11-14-1969

Arbiter, November 14

Students of Boise State College

Although this file was scanned from the highest-quality microfilm held by Boise State University, it reveals the limitations of the source microfilm. It is possible to perform a text search of much of this material; however, there are sections where the source microfilm was too faint or unreadable to allow for text scanning. For assistance with this collection of student newspapers, please contact Special Collections and Archives at archives@boisestate.edu.
Boise State plays ISU in cross-state battle

Saturday Nov. 15, 1:30 p.m. will see the ISU Bengals invade the Boise State Bronco territory at Bronco Stadium.

The ISU Bengals will be trying to achieve last year's 27-20 upset from the Boise State Broncos when the southern Idaho club club invades Bronco Stadium this Saturday at 1:30 p.m. The game will decide the "mythical" football championship between the state institutions of higher learning in Idaho. Idaho State upset the University of Idaho Vandals 47-42 earlier this year.

The Bengals, 5-3 on the season, will come from a narrow 35-31 loss to University of Nevada (Las Vegas) into the Boise situation with the questionable starting of star quarterback Jerry Dunne. Dunne suffered a shoulder injury against Weber State, only to sustain an injured knee in the Nevada contest. As late as Tuesday, Bengal coach Ed Cavanaugh gave Dunne a 50-50 chance of starting the Saturday opening kickoff in the Boise game. According to the Idaho State defense, Dunne will probably go with quarterbacks Pat Ebright and Hal Zimmerman, with Eric Guthrie in reserve. Boise came through the Colorado contest with only one serious injury as the Idaho State speedster Puddin' Grayson suffered from sprained ankle.

Dr. John B. Barnes tells Senate effects of supplemental budget request

A talk by BSC President Dr. John B. Barnes, passage of the Arbiter budget, and discussion of senate procedures highlighted the ASB Senate meeting Monday evening.

Dr. Barnes presented the enrollment figures of the other state colleges and universities in comparison to Boise State's increased enrollment. These figures, measured by full-time equivalency credits found Boise State with an increase of 32 percent, ISU with a 10 per cent increase, and the University of Idaho a 5.5 percent increase. Dr. Barnes also commented that BSC has a larger academic enrollment than ISU, but the southern Idaho school has more vocational students, whereas ISU גדולה.

The appropriation if received, will be spent on additional faculty, counselors and librarians to serve the student body, he said.

The $958,350 appropriation will make the institution grow", Dr. Barnes added, "and without additional funds, we at Boise State cannot keep up in the current pace in regard to increasing enrollments. If BSC does not receive supplementary funds, Boise State will be forced to charge either in-state tuition, curtail enrollment of incoming freshmen to the upper 75 percent of the high school class, or to limit our out-of-state enrollment, Dr. Barnes said.

At this time, he added, the trend seems to be leaning toward in-state tuition and fees because according to the courts, public institutions cannot set minimum admission standards, and that 96 per cent of the BSC enrollment is from Idaho. The state budget however can set these minimum requirements for admission, but so Dr. Barnes said, "it would be very strange if Boise in the population center of the state had higher admission standards than the long-standing universities located away from the main population centers."

The BSC President then urged the senate members to learn more about Boise State's problems so they could convey them to fellow students and talk about them to their respective legislators.

Following Dr. Barnes' presentation, the senate acted on the supplemental request for funds of $1560 made by the Arbiter last week.

After a slight debate, a vote was casted with two dissenting votes.

Johnson introduces resolutions

Junior class president Gary Johnson proposed several resolutions dealing with problems on campus. The first resolution dealt with a temporary committee of three from the senate established as a fact-finding committee to study the college-owned bookstore.

The committee was to compare prices between the bookstore and local merchants. Senate member Becky A. A. said that the committee find out prices at other college bookstores in the area. The motion was then passed.

Johnson then introduced another resolution dealing with expense money for the class officers, and the school saxophones. He proposed $25 for each class, and $25 for each school. After considerable debate, the motion was tabled.

The fourth motion by Johnson seemed to be more in the senate members. Johnson motioned resolutions be made and seconded from the (cont. to page 7, col. 2).
Yarbrough concert found "lively" by Boise reviewer

by E. W. Wright

O p e n i n g w i t h s o n - concerted songs, Glenn Yarbrough moor with the Fred Ranger Waltham Wristwatch and the Dave Davis, played to a crowd estimated at 5,000 in the BSC
b gym.

The red and blue lighting, coated with the red-white and blue back drop dressed the program out with a set of moody jazz renditions, followed by a appearance of the star, Yarbrough. Yarbrough joined the band and introduced his band. The audience waited impatiently for the concert by the star. Several numbers new to the reviewer were performed-without any introduction as to what they were.

The concert started to live up up to the billing of the "New Frankie and Johnnie Song"-a tune raved from the old crooner, which were nearly a quarter inch thick.

This was followed by readings
from Rod McKuen's "Stanyon
Page 2

Arbiter

Howard E. Wright ... Editor
Art Galus ... Arturing Asoc., Ed.
John Edgerton, Rick Gardner, Wayne Coyne, Greg Farber, Don Rodgers, Linda Yost, Neil Gallant, Bud O'neil, Norma O'neil, Barry Wright

Letters To The Editor

POLICY CONCERNING LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

Letters to the Editor should be no longer than 500 words, in acceptable language and signed. Unsigned Letters to the Editor of The Arbiter will not be printed.

The editor reserves the right to edit for length, unacceptable language, and undocumented libelous material. Letters to the editor should be typed, double-space, deeply indented at the paragraphs and submitted for proofreading by Friday noon.

THis WEEKEND BENGALS will be cropping up like dandilions in the valley as the State-BSC football battle and to "have the last laugh on the Broncos." However, the shoe will probably be on the other foot this Saturday, unless the fakers are undoubtedly saying "Mercy, mercy!" Seated before a billboard display are freshman, Jay Agosta and sophomore, Bill Woods, together with Westbrook both of Emmett.

Dee Wayne L. Hammond has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's Who in American universities and has been named to Who's
I believe that I am one of the last members of the Australian Youth Army. During the conflict in Vietnam, I entered Sydney, completing their conquest of Australia. With the fall of Australia, there only remains North America and a few other countries. The fall started in a country called Vietnam. I had not been born then, but I understand that there was much good. South Korea fell to the Communists six months after the United States withdrew from all Asia. With the loss of American and South Korean troops, most of the other countries also deserted Vietnam. Then there was really nothing left but South Vietnam and the United States. However, the Americans made up the main strength and were buying the South Vietnam Army. They believed that the Americans didn't have the guts to fight a war.

Finally, under pressure from the American people, the President announced the withdrawal of all American troops from Vietnam. That was the beginning of the end.

South Korea, fearing that the United States would not live up to their agreement to help protect South Korea, withdrew their fifteen thousand American and South Korean troops. There were also South Africans, Germans and many others helping the South Vietnamese, besides the United States and our Australians. However, when the Americans made up the main strength and were buying the South Vietnam Army, they believed that the Americans didn't have the guts to fight a war.

After Vietnam fell, the rest of Asia soon followed. The world was watching and waiting. The United States, the one country that could have helped, bled in their new found isolationism and that's when the U.S. got into the second world war.

South Korea was the last Asian country to fall, and with its capitulation the U.S.A. was no longer a superpower. However, the Americans in South Vietnam was no longer interested in what happened to them Japan became the first country to elect the Communists into power. Africa, wanting to side with a power they could depend on, soon went into the U.S. The Arabs, already leaning toward the United States, finally crushed Israel with the help of Soviet equipment.

It was eighteen months after the United States pulled their troops out of Europe. I was seven when West Berlin finally surrendered to the Soviets. I remember my father telling me that the U.S. had become the only superpower in the world.

It was three years ago that the Communists finally secured the rest of Asia. In a telephone interview, the United States would come out of their dream world and help us, but it is too late now. Their Congress did not pass a resolution that American troops could stay past the war. They couldn't get their Armed Forces prepared.

I believe that still have the strength to laugh at the irony of the situation. If the United States had kept their commitment in Vietnam, it would have been different. If the United States had only realized the importance of that country. If only the American people had remembered the lessons of history, and had with the blood, sweat and tears of the young. If only those people had realized that they were fighting for more than Vietnam. If only...

The United States Vietnam because they didn't want to fight a war. They had thirty years of peace while the world died. Now the United States must fight her war, and she must fight alone for there is no one else.

From under the rock

With the Moratorium being held this week, many persons have displayed their opinions dealing with the war. Being caught between a "peace brother" and a "war monger" seems to be a most unpopular thing.

First of all, it can be resolved that the Vietnam War is very unpopular. The Moratorium group would like to see from my observation, IMMEDIATE WITHDRAWAL YESTERDAY. This action would release the tension and the bloodshed caused by the United States being immediately discharged and the war industries being immediately closed.

I think the Moratorium committee's view in that there are pressing social problems, such as hunger, riots, black equality, housing, etc. that the presence of troops being immediately discharged and the war industries being immediately closed.

The U.S. has been delinquent in not trying to solve the problems of the world. If he is a politician, he can only blame the voter who has him in power. If you are in a low state, you would put to end the war, because of the impact on your state's economy. Vietnam is nothing in the U.S. we have been getting "fat" on defense projects given to the privileged few.

What is basically wrong with the war is that the politicians have been influencing the conduct of the Vietnam War too long. If the politicians were to relax and let the military do its work instead of playing games, the war could have ended long ago.

In a recent conversation with an American commander in South Vietnam, he who remain unidentified, I was told that if the politicians would stop interfering in the military's business then it's very likely that war could have ended in a week. It should be noted that this is WITHOUT NUCLEAR WEAPONS. They are two of the most horrid "imperial" weapons. The war could be ended with conventional weapons, bombing a few strategic places. It seems ridiculous to have a "peace" in which the politicians order the place and the military plays the game.

We hope that some politicians circle on aerial maps to restrict things such as villages, Haci-Hong or Hamol, these areas are "estranged" to the northern troops. These areas are because of the other countries' influence i.e., Red China, USSR, and the restrictions on these areas foster activity against the south. War in past cities is killed to war. North Vietnam should be made to feel the consequences.

The thing to do is to get the soldiers out of the war, because we're coming and make it TOUGH on these areas. It makes little sense for a military commander to send his troops out to, let's say, bomb an "oil dump" and several men and planes to destroy one-fourth as much oil as in one plane, when numerous tankers are floating in Haiphong Harbor with the total supply--this doesn't make sense!

The point of diminishing return has long since been passed. We have waited, but to no avail. The time for war is not now, the time for peace is. The time has passed when a good case could be made for waiting a little longer. We have waited, but to no avail. The politicians have realized nothing, and the blood spilt has not washed clean the conscience of America.

It is said that there is a time for all things, a time for peace and a time for war, and now is not the time for peace. The point of diminishing return has long since been passed. If the choice is said to be one of the two, then let us have the judgement to see that withdrawal, NOW, is the only alternative.
The Apollo flight... a dream or reality

The men of Apollo are now on their way. This ten-day flight and seven hours on the moon are the "now" goals made feasible by science and mathematics as developed by hand-eyed dreamers.

For nearly two years, our earthbound beings have gazed at the heavens and dreamed of the escape from the soil of these myriad generations.

The moon has been personified, illustrated, computed upon, drawn, mapped and measured; the stars of Apollo are the final step between the dreaming and the utilization.

On the home front there is argumentation on what degree of education was wiped out with Crete and hasn't arisen yet.

-----

Interdormitory Council formulated at BSC

Ratification of a new constitution... Elections of officers... and the Interdormitory Council (IDC) of BSC will jump into the full swing of activities.

The new organization seeks to promote communication and coordination of activities common to all students living in the residence halls of BSC.

In the process of being organized, since last spring, the Grice, Chaffee president; Charles is common to all students living in McGarr, Marian president; jcncll co-ordination, of activities Mitchell, Marian rep.; Carol is Sara Vinson, Driscoll swing of activities. Morrison vice president.

Interdormitory Council (IDC) of Gayle Weymouth, Morrison re-established. Social education was wiped out with Crete and hasn't arisen yet.

-----

Bronco Stadium

by Art Galus

The old wooden structure that will disappear with the last football game of BSC's '69 season, that structure which has held school and college graduating classes and track fans since 1951, that old Boise Municipal Stadium... I will remember it well.

While I was still a high school manager, handing towels out to footballers and wrestlers, bandaging blisters for an occasional thin clad, or watching from the sidelines as my team won and lost, Charley Wilson, my prep athletic trainer, pulled me aside and said, "Let's talk to that fellow over there.

We wandered over to a man in a grey suit sitting with people I didn't recognize. I was a mistake and knew Charley as soon as he saw us.

Coach Wilson began, "Coach Smith, I'd like you to meet Art Galus." With that introduction my collegiate awareness began, Lyle Smith took me on as a manager, a player's mother-away-from-home, and a coach and sock man.

Bronco Stadium looked awesome to me that first Saturday evening in 1956, when Boise College plunkered Idaho State to the tune of 14-0. The stands were filled with a few people for that time in history, and that exception. The cheerleaders were yelling at the fans, the fans were yelling at the cheerleaders and Lyle Smith, Ray Lewts, Bob Connor, and Murray Satterfield were pushing players into the nuccot and piling players out.

When the final fans sounded and my team went to the showers, I and Bob Radloff were the only people on the field. Loaded down with equipment and line coats, footballs and first aid supplies, we stumbled back to the gymnasium, down the stairs crowded with sweethearts and proud fathers; down the stairs littered with tape and turn sign; into a locker room filled with grinning dirty faces and happier caretakers. It was good to win, but when we lost... that was a different matter.

There is perhaps nothing so expected in appearance as a huge fireman staring into the locker room's cement floor; pulling off one shoe then the other; trailing to the showers with a wet towel; and sitting, unnaturally quiet when he is normally loud. On a night when the team won and lost, and with the team won and lost, Charley Wilson, my prep athletic trainer, pulled me aside and said, "Let's talk to that fellow over there."
by Sister Mary Ida Wasmuth

The second BSC faculty lecture of 1969-70 was presented last Wednesday evening by Dr. Mele W. Wells, special lecturer at Boise State.

Much of the talk centered on Caleb Lyon, Governor of Idaho from 1864 to 1866 and superintendent of Indian affairs. Lyon negotiated the treaty of Fort Boise, Oct. 10, 1864, and the Bannock Treaty, March 1, 1865, to end the war and establish the Snake River from the Idaho border to the Missouri.

"Territorial administration," said Dr. Wells, "was in chaos during the time Lyon was trying to help the Indians of Southwestern Idaho. Today when we look at Lyon's Indian resolutions they hold a good deal of merit. In his day, however, he was in trouble constantly and the only fired he had were the Indians. He believed they should be dealt with firmly and took steps to see that such measures were taken."

Dr. Wells continued, "The biggest problem they had was buying Idaho land makes sense to the white man but not to the Indian. Always we have heard about the Indian's way of life, to assimilate the wilderness culture when he would rather retain his identity and follow his tribal life. White values, he seemed to understand."

Dr. Wells went on to explain that despite personal difficulties, Lyon seemed to be able to understand the Indian. It served only to add controversy to his political position and he left Idaho without accomplishing either for the Indian or for himself.

"The mistakes that were made..." said Dr. Wells, "... made the up-relations today between the Indian and society are the result of this. Action to put Lyon's treaties into effect never came and the Idaho States never did purchase the Boise region from the Indian. Through a long series of mishaps, extending over a century, the procedures for handling the Boise claim have all gone astray. These blessings have left the Boise claim one of the few in the country for which the Indian have put nothing at all," concluding Dr. Wells.

An interesting question came from the audience concerning the efforts being made to bring the Indian into society, thus giving him economic and educational opportunities rather than resorting to the antiquated solution of the reservation dealing with the Indian. Dr. Wells replied that even though some Indians have made their homes in cities and this is what we would like to see the Indians do, adapt to our ways, yet basically the Indian is culturally oriented to ways different from the white man. The Indians like to function as tribes rather than as individual landowners.

Dr. Wells was graduated from Boise Junior College in 1917 and received his M.A. and Ph.D. at the University of California at Berkeley.

Before coming to Boise State, Dr. Wells taught history at the College of Idaho, 1941-46 and was Associate Professor of History at Alliance College, 1950-56 and Dean of Students, 1955-56. Dr. Wells has been associated with the Idaho State Historical Society since then and has taught at BSC since 1963.
Arguments fly over dormitory rules

by Pat Snyder and Bonnie Judy

Maybe it wouldn't be so bad to come from home and batch with a group of young women, all of whom are working toward the ultimate, an education, and/or a husband, if the rules governing dorm life were a bit more permissive. One dormitory rule, stated in the Women's Residence Hall Handbook, reads: "Study will prevail from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. . . . For the first nine weeks no Freshman girl is to be in the dorm after 7:00 p.m. from Monday through Thursday (except: a.) for library study, or b.) with special permission from the resident director.”

Some freshmen girls seem to resent this. According to one Morrison Hall coed, the rules don't do any good, because "if you are going to study, you are going to study.”

A few girls think a person should be able to leave the dorm if she doesn't want to study. However, very few girls believe that the “quiet hours” now maintained from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. should be abolished. Margaret Zanor, Morrison Hall, said: "... these hours could be for girls who want the them... those who don't, they don't have to stick with them. They can stay up and study hours, but not anybody to say, ‘Don’t.’"

Two girls at Morrison and two at Marian said the fact that they have to be in the dorm depresses them and that dorm life doesn't help them to adjust to college. A sophomore coed stated: "When I was a freshman, it made no difference if I studied or not. Looking back on it, study hours made no difference at all.”

Sandy Ogden, a Marian Hall freshman says that if parents think you are mature enough to go away to college, then the school you go to should think you are mature enough also. School should not play the role of parents.

However, not all students have this attitude. Some girls think that students owe a responsibility to their parents and the rules as they stand help fulfills that responsibility. Says a Marian Hall freshman, "Most of the girls here are parent-supported. We owe it to them to maintain passing or better grades. The study hours give us that chance during the start of school. It helps us develop a sense of responsibility.”

Another sophomore at Driscoll, thinking back to when she was a freshman, feels that "study hours are a good idea. It established a study habit for me. At the time I did dislike it, but looking back now, it was a good idea.”

The hour regulations have made a few of the girls rebellious. According to a Driscoll frosh, "it urges the upperclassmen to seek off-campus housing rather than on campus. I know I, myself, along with some other girls do not plan to live in the dorm for very long.” Similar sentiments are shared in Marian Hall, "They seem to want to find off campus housing as soon as possible.”

The men in Chaffe have an easier time with the dorm rules, as they find off campus housing as soon as possible. The women have hours of 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Very few dorm coeds mind the weekend hours, however, more resentment is caused by the weekday study hours. Residents of the on-campus dorms complain about the general noise level on campus during study hours. If there must be study hours and quiet hours, then they should respect the frosh by keeping quiet themselves,” a Morrison girl said.

One Morrison girl said that the thought the girls were being treated unequally, and that supposedly girls were more mature at an earlier age than boys, and they should have the responsibility of no hours.

Some girls think age is an important factor. A girl who is 20 and classified freshman should not have to abide by the same regulations, either first or second semester,” says a girl at Driscoll.

But Andy Lilley, Marian Hall, is a 20-year-old second-semester freshman with a different point of view: "I don't think I should have to adhere to 7:00 clock hours if I don't make the required grade point. I have already proven myself to the establishment. But 11 o'clock hours are a good thing during the week, it helps discipline.”

She has experienced dorm life at the University of North Dakota and tells of regulations there. "Freshmen have 11:00 clock hours weekdays, 12:00 clock hours on weekends. Upperclassmen (senior or through senior) have keys. But the situation is the belief that the rules tend to be discouraging. A lot of girls come from families with no enforced hours, the harsh discipline is enough to break your spirit.”

The handbook also states: "There will be no telephone calls from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. with the exception of long distance or emergency calls. (Monday through Thursday). A few more permissive. One dormitory rule, stated in the Women's Residence Hall Handbook, reads: "Study will prevail from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. . . . For the first nine weeks no Freshman girl is to be in the dorm after 7:00 p.m. from Monday through Thursday (except: a.) for library study, or b.) with special permission from the resident director.”

Two girls at Morrison and two at Marian said the fact that they have to be in the dorm depresses them and that dorm life doesn't help them to adjust to college. A sophomore coed stated: "When I was a freshman, it made no difference if I studied or not. Looking back on it, study hours made no difference at all.”

Sandy Ogden, a Marian Hall freshman says that if parents think you are mature enough to go away to college, then the school you go to should think you are mature enough also. School should not play the role of parents.

However, not all students have this attitude. Some girls think that students owe a responsibility to their parents and the rules as they stand help fulfills that responsibility. Says a Marian Hall freshman, "Most of the girls here are parent-supported. We owe it to them to maintain passing or better grades. The study hours give us that chance during the start of school. It helps us develop a sense of responsibility.”

Another sophomore at Driscoll, thinking back to when she was a freshman, feels that "study hours are a good idea. It established a study habit for me. At the time I did dislike it, but looking back now, it was a good idea.”

The hour regulations have made a few of the girls rebellious. According to a Driscoll frosh, "it urges the upperclassmen to seek off-campus housing rather than on campus. I know I, myself, along with some other girls do not plan to live in the dorm for very long.” Similar sentiments are shared in Marian Hall, "They seem to want to find off campus housing as soon as possible.”

The men in Chaffe have an easier time with the dorm rules, as they find off campus housing as soon as possible. The women have hours of 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Very few dorm coeds mind the weekend hours, however, more resentment is caused by the weekday study hours. Residents of the on-campus dorms complain about the general noise level on campus during study hours. If there must be study hours and quiet hours, then they should respect the frosh by keeping quiet themselves,” a Morrison girl said.

One Morrison girl said that the thought the girls were being treated unequally, and that supposedly girls were more mature at an earlier age than boys, and they should have the responsibility of no hours.

Some girls think age is an important factor. A girl who is 20 and classified freshman should not have to abide by the same regulations, either first or second semester,” says a girl at Driscoll.

But Andy Lilley, Marian Hall, is a 20-year-old second-semester freshman with a different point of view: "I don't think I should have to adhere to 7:00 clock hours if I don't make the required grade point. I have already proven myself to the establishment. But 11 o'clock hours are a good thing during the week, it helps discipline.”

She has experienced dorm life at the University of North Dakota and tells of regulations there. "Freshmen have 11:00 clock hours weekdays, 12:00 clock hours on weekends. Upperclassmen (senior or through senior) have keys. But the situation is the belief that the rules tend to be discouraging. A lot of girls come from families with no enforced hours, the harsh discipline is enough to break your spirit.”

The handbook also states: "There will be no telephone calls from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. with the exception of long distance or emergency calls. (Monday through Thursday). A few
Sen. Church urges quiet Moratorium

WASHINGTON-Senator Frank Church has urged opponents of the war in Vietnam to work for peace in their home communities during the November Moratorium this week. "It is at the grass roots where the position to the war will have the most impact in affecting our policy decisions in Vietnam," Church said.

"Those who are concerned about our protracted participation in the war will be most effective if they show the depth of their concern where they live, work or study, rather than by converging on Washington for a massive march which may be highly visible and dramatic, but which also could result in a dangerous and disruptive confrontation."

"It all serves the cause of peace," Church said, "to protest the violence of the war in Vietnam by countering violence at home. Nothing could better serve the aims of those who would prolong our continued involvement in the war."

"For this reason," Church said, "I hope that the November Moratorium, like last month's Moratorium, will be a week of quiet unity and conscious effort to strengthen the desire for peace and their support for policies which will expedite the return of our fighting men."

Frank Church has urged quiet Moratorium

Boise State College overcome a first half lead by Colorado Western State College last Saturday at Gunnison, Colorado to beat the Mountaineers, 23-20. It was a reverse show from last week's bad toe affects for Senior kicking specialist Gary Stivers. Stivers kicked field goals of 39, 11, and 33 yards, the last being the go-ahead and winning points of the contest. Stivers also added two extra points for a total of 11 of the Broncos' 23 points.

Punter Dennis Baird highlighted the third quarter action play as he gamboled on a fourth-down punting situation and scampered 44 yards and the tying touchdown of that period.

The Broncos' first quarter rally came on a fast-track aerial from quarterback Eric Guthrie to flanker Dennis Pooley. The Mountaineers led at halftime 13-10, and led until Baird tied it up in the third stanza. The contest was tied until Stiver's field goal came in the fourth quarter, being the only tally by either club in the final period of play.

Boise's defense turned in an outstanding job as Western State managed only 68 yards rushing to the Bronco's 219 and 131 yards passing to BSC's 235. The defense held WS scoreless in the opening and closing periods.

The Broncos come home this weekend with a 7-1 record, for their second meeting against ISU in two years of their four-year competition. Game time is slated for 1:30 p.m. at Bronco Stadium.
All Basketball starters return; J.C. transfers bolster squad

The 1969-70 basketball season begins in the 23rd year for the Boise State basketball team. Coach Murray Satterfield started his formative practice sessions on Oct. 13. This year BSC will also field a full-sized basketball squad under the direction of assistant coach "Bus" Connor.

Boise will have their entire starting lineup back this season. The team will be fielded from six seniors, three juniors and two sophomores. There is the possibility that Satterfield may bring a freshman member up to the varsity squad to bring the total to twelve.

Healing the list of Bronco returnees is 6'5" Bill Otey. Otey is a senior from Washington D.C. and was named NAIA honorable mention All-American. Otey also ranked 17th in the nation among NCAA College Division schools in rebounding. Bill led BSC in most points scored, 436, best per game average, 16.1, and rebounds with 467 for a 17.3 game average.

Ron Austin, a 6'2" junior will be returning as the Bronco's second leading rebounder with 208 in 27 games for an average of 7.7. Austin was voted "Most Valuable Player" by his fellow teammates in the Bronco Association for most of last season. Ron scored a total of 311 points for BSC.

Another starter from the 1968-69 team is senior guard Wendel Hart. Hart averaged 15.6 points a game last season with just 30 short of Otey's 436. Hart was named to the first team in the NCAA District II last year and should turn in an equal performance this season.

At the other guard position last season was 6'1" Renee Ruth. Ruth averaged 12.2 points per game in the 20 contests he participated in.

Rounding out last year's starting lineup is a 6'7" senior, Keith Burke. Burke was third on the team in rebounding and scoring averages last season. Keith averaged 12.4 through the nets and pulled down 7.2 per game from the rebound.

Junior Joe Gillespie appeared in all 27 games last season as Boise's number six man. Gillespie scored 81 points and grabbed 98 rebounds.

Wyand Hart was the Bronco's leading free throw artist as he hit for 88% from the line. Wyand scored 104 points last year and picked up 58 rebounds in the 27 games he appeared in.

Sophomore Mark Littler saw limited action last year but will play considerably more in the 69-70 Bronco season, Coach Satterfield said. "We have 6'9" Don Barnes, who saw action in Boise's first ten contests last season, is expected to add great strength to the Bronco's rebounding. Barnes picked up 69 rebounds and 110 points in the ten games he played, According to Satterfield, Don will play the forward position this season to aid the squad in the rebounding department.

Rounding out candidates for the Boise squad, are a pair of 6-4" junior college transfers. Marty Moritz from Tacoma J.C. is considered to be an outstanding outside shooter and Tom Drechsl from North Idaho J.C. was a track and field star while at NJCC.

According to Satterfield, "Our team will have a much better team performance, through the large number of returning lettermen. On the other hand, Boise State will be playing considerable longer games than last year, but we have a good, winning season, and another shot at the NAIA Playoffs." The Broncos open at Pocatello against ISU on Dec. 1. Boise's home opener is with Pacific University from Seattle, on Dec. 5.

Adra County Mustang Club form Nov. 17

A door prize will be given away at part of an interesting evening dealing with the plans and purposes of the club.

There is no obligation in attending the meeting and everyone is invited in the interest of fun. This is by no means a call only to the young and single as there are activities planned to include married couples along with families.

Skiclub Meets Wednesdays

The BSC Ski Club met Wednesday, Nov. 5, to make plans for the year and to see a ski film, according to H. Allen Weston, advisor. New officers were elected Nov. 12 and duties were decided upon. Plans for the year include parties and films. Ski races with the College of Idaho who will be held. All interested skiers are urged to come to the Ski Club meetings every Wed. at 8 p.m. in the SUB, Weston said.

961 Good Reasons for Using the Oly Picnic Tap

Do you want to have fun? Do you enjoy rallies and group activities? Do you own a Mustang or even some other type of car and want to be a part of something big? This coming Monday, Nov. 17, 7:30 at Gibson-Welker Ford in Meridian there will be a membership meeting of the Ada County Mustang Club.

Did you know what a rally is, then come and all will be explained. The meeting will be kept as short as possible so all should be able to attend.

It is important for anyone who thinks that they might have even the slightest interest to attend the meeting, due to the coming rally planned for Dec. 19.