Arbiter, April 5

Students of Boise State College
The choice is yours...

All the campaign rhetoric is winding up, the signs and posters are looking dull and dull and dilapidated, the election forum is tomorrow, and by the end of the week the course of student government may truly change.

There is a large choice of persons running for president and vice president this year, and it is difficult to call the outcome. Therefore, the ARBITER abstains from endorsing any candidates for those two offices.

But, it is politically safe and wise to call the outcome of the senatorial race. We endorse everybody. Why? Because everybody is going to win. Now, how many elections are conducted that that occurrence happens?

The most important body of elected officials on campus, and just enough persons turn out to fill each position. Too few people goes a lot of credit just for running. It doesn't appear to be a very popular job. And consider for a moment we don't have a choice.

The same thing with the treasurer's position. Looks as though Paul Fisk was the only one to realize that the position is paid. There's no choice to see who gets the biggest headache of them all—the ASB budget.

Some issues have been different from years past. Everybody is getting on the bandwagon to get the ASB incorporated. Student power must be realized, everyone says. Student government has to be responsive to the students needs. Co-op bookstores, wise use of green space on campus, selective service information center, and an educated Senate. They are all excellent ideas.

To whoever wins the biggie: Don't forget the good ideas your opponents initiated. And most of all, don't forget what you have said for the past two weeks. The students won't.

People are talking of coalition, who's going to take votes away from who. The race for president is going to be tight. Will the "boys with a better idea" make it or will a couple of independents claw their way into the job?

It's up to you. Vote March 31 and April Fool's Day. You may not have a choice for senators, but you have a choice for the top two.
Record voter turnout elects Ebright, Miller

Two days of voting in ASB elections drew approximately 1623 people to the polls as Pat Ebright, Martell Miller and Paul Fisk were elected to the top executive officer for 1971-72. Following is a breakdown of ASB vote counts:

PRESIDENT
Pat Ebright, 731; Tom Drecksel, 409; Dave Anneker, 357; Larry Homstad, 102; and write-ins, 4.

VICE-PRESIDENT
Martell Miller, 594; Christy Spratt, 462; Owen Krahn, 324; Gary Johnson, 234; and write-ins, 4.

TREASURER
Paul Fisk, 1332; and write-ins, 31.

EDUCATION SENATORS
Grant, 186; Darwin, 171 and write-ins, 25.

BUSINESS SENATORS
Requir, 465; Shanholz, 381; and Dowdke, 320.

Vo-Tech unresolved

ARTS AND LETTERS SENATORS
Fastabend, 331; Tackman, 351; Herschel, 353; Robinson, 327; Stuart, 342; and write-in candidate Dick McDowell, 10.

ASB officers said the lists made by those managing the ballot boxes of students' names voting were used merely as an internal control device, to prevent stuffing of the ballot boxes. The lists were destroyed immediately after the ballots were counted.
Ultimate enemy... pessimism

Petitions circulate for amnesty of Lt. Calley

Following the conviction and sentencing of Lieutenant William Calley, Jr., to life imprisonment at hard labor, groups all over the United States began to take action Wednesday. Boise's Citizens for the Amnesty of Lieutenant William Calley took action through petitioning with plans to send the results to President Nixon, asking complete amnesty for Lieutenant William Calley, Jr. The idea of "let's apply pressure through people" was taken action throughout the campus and community.

Approximately 20 people gathered at BSC's snack bar Wednesday evening to voice opinions and offer their services to help circulate petitions throughout the Boise area. Booths in the SUB, Business building and Liberal Arts building are places where you can pick up a petition. Petitions circulate for amnesty of Lt. Calley, Jr.

Booths in the SUB, Business building and Liberal Arts building are places where you can pick up a petition. Petitions circulate for amnesty of Lt. Calley, Jr.

We believe that Lieutenant Calley is a victim of circumstances. A man plucked from society and sent to an unpopular war in a distant land. We believe that war should be outlawed, not a needless war, a war based on lies. We believe that William Calley, Jr. was following orders, We do not believe that William Calley, Jr. is guilty. We believe that war should be outlawed, not a needless war. We believe that war should be outlawed, not a needless war.

We, the young, cannot afford pessimism and neither can the establishment. The older generation is guilty of protesting breads of long hair, student dissent or loud music. But we should also realize that we are guilty of assuring values set by our elders. We've stereotyped them. The taxes our folks paid built the roads we ride on. They built this school and we demand freedom from them.

And our fathers were drafted, too, and their lives upset by fighting a war we didn't want. And we were afraid of the future in terms of its promise, not its pitfalls. Let's look at some of the positive sides of our history and future. America recently sent three men to the moon. They bore no arms or sought no conquest. They began the entire world to share their achievement. What about our rebuilding of Europe through the Marshall Plan after World War II? Americans of every color stacked their arms and sent them to Europe to share their hard work, their trust, their suffering.

Optimism has gained us everything we have today. Let's talk about the future in terms of its promise, not it's pitfalls. Let's insist on proof for every dark prediction, every black prophecy. Americans historically, has shocked the shrouds of depression, war, moral crisis, defeat and disappointment since it was first born.

Sell optimism, it's contagious.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor, the ARBITER:

As a BSC student and an employee of the grounds crew, I have become aware of the litter problem on campus. Mr. Mengel is correct in stating that litter has reduced. If only by virtue that the grounds crew works harder to tackle the problem. The main campus area is usually quite clean and the majority of the students should be complimented. There are two areas of concern that should be mentioned. One is the Chaffee Hall area and the other is the new parking lots.

As for Chaffee Hall, the dorm residents never cease to amaze me at the quantity of trash rejected from the windows. On the previous Saturday after a car wash the grounds crew collected about thirty pounds of trash on that area. This included about three cases of empty beer cans and bottles. I guess the results are as much of a drunken stupor to find a litter barrel in and around Chaffee Hall (there are four outside).

Secondly, the problem of litter in the parking lots can be remedied with the placing of litter barrels in strategic locations, and a litter policy by each student. Don't throw your trash out of your car window for a barrel. With spring here, I hope the student at BSC can enjoy a little green grass without it being littered with the trash.

Kenneth S. Stewart

P.S. Congratulations to the removal of posters from the exterior of the buildings. The next step is to eliminate them completely.

Arbiter Editorial...

Campaign '71 is dead as Pat Ehrlich and Martell Miller accept the two to two write seats. The terms of the political battle can be seen still, however, all over campus in the forms of hand-outs, signs, etc. Boise State College students saw perhaps the best representation of the cross sections of BSC students through their presidential candidates. This Richard was a battle of conscience. What happened to the Ehrlich-Kahn team? The students spoke earlier this year when the new ASB constitution was being proposed. Kahn either forgot the joint ticket clause was removed from the constitution when students threatened to defeat the entire slate. It was a battle of conscience on the part of a strong contender for the presidential race. Students stuck to their views, no joint tickets.

Dave Amacker in 357 votes proved there was a feeling for change on the BSC campus and frustration with what's happening in the past. His whole platform was based on this. Students who had never voted before saw hope in Dave Amacker, a hope that their ideas would be voiced in student government next year. Amacker came on stronger than many people contended he would. This should serve as an eye opener for all of BSC people. All is not well and content with past performances.

Christy Spratt had an excellent showing, being the second top candidate for the vice-presidential race gathering 462 votes, second to Miller with 594 votes.

Several issues were brought to the surface as the candidates spoke to group after group, this side in this area. There seemed to be a big issue this year. Tom Drechsel, candidate for ASB president, who preached incorporation and anti-ASB administration didn't come out on top for all his efforts.

Hopefully, all those candidates and their ideas will not be lost. All of us can hope for is that Pat Ehrlich and Martell Miller remember 1,896 votes were cast for their opponents. Their opponent's ideas must be put to work for BSC students next year.

These candidates should be placed on committees, administrative positions as assistants or advisers to the president. Ehrlich needs all of them to enable him to cover the various cross sections on the BSC campus as they were covered in the past.

Congrats to those candidates who won!
Could incorporation prevent campus unrest at Boise State?

Is there need to worry?

The campus is bracing for an angry crowd of students, matching on the administration building. There is blood on the rear view of the mob and it means to have change one way or another.

Falubs quicken as the group scorch and charge.

"It's the guard. Someone's irritated."

"My God, the old man really did it now."

William Henry, the college president tells the mob to disperse or face action from the state's public authorities. The president reads aloud the list of demands, said to include a total shutdown, a total demolition, and the arrest of all administration officers.

"But more important than academic rules are the demands of student forces for student representation. The president has never been absent, and I am looking for the battle of student power."

Without money, the administration cannot govern. The government, there is no foundation for existence. Amos Adams, in his 30 years on campus, still student leaders are biding with legal representatives in preparation for the trial that battle will be. The student body has already won the fight, and will go on as long as the battle is still going on. They must face the facts that the administration is not going to quit. Are you ready for the battle?"

Boise Recycling Center

important in reducing waste of used materials

Boise's Recycling Center was organized last fall under Karen Farrell. Boise High Janture. The center is a clearing house for the sale of aluminum, paper, and old glass bottles, all of these are kept by various industries, thus reducing some of the waste materials. Costs of 30-20 tons of glass is being stored by the recycling center. The center is involved in the glass recycling of California for representing, not funds are not available. Shipping costs are approximately high for both glass and paper. For aluminum, the cost is quite reasonable.

The center has been open Saturdays for collections and four to ten hours a week have done more than 2000 pounds of aluminum. Collecting aluminum is presently being done by Idaho Barber and Beauty Supply, Idaho Heliocopter, Inc., Boise Bar and Beauty Supply. Each location has a collection box.

A collection box has recently been placed at the Idaho state university. The students are very interested in the possibility of making "gla$hut" for roads, but it has been dropped.

The center has been open for four 10pm to 2am, Friday and Saturday, 6pm to 8pm, Sunday and Monday, 10am to 8pm. Students are urged to return aluminum to the center, but they are also encouraged to collect aluminum in their dormitories and return it to the center.

Dr. William Hendry, Dean of Student Personnel Services, has stated that the center is an important part of the campus community. It is a reminder that we are all part of the solution to the problem of waste. The recycling center is a place where we can all come together and make a difference.
If it hadn't been for the water, we'd have been just another pretty face.

We found this old tray in the attic the other day. It's one of those things that make you wonder how you ever managed to get where you are. We have to give full credit to our water: the naturally-perfect brewing water of Tumwater, Washington. We certainly didn't get where we are because of our hard-hitting advertising trays.

Stop in and help us celebrate 75 Years in the Same Location. Olympia Brewing Company, Tumwater, Wash. 8 to 10 every day. Oly.
Wally Benton returns to St. Alphonsus with left leg separation

It could have been a Butte Skydive Center meeting at St. Alphonsus Hospital Room 360... Gary Gray, Randy Yost and Tom Sullivan were there when they were visiting Wally Benton, the former sky diver who was injured last Sept. 11 in a parachute fall as he came to Earth. Today, the new Bronco Stadium, had been almost a hospital for the bone separation of his left leg, and a three-week treatment at the Elk's Rehabilitation Center.

Benton left the center for a weekend, and while he was gone some things took place. "The whole crux of the problem was that I was in a big hurry to get up on my feet. My leg had started to separate at one time," he said.

"What hurt me was that I had to get up to use the bathroom. I couldn't use the new Elk's Rehabilitation Center because of the problem happen. "The whole aux happened. "It feels as if someone is pinched through the arm, and they put 15 pounds of weights on it and hung it in the air. There is pain there, but now pain is coming out of it," Dr. Taylor says.

"I think the threapast at the center was disappointed that I had to go to the hospital because everyone thought I was coming along pretty well," he says.

Dr. Taylor is also disappointed that the break occurred, because he says, he went to a great deal of work to get him as far as he was. But he is encouraged with prospects for a recovery.

Benton is arguing with those doctors, their muscle was a muscle rush, and was disfigured to the crumbling of the break itself. The leg was seared a few very different things. He knows how much the charts and maps mean to me. But he can't make a compromise on my well being.

Northwest Jump Championships

Benton is thinking and dreaming skydive as he looks to the Northwest Collegiate Parachute Jumping Championships April 10-11 at Thunderidge Raceway.

The competition is very important to him, not only because it is being conducted in Idaho, but because, "It is more important for me to advance collegiate parachuting than I have ever had in my life. The problem is, we are not being able to compete against people."

Dr. Taylor refers to returning Tom Sullivan and himself, Sullivan now undergoing treatment at the Veteran's Hospital for a skydiving fall which fractured his leg and hip. But he walked from the VA to St. Alphonsus Hospital that day in a body cast.

Sullivan, who now sports long black hair and a beard, discussed the accident which occurred a few months ago. "I jumped and ran into the wind and broke my leg hip. My doctor says I will be out of the cast in two weeks. I hope to be jumping by the time the Northwest Collegiate Championships arrive, May 8-9."

Sullivan had taken over the club's presidential duties following Benton's accident, then relinquished them to fellow diver Larry Hennelly, who is still one place.

Exhilaration on Sidelines

Benton, who is handling correspondence for the jumpers this week, is enthusiastic the event is taking place at Thunderidge. He says Bobe was chosen because of its central location in the Northwest and the excellent facilities available. Thunderidge's dog runs will be used for runways and the building will house the chute parking.

The meet will include teams from northwest, western and mountain conferences, taking in Washington, Oregon, Montana, Colorado, Utah, Idaho and the Northwest. The Air Force Academy is going to be represented, and Iowa State University has asked about information concerning the meet. Benton has met several times about the Air Force Academy, which participated at a meet with the BSC team at Deland.

All that remains is a $7,217.53 bill, with $800 of that to be paid by the funds in the Elk's account, started by the one jump.

Some $2,000 has been donated by students at Butte State from September to December. Another fund drive will be kicked off this week, to help pick up $6,431.72 in remaining bills. The $2,000 went to defray some of Benton's personal expenses.

Financial Situation

Benton's hospital costs show a bill totaling $15,891.58 had been incurred up to March 25, and $9,700.96 had been paid by Blue Cross and the Veterans Administration.

All that remains is a $7,217.53 bill, with $800 of that to be paid by the funds in the Elk's account, started by the one jump.

Benton says: "Students gave us a grand agreement they will pay the rest of the bills. I will pick up any of Benton's personal expenses.

Philosophically Speaking

Benton looks at his situation philosophically and laughs when he says, "It goes back to an old saying we had in Vietnam, 'Yea I go back to the way we live and I'm back in the shadow of pain, fear and suffering and everything else that goes with evil...for I am the meanest blank, blank, blank... in the Vietnam War.'

He says of this latest bout, "The pain is not for a climber and not for all for a jumper. I will fight it one way or another. As Blood, Sweat and Tears say 'I know there ain't no heaven...and I pray there ain't no hell.'"
Princess and the Pea

readied for BSC opera April 16-17

The story takes place in a castle in some unknown country. The entire Royal family and all their advisors are in a turmoil because the prince has no interest in any women or marriage. It seemed that there was no woman available that had the power to catch his heart. The Queen, the King, and their Chancellor and Minister got into an argument over the matter late one evening when a beautiful young lady dressed as a foreign princess comes to the castle. When she is sighted by the prince he falls completely in love with her. No one is really sure if the Princess is of noble birth so they devise a plan to prove her identity. People of noble birth have very fine feelings and when asked a question do not plan the way to place a small green pea in the Prince's bed and see if she could feel it. It was done during the night the little Princess tossed and turned and found herself very uncomfortable. She became a lady and made such a fuss that the entire castle was awakened and everyone came to her, chamber to see what was wrong.

The plan of the pea was revealed and the Princess was declared to be of noble birth. The Prince married the Princess and they lived happily ever after.

Boise State College's music department is sponsoring the opera, "Princess and the Pea", under the direction of Georgia Standing, Assistant professor of music, April 16-17. Miss Standing received her first concentrated musical training at Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. After a year's study, Mme Charles Cahier took her to Europe as her protege for two years, during which time she studied in France, Germany, Denmark, Sweden and Norway. After returning to New York, she studied with Lotte Liebich and quenna Mario.

She has been heard frequently with the Philadelphia Opera Co., Cosmopolitan Opera Co., and many others. She has also appeared as soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and many others.

After obtaining her Master's Degree, Miss Standing taught as Assistant Professor of Voice at Manfield State Teachers College during 1956-57. She received her B.A. and Masters from the University of Utah and has been a member of the Boise State College musical faculty for the past eight years.

The Big Sky moves its headquarters to Boise and takes on a new Commissioner along the Big Sky by Peters.)

The year 1970 was a year of great importance to Boise State College. It is the year that the Boise State Broncos entered the Big Sky Conference, and did so in a rather impressive manner. Plagued with injuries throughout the season, the Broncos football team split two and two in Conference-designed games. Winning only one over Idaho State, Squeezing past Montana State, and winning their traditional loss to Weber State, and being edged by Long Beach State, the designated "Big Sky foe."

It was an amazing season, full of frustrations, but one that was also very gratifying to Coach Tony Killingsworth. He came back from a paralyzing illness to guide the development of the Broncos, only to watch them handicapped weekly by injuries to key players. But, when the last buzzer sounded over the new Boise State astroturf, the Broncos were sitting on top of a creditable 8-5 record, which "ain't that bad in a building year."

"Basketballs were bouncing, even before that final football game, and coach Murray Satterfield knew he was in trouble. Virtually his entire squad had graduated that spring, and Murray had commented: "We're going to be lucky to score any points...let alone win ball games!" It looked as if Coach Satterfield's predictions might hold true, as the Broncos managed the first four games of the year, and things looked mighty bleak. However, an impressive game against the tough Washington State Cougars, even thought was a sparkler the fans and the team, and the Broncos entered Big Sky competition walking five feet off the ground.

Coach Satterfield explained the wins over teams like Idaho State, Idaho, Gonzaga, Northern Arizona, Montana and Portland State. He said, "They just took us too lightly. Our opponents expected the Broncos to be a pushover, and we knocked 'em out." It's all history from there. When the same teams met again, the opponents were ready. They had learned an important lesson..."Don't take the Broncos lightly."

To wind up fifth out of an eight team conference is not to be sneezed at. The Broncos scored hell out of the big guns of the conference. In fact, they led the league through the first third of the season, and made believers out of quite a few critics.

What lies in store for the Orange and Blue? Possibly the greatest future that could be imagined. Coach Satterfield will be returning with a strong nucleus of veterans. He has indicated that he is going after "a big man," someone who will bolster the Broncos backcourt strength. There is no question that the shooting ability is there. Maxwell, Barnes, Bunn, and a real potential group of stars from the freshman squad...Cookrell and Hunt, to name a pair. Prospects for the 1971 football season are equally as impressive. It could be another 11-0 undefeated season for Knop's charges.

But most important of all, Boise State College has become a first, member of a great conference. The Big Sky Conference will soon be reorganizing its central offices, under a new Commissioner and in a new location. John Roming, Athletic Director at the University of South Dakota, will take over from Commissioner Jack Friel. The offices are to be located in Boise. The first year for the Broncos, and hopefully a year that will see, in addition to a change in the Big Sky office location, also a change in the location of a few Conference championship.
Students waive certain rights for athletics says BSC aide

(Ed. Note: This is another in a series dealing with various problems in high school, college, and athletic departments. This week, ARBITER editor Brent Peterson talked with Ron Stephenson, assistant athletic director at the individual and the team). A: Since you gained your start in the professions as a coach, what is your reaction to the individual's role with the team?

Stephenson: To me, a team is composed of nothing but a group of individuals, under the leadership or guidance of the coach. As a member of a team, the individual does stand certain rights or privileges he places certain pressures on himself as a member of the team. As a member of a team, the person forces himself to give up certain things that he normally would not give up if he were not a member of a team. For example, an athlete, must from the standpoint of time involved, decide whether he wants to devote time on his hands as does a non-athlete student.

A: You're no longer in the coaching ranks but rather a part of an administrative function with the athletic department here. From the view of an administrator, what is the direction of the athletic program here at BSC? And, along with that, where does the individual fit into that plan?

Stephenson: We are a service function of the college. We're here only at the wishes and the discretion of the Board of Trustees, to service the students and the alumni of Boise State College.

As a service department, we're here to provide the opportunity for students to participate in the various sports we offer here. It's my job to make necessary arrangements for various events. We're not only providing service to the coaches involved but, I think even more directly, to the athletes themselves.

A: What is your attitude regarding the individual versus the team in terms of the "public image of your program." Does the team or the individual come first or is this image apex gain top priority?

Stephenson: I think when the public books an athletic team from Boise State College, it doesn't look at the team as a group of individuals. The public thinks in terms of the basketball team or the football team.

I don't think at an Eric Casshine as having a good year, it looks at the Boise football team as having a good year. That's the direction of the athletic program here at BSC. And along with that, where does the individual fit into that plan?

Athletes are athletes no matter what color they are. It turns me on when I hear a coach referring to athletes as a member of a group. A coach ought to build character and win. Primarily, his job is to win and winning builds character. I think the coach said, "Winning isn't everything." That's the way I feel about it.

A: There is an increasing trend among minority athletics and advisors to their staffs to help deal with these kinds of problems. How do you as an individual coach view this kind of trend?

Stephenson: The efforts that have been made in the field of athletics as far as hiring minority groups as coaches is good. There have been many whose skin happened to be black or red or brown who were completely qualified for coaching and other administrative duties. There is no doubt that the reasons these people were being fired is because of pressure brought on by the community. These people deserve the opportunity. If a guy has the ambition to be a coach, an athletic director or sports information director, he should be given the opportunity if he has the ability. For years they were not given the opportunity to do so.

The black athlete, in some cases, did revolve. The things that did happen at San Jose State, the University of Idaho and elsewhere caused a lot of coaches and administrators to sit up and take a long look at themselves, as to just what was their purpose. The area of athletics has taken the lead in offering people the chance to move ahead.

It used to be that when a black athlete was through playing there wasn't anything left for him in the area of administration. This, to me, has ended. If a guy has the ability to get the job done, the color of his skin should not be questioned at all. Maybe I'm too idealistic, but I think things are changing and people are becoming more aware that the color of a person's skin doesn't make any difference. It's what a guy has inside of him. For years we have heard complaints there were no black swimmers. Here, now, there weren't any black swimmers because they couldn't get into the swimming pools.

This system is breaking down and we're seeing good black swimmers. It's not our country is coming around to the point that it is seeing race is not the important issue.
