We don't think it's worth it

'In the last ten years, over 335,000 of our buddies have been killed or wounded in Vietnam. And more are being killed every day.'

Editor's note: Recently a group of Vietnam Veterans from New York organized a group called Vietnam Veterans Against the War. Their purpose is to let the people of the United States know how they feel about the war. Concerned Veterans of Vietnam and interested citizens are invited to learn more about the group by writing to 156 Fifth (5th) Ave., Room 508 N. Y., N. Y. 10010.

We are veterans of the Vietnam War. We have fought and bled from the swamps and hills of Vietnam to the plains of Cambodia. We have seen our buddies die there. And we can no longer remain silent.

We have seen the Vietnam War for ourselves. And from what we have seen, we believe that it is wrong, unjustifiable and contrary to the principle of self-determination on which our nation was founded.

We believe that the Vietnam War is a civil war — a war in which the United States has no right or obligation to intervene. We believe that the Saigon Government must stand or fall on its own. And we have seen the type of government it really is. A military dictatorship in which there are no free elections and some 40,000 people are held as political prisoners. We don't think that is the kind of government worth fighting for.

We have seen what the war is doing to Vietnam. The country is being physically destroyed by bombing, defoliation, and the killing of its civilian population. (Civilians in Vietnam are being killed and wounded at the rate of 200,000 a year, 60% of them children. And 80% of them as a result of American firepower.) And we don't think that that's worth it.

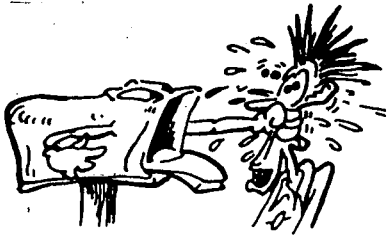

We have seen that the war is doing to our own country. We are being torn apart. Our young people are being alienated. Our most pressing domestic problems are being neglected for lack of funds while the war which has already cost us $130 billion goes on at $800 a second . . . $48,000 a minute . . . $2,880,000 an hour. Meanwhile the value of our dollar is being destroyed by inflation. And we don't think that that's worth it.

We have seen what the war is doing to our buddies and their families. Over 43,000 have already been killed and another 292,000 wounded — many of us maimed for the rest of our lives. And more are being killed and wounded every day. And we don't think that that's worth it.

We believe that the basic problems of Vietnam are not military but social, economic, and political. We believe that there is no military solution to the war. We believe that, in any case we cannot win a land war in Asia. And we believe that in this nuclear age our national security does not require us to win it.

Therefore, we believe that the best way to support our buddies in Vietnam is to ask that they be brought home, now, before anyone else dies in a war that the American people do not understand, did not vote for, and do not want. And we think that that's worth fighting for.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A letter from Lynette Brown,

Editor, The ARBITER:

Every issue has two sides. The current criticism of the ASB Social Chairman Ed Weber and his programs has prompted me to write another side of the story.

As a student who has had some contact with the ASB office, I am aware of some of the problems Weber encounters. Apparently the all-knowing student body doesn't realize that Boise State College is limited by (1) a small budget when it comes to entertainment costs, (2) inadequate facilities, and (3) being in out-of-the-way Idaho. Smith went over big; that is an accepted fact, but did anyone count the high school students who attended?

If the students who elected Weber to office will remember, he promised a "varied entertainment" social program. I feel when one elects a person to office he should continue to support him and his programs while he is in office. In that area the student body has failed.

Ed Weber is no dummy. The entertainment he brings to BSC is well studied before being booked. He books the best groups he can. He could get a famous name band and blow the whole budget but I, for one, would rather have more than one concert a year.

College is a learning and broadening process, whether students realize it or not, each group has something to offer a concert wouldn't be held Why didn't more people go see BB King? -my guess is that they're not open-minded enough to admit that it might be decent entertainment. I am sick of having my ears blasted off by rock groups and am glad to see BB King and Doc Severinson on the concert list.

In addition to concerts, Weber also directs the coffee houses, the Friday and Sunday night movies, lectures, and other special events. They don't cost anything - just an ID. Does anybody count those?

Weber is not perfect but neither are any of us. If you think you can do a better job, I'm sure Weber would gladly train and educate you so you would be able to fill the position next year. But don't get too excited because Boise State won't be able to afford all your fantastic ideas but good luck and keep your chin up. It's not easy to work when people stomp on you.

Sincerely,

Lynette Brown, Senior

P.S. Ed needs workers to help with programs. Just once, could this student body help rather than just bitch?

A letter from Wayne Mittleider,

Editor, The ARBITER:

I feel I must share with you some of the comments that have been made to me with regard to the ARBITER. Students complain to you about ASB matters, and to us about the ARBITER.

Students are commenting to an increasing degree on the negativism and extensive editorial comments that appear in the paper. Concern has been voiced to me regarding the ARBITER seemingly uninterested attitude toward that which would truly interest the majority of students. They question the funding of a newspaper that seems only to negate and criticize, rather than to serve as a campus community paper.

In line with the apparent desire for a campus community paper, I have heard several favorable comments on the Roving Reporter, Dr. Dodson's column, the Calenda', the BSC Messenger Service.

The most frequently heard complaints on this last issue concerned Mr. Ertter's article and the front page. The students who spoke to me feel that too often space is wasted on articles like Mr. Ertter's and on such "cute" artistry as that exhibited on the front page. I would like to point out that Mr. Ertter, the Arbiter's supposed specialist on ASB social functions, has come into the ASB office only once that I know of since classes began last fall.

In sharing these comments with you, I do not intend to condemn, but rather to help. The ARBITER has improved greatly this year. I would like to help you advance even further.

In closing, I would like to thank you for keeping your word by giving the ASB officers the entire front page! And I don't really mind if Spiro gains a free ride on our coat tails!!

Very truly yours,
Wayne Mittleider

A letter from Greg Feeler,

Editor, The ARBITER:

I would just like to register my sincere approval of the article in the last edition of the ARBITER, by Terry Ertter. The comments expressed have needed expression for a long long time, and Mr. Ertter did a fine job as such.

There are, and will be those who disagree, and will therefore use the honest expression of the right to editorial opinion, as a crutch to substantiate their personal objections to a vibrant and forceful expression of student feelings.

Ed Weber asked for the feelings of the students, and he got them. He has no recourse to scream foul. Perhaps if he listens to those feelings in the tone of constructive criticism as opposed to personal diatribe, something could be done to improve the social program and the students' attendance.

Peacefully,

Greg Feeler

Weber's Review of the Reviewer

I have hesitated to write a letter for some months, but after reading last week's ARBITER I deemed it necessary to do so now.

A wise man once said, "Tis better to be thought a fool and remain silent, than to open one's mouth and remove all doubt".

Respectfully,
Ed Weber
ASB Social Chairman

P.S. For details on said article, please refer to last week's ARBITER.

and so on...

Editor, The ARBITER:

Attn.: Mr. Terry Ertter,

Mr. Ertter, when you wrote about making enemies by putting down musical tastes, you were exactly right.

By your use of poor reasoning, poor researching, and poor timing, you have irked several BSC students, including myself.

Since your tastes in music are so California-Oriented and against "East Coast Talent", I'm sure the Doc Severinson Concert will be a success without your attendance.

People in Boise, Mr. Ertter, do watch Johnny Carson's Tonight Show, on which Doc Severinson is the band leader. I have not yet met anyone who does not know of or about Doc.

PLAYBOY magazine, also part of your East Coast Conspiracy", recently picked Doc as the leading trumpeter and band leader in America. Is PLAYBOY, Mr. Ertter, like the Tonight Show, not appreciated by BSC student.

May I suggest that if you are truly a reviewer of music and shows, attend the concert and THEN try to write an objective review.

Sincerely,
Pat Ebright

and so on...

A PUBLIC RETRACTION
AND APOLOGY

Naturally, I was in a great state of shock after receiving the above letters and immediately set out to find and correct my mistakes. Accordingly, I wish to apologize to our readers for two errors which I discovered.

First, and probably least important, War received only ten votes and not the eleven they were credited with. Second, concerning my statement that "most of the people around town and campus don't watch the Tonight Show" etc. The original copy read "most of the people who do not watch the Tonight Show" The error was typographical and slipped past us, causing the slight change in meaning. We all make mistakes. Sorry Johnny.

All letters submitted must be signed, but names will be withheld upon request.

The ARBITER reserves the right to edit or reject letters submitted for publication.

Senate responds to Vo-Tech request

The ASB Senate took positive action Tuesday night in response to newly appointed Vo-Tech Senator, Philip Yerby's request for help in obtaining new furniture for the Vo-Tech student's lounge. Yerby said the lounge located in the Vo-Tech administration building was badly in need of furniture. Vice-President Lee Mercy appointed Yerby to head a committee to investigate the matter.

Operation "Speak-out" was initiated by President Wayne Mittleder at the Tuesday meeting. Mittleder said all ASB officers will be available to speak to student organizations on matters of concern to BSC students.

Mittleder reported a vacancy for the position of an Arts and Letters Senator. Also, Mittleder encourages anybody interested in running for an ASB office or Senate position to speak to him for information concerning positions. Passed in action taken by the Senate was Bill No. 5, to establish a Personnel Section Committee. The Personnel Selection Committee shall interview people and make recommendations to the ASB President concerning student members for ASB committees and faculty-student committees.

In further action by the ASB senate $400 was appropriated to Theatre Arts Department for production of "Twelfth Night" and "Reader's Theater." Originally, the Drama Department requested $1,500. However, the Financial Board recommended $400 be appropriate because of an anticipated income of $1,300 by the Drama department for the two productions. Dec. Cazier, ASB Treasurer, reported that all budget requests for next year must be in his office by Jan. 29. Work on next year's budget will begin Feb. 1.

Legislative Report

From the East Wing..

Legislature should get behind Idaho's congressional delegation

"This land is your land, this land is my land, from the Redwood forests to the Gulf Stream Waters..." not quite. The Redwood forests are being logged into memory lane, and the Gulf Stream waters smell with pollution, even from far away Idaho. But, perhaps they don't smell enough! This is, if the memorial passed this week by a 48 to 20 vote in the House, asking for a Sawtooth Preservation Area is any indicator.

The Idaho Congressional delegation has had the wisdom, foresight, and conviction to propose that a sufficiently large section of the Sawtooth range, including the White Clouds, be conferred with National Park status, thereby providing for the recreational needs of Idaho for time to come, yet assuring that the White Clouds themselves will remain as intact as the palsied will of Man seems capable.

In the upshot of these two dissimilar positions, taken by servants to the same electorate, one could very well wonder what the hell gives? Well, if we remove for the present, the position of the Sierra Club, et al. (which is bent upon saving the world from ourselves) and the "developers" or "mining interests" (who seem bent upon saving us from our world) that still leaves considerable middle ground where the question is still, "What do we want to do with our environment, and how is the past way of doing it?"

As has already been noted, the House has gone down on the position that National Recreation Area status will be sufficient. In view of the results that such short-sighted action has produced in other states, and especially in view of the far better lead shown by Senators Church and Jordan it is a source of morbid amazement how the members of the House could so vote. In all regards, the needs of Idaho, in and of itself, and the nation as a whole, would be much better served if the weight of the State of Idaho was officially placed directly behind its Senators. The governor did well by himself when pledged his administration to such a course, and I suggest that the members of the House and the Senate would be well advised to do the same.

The major fault in the Memorial passed by the House, was that the White Clouds themselves were not included, not to mention the doors of reckless exploitation which would still be left open, if Congress should concur. We of Idaho, must be more far-sighted if we are to preserve the enduring beauty which still exists. Our descendants will inherit the governmental deficits of our excesses, so it can be only just to leave them as much of the beauty of Idaho as is humanly possible. So far, the House only has left much to be desired.

Rep. Ed Williams, D-Lewiston, used words worth a thousand pictures when he declared, "What would happen back in Washington, if the Senator from Massachusetts went up to the Senator from Idaho and asked why he doesn't know that the people of his own state went?" Amen.

EDITOR'S NOTE: There will be a White Clouds Symposium, Sun. the 31st., LA-106. Governor Andrus will speak, among many others. Everyone is invited.

Greg Feeler

From the West Wing.. city folks vs. the farmers-- chance for coalition?

There is a truism about Idaho politics during a legislative session. But that philosophical view is disappearing.

Republicans have been Republican to the core but Democrats haven't been sure of exactly what they were during a 60-day hassle. But now that the 41st session is underway, a unique oddity is occurring for the first time. In the Upper Chamber, a sense of comradeship is oozing forth, leading one to ask: Where have all the battles gone? They are there, but from here on out infights will take a different shade.

The GOP has a three vote edge over Demo colleagues, far from a commanding block. There is a second reason for this change in attitude among state senators. No longer does the Republican Party have a Governor or Attorney General.

This puts the "party" aspect in a totally different light for those who have controlled the state for the past 24 years.

Moderates don't feel obligated to the state GOP structure. That old conservative-moderate coalition is breaking down. Since the shakeup began, the moderates feel they can go their own way and they're doing just that, even if it means siding with the Democrats on major issues. The defeat of Don Samuelson and Robert Robson are breeding new life blood in the moderate ranks and cries of Victory of 1972 are heard throughout the moderate circles.

Dissident moderates played a key role in electing Cecil Andrus. They argued Samuelson and Robson had to go if they were to get their party back from right wing domination.

Andrus' budget message has stirred conservative solons to the extent they are talking about their own version of the state's economy. But to date the same faction hasn't come up with such a proposal and, once again, moderates are flexing their muscles and signing ground.

With only a trio of tallies separating the two parties, those moderates are the key to success for the new governor.

There are other reasons for the prospective alignments. Issues affecting rural solons such as kindergartens are not setting well with thoughts of tax increases dancing in their minds. Though many senators deny the chances of an urban-rural coalition forming, the handwriting is on the wall.

Brent Peterson

In the newly proposed Associated Student Body Constitution one clause in the Elections and Qualifications section states candidates for the offices of President and Vice President shall file on the same ticket, or file jointly, and shall also be listed together on the election ballot.

Do you think this procedure should be approved and why?

Roving Reporter

Nancy Ertter—“I feel that they should be elected separately. Otherwise you might have to elect a dud in order to get the good candidate on the same ticket.”

Tiny Reagan—“Approved. That way you would be sure of getting people who can work well together.”

Cheryl Rice—“I don't approve. Separate election allows for different ideas, prevents having an ASB government with only one point of view.”

Dr. Robert Corbin—“Disapproved. The problems dealt with by ASB officers aren't that complex. Separate election gives greater opportunity for student representation.”

Lynette Lind—“Disapproved. Having them elected separately seems more democratic.”

Wallace Lange—“I think it should be approved. The Pres. and V.P. would agree on the issues and have the same ideals.”

Mercy says
“It's time to band
together”

Student governments which are dominated by traditional leadership are frequently passive institutions capable of providing only a mediating role in campus disputes. Typically, they react to the problems discovered and publicized by others. Such a role destroys credibility and invites the inevitable charge that student government is irrelevant.

Boise State's student leadership in the past has frequently reacted to problems publicized by others. They react because they have been too busy hassling over trivia and procedures of government.

The 2M Company recognized that the ASB had to be organized well to cope with problems. The reorganization started with the Student Senate. Training periods were used to help senators communicate with each other and learn how government at BSC works.

The ASB officers believe that obstacles to good government should be removed to accomplish the work and solve the problems of ASB.

An obstacle that contributes to infighting and student irritation is money. Each student should be concerned about how their money is spent by the ASB officers and the ASB Senate. The Finance Board was formed to help the treasurer keep track of your money. The Finance Board keeps records and audits the ASB books, which are open to any student to examine. With better accounting of money, we hope to solve the petty infighting and get at solving the real problems of ASB.

The point I am trying to make is, why keep the same arguments going year after year about money, legislation and communication? The current ASB officers have spent the last semester initiating the procedures for smooth legislative process, better communication, and money control. We want the student body to stop fighting among themselves and solve the more pressing problems that irritate students.

This does not mean that we do not advocate disagreement, but welcome the ideas of vocal critics. What we do mean is for vocal critics, supporters, and the rest, to communicate and help mediate our differences to solve our pressing questions. Health services, the Bookstore, the Bronco Stadium curriculum, and several more problems should receive top priority.

It's time we, as students, band together for our common causes and stop squabbling over that which should be routine and second nature. I am for a united student body and relevant student government. How about you?

Second in a series on financial loans emphasizes filling out applications

Ed. Note: This is the second in a series of articles concerning financial aids.

Filling out forms is the most unappetizing aspect of applying for financial aid. Consequently, many students rush through their applications and fail to put down complete information. Incomplete or inadequate information may cost a student a scholarship or a loan.

The Financial Aids Department requires each applicant to fill out (or have filled out) a Family Financial Statement. These are available at the Financial Aids Room AD 113. Unmarried students who are under 21 years of age should fill the form out with their parents. An Instruction/Worksheet accompanies the form.

Application and recommendation forms are also available at AD 113. Both these forms must be filled out and returned by March 1 for fall semester applicants. Richard Reed, Director of Financial Aids, explained the procedure.

Q: What most impresses you on an application?

REED: That a student has not ignored any section that he has shown that he has considered every question.

Q: Should any student apply for more than one type of aid?

REED: Yes. Because scholarship funds were so limited this spring, some very good students went without. We advised them to take National Defense loans.

Q: How far do you check the applications?

REED: We review them after compiling the latest grade reports, then the applications are considered for the student's eligibility in all four phases: scholarships, grants, (and if the student is willing to obligate himself) loans, or employment.

Q: On line 23 of the Scholarship Application form a phrase says "resources...and expenses you will incur during the period this application applies." What does this mean from March 1 to September, starting in September or what?

REED: Is it that hard to understand? It's the student's choice actually. He may show a yearly budget. We recommend that married students give yearly budgets. But it certainly is permissible to show a budget for just the nine months.

Q: How important are the recommendations?

REED: In all three years I have seen only three recommendations that were not complimentary.

Q: Should a student enter more than one?

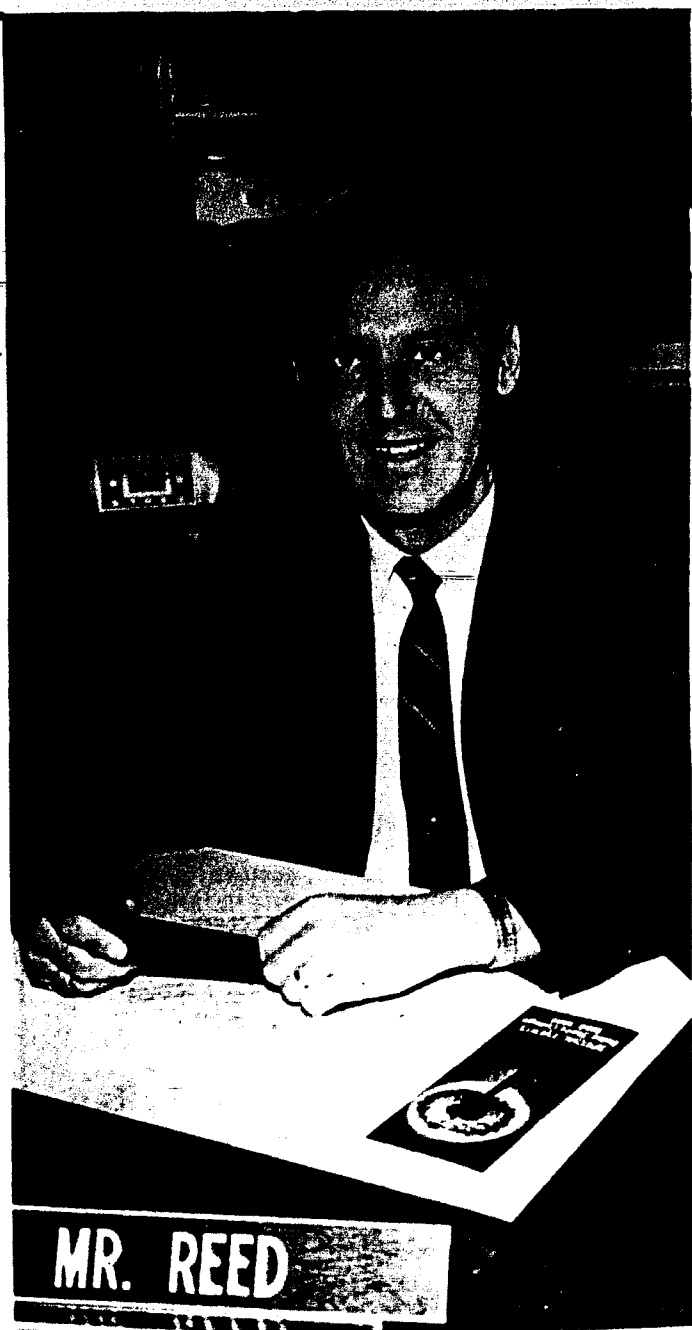

REED: Certainly a second or third recommendation would not do any harm. But it comes down to a simple matter of logistics as far as handling the volume of forms.

Q: Whom should the applicant choose to recommend him?

REED: Many students tell us that they see their advisers only at registration. We suggest that they request an evaluation from a faculty member with whom they have worked closely. The recommendation need not come from an adviser. Dorm counselors are excellent evaluators since they have worked so closely with the kids in the dorms.

Q: What mistake do applicants for scholarships most frequently make on applications?

REED: Not filing an FES. An application that comes in not substantiated by a Family Financial Statement is not given credence.

How is a student's financial need determined? Check below for details..

The applicant (or shall we say supplicant?) student often wonders how scholarships are awarded. A Letter to Parents, a pamphlet published by the College Entrance Examination Board offers some insight into how a student's "Need" is determined.

"It often takes three partners to put a student through college: the student, his parents, and the college.

"First the college works out a budget that includes not only tuition and room and board, but an allowance for books, clothing, recreation, transportation, and incidentals. Then the amount that student and parents reasonably can be expected to provide is estimated.

"The student is expected to use one-fifth of his pre-college savings during each of the four academic years, up to certain limits that depend on each college's own policies. At most colleges he is expected to help himself further through part-time employment. The amount he (or she) is expected to earn is usually modest enough so that the part-time job will not interfere with studies. For example, a typical campus job might involve 10 to 15 hours of work a week and yield $400-$800 a year. For a freshman, hours and earnings may be less at some colleges.

"Many colleges also expect pre-freshmen male students receiving aid to save an additional $400 a year from summer employment; they expect somewhat less from women. This is a modest enough expectation. One survey in 1965 found that savings from summer earnings frequently are $350-$450 for men and $250-$300 for women. In the seventies, such savings reasonably can be expected to be more.

"Parents usually are expected to provide the bulk of their support from current income. You will be expected to provide additional funds from your savings or other assets only if you have assets above certain levels.

"Federal government studies indicate that it usually costs a family about $900 to maintain a child at home for the nine-month academic year. This is approximately the amount that many two-or three-child families in the $9,000-$11,000 income bracket can provide without undue strain for a youngster who will live on campus (assuming, of course, that the family has just one child in college at a time).

"On the other hand, the colleges also realize sometimes special circumstances make it difficult for a family to provide even the normal support expected.

"For example the colleges take into account that a spell of unemployment may have cut into a family's resources, the family home may have needed expensive repairs, or the breadwinner may have unusually heavy expenses in connection with his job or may have heavy debts.

"In addition, while the income of working mothers is taken into account in estimate of parents' ability to pay, they need not feel their effort penalizes them in comparison to non-working mothers... And parents who seek extra income for college expenses can feel they have helped their children and themselves avoid larger loans or greater work load, especially in the critical freshman year. Too, by providing these additional funds, these parents may well have provided their children with greater flexibility in choosing a college. The more help a student needs, the fewer colleges there are able to help him fully. And, of course, competition for admission tends to be keenest at the colleges with the largest resources."

The Esquire Club offers a place of responsibility in student politics, academic pursuits and social activities on the Boise State College campus, according to Don Murphy of Nampa, president. He was guest speaker at the January noon luncheon meeting of the International Association of Personnel in Employment Security held earlier this week in the State Industrial Administration Building cafeteria facilities at Boise.

Murphy was accompanied by Jack D. Stewardson, Boise, Esquire Club historian and social chairman, who served as a co-panelist during a question and answer period following the formal talk. They were introduced by Dale E. Crosby, Boise, Veteran Employment Consultant in the Idaho Department of Employment office at Boise.

Murphy briefly outlined the Esquire Club history and objectives, then explained how the student veterans organization functioned at Boise State College. He said that although the club was organized by a handful of bachelors its membership has since changed to include married males and a couple of women who completed military service and are now enrolled at BSC as full time students.

Club membership rolls at one time reached 110, but now have leveled off at between 80 and 90 members, according to Murphy. He said the Esquires are directing membership recruiting efforts toward Vietnam era veterans are BSC. Applicants for Esquire Club membership must be full-time students at BSC and have the required military service qualifications.

Murphy said the Esquires function as a service organization in addition to the social aspects of its activity program. Among its outstanding projects, he described the Memorial Mall on the Boise State College campus. He said the Esquire Club began the project in 1962 and completed it by 1968, and only through community support by private financial subscription and assistance of local businessmen was the Memorial Mall project saved when development expenses went over the planned budget. On the other hand, the Esquires provide scholarships each year from funds raised through sale of programs at BSC athletic events, according to Murphy. He said soliciting donors for a special blood bank through periodic Red Cross Blood Drives is one of their major projects. The Club's biggest work project is building a float entry for BSC's Homecoming celebration, and a Christmas party highlights the Esquire Club annual social calendar, according to Murphy. Stewardson and Murphy took turns answering questions from TAPES members at the luncheon. The questioners learned from their guest Esquires that there are approximately 900 veterans attending BSC, most of them Vietnam returnees; most veterans attending BSC under GI Bill provisions are able to complete their education on the amount of financial assistance allowed; most drop out of the program due to academic failure, rather than for financial reasons. Club members maintain liaison with the Veterans Administration to keep updated on veterans benefits; Esquires are represented in both academic and vocational programs at BSC; and some Esquires have participated in the leadership of student body organizations at Boise State.

On the question of drug abuse, the Esquire Club representatives said that there are no known drug users in their organization on the BSC campus. They said the frowns on use of drugs.

The two speakers stressed that their organization encourages its membership toward academic program involvement, association support and their place of responsibility in the BSC campus community affairs.

Burl Pipkin, of Meridian, president of District Four, Idaho Chapter, IAPES, presided at the January luncheon meeting. Other guest officials included Mrs. Harold L. Byard, Idaho Chapter president; and William A. Hulet, Veterans Employment Representatives for Idaho for the U.S. Department of Labor, both of Boise.

Esquire Club offers responsibility in student politics, academic, social activities

Boise State to hear the golden trumpet of Doc SEVERINSEN

When Carl Severinsen was seven years old, he told his father he had the intention of learning to play the violin, but he wanted to learn to play a horn. And learn he did.

Try on names like Tommy Dorsey, Charlie Barnett and Benny Goodman for size. Or maybe Skitch Henderson instead?

"Little Doc" was stubborn with the "Big Doc" and he won. The musical star of the NBC Tonight Show series is now jamming people in at every concert appearance he makes and it is no wonder. The sound of Severinsen is the sound of today set in a big band style. Throw in the Brothers and Sisters and the Feb. 12 concert, set by BSC's Associated Student Body, is bound to be a show stopper for everyone.

With his credentials, tickets will be going as fast as they would for a Super Bowl football game. They may go a bit faster.

Such arrangements from talented pens from Bert Bacharach, Jimmy Webb, the Beatles and others emphasize rhythm and brass. When the Doctor blows and the group wails, anything can happen. If ever big band had a new sound, it does now with Severinsen.

In recent years, besides his exploits on the Carson nightly fling, Doc has extensive background in teaching and demonstrations at various hand clinics. With a teacher like that, who can go wrong? His flashy clothes and flashy sound go hand in hand.

Severinsen, the Now Generation Brass and the Brothers and Sisters will hold two shows, one at 7:30 and the second at 9:30. Tickets are $2 for students and may be purchased with activity cards at the Student Union Information Booth. Students may purchase two tickets with one activity card.

Severinsen initiated his plan of performance about four years ago. The success of his new style show was best evidenced by an overflow crowd of more than 45,000 at the Milwaukee Summerfest this past July. The throng of spectators for the show offered its approval with a standing ovation.

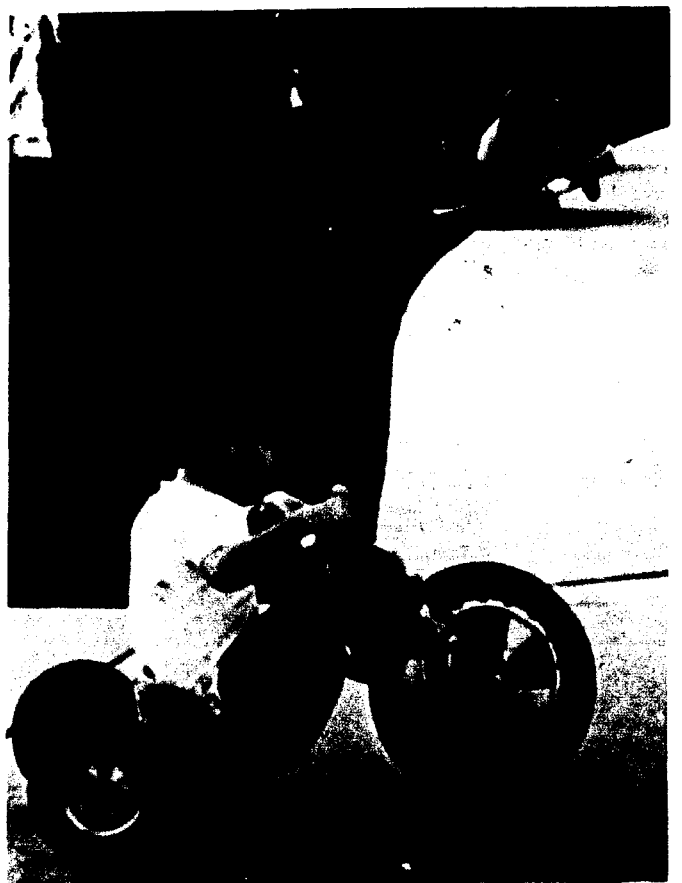

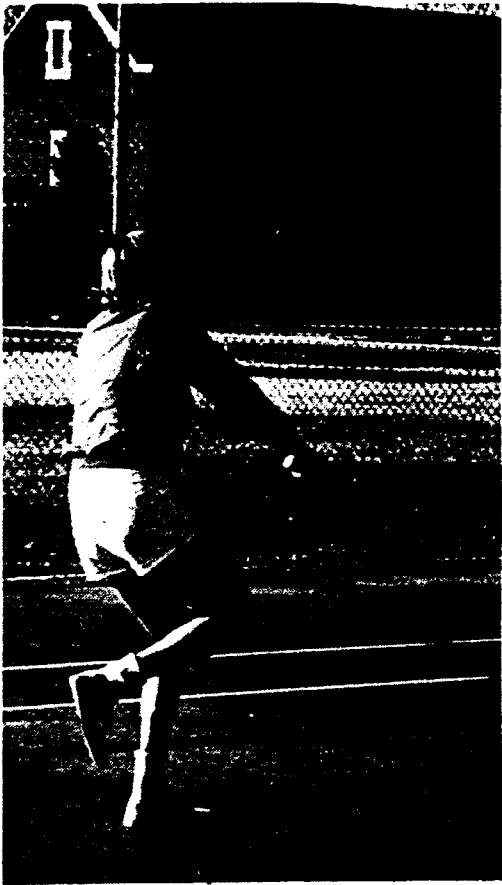

Boise State crowds may not number as many as the midwest populous, but when the Doctor blows, the enthusiasm should be just as great if not greater.

Dr. Dodson Speaks CALENDAR

Dr. Dodson

I am obsessed by the idea that my husband is going to leave me for someone else in the future. It's a frustrating situation because the fear is unsubstantiated, except maybe for a little guilt. What can I do to become more realistic about this kind of fear?

Anonymous

Dear A

I have some questions for you. For instance, what does "except for a little guilt" mean? That you question your own ability to be faithful to your husband? Also, have you discussed this fear of yours with him? If you have, how does he react to it? If you haven't, why not?

Fears such as yours may result from a shaky relationship between your parents or from feelings that you are not worthy of your husband's love. Whatever the cause, the effect is often a jealous overpossessiveness and suspicion of one's mate, which can lead to further problems.

While some jealousy and insecurity exists in most marriages, it seems that your anxieties may deserve professional attention. It may also be advisable for you to discuss this concern with your husband so that he can better understand your attitudes and behaviors.

Dr. D:

My parents are very rigid in that they think their way is the only way. What can I do to change their way of thinking?

Generation Gap

Dear GG:

You probably can do very little just like they can probably do very little to change yours. Accepting that fact, however, is a difficult task for a person on either side of the generation gap. Figure out why it's important for you to have your parents endorse your attitudes, and vice-versa, and you'll find a common ground for communication. The song "Teach Your Children" by Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young says it all pretty well in my opinion.

JOBS FOR EUROPE

Some 300 young people 18 to 26 are now working in Europe. Hundreds of jobs are still available for anytime of the year, according to Dr. F. Gordon, Director of the JOBS EUROPE program.

The aim of the program is to give young people an inexpensive and unique cultural opportunity to live in and learn about Europe.

These salaried jobs are mostly for general help with large first class hotels in Great Britain and Switzerland. Most jobs include board and room. Friends can work with, or near each other, if they apply together.

This is the 11th anniversary of the program, and to date 7,826 young people have worked in Europe.

Participants are free to make their own bargain transportation arrangements and travel where, and for as long as, they wish after completing their chosen work assignment. Most participants work from two to four months but can work longer if they wish.

London, England and the French, German and Italian speaking areas of Switzerland are the most popular places to work, concluded Gordon.

For free details send a stamped, self-addressed (business size) envelope to: JOBS EUROPE, 13355 Cantara Street, Panorama City, Calif. 91402.

Due to some major electrical transition in the Student Union, the building will be closed Friday, Jan. 29. We are very reluctant to announce this closure, but in order for construction to continue as scheduled, it is necessary.

The building will reopen Saturday, Jan. 30 and no future shutdowns are scheduled during the regular school term until spring vacation.

Contract boarding students will be served as usual on Friday, Jan. 29. Temporary auxiliary arrangements are being made for boarding student dining by Boise State College Food Service and those persons will be notified by Food Service Management.

Thank you for your cooperation

Willie Sojourner and Weber Wildcats knock BSC from shot at Big Sky No. 1

Willie Sojourner didn't block a shot last night but just by being there he scared many an attempt from the hoop.

Sojourner, recovering from a severe throat infection, played nearly a complete contest in leading his Weber Wildcat teammates to a 77-61 rampage over hometown Boise State and knocked Murray Satterfield's quintet from a shot at first place to a tie with Idaho for third in current Big Sky Standings. Both BSC and Idaho have lost two league bashes, while Weber and Idaho State each have dropped but a single outing. ISU has one more win in BSAC.

The 6-8, 200 pounder from Weber canned in 18 points and pulled down 10 rebounds.

The Broncos had little to cheer about but one was the performance of 6-6 Steve Wallace. The Ricks College transfer lead all rebounders with 11 and found the range for 20 tallies for the game's top point production. Wallace hit on 9 of 20 fielders and cashed in on two free throws for his totals. Ron Austin was held to but 11 points for the only other BSC cager to manage the double figure bracket.

In all the Wildcats had four players in double figures with Bill Orr leading the attack with 18. Brady Small and Bob Davis each had 14 tallies. Boise State's record is now 8-8 on the season and 4-2 in Big Sky battles

TURNING LEFT? Rich Rennie makes his move on a Viking defender during the Monday night rout which saw Boise State setting a 4-year mark for team scoring by tanking 118 points. ## Austin tanks 41 tallies against Portland State

Led by a 41-point performance from senior Ron Austin, BSC mangled Portland State in a revenge-gaining performance Monday night, here, 118-96.

Austin, tanked in 17-22 fielders along with 7-13 charity tosses to pace all scorers. The 6-2 forward had help from his friend with three other Bronco cagers hitting in the double figure bracket. Greg Bunn had his best offensive performance of the season pouring through 27 tallies while Ron Maxwell found the range for 17 and Steve Wallace added 12.

PSU was paced by forward Leo Franz who ripped the nets for 30 points. Franz hit on 13 of 29 field goals and 4-4 free throws for his total. The 6-7½ cager led rebounding with 15. Wallace had 12 grabs for the Broncos.

The Broncos rewrote BSC scoring records with 118 points, tops for any four-year squad handled by veteran boss Murray Satterfield. Austin's mark was his personal career high but it fell short of the school individual standard set by Gus Johnson of 47 during Boise Junior College days. Johnson is now a starter with the National Basketball Association Baltimore Bullets.

BSC returns to action Saturday night hosting Northwest Nazarene College. A preliminary contest will pit the frosh quintets of both schools. Tipoff time for the first game is 5:50 while the varsity clubs square off at 8 p.m. in the Gym.

Battle looms in Big Sky Conference for leading shooters, teams

Once upon a time there was a scoring race in the Big Sky until ISU's Willie Humes came along.

Humes went on a rampage against Northern Arizona, pouring in 51 points and jumped ahead of the pack on his way to his second straight BSAC scoring title. The Idaho State flash is now scoring at a 34.5 pace for conference action.

The battle now looms for second place in the scoring race with BSC stalwart Ron Austin just ahead of Idaho's Malcom Taylor. Austin is averaging 24.3 and Taylor 24.0. Weber's Bob Davis holds down fourth place with a 22.3 mark.

Bronco pivot man Steve Wallace, a 6-6 transfer from Ricks, is showing his poise as a rebounder. Wallace is pulling down an average of 14.5 grabs a contest to lead conference big men. Montana's ace, Ray Howard, is second with a 13.0 average.

Austin maintains his pace in free throw shooting with a .906 percentage. The 6-2 forward has found the range for 29-32 in four league games. The Broncos are leading in team rebounds, pulling down 396 on the season for a .533 percentage. Montana trails BSC in that department with a .523 mark.

In other conference statistics, released from league offices, BSC trails Weber in team offense with an 81.3 average and team defense allowing 72.3 to opponents. The Wildcats lead the pack in both categories scoring an average of 87.3 while allowing only 65.3. BSC is shooting .413 from the field.

Only one conference game is on tap for this week. That finds Weber State traveling south to Flagstaff to meet Northern Arizona Saturday night.

League teams either take the week off or face non conference encounters on the maple courts. Big Sky action returns one week from Saturday with a full slate of contests. Idaho meets Montana State at Bozeman. Idaho State travels to Flagstaff. Gonzaga is at Missoula to meet Montana. Boise State tangles with Weber State in Ogden.

One offensive four defensive, players join Bronco football

Two defensive players, a defensive end and defensive back, plus an offensive running back have joined the Boise State football team, head football coach Tony Knap announced today.

Knap said that the three former junior college stars will take part in the Bronco spring football drills which will begin Feb. 20.

Ramsey Simmons comes to Boise State from Arizona Western and will play defensive end. His hometown is McKeesport, Pa. He stands 6-4 and weighs 215 lbs.

Simmons runs 40 yards in 4.8 seconds and was a football and basketball star in high school before going to Arizona Western. Knap said that he could be a replacement for former Bronco defensive end Faddie Tillman.

Joe Larkin is the second player from Spokane Falls Community College to come to Boise State this semester. The other player is quarterback Art Berry.

Larkin, who was born in Caldwell, Idaho, was a defensive back and wide receiver in Spokane. Last year he was Berry's primary receiver. He is slated to play defense at Boise State. He stands 5-11 and weighs 195 lbs.

The third player is running back Billy Stephens from Arizona Western. He was an All-State athlete in Pittsburgh, Pa. prep ratings. He also holds a 9.7 second time in track.

Stephens stands 6-1 and weighs 200 lbs. He was a starter for the Arizona Western team last season.

The Spring football practices will be open to the public Knap added.

Boise State Sports at a Glance

Minidome has varied affects

For a visiting team, playing in the minidome is much the same as it was for old Daniel when he went into the Lion's Den. In both cases the chances are slim and the Bengal foe will never come out the better after 30 minutes on the maple courts.

There have been varied reactions as to the affect the Minidome has on opposition. The vastness of the arena leaves a group of eagers quite alone. After playing in smaller gymnasiums, the spaceless confines of the Pocatello complex can shake a team's morale.

Some complaints find the opposition's shooting ability detracted from normal visual effectiveness. With no back drop, the distance can well affect performers for the first time. This is a big advantage to Idaho State.

The Bengals have yet to loose in conference play and dropped only a tight overtime to Creighton University this season on the home Minidome courts. A Pocatello sports writer told me reactions have been varied from the fans. Some fans don't like the new facility because it takes away the closeness in ISU's old complex. But other fans enjoy the comfortable individual seating and say it is much like watching television.

Whatever it is, the Minidome is taking its toll on Big Sky opponents. If you don't believe it, ask Weber State and the BSC Broncos, just to name a pair of those quintets.

Broncos face Crusaders

Boise State College will host Northwest Nazarene Jan. 30 in a non-conference tilt.

The Broncos beat NNC Jan. 19, 70-63 behind the shooting of Ron Austin who had 37 points for the night. Ron Maxwell added 18 points as the Broncos came from behind to win.

A revenge match with Eastern Montana is scheduled for Feb. 2 at the BSC feildhouse. EM beat the Broncos 89-86 in Boise's first game of the season. Eastern Montana is in the Frontier conference and has a record of 10-8 this year.

Austin threw in 27 points in the first encounter of the two teams and Billie Barnes added 17 points. The Yellowjackets are led by 7-2 Bill Mummert and 6-5 Fred Johnson. Boise State Colts will play the freshman of NNC Jan. 30 with game time at 5:30 p.m. Varsity games start at 8:00 p.m.

Colts host NNC

Boise State's Colts will host Northwest Nazarene Saturday night in the Bronco arena, to carry out their second clash inside a month.

First of the seasonal with Northwest, on the Nampa courts January 19, witnessed the Colts as victors by a margin of 11 points.

However, NNC outshot the Colts in percentages in both the field and on the free line. Northwest hit 40 percent of their field attempts, well ahead of the 33 percent accumulated by the Colts.

Gratis throws were almost a even toss-up with NNC taking the lead 71-4 percent to 70-5.

BSC's Don Hutt maintained the high point honors in the game by dropping in 22 points. Ron Franklin and Dave Matlock were high on the Colts scoring list with 16 and 11 points respectively.

The two quintets are comparable teams with good height, speed, quickness and ballgame tactics.

According to BSC trosh basketball coach, Bus Connors, the colts are going to have to better coordinate offensive and defensive plays in order to down NNC again.

Varsity baseball tryouts

All BSC men interested in trying out for the Bronco baseball team should meet in the Viewing Room of the Varsity Center Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 p.m. Head Coach Lyle Smith said.

Intramural basketball

All people interested in playing intermural basketball should submit basketball rosters to the Intermural Office no later than Feb. 11. Intermurals will start on either Feb. 16 or Feb. 17.

Grapplers hit the mats

Boise State Grapplers will travel to LaGrande Ore this weekend to participate in a four-way meet held Friday and Saturday.

Other teams participating include Southern Oregon, Oregon Technical Institute and Eastern Oregon.

The Broncos' 5-5 in dual meet action for the year meet SOC at 7 p.m. Friday and then face OIT at 2 p.m. Saturday.
