Students can drink on campus, but can't sell, says Park

If there are any hopes of students being able to purchase alcoholic beverages on the Boise State College campus, the chances appear to be very slim at this point.

Student Body Vice President Marty Miller said this week ASB officers had been looking into the possibility of dispensing beer in the College Union Building, but they ran up against a wall in the form of the Idaho Code.

Miller said, "We thought about it until we ran up against the state law. To get beer in the Lookout Lounge in the Union building would take repealing the state law and putting in a new one."

He added, "We don't have the manpower this year, and I don't think we could get anyone to introduce a bill in the legislature."

Attorney General W. Anthony Park, who commented on the question during an appearance as a guest lecturer at BSC last week, said the law is simply that no one can dispense alcoholic beverages on a retail basis within so many feet of a state or public building.

Park noted, however, that the regulations against the consumption of beer are individually adopted by the various institutions of higher learning in the state of Idaho.

Asked if he thought a bill could get introduced and passed in the legislature to repeal the current statute against selling beer on state property, which includes colleges and universities in Idaho, Park said, "No, I don't think so."

Building council approves housing plans

The Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council approved plans for two married student housing developments for Boise State College Tuesday.

After minor details in the plans are worked out and approved by the council, said Roger Green, vice-president for financial affairs, a call for bids will be advertised.

The two developments will cost approximately $1.5 million and will be financed with revenue bonds.

The housing will be built in two units. One, a 54-unit development, will be located on Boise Avenue and Beacon Street. The other, a 36-unit development, will be built on the corner of Boise Avenue and Protest Avenue. Both will feature off-street parking and playgrounds.

Green also described the proposed new Science-Education Building. The building, which will stand next to the Business Building, can be built in two phases, Green said. The first phase, he said, would be three stories tall and would cost $2.8 million. It would house science lecture halls, classrooms and laboratories.

ASB Plans Contraceptive Counseling

The Associated Student Body offices may house another counseling service—contraceptive and birth control counseling. According to Pat Ebright, ASB president, a program is, tentatively, being set up by the Boise State College Social Workers organization.

The program, he said, will consist of dispensing information through packets during registration and through films and lectures. A birth control counselor may also be available in the ASB offices, he said.

No definite plans have been set, Ebright said.

Student plans to run against Bright

"I was in Washington in April 1964 and saw that build up and explode," says Travis Opdyke, BSC student. "I see the same thing building up in Boise. That's a claim Sheriff Paul Bright can't make. I've been there—he hasn't," Travis Opdyke, 28, is planning to run for Ada County Sheriff in 1972.

Opdyke, a literature major, has lived in Idaho for seven years. An ex-Marine, he has been attached to military brigades and the military police. "I've been on both sides of the law," said Opdyke. "I've been busted and I know what it's like."

Though his campaign is just starting, Opdyke says he has received some good feedback from young people.

Travis Opdyke is basing his campaign on Paul Bright's lack of law enforcement experience and expertise. "Paul Bright's law is the old line police officer type administered as it was done 20 years ago, and that just won't work today," he says.

"The man is a politician, not in the least concerned with law enforcement," says Opdyke. Opdyke calls Bright a "rabblouser who plays on people's fears," and complains about his unwillingness to debate.

"Bright made a statement at the BSC symposium on law enforcement last October that he has been in law enforcement for 30 years," Opdyke says. "But between novelty agencies, p.r. work and electioneering, I doubt that he has had even 20 years." He continues, "He proved he can't handle the problem. He proved it at the Rodeway; he proved it at the prison."

In a more constructive vein, Opdyke says he would like to see all police officers receive training in basic theory of law, basic theory of police, and weapons safety. "Police must protect the rights of the people who they arrest," he says. "And not be self-serving individuals enforcing the law by their likes and dislikes." Opdyke added that the police must enforce all laws, but should work to change laws that are bad.

The police, Opdyke says, should emphasize drug education and community relations. Police should deal more with prevention than enforcement, he added.

Green bill offers national system of student grants

Major higher education legislation may be passed by this Congress if the Senate and the House can resolve their differences. The Senate passed in July a far-reaching bill sponsored by Senator Pell, which has two highly significant features. First, it sets up a national system of grants to students, based on their families' ability to contribute, that would go a long way toward ensuring that no qualified student was barred from pursuing his education beyond high school (ina college, university or vocational school) by lack of family resources. Second, it would give a "cost of instruction" allowance to institutions attended by these federally aided students to help defray those costs of their education not covered by tuition. If the Pell bill were to become law it would be a big step toward equality of opportunity in higher education.

Over on the House side, a similar approach was embodied in legislation supported by the Republican administration and sponsored by Representative Quie. It was rejected, however, by the Democratic chairman of the higher education subcommittee, Representative Green who already had a bill of her own. The Green bill also provides aid to students and colleges, but differs in two major ways. (1) Instead of a national system of grants to students based on their income, the Green bill would continue the present Educational Opportunity Grant Program under which money is allocated to the state and to the colleges who, in turn, give it to students who meet their tests of need. The present program results in an erratic distribution of aid equally needy students are treated differently depending on where they live and where they hap to apply—and many poor students are turned away while those with more resources get help. (2) In addition to some "cost of instruction" allowances following federally aided students, the Green bill would give federal funds to institutions for every student enrolled. The net effect would be to give a higher proportion of the total institutional aid to institutions with wealthier student bodies and less to those that serve low income students. Colleges that serve the poor, especially black colleges and public institutions in cities, would fare less well under the Green bill than under the Quie version.

The Green bill was reported out of the House Education and Labor Committee after a bitter and suprisingly partisan fight in which the Democrats voted almost as a block in a curious switch of roles, some of the strongest friends of the poor on the committee found themselves rejecting the ideas of giving priority to the neediest and supporting the more "middle-class" Green bill.

If the Democrats persist in this partisanship as the measure moves to the floor the Green Bill will pass without amendment just because there are more Democrats. We hope, however, that they will look again and would deny help to those who need it most while extending aid to those who need it most while extending aid to those who need it less. Floor amendments could bring the bill closer to the Senate version. If the House Democrats are reluctant to admit that Republicans can ever be right they need only remind themselves that Senator Pell is a Democrat and that his bill passed the Senate with strong Democratic support.

Turn off the noise

The College Union Building has two lounges, one downstairs in the Boiesan and one upstairs in the Ada Room.

The downstairs lounge is dark, intimate and has very little reading material. While the one upstairs is well-lighted and is filled with reading material. Both have piped-in material.

This would be find if everyone like to visit and read to the tune of piped-in music. But not everyone does. Where does the student go who likes to read or talk with friends with twithout the interruption of piped-in music and the constant interruption of the girls in the information booth calling people to the phone?

It would make a great deal of sense to leave the music out of the Ada Room so that people could read and talk there in peace. The people who want to listen to music could still do it downstairs. This would be fair to all.

The usual reason given for not turning off the music is that the pa system is one which will not allow the turning off in individual off in individual speakers. But it would be easy to just disconnect the speakers in the Ada Room altogether.

As long as we have two lounges, why can't we balance them to satisfy more people?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Arb called poor

Dearest Arbiter:

In regard to your last issue, I thought it was a very poor example of journalism. From crooked columns to fields of disorganization, your paper didn't exemplify my idea of an efficient student oriented tabloid.

Use the facts presented better, take some loving care, and put it to use in making this paper as good as the college it represents.

Black and white scandal sheet to state with reason never to repeat.

You say you are the students voice, but in this matter is there any choice?

Grow up young paper., grow with your school. let us guide you, the students, your tool.

Ecology begins at home

Editor, the Arbiter

We are informed by a variety of sources that the present college population is the most sensitive, most aware, most involved and most ecologically oriented of any generation yet produced. It is well said that charity begins at home. Before you extend your efforts to save mankind and his world why not save the vegetation of your own campus.

Surely some members of the student body have observed their associates blissfully tromping over lawns and shrubbery enroute to or from buildings and destroying what a crew of devoted gardeners labored to plant and keep alive for you during the blazing heat of July and August at a cost of many thousands of dollars.

If this thoughtless disregard for campus beauty is not halted, Boise State College will soon resemble the site of a departed carnival where the location of each concession is marked by a path of dead and dying grass and the only really green spot is where the merry-go-round stood. Are the few steps saved by ignoring the sidewalks really worth the destruction being wrought?

Very truly yours, Harry K. Fritchman II, Chairman
Department of Biology

Deep Purple Cancels, Sha Na Na Still On

All Idaho Week this year, scheduled for Nov. 13-20, will be minus one of its star attractions, the famous Deep Purple rock group from England.

The group was to appear in concert on the Boise State campus Thursday, Nov. 18, but the agency handling their tour had to cancel. The reason? One member came down with yellow jaundice, a liver ailment.

"Deep Purple" cancelled following a few engagements on their most recent tour of the United States. Boise State was just one of the dates among several to be affected by the development.

Pop Concerts Committee Chairman Jeff Glanzman said "I was disappointed for we had nearly everything worked out, including a good advertising program to be started after Gordon Lightfoot. We were lucky they cancelled early."

No formal public release was made that Deep Purple was or was not coming for All Idaho Week, and as Glanzman put it, "It is all done through the grapevine. But we had the gymnasium reserved, and all production was nearly completed. We were ready for it, but we had to cancel everything."

Gary Kleemann, College Union Activities Director, added,

"When the agency, American Talent Production in New York, called up and cancelled the performance, they offered us a first pick the next time Deep Purple is back in the country."

Did the Pop Concerts Committee consider bringing in another group to take the place of Deep Purple? Kleemann said, "It's always the type of thing like taking second best. The committee considered it and said they would just as soon forget about another group."

But All Idaho Week will not be without concert entertainment altogether. For Friday, Nov. 19, the rock'n'roll-bring-it-back Sha Na Na will be appearing in the gymnasium. Deep Purple was to precede them the night before.

Kleemann said, "If we had not had Sha Na Na the next day, we would have looked for something else. But since we had them, it was okay."

The band is made up of 12 guys who got together two years ago to "preserve, protect, defend and promote Good Old Rock and Roll, specifically the rock and roll of the 1950's," as this month's Union Report notes.

One member of the group comes from Idaho, while others are from states including Massachusetts, Missouri, New York and Virginia.

There must be something to a band which received 10 standing ovations during a 30-minute performance at Fillmore back in the not-to-distant good old days.

What's Coming Up?

Glanzman noted no bands have been scheduled as yet for next semester, but several will be considered following study of a poll recently taken through the Arbiter.

That poll was to see which groups were preferred by students participating in the balloting. The main drawers,

Glanzman said, so far included Jethro Tull, "Ten Years After," "Guess Who," "Beautiful Day," John Sebastian, Michaels, "Canned Heat," Elton John, "Rare Earth," Ike and Tina Turner, "Steve Miller Band," "Black Sabbath," Leon Russell, "Savoy Brown" and "Black Oak Arkansas."

He added, "We are hoping this will be a good sampling, as there will probably be two or three groups from this list here next semester."

Another bright possibility for Boise State could be a touring company appearance of the Broadway spectacular, "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Glanzman noted, "We have had three major agencies contact us to offer "Superstar." To me, that is a very good indication they would like to put the show on this campus."

He added the production would cost Boise State $12,500 a major expenditure for most schools.

"We may be able to get them. If we get the ok from the Pop Concerts Committee and the College Union Program Board early enough, we can get the show through agencies offering it."

Gebler speaks on parks

Charles J. Gebler, Public Programs Officer for the National Park Service, will be a guest in the fall semester seminar series, "Man and His Environment," taught by Dr. Donald J. Obee, chairman of the Division of Science and Health, Boise State College. Gebler will speak at 7 p.m. in the Science Building Auditorium November 15.

Gebler's topic is "Scenic and Aesthetic Resources." This presentation will include a movie entitled "For All to Enjoy," plus a series of color slides showing scenes in western national parks and mines. The slide series has a specially designed sound track of folk music to enhance the presentation.

The film "For All to Enjoy" has been acclaimed as one of the more out-spoken films produced by the U. S. Government. It speaks of parks and their role in the total environment. It also poses the question whether or not national parks are for everyone.

Dr. Obee announced that visitors from the community are welcome to attend this lecture. Gebler will also speak to two classes.

"The basic question that will be posed," said Dr. Obee, "will be 'are our national parks really necessary?'"

Gebler holds a B. S. degree in wildlife management from the University of Michigan and an M. S. degree in conservation from the University of Michigan. He has completed advanced studies in communications and management. Previously he was assistant chief naturalist for the Rocky Mountain National Park, a park naturalist with the Capital Parks in Washington, D. C., chief park naturalist in Mount Rainier National Park and a special assistant to the regional director for Environmental Awareness and Regional Naturalist in San Francisco.

Peace Corps - VISTA recruits at BSC

Peace Corps and Vista (Volunteers In Service To America) will be on campus the week of Nov. 15-19 seeking prospective applicants for both volunteer organizations which have now merged under the ACTION agency banner.

During their stay on campus, the team will be located in Room 124 of the Placement Office in the Administration building. Members of the team include Ray Hargrove, returned Peace Corps volunteer from Ecuador, and Bishnu Chitrakar, a native of Nepal who has been active in Peace Corps work for several years as an instructor and as a field representative in the Northwest.

According to Hargrove, the team is especially interested in meeting seniors in the fields of nursing, vocational technology and business.

"However, we are always eager to talk to those in education as well as students with backgrounds or experience in all types of farming, dairying, ranching and skilled trades work such as welding, construction and mechanics," Hargrove said. "In addition, we are seeking those students unable to commit themselves to a two-year overseas stint for volunteer work with Vista here at home."

Hargrove stated that volunteers with both agencies receive ample financial rewards, vacations, benefits and language training if required.

The team can be contacted by phone at 385-1555 or at the Boisean Hyatt House, 343-3645, ext. 240.

"I Am Not That Kind Of Girl"

Nathaniel N. Wagner, Ph.D.
University of Washington

A group of eight pregnant girls all under the age of 18 sat in a circle around a table. This group session was a regular part of the education program in conjunction with a local voluntary social agency. There were two group leaders, a psychologist and a social worker.

During the many sessions of the group (they met once a week for an hour and a half) a variety of topics were discussed. Whether to relinquish the baby for adoption, to keep it, to get married, were the alternatives available. Many had considered abortion, but for this group this was not a viable alternative. Half the girls were white, half were black, the whites from the outer fringes of the city, the blacks from the central core.

The discussion turned to the question of the unplanned quality of their pregnancies. Every girl present indicated that if she could have controlled it she would not be pregnant. The obvious question was raised, since they did not abstain from intercourse, why were adequate contraceptive measures not used? "I am not that kind of girl" was the almost uniform response phrased in a variety of ways but still with the same message.

I have heard variations of this statement, "I am not that kind of girl" from so many pregnant teenage females that I no longer smile even inwardly at its absurdity. I believe that although it represents many honest emotional feelings, in the final reality it is a cop-out, an extra-ordinarily effective dodge of responsibility.

The concept of premeditation making an act more serious is well understood. A murder which was carefully planned and executed has a very different response from a judge and a jury than a murder which occurs in a tavern where there was a disagreement, strong words were exchanged, and when a bottle is shattered with the intent to kill. In this latter instance we talk of murder in the second degree or manslaughter, whereas premeditation means murder in the first degree. The differences in prison terms, the differences in moral judgement about these crimes are considerable. It is important to remember, however, that in each instance the victim is dead.

For many, if not all teenagers in America today, sexual behavior has the sense of wrong doing about it. It may be one of the reasons it is so exciting. Sexual intercourse outside marriage for teenagers is almost uniformly judged as an evil. For young girls or young boys to take contraceptive steps to prevent a pregnancy it is an indication of premeditated sex. Thus a double evil is perpetrated - sex outside marriage and in cold blood.

To avoid the "in cold blood" charge, many young people, both boys and girls, evade the issue of premeditation. While doing so they also evade the issues of responsibility. The young person may tell himself at the beginning of the evening "I'm going to be good, I'm not going to do anything wrong," or he may consciously suppress any thoughts of sexual activity. Then with the titillation of the society at full work, with the perfumes with names suggesting sin, indiscretion, and a variety of exciting wrongdoing, with the hair creams guaranteed to make one sexually irresistible, with the tight sweater and the miniskirt, with the mood music in that sexual symbol the automobile, "love" takes over. There is the major cop-out. We didn't do it because we planned it, we did it because we love each other. Everyone knows that evil committed in the passion of emotion is really not an evil. That is true whether a wife's lover is killed or if sexual intercourse occurs in the back seat of an automobile.

The society aids and abets in this moral cop-out. Where can young people receive assistance in dealing with their feelings honestly? How helpful have the church, the school, parents been? Everywhere one sees the advertisement of things to make one sexually attractive. There is no need to catalog the list; it would be much too long. The things to make one sexually responsible, however, are hidden under the druggist's counter or need a prescription from that pillar of moral respectability, the family doctor.

In the vernacular of the teenage world doesn't it blow your mind to imagine for a moment contraceptive devices being advertised in the media as we do with cigarettes? Young people on sailing craft having a great time, young people on horses in the great open spaces, young people running across a hillside - and on and on and on.

I am not suggesting that we advertise contraceptives in the media. I am suggesting that we devote as much attention to the question of sexual responsibility as we do appeals to sexual attractiveness. I am suggesting it is a strange morality that sees millions of dollars spent on the advertisement of products we know are harmful to health and life, and yet provides little help in assisting young people to become sexually responsible human beings. To help those young people who feel the proper place for sex is within marriage to deal with their sexual feelings and drives, to help those who will have sex outside marriage to be more responsible for their behavior - this is what I am suggesting - for without such assistance every day children will be born into this world to parents who did not plan for them and do not want them - but then they are not that kind of people.

Yoga lecture

The Ananda Marga Yoga Society, which is staffing a table in the lobby of the CUB this week, will hold an informative, introductory lecture about "Yoga and Meditation for Students" at 8 p.m. Monday, November 15 in the Caribou Room in the CUB. Students who are interested in learning either Hatha Yoga (physical exercises) or meditation are invited to attend. Meditation initiations will be held on December 3 and are free of charge.

Spaghetti feed Sunday

Trout Fishing in America will sponsor its annual Robert Fulton's Birthday Spaghetti Feed and Testimonial Dinner on November 14th. A featured speaker, as yet unnamed, will give the dinner address on Robert Fulton's contribution to folly in America. Donations will be accepted for the creation of the Fulton Folly Memorial Park to be constructed on the vacant lot at 8th and Fulton Streets. Plans are being made for an exact replica of Fulton's steamship to be placed in a gallon jar in the center of the park.

Dr. Dodson

SAYS

Dear Dr. Dodson:

Why aren't people kept in mental institutions longer? It seems like you read about so many of them committing murder and other crimes when they're released.

Wondering

Dear Wondering:

Some research results should help set you straight on the point. First of all, well over half of all institutionalized individuals are of no danger to themselves or to others, even at the time of their institutionalization.

Acts of antisocial aggression occur less frequently in mental institutions than they do among the "normal" population. And this crime rate, including the incidence of violent crimes, is much lower among former mental patients than for the general population.

These are not speculations or opinions, but facts based upon research studies. Unfortunately, your attitude is a widely-held view which is often reinforced by the mass media. Newspaper headlines such as "Ex Mental Patient Kills Wife" help perpetuate these stereotypes. Never do you see "Ex Mental Patient Becomes Corporation VP" or "Ex Mental Patient receives Honors from Harvard."

If headlines such as the last two were used, perhaps some myths and stereotypes about the mental patients would be dispelled.

Dear Dr. Dodson:

What exactly is meant by superego? Sign me Ralph.

Dear Ralph:

Superego is a term from Freudian personality theory. It refers to the ethical or moral dimensions of personality. Sometimes the term is used synonymously with the word conscience.

The LOCKER

Boise State Blue Juggernauts remained on top of the Big Sky statistics poll last Saturday afternoon, by scampering by North Arizona's Lumberjacks 22-17.

Even though the Broncos did win the game, a close look at the game statistics might lead to different conclusions as to just who played the better game.

In the overall final game stat sheets the Lumberjacks led in almost all of the recorded areas.

Under the rushing department, NAU totaled 7 firsts down to 6 by the Broncos. First downs collected on passing went to Arizona with 7 against 4 by Bronco quarterback, Eric Guthrie. Boise received 1 first down via penalty while the Blue and Gold were presented with 2. Collectively NAU led Boise State 16-11 in first and 10's.

Arizona's team collected 248 yards rushing in the positive direction and lost 85 yds. in the negative way. Boise's yards rushing were 210 gained and 38 lost. Totaled, the Broncos led only by 9 yds., 172-163.

Second string quarterback, Craig Holland passed up Guthrie in the percentage of airmail completions 40.5 to 40.0 Holland completed 15 of 37 and Guthrie 14 of 35. However Guthrie only had two passes intercepted while Holland had three. The Lumberjacks nearly doubled the Broncos in passing yardage 251-142.

In total offense the treefellers led the Broncos by 100 yds., NAU totaled 414 and BSC 314.

The Broncos did total 95 yds. on their 3 interceptions, one of which was a 64 yd. score. The Lumberjack's two interceptions netted them 32 yds.

The Blue and Gold team punted 7 times, had none blocked and averaged 30 yds. The BSC team punted 5 times, had none blocked and averaged 39.4 yds. The Broncos also had 40 yds. in punt returns to 30 yds. by NAU.

Under penalizations, Arizona led with 107 yds. closely followed by Boise with 100.

Boise fumbled 5 times and lost three while NAU lost 2 of 3 get-aways.

For a team that finished its season 5-5 total play and 1 win to 3 losses in conference play, they sure gave the number one rated team a ragged run-around. If not for Guthrie's accurate foot the game may have finished differently. Even at that Ray Rodriguez, BSC linebacker, may have taken the responsibility for the Bronco win by intercepting and stopping a hot drive late in the fourth quarter on Boise's 13 yd. line.

The only touchdown by the home team was a 62 yd. interception which shows what kind of defenses the two teams had.

For their performance in that game, Guthrie was named back of the week and Rodriguez was named defensive man of the week by the Bronco Athletic Association.

In addition the Boise Juggernauts have moved to fourth in the nation on the small college ratings by the United Press International Poll. In first place is the University of Delaware with 311 votes, followed by McNeese State with 273 votes, Eastern Michigan with 267, and Boise State with 208 votes. The win over Arizona played a major factor in Boise's advancement, but as the stats show there is no huge gap between first and second, one and four, or victory and defeat.

This Saturday Boise State will try to tackle Idaho State University. The win is critical to the ownership of this year's Big Sky crown. Last week ISU crept past Weber State 24-20, and Weber gave BSC its only loss 20-7 some time back. The ISU game is the last conference game for the Broncos, and the last chance to hold on to that crown.

Bronco Athletic Association choices for the players of the week, Ray Rodriguez and Eric Guthrie.

Fem Bronco 'A' Team Garners Tourney win

Boise State College hosted the Idaho College Women's Sports Association Volleyball and Fencing Tournament Nov. 6. The BSC B team took first place as the A team finished second in the volleyball competition.

Boise was in a three way tie for the championship with Ricks College and Idaho State University. Ricks lost the championship as ISU upset them 15-11 and 15-6 to throw the race into a tie with BSC.

Members of the B team include Fran Mortensen (captain), Char McKay, Carmen Latina, Linn Tonks, Terry Madsen, Toni Turnbull, and Debbie Luke.

Boise rolled over Idaho 15-12 and 15-10 with Turnbull scoring 10 points in the first game and 6 in the second game as McKay gained 9 points in the second game. BSC's next opponent was Northwest Nazarene College with Boise Topping NNC 15-13 and 15-8. Luke and Tonks both scored 5 points each in the games.

The one defeat of the team came from Ricks as Boise lost the first game 15-8 but came back to split the match with a 16-14 win. McKay brought the team from behind with 11 points. BSC dropped the last game to lose the match.

Boise, scored their last win against the College of Idaho 15-10 and 15-8. Mortensen and Latina gained high scoring honors. BSC broke the tie for the championship by playing the fewest games and scoring the most points.

The A team finished with a 3-1 record as Ricks scored 4 victories to no losses for the A championship.

Team members included Gail Lewis, Penny Gillaspay, Roanne Rich (captain), Della Kunz, Debbie Thompson, Diane Westbrook, and Barb Eisenbarth. NNC was the first team to fall to BSC 15-8 and 15-2. Eisenbarth scored 7 points in both games with Kunz and Lewis collecting four points apiece.

Ricks overcame Boise 15-10 and 15-7 as Westbrook and Rich were high servers for the games. The team came back to win over College of Idaho 15-8 and 15-1. Debbie Thompson served 11 straight points for the second win.

Funny Company Takes Tourney in Women's Volleyball Playoffs

The Women's Intramural Volleyball Association held playoffs for the championship Nov. 3 between the Bumper and Digger Leagues.

Funny Company took first place by beating Van's VWs. The team had to come from behind after losing the first game 13-11. Funny Company won the next two games 9-6 and 15-8. Members of FC include Roanne/Rich (captain and high scorer), Char McKay, Sharon Dance, Janie Rich, Nancy Kuntz, Fran Mortensen, Sue Hadley, Linn Tonks, and Ginger Waters.

Van's VWs had Debbie Luke, Janis Ogowa, Penny Gillaspay, Toni Turnbull, Chris Moore and Terry Madsen.

There was a tie in the Digger

League for second place between O'Donalds and Morrison B. The tie was broken with a playoff match as O'Donalds won by splitting the match 10-5, 4-10, and 13-5 O'Donalds then went into a playoff with Morrison A from the Bumper League. The final score was 15-7 and 15-4 with O'Donalds claiming 3rd place and Morrison A at fourth place.

Basketball will be starting soon and all women students who are interested should contact Barb Eisenbarth (President), or Mrs. Connie Thorgren at the gym. Announcements will be made pertaining to when the rosters will be due.

Boise Keglers to Hit the Road for WSU Nov. 12

The Boise Bowling teams will travel to Washington State University November 12th, 13th, and 14th for the Spring Invitational.

Boise States Keglers will play host to the All Idaho Bowling Invitational November 19th in a twelve hour tourney.

Schools present at the tourney will be Idaho State University, the University of Idaho, Lewis and Clark College, College of Idaho, and Ricks.

Following the games, a banquet will be held in the College Union Building, where both individual and team champs of Idaho will be named.

Bronco Alley Rollers recently returned from the Eastern Oregon Invitational Nov. 15-16. The meet was a trial between Eastern Oregon, Washington State and Boise State.

In the Women's results, Boise's girls rolled into first place, under individual listings for the Broncos Linda Ramsey, senior, took first, followed by Kathy Capps, senior, in second place. Junior, Sandra Sasaki, garnered fifth.

Statistics from last years games presented an impressive record of events. Both the men and women's teams won the Intermountain Bowling Conference.

In regional play last year the men placed first and the women second in their respective classes. Schools included in the Region fourteen Meet were Montana

State, Oregon State, Washington State, Idaho State, Hawaii and parts of Canada as well as BSC.

Boise's fems collected first place, going against Brigham Young University, University of Southern California, UCLA, San Diego State, Northern Arizona, and Colorado State, in the BYU invitational.

The BSC men rated 3rd in the National last year while the women received 11th.

This year the team has been practicing for one month. The men's team is complete, however the women's team still has room for more members.

The men's traveling team

Boise State Defense Men Ray Rodriguez and Mark Clegg Stop a NAU Ball Carrier Nov. 6—BSC Won 22-17 consists of Buzz Tucker, Cut Marostica, Hal Merchant, Tom Cory, and Gary. Traveling for the women is Chris More, Carmen Latina, Sandra Sasaki, Linda Ramsey and Kathy Capps.

Boise State Squeaks Past NAU 22-17

squeaked by Northern Arizona University by a narrow margin of 22-17. The game saw NAU bottle up Boise's passing department, and only one touchdown was scored - that was on a record-breaking 68-yard interception return by Joe Larkin.

The deciding factor was quarterback Eric Guthrie's field goals. Guthrie completed five of six field goals setting a new Big Sky record for the number of field goals scored in one game. Also, Guthrie is presently the leading scorer in the conference.

Bengal coach Ed Cavanaugh has stated that he has tried to have a defensive-oriented team. If this is true and the Bengal squad can succeed in tying up the Bronco passing game as well as its running game, then Guthrie's toe will most certainly be a factor.

Boise State will need this win if it hopes to clinch the Big Sky crown. The University of Idaho is trailing close behind, and a win this weekend by the Vandals - coupled with a loss by the Broncos - could shoot them into first place.

BOISE STATE COLLEGE DEPARTMENT OF ATHLETICS FROM JIM FAUCHER

Bronco news release

A 26-game basketball schedule for the 1971-72 season, including four games with rival Idaho State, was announced by Boise State athletic director Lyle Smith.

Smith said that the Broncos will face the Bengals from Idaho State twice in Boise and two times in Pocatello with one on the home meetings at each school designated a Big Sky Conference game.

The Broncos also pickup some new faces for the upcoming hoop season. They will meet Stanislaus State of California in the season opener on Dec. 3 in Boise and will also meet another California school, Cal Poly of Pomona, in Boise on Dec. 14.

The first Big Sky Conference game for the season will be Jan. 7 when the Broncos journey to Bozeman, Montana to face the Bobcats from Montana State, the last game of the year, on Feb. 29 will be a conference game against the Bengals.

The 1971-72 schedule has 15 home games for the Broncos and 11 on the road. They open at home on Dec. 3 with five straight games in the Bronco gym including a non-conference Boise State goes to Idaho State's Minidome on Jan. 22 for a non-conference meeting, and clash with Idaho State on Dec. 15.

Five of the last six games of the 1971-72 season will be at home for the Broncos. This is in sharp contrast to last year when they played their last four games on the road.

Another new name will be the University of Puget Sound which the Broncos will first meet in Tacoma on Dec. 22 and back in Boise on Jan. 19. The Broncos will be playing Chapman College of California in Boise on Jan. 3.

All-Idaho Week Events Announced

Boise State College will have an active role in All-Idaho Week this year.

All-Idaho Week started in 1968 on the University of Idaho campus. Since then it has grown into a statewide program that emphasizes the building of pride in Idaho citizens for the state of Idaho.

This year's All-Idaho Week will involve people from all walks of life. The All-Idaho Board of Governors is comprised of citizens from all over the state who are dedicated to the idea of bringing Idaho together. This year's Honorary Chairman of the Board of Governors is Governor Andrus.

The activities will begin on November 13 with the gridiron clash between the Boise State Broncos and the Idaho State Bengals in Pocatello. Part of the half-time activities will be the playing of a taped message from Governor Andrus.

On Sunday, November 14, the focus will be on Religion in Idaho. A Worship Service will be held at the Christ Chapel at 7:00

P.M. There will be an All-Idaho organ concert at the BSC music auditorium at 8:30 P.M. A brief history from each religion in Idaho describing its important contributions to the growth of the state has been compiled and will be handed out at registration. During this afternoon various civic and conservation groups throughout the state will work on "Clean Up Idaho Day."

Beginning on Monday, November 15, the various Chambers of Commerce throughout the state will have displays in the BSC Union. These displays will remain there all week, and will set the mood for Monday, Commerce Day.

Besides the display, representatives of the Chambers of Commerce will be present to talk with interested students. Also beginning on Monday and carrying over into Tuesday, November 16, will be a presentation of Idaho communications media. A teletype will be set up as a display, and three radio stations will be broad-casting off the BSC campus.

Also on Tuesday will be displays from the major industries of Idaho—Simplot and Morrison-Knudson.

Wednesday, November 17, will focus upon government within the state of Idaho. Area legislators will attend a luncheon, at which Dr. Barnes, BSC President, will speak. That night Governor Andrus will deliver an address for the "Gaps in American Society" program.

On Thursday, November 18, the topic will be "Education-

The Gem of the Gem State." A luncheon for members of the State Board of Education and presidents of the colleges and universities around Idaho will be held. Students will be given time to question guests and the luncheon will end with a tour of the BSC campus.

Friday, November 19, will be Recreation Day. There will be displays over twenty-one groups and organizations showing virtually every recreational activity possible in Idaho. All-Idaho Week will be concluded with a concert in the BSC gymnasium featuring the popular group Sha-Na-Na.

In my opinion

In My Opinion

One of the major gripes student government or campaign issues has, in the past three or four years, been the lack of communications on the campus. Students both those living on and off campus have complained that they simply haven't been informed of events until after it happens.

In the last campaign, several very good ideas surfaced as possible solutions to our communication "gap." (These suggestions, it should be noted came from both those students seeking offices and those listening to the speeches.)

What programs have been initiated to solve our problems?

One of the best, easiest, but least innovative ways of "getting the word out" to students is the Arbiters. We have found, however, that this means of communication does not reach all of our students. In past years - this was about the only means of communicating, and it simply wasn't enough.

To further the communication process, as far as the social side of things, the Union Report was devised. The report gave, month by month, an account of everything happening in the C.U. on the student social center.

Also, greatly increased amount of funds were placed in the advertising budgets of our programs, to facilitate buying time on the local radio stations and area newspapers.

Speaking to as many clubs and organizations as possible to get their feedback has been happening. By placing plywood signs around campus advertising our program and devices to services, we start reaching a new group of students - those who don't belong to groups and don't read our Arbiters. Finally, we meet monthly with a group of presidents - every president or representative from every club, group or organization, inter-anything groups or anyplace that there is any bunch of students, and try to present to them a meaningful program to make them more knowledgeable about their student government, college, and community.

BSC Debators Win

Boise State College debaters Dave Thornburgh and Rich Jones in a unanimous decision over the University of Utah placed first in Participant Evaluation Debate in the recent Gem State Jamboree Debate Tournament. The Gem State Tournament, hosted by Idaho State University, is one of the largest in the West and was attended by 18 colleges and universities from Idaho, Montana, Utah, Nevada, and California.

The Boise State win was broadcast live and in color by the educational television station at Idaho State University. Since the final rounds in debate and individual events were all televised, it was a busy day before the cameras for freshman Dave Thornburgh and sophomore Rich Jones, both from Boise. In addition to debate both men were finalists in individual events. Thornburgh was a finalist in Extemporaneous speaking, placing third. Jones was a finalist in Original Oratory and Interpretative Reading.

placing third in Oratory.

Other members of the debate team participating in the tournament were Barbara Bridwell, Charlotte Clark and Donna Wiensch all from Boise, Peter Spagnolo from Star and Leon Scott from Meridian. The group was accompanied by Mr. James DeMoux, the debate coach and Mr. David Rayborn, a Department of Communication faculty member. The team will travel next to Washington State University.

Student National Education Association Holds Meeting

The Student National Education Association (SNEA) held its second meeting of the school year Nov. 3 in the Senate Chambers of the College Union Building, and set down to work on its main project - making the education curriculum at Boise State more adoptable to students who must follow it.

One problem considered was that many students felt the Audio-Visual Aids course involves too heavy a work load for just two credits. Dr. Martin said he had not heard of the problem, but that the proper procedure would be for the SNEA to submit a letter to him explaining the situation.

Also discussed was the inability of the Elementary School Art Methods class to accommodate all those students who need it for graduation.

Dr. Jensen said that although Dr. Peck is trying to correct the situation, before he can obtain funds to hire a resource person from the Boise community to teach an additional section of the class, he must be able to guarantee that at least 12 students would take the course next semester.

Those interested in the class -- as well as those who must have it -- should see either Norm Powers, chairman of the SNEA Curriculum Committee, Dr. Jensen or Dr. Peck.

LA Poll Homecoming Was Poor

Henry Henseheid, Senator, School of Arts and Letters, conducted a poll last week based on issues that are facing him in the Senate. The tabulations below are only from students from the School of Arts and Letters, all other major fields were removed when the poll was tabulated.
