boise Exchange Club; Richard LeDuc, manager of Broadway Branch, Idaho First National Bank; and BSC President John Barnes.

The Idaho First National Bank has accepted the financial expense associated with the documents which comprise the Shrine.

Cheerleaders Chosen by Senate

The Saturday Seminar's nominations for cheerleaders were approved Monday night by the ASB Senate according to Wally Allington, ASB publicity director.

Julie Lachiondo was chosen head cheerleader by the Senate and Alice Koskella, Penny Walters, Carol Davis, Sandy Boyd, and Kris Williams were selected to assist Lachiondo.

Comedy Tonight

A Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Swiss Miss" is the film for Friday night's movie in L.A. auditorium at 8:00 p.m., April 18. A Charlie Chaplin short feature, "The Rink" will also be shown. Don't miss these two hilarious films.

"Man I'm Broke!"

Should BSC Have A Greek Week?

For a long time, Boise citizens thought they would never see the day when little ol' BJC would become a state institution and take its place among the "best of everything". Even after the news was proclaimed that the college officially had state status, there were those who couldn't be made believers.

But through the "good" work of the college's new Inter-Sorority Council after next week there shouldn't be a non-believer in the crowd. After three years of celebrating "Greek Week" with races, games and good fun, Boise State College students will have to settle for a few activities sponsored by Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity and the men of Chaffee Hall.

Seems the Inter-Sorority Council had decided that the title "Greek Week" is being abused by students, who weren't privileged enough to go Greek. According to Merry Underkofler, Inter-Sorority Council secretary, in a letter to Ron Gabriel, TKE member, the Council would feel better if the name "Greek Week" were dropped since all groups on campus are encouraged to participate. She wrote, "We feel another name such as 'Spring Panic' would be more appropriate because the activities aren't limited to just Greek organizations."

Next week's activities will go on without a name and without the aid of certain organizations. But now, everyone knows that BSC is, without a doubt, equal in status to other state institutions.

WHAT'S A TURKEY TROT? by Bill Cushing

As you read this article, ask someone near you if he or any of his friends have a turkey trot team. Nine chances out of ten his reply will have the context of "What's a turkey trot?"

A turkey trot is a four-man (or woman) relay steeplechase. But it's not an ordinary steeplechase. Each racer will cover one-fourth of the toughest two-mile course he has ever seen, including the Boise River. (The woman's course is a little easier.)

Will it be exciting? I don't know, but there is already quite a bit of rivalry going on in Chaffee Hall, which may have ten or more teams entered. But don't let that stop you. The more the merrier. Anyone who can put up the $2.00 entrance fee can participate. That's only $50 per person.

Interested in entering? Just contact someone at the main desk of Chaffee Hall, between 10:00 a.m. and noon, 1:00 p.m. and 5:00, or 6:30 and 10:30 daily. Trophies will be awarded in both men's and women's divisions. The race will start at 5:00 p.m., Thursday, April 24, in front of Chaffee Hall, and there will be a picnic catered by Saga Foods afterward.

SENSOR

The title of previous Iron Butterfly album, "Heavy," is a perfect adjective to describe any of their musical compositions, including those on this latest LP offering. The Iron Butterfly have successfully created a distinctive sound of their own, and although some of their material on this album is interesting and listenable, (unlike In-A-Gadda-da-Vida), a lot of it seems repetitive and overdone with each musician repeatedly falling back on old cliches. At times, as on "Soul Experience" (their best and most original song to date), it seems that the Iron Butterfly may break out of their rut of being a one-sound band, but circa 1966 feedback and too many sound effects may prevent any lasting rebirth or rearrangement of their musical style.

There are some very good solo guitar passages in "Real Fright", "It Must Be Love", and "Belda-Beast", and many interesting drum lines scattered throughout the album, (especially thy start of "It Must Be Love"). However, it seems that the rest of the band takes a break whenever one member plays a lead or even a dominant line. The lyrics have no deep or meaningful message to convey but they also are not the cornily typical "I love you, Baby" lyrics that are so predominant on the Top 40 today.

"Heavy" music is most often highly emotional and therefore could be quite readily correlated with violence.

In fact, we highly recommend this album to those of you who enjoy heavy music, and it should be required

When College? Not when it is simply the-thing-to-do. Better when you've planned or experienced enough of the wide nasty ratfinky old world to put away the dual standards of our Victorian ancient relatives, eyeballed reality and decided that instant awareness of your capabilities comes about only after a comparable amount of time in preparation for wherever the hell your specialities may be applied.

"When-College" is a situation dependent upon more the maturity of the individual and self-awareness of capabilities compared with goals then with the problem of getting a smart and/or rich husband and/or wife.

Troops, it the only compatibility you share is in the attempted commission of parenthood, bag it. If your only communication is on the contact level, bag it. Love may make the world go round but what repairs the rotational machinery is responsibility, and when you bag that they offer you a nice lattice of steel to contain your efforts and mebbe even a white dinner jacket with those special 72 inch sleeves, then they bag you.

And if you're not bagged, then What's this happiness about premarital gamesmanship? Well, does your reliability vary from hour to hour, day to day, year to year? No particular big thing about year to year at this stage of learning about life.

You are evaluated by individuals and society (like it or not) by how closely your actions match what you've said. Which situation is older than either the wheel or the institution of war. Responsibility is directly dependent upon reliability. Therefore, if you say one thing and do another you become irresponsible in the eyes of all concerned. So What? So stay out of college till you are responsible enough to yourself and to others who may depend on you to tough it out to the point of a productive life. Productive life in either ideas or the fulfilling of others for the benefit of all.

A REVIEW

Gary Puckett and the Union Gap Draw Overwhelming BSC Crowd

by Jane Dunn

Five of the most popular masters of the current music trend appeared Friday night at the BSC Gym namely Gary Puckett and the Union Gap. By the size of the crowd on hand for this event, one would guess that all of Boise was waiting for some good talent to finally arrive in the city.

Three really fantastic things happened that night (1) the band showed up on time, (2) you really didn't need a ticket to get in, for everybody just crowded in the door, (3) and the town turned out for the Idaho boy who made it to the big time Puckett is from Twin Falls.

The show started promptly at 8 p.m., the dudes jazzing across the stage in blue-green union suits. Puckett commented that this was "quite a thing for me," to come back to the state where he grew up, having graduating in 1960 from Twin Falls High. Groups of kids from that city were sitting in the front rows, giving more than ample applause for the hero of the record charts and the COKE commercials.

The GAP started out with one of their biggest hits, "Lady Willpower," loaded applause filling the peanut galleries. The five members were introduced, each one carrying a different bit. The bass player was "the shy one," the former drummer of the Hard Times was "himself" one of the organists was the "sex-symbol," the other organist was the "Mother" of the group and Puckett was "the Star."

They told of the history of the group, starting off in San Diego two years ago. The four back-up members were looking for a singer and so they advertised in the local paper. Gary was the only one that showed up, so they hired him.

Continuing with "Dreams of the Everyday Housewife," they said that they recorded it before Glen Campbell did. Supposedly, they were guesting on The Smothers Brothers Show and he picked it up. Their version was really received with enthusiasm.

You've got to hand it to the lighting department this time. They did a fantastic job with the red and blue effects.

A country and western thing followed, with a touching thing called "Reverend Posie," after that, Puckett commented that when he was a small boy about five or six, he lived in a tiny Minnesota town that had one cop, and his grandad was the bus driver. The song was about the minister, a good and soft thing. "The Looking Glass" mirrored next, the story about a man and a woman living together year after year, with a love that grows from the inside, a beautiful thing.

Soul was the prescribed medicine for the next bit "Mother" on sax, along with "the sex symbol." And then... "By the Time I Get to Phoenix." The blue lights were the things that made it. Puckett's voice is like a quiet river, that swells like a flood when it rains with a song "Too much."

Last August 16, was the one year anniversary for their hit, "Woman, Woman." They called it their own "moldie oldie" playing it to the applause of the crowd. A twenty minute break followed, their return seeing them in white union suits. Spiffy is the word.

A far-out thing occurred, then, they did a barbershop quartet number. There was only one hoot, the dude behind me making his opinion quite obvious. But the interesting part about it was that they were Good! The harmony was as close as you could get. And the majority of the folks approved, evidenced by the applause. Versatile is the word.

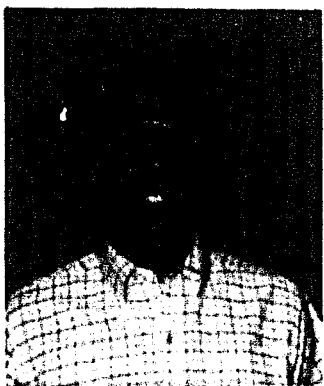

Ah, then they did "Don't Make Promises You Can't Keep." A West "Coast-delic" Underground original called "Waiting" was presented, good lighting gracing the stage. Good organists are hard to find but these dudes made the gym sound like St. Patrick's Cathedral. Can't beat that.

Their current hit on the market, "Don't Give Into Him" got raves of fantastic cheering from the spectators. The "Mother" kept throwing confetti on Puckett for alleged promiscuous lyrics. The audience took it with great spirit.

The clarinets were pulled out, and they ripped into a Benny Goodman type thing Not bad! "I Guess There's Just No Getting Over You..." Confetti! Then Puckett reflected about a song that held a special meaning for him. It was about a child, and contained a personal minor tragedy for him. You could feel the sorrow. A war

'College Life' Slates S.F. Speaker

Featured speaker at this Friday's College Life Spectacular is Skip Ohs, a San Franciscan and graduate of the University of California at Berkeley. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the Silver Room of the Student Union Building.

Ohs will speak on freedom from ourselves and campus unrest. He attended Berkeley during the Free Speech Movement and the Dirty Word Movement.

Ohs was a former vice-president of Phi Kappa Psi.

tear-jerker followed, called "My Son," his mother dying at his birth, the father raising him all alone. The boy goes off to the big war and his life is taken. The father stands alone and looks at the bravery medal in his hand, and says, "He's gone..." I wonder how many people felt that same way.

They finished with "Young Girl" and left the stage in waves of thundering applause with people rushing the stage to get a look at the group. For once the results were exceptional. Gary Puckett and the Union Gap did their job, and well. I might add.

Seminar Elects Cheerleaders, New Officers

The Saturday Seminar met April 12 to elect officers, elect the cheerleader finalists, and discuss freshman orientation.

Co-eds trying out for cheerleaders were Kris Williams, Patience Thoreson, Julie Lachiondo, Sandy Boyd, Penny Walters, Sandra Hight, Candy Walters, Carol Davis, Salleye Kerr, Debbie Wood, and Starr Siggelkow, Kim Fortunato, and Alice Koskella. The seven top awards went to Koskella, Lachiondo, Penny Walters, Davis, Boyd, Thoreson, and Williams. The seven finalists were sent for final ratification.

Elected to the seminar positions were Jinx Cato to the presidency, and JoAnn Trunell was elected secretary-treasurer.

The Freshman Orientation discussion group discussed various problems of clubs during registration week in gaining new members. Arbiter Editor Howard E. Wright said if there was enough cooperation with the clubs, his staff would put out a special edition of the Arbiter registration week to provide information for incoming students, for the campus organizations, the Boise businessmen, and the BSC administration.

Also discussed was the re-activation of the Sophomore Guidance, group which the majority of the seminar members felt was very effective in the past. The final seminar of the year will be held April 25, continuing the discussion on freshman orientation. All campus organizations are urged to participate in the final seminar as the other members of the seminar would like to hear others ideas.

FRANK MOORE, famous Canadian folksinger and song writer, will be performing nightly April 21-26 at the SUB snackbar area. Free $.10 beverages for all BSC students. No admission will be charged. Moore, a native of Toronto, will appear at the U of I, University of Montana and Montana State following the week at BSC.

Continuing Education Surveys Grad Program

The Idaho Continuing Education Association with the cooperation of the Boise Jaycees, is conducting a survey to determine the need for a graduate business program at Boise State, according to Lee Woods, associate director.

The Graduate Deans at the University of Idaho and Idaho State are exploring the possibility of establishing an evening schedule at BSC next fall. Study choices are in three fields, including accounting, economics and general business. These may be offered if enough interest is generated, Woods added.

Persons wishing any further information, are asked to contact Woods at the Idaho Continuing Education Association or Milt Williams, project chairman for the Boise Jaycees at 343-3796.

Students Urged To Return Books On Library Week

April 20-26 has been designated as the twelfth annual National Library Week by the American Library Association as part of its continuing year-round program to promote reading and library development. The theme this year is: "Be all you can be--Read."

Boise State's library is observing the week, according to Beverly Miller, circulation librarian, by asking "friend and foe to join in a campaign to encourage the return of long overdue library books, and those which have been taken from the library without being checked out."

The average cost of replacing "lost" books amounts to between $8 and $10 per volume. "In view of the probable small increase in the book budget for 1969-70," Miss Miller commented, "it is to be hoped that replacement costs can be kept to a minimum. Each title which has to be replaced means that one less new title can be added to our still small collection. Each missing book is potentially one which you or your best friend may need tomorrow or next week."

For the convenience of students who would like to return books anonymously, boxes will be placed in the SUB and dorm lobbies where such books can be returned with no questions asked.

"Also as a special incentive to those who have been putting off returning those long overdue books, the library has authorized an 'all is forgiven' policy during this week. Students who return books between April 20 and 26 will not be charged fines."

Miss Miller pointed out that this provision applies only to two-week general circulation books.

Final Subal presentation

Davis, Watkinson, Schmitz, Please Reviewer at Subal

by A. J. Galus

Dressed in clothes that have seen better days, a "blind" man steps from behind a conglomeration of old sheeting and mismatched patches which curtains the Subal Stage. Holding a cane in his right hand, he talks for awhile. Then as the overture swells, he swings into "Mack the Knife," and "Threepenny Opera" begins.

"Threepenny Opera" concerns itself with the lives of the beggars and thieves of London in the 1930's. A biting satire that is easy to identify with, the "opera's" director, leaving Boise State to return to school, he can be justly proud of his accomplishments over the past two years... not only with "Threepenny," but all the others as well.

Miss Georgia Standing, who assisted Dewey with the vocal talent, also must be given credit for the manner in which she changed terrible melodies into integral parts of the performance.

Primarily listed among those students who did exceptionally well were Nathan Davis (Jonathan Jeremiah Peachum) and Linda Watkinson (Jenny, a harlot).

As Peachum, Davis adds character to the role with his eyes alone. He could amateurishly spout his lines but the eyes dart back and forth across the scene adding connotations to dry lines.

Watkinson, a first-rate lusty trooper in red, makes your skin sneak under your hairline while enacting the "Pirate Song". She comes on that well.

Of course, the couple that share the lead, Don Hawkins (Mack the Knife) and Starr Siggelkow (Polly Peachum), as well as June Schmitz (Mrs. J.J. Peachum) were standouts in last Saturday's performance in addition to J.J. and Jenny.

Starr and June were actually the only trained singers in the group, but casting of talented singers in the parts would have ruined the effect.

Siggelkow may be criticized for her acting, but the casting that placed her in the position she accompanies (daughter of the Peachums and second wife to Mack) was great.

Polly Peachum is a girl that seems out of place among the beggars and thieves. She radiates a certain air of morality which places her above the others. She is, possibly, naive in a sense that, although she realized that Mack is a seducer and thief, her mind is clouded by love. Love, according to J.J. Peachum is nonexistent. People don't marry for love anymore and maybe never did.

The orchestra was excellent with organist Carol March, pianist Larry Clabby, and drummer Dennis O'Connell. One cute bit of ad libbing came when Mrs. Peachum sat on Clabby's piano during a solo. She caused the pianist to smile when she tickled him under the chin.

The props were magnificent while the lobby oozed of richness, and with Ron Krempetz photographs on the walls, the theater lobby took playgoers back into the 30's before they even saw the play.

If everything must have a moral or point of purpose, then the scrawled script above the stage ("Where did you get your money") is that point of moral. All values, moral and social, were judged on this criterion within the play.

J.J. Peachum has organized London into begging districts. He teaches beggars to beg better and outfits them with artificial wounds and diseases in order to prey on the sympathies of the public. However, in Peachum's eyes, Mack the Knife is a thief because he steals what he wants. Peachum does not steal... no. He only gives the knife of poverty and ill fortune already in the body of mankind a little savage twist.

Sen. Church Speaks At April 24 Meet

Uruguay will be the destination of the Community Ambassador this year, and the program is conducted through the Experiment in International Living. A send-off dinner is being planned for the Ambassador on May 4th, to which the public is also cordially invited.

The summer foreign language camps are open to first and second-year students of French, Spanish and German on a first-come, first-serve basis.

"I'LL DRINK TO THAT," says Siggelkow and Ben Plummer, in Bertolt Brecht's "Threepenny Opera" production. The music excepting Mondays at the Theatre production. The music going "like hotcakes".

Brecht's 'Threepenny Opera' Draws Raves From Crowd

by Janice Williams

Bertholt Brecht would have snickered, cried and belly-laughed if he had been in the Subal Theatre Saturday evening at the second performance of his play, "Threepenny Opera", by Boise State College drama and music students.

A first for the drama and music departments, "Threepenny" is crammed with satire on morals and values of the '20s, which hit hard on the '60s and will probably continue "strike low" in the '70s and '80s.

As the first words and notes oozed, blasted and simply "came" from the members of the cast, the audience seemed amazed that the actors could sing and the singers could act.

Nathan Davis as J.J. Peachum, an English merchant who deals in "beggerism", and his wire-haired wife, played by June Schmitz, almost blend into one personality as both sing, talk and work towards the same goal... money. Although the entire play is about the beggars of London, business tactics and values ironically bear has a striking resemblance to the "uppercrust" of the typical American city.

Davis and Mrs. Schmitz get their point across so well that at times, silk-suited men and fur-draped women in the audience seemed to sit a little lower in their seats. A sign over the stage read, "Where Did You Make Your Money?"

Lovable and contemptible at the same time, Don Hawkins plays the part of Macbeth (remember bopping to Mack the Knife), who is unbelievably honest about his dishonesty. Here the irony gets syrupy as you see Peachum as the dishonest dishonest and Macbeath as the honest dishonest.

Just to wrinkle your nose a little more, Don Scott comes on as the snivelling police commissioner, Tiger Brown, and does a superb job of making your stomach turn. No offense intended, Don.

Starr Sigglekow as goodie Polly Peachum, who is bowled-over by Macheath, hits the high notes like she had been practicing for months... and she had.

Ben Plumber appears as two different characters throughout the play, the street singer and the blind man and if you're not quick of eye or your best doesn't tell you, you'll never make the connection between the two made-up faces and characters.

When Linda Watkinson first appeared on stage, later on in the opera, the audience was ready. Seems like they were waiting for a top performer and that's exactly what they got. The applause was more abundant after her entrance as Jenny, the prostitute. The voice wasn't polished... like Starr's... but if it was the part wouldn't have fit. Linda's a favorite for any type of play, anytime.

Her cohorts, the whores at Mackey's favorite brothel, cracked the audience with their every action, from painting toe nails to seducing a customer. Giving the smaller parts that extra something (a little nasty here and there always perks up an audience) were Jan Perkins, as Betty; Dale Watkins, as Dolly; Dixie Hunt, as Molly; Wanda Gardner, as Holly; and Toni Viani, as Coaxer, the Madame.

There will never be another Lucy Brown like the one that appeared Saturday night as commissioner Brown's pregnant daughter Michelle Morrison put on a show like she had been performing for years and the audience responding with applause, chuckles, har-hars and admiration for her gutsy attitude.

The audience will remember Michelle for a long time.

Mackey's gang consisted also of audience favorites such as Randy Kitzing, as Money Mat; Steve Drakalich, Crooked Finger Jack; Sam Johnson, Wally the Weeper; and Mike Bideganeta, Bob the Saw. They played the straight men to Mackey (Don Hawkins) and every once in awhile, got in their own funnies.

The entire crew sings and acts together with the skill of a professional, traveling theatre group and yet keeps the personal warmth, characteristic of amateurs emanating to the audience.

BAA Association Holds Annual Sports Clinic

The first annual Bronco Athletic Association hosted BSC football basketball clinic held recently at Boise State College was judged "a wonderful success" by BAA President John P. Molitor. Nearly 150 football and basketball coaches, college, junior college, and high schools from Idaho, Northern Nevada and Eastern Oregon were on hand to enjoy the morning's sessions.

The visiting football coaches heard Boise State Football Coach Tony Knap and his staff impart their hints, techniques, and other coaching philosophies. In the basketball clinic, the visiting guests of the BAA were led by BSC Basketball Coach Murray Satterfield. Comments from the visiting coaches were uniformly complimentary, with some wishing that the clinic could have been a bit longer in duration. BAA Chairman for the clinic was Board Member Alex Findlay.

After lunch, the visiting coaches joined a crowd of some 700 fans at Bronco Stadium for the final spring practice football game won by the BSC White team, 45-15. After the game, a "re hash" session was held.

JOHN MOLITER

BAA Head

At the same time the clinics were being held the Bronco Athletic Association Booster group was holding its annual meeting for the purpose of electing seven new directors to replace those whose terms have expired. Elected, in alphabetical order, to two year terms were: Bill Brownsfield, Stan Catlett, R. E. "Gus" Gustavel, Rich Le Duc, Joe Robinson Sr., and Wanek Stein Jr. These new directors join carryover directors John Molitor, Dick Chastain, A.J. Achabal, Norm Bishop, Ray Cole, Alex Findlay, Dr. Rich Gardner, and Larry Mills as the Booster group's leaders for the coming year.

Sometime in the next three weeks, the new BAA Board will meet to elect its President and Vice President and formulate plans for the coming year.

The BAA consists of about 700 members. These are people who are either "Buckaroos," $110 annual contribution, or regular $10 BAA members.

Boise State Athletes Plan Busy Weekend

It will be another busy week-end of activities for Boise State sportsman. Three baseball games dot the line up with a single game Friday against Warner-Pacific and a doubleheader slated for Saturday with the Ricks College Vikings. All three games are scheduled for the Bronco diamond with Friday's contest beginning at 3:30 and Saturday's double bill will get underway at 1 p.m.

The Broncos have a 12-7 record to date with some sparkling performances turned in by the diamond crew. Canadian freshman, Terry Begg with a 1.14 ERA, leads the Bronco hurlers. Outfielder-pitcher Bob Peterson is pacing the hitters with a .478 average.

The tennis squad currently supporting an impressive record is at home for a Friday afternoon encounter with TVCC. The match came about when the University of Idaho tourney, originally scheduled for this week-end was postponed one week.

The track and field squad, under head coach Ray Lewis is again on the road as they travel to Ontario for the TVCC Invitational Saturday. The Bronco trackmen have three dual wins under their belts and are fresh off an impressive second place showing in last week's NNC Invitational.

The BSC golf team is idle this week-end after a win over College of Idaho Tuesday. The Broncos show a 2-1 record to date in their first year of four-year competition.

Golfers Score Against C of I

by Neil Gallant

Two fine scores turned in by Rich Hutchins and Mark Beebe helped lead the BSC golf team to a 10 1/2-7 1/2 golf win over the College of Idaho. The win gives the Bronco team a 2-1 record.

Hutchins turned in his performance when he downed Kent Brown 3-0. Beebe also turned in a score of 3-0 when he defeated White Mike Bideganeta aided the cause with a 2 1/2 victory over Dave Edison, while Curt Sower and Steve Chronic II to their C of I opponents. Dave Young battled Dave Rubado to a 1 1/2-1 1/2 tie. The Boise golf team is coached by Darch Frederick.

Tracksters Finish Second In NNC Meet

The Weber State Wildcats, the only new addition to this year's NNC Invitational, wrested the title from Boise State Saturday at Nampa by scoring 114 points. The Cats raced to 10 first places and seven second place finishes to amass their 114. Boise State, finishing second in the meet had three first and seven seconds for 71 points. NNC finished third with 35 points.

A steady wind hampered the events throughout the day but five new records were established.

Weber's Randy Montgomery grabbed the spotlight and walked off with the days top honors as he was nominated the meet's outstanding performer. The speedy Senior captured the 100 dash in 9.6, the 200 dash in 21.8, and then switched to the field events to win the triple jump with a 42 feet 9 inches jump and the long jump with a 20'11" leap. He scored 24 points alone on his four first place finishes. His 9.6 clocking in the 100 broke the meet record but was declared wind aided so it didn't go down in the record books.

The Broncos' firsts came in two relays and Jim Cafferty's 120 high hurdles win. Cafferty battled the wind for a 15.5 clocking. Boise's foursome of Rich Dickson, Dave Bishop, Larry Cline and Doug Ward raced to a first place finish in the 440 relay with a 44.1 time. Ward also teamed up with Bill Barnard, Herb Glassen and John Urresti to finish ahead of the field in the mile relay in 3:26.5.

The single running event record to be shattered was NNC's Terry Cantrell in the 440 yard intermediate hurdles with a time of 57.1 which bettered the old mark by two-tenths of a second.

Todd Parker of Weber broke the pole vault standard of 14'11" as he crossed the bar at 14'3 1/2". The shot put record was bettered by Weber State's Frank Reiley with a toss of 53 feet, 5 1/8 inches.

Dick Harding of TVCC erased his last years mark in the javelin throw by some 33 feet as he heaved the spear 229 feet 4 inches.

Big Willie Sojourner, who is probably most feared on the basketball court, leaped six feet, 7 inches to take first in his specialty and broke the two year record of six feet, 6 1/4 inches in the high jump.

Boise picked up the majority of their points with second and third place finishes which was good for the runner-up spot in the meet.

Dickson finished third in the sprint medley relay.

In the field events the Broncos picked up four second place finishes and a single third.

Ward was third in the triple jump while Mark Burgener was second in the discuss event. Mike Schell was a step behind Sojourner in the high jump and Bob Nelson grabbed the third place ribbon in the pole vault.

Tom Kelly of the Broncos actually tied for a first place finish with Montgomery in the long jump but Montgomery was awarded first place when his second best leap bettered Kelly's by an inch.

Boise Netters Best Utah State 5-4

The Boise State netters won their eighth match in 10 outings this season Saturday with a narrow 5-4 win over Utah State University at Logan, Utah.

The see-saw battle took both squads all even after the singles matches at three games apiece. It was the final doubles combination of Mittleider-Baxter of Boise State decisioning Tse-McClellan of USU, 6-3, 6-2, that spelled defeat for Utah State. Gary Giffin and Haugness also won their doubles match Hensen, Giffin and Brun won their singles matches.

Baseball Crew Sneaks by NNC

The Broncos baseball squad had to go 10 innings but managed to push across a pair of runs in the top of the 10th last Friday to squeeze by Northwest Nazarene 8-6.

Eric Guthrie, who came on in relief of Bob Peterson in the ninth after the Crusaders rallied to tie the score 6-6, picked up the win.

Bob VanderSluis went all the way for the Crusaders and suffered the loss. He allowed the Broncos 12 hits. Jim Rogers led the Boise hitting parade with a three for five performance and two RBIs. Sabin Landulace and Dan Smith each had a pair of hits for the Broncos.

Morrison Wins Saddle Bronc; Preps National Competition

Boise State College rodeo team member Dave Morrison won first place in the saddle bronc collegiate rodeo competition at St. George Utah over the weekend. Morrison is a sophomore history major at BSC. He was riding a horse called "Pancho."

The meet was the Dixie College Regional Rodeo of the Southern Rocky Mt. College Association. Utah State University was the overall winner, according to BSC Rodeo club advisor Alan Crooks.

Morrison, in two collegiate meets this year, has already scored 85½ points, enough to put him into the national finals without any further personal competition, says Crooks. Boise State has several more meets scheduled this year, Ricks College April 26, Brigham Young University May 3, plus the regional finals.

Morrison will be competing in calf roping in addition to bull riding and saddle bronc riding, in order to try and qualify for all-around cowboy. He was rookie of the year in the Idaho Rodeo Association last year. He's from Garden Valley.

Other travelling team members are James E. Simms and Ken Peterson of Leadore, Peter McArthur and Dan Ackley, Boise. Carol Qualman is competing in girls event. Simms and Peterson placed in saddle and bull riding in the Dixie event.

Coyotes Blank Bronco Nine 4-0

The College of Idaho Coyotes made it two in a row over the Broncos from Boise, Wednesday afternoon at Caldwell by shutting out Coach Lyle Smith's nine 4-0.

The Coyotes scored a pair of runs in each of the fourth and sixth innings. The loss was the fifth for Boise on the season.

Rick Candaele provided the hitting power for the Coyotes as he unloaded a homerun in the fourth inning scoring both runs for C of I to send them out in front. The Coyotes picked up their final two runs in the sixth frame on Bill Dunham's bases loaded single.

Bowlers Lead In Conference

by Neil Gallant

The Boise State Bowlers will defend their first place standing in the final conference meet of the season at B.Y.U., April 19.

The Bronco Keglars are in first place by 181 pins, with a total of 24037 pins. B.Y.U. is in second spot with 23856 total pins and are followed closely by Utah State with a total of 23814. The rest of the conference is rounded out by ISU with 23104, Ricks with 22478, and Weber State is in the cellar with 22122 total pins.

BSC is represented by five fine bowlers in the names of Bill Tompson, Steve Brewer, Dan Garland, Bob Gage, and Brad Jans. Kent Kehler, BSC bowling instructor is their coach.

CBC Hawks Blast Broncos 10-3, 5-2 in Home Tests

The Boise State Broncos dropped their record to 10 wins and 7 losses Saturday at the Bronco diamond when the Columbia Basin Hawks rapped the Broncos in a double bill 10-3 and 5-2.

The wins evened the Pasco, Wash., schools record at 6-6.

An eight run second inning, 10 hits, and six Boise errors spelled defeat for the home club in the first game.

Boise jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a pair of Columbia Basin errors and a ground out. The Hawks came right back however, and when the dust had settled 14 men had come to the plate.

Boise rallied for single runs in the second and third innings and even had the bases loaded with one out in the third but couldn't manage to push any runs across.

Joe Gonzales worked the first 2½ innings for CBC and picked up the win while Dan Smith was the loser for Boise.

As in the first game Boise once again took a 1-0 lead in the second contest but the Hawks flew back to tie it in the second and go ahead with three more tallies in the fourth.

Boise's first inning run came on a pair of walks to Sabin Landulace and Jim Bianchi respectively. Smith's fielders choice and an error which brought Bianchi across after Bob Peterson forced Landulace at the plate. Boise's final run came in the sixth frame when Phil Choules doubled to right and scored on Terry Beggs' fielders choice.

Lewis was the winning hurler for CBC while Chuck Hathaway who was plagued by control trouble was the loser. The Hawks pushed across their second inning run on a pair of wild pitches and then broke it open with their three run burst on two walks and three straight singles.

Pete Hutch fired a low of 79 to lead the Bengal golfers.

Again Rich Hutchins of the Broncos won the medal honors with a 75 total over the par 72 course.
