The Boise State skydiving team edged out Kent State of Ohio 39-47 in total team scoring to take first place in the nation for non-military schools.

Forty-nine schools were represented in the Florida meet with 190 competing jumpers. This year's contest was recorded as the largest national parachuting contest ever held in America.

Even though the BSC team was the defending champion going into this year's competition, the competition was much stiffer than that found last year.

All of the members except Steve Minter made the trip. In overall competition, the Flying Bronco's fell into third category behind the United States Airforce, who captured first, and West Point Military Academy, which captured second.

In advanced competition the BSC Winged Pegasus team had 3 entries. Homstad, Reed and Sullivan. Three events are characteristic of the higher class: accuracy, style and relative team work.

Homstad flew into first place in accuracy by marking up a perfect score. In four trips down from 7,000 feet, he succeeded in hitting a 3-inch disc without fail.

In the style games, Reed rolled, looped and turned his way into second place and a silver medal from 7,000 feet.

In the novice class, Gulley garnered second for accuracy and was followed by O'Leary in fifth.

The three man team combined in relative team work during free fall maneuvers to float into third place and a bronze medal.

DEPT. HEAD REBUTS STORY

Perhaps it is the competition in me, or perhaps it is simply the time to set somebody straight.

After a very imaginative "All-Blazo Week," which was dedicated to the unification of Idaho, we should, especially here at BSC, dedicate a little ink to a great man who is the spirit and pride of "All-Blazo Week."

In a week when many candidates for Senator Jordan's seat or Congressman McClellan's seat were getting much press coverage, this statement put more coverage in both Idaho and Washington, and even a little in Utah.

After a great Thanksgiving break, which allowed BSC to dispense to all homes all across this state and others, many may say "This is what I am sure, generated by this man's comments."

When much time and effort is being devoted in trying to quell feelings of hatred between racial groups, countries in our nation, and different sections of our great state of Idaho, this man can fan the already existing feelings of hatred to a new high.

When all the institutions of higher education in Idaho are trying to band together to show the legislature that they are serving Idaho students efficiently and well, this man allows through his actions and words that he is very much overpaid for the real services he offers his school, not coaching, but preaching.

For those of us who are still in the dark about whom I am referring to this article, the statement I refer to is not more often than Ron Robbins, coach of the football team, to try and counter the "facts" which he has spoken of in the past year, would only make his stance more impassioned and would demonstrate that he has to read the newspaper and speak to the first place.

We here at BSC can be proud of several things concerning our team this year. Their fantastic record of 9-2 speaks for itself. Gaining national recognition in the small college polls and being invited to play in the Camellia Bowl are both great accomplishments. And, last but not least, we can be proud of having a coach the caliber of Tony Knap directing our team both on and off the field.

But, as our fine team is representing Boise State College and at least part of the state of Idaho in the Camellia Bowl, we can also stand amazed that many more "Quotations of Chairman Don" will be added to an effort to "South vs. Vandal" to national recognition."

Editor of The Arbiter

Many students have expressed their concerns over the addition of the "Comedy Night of the Century," which will be held in the Student Union Ballroom on April 20.

This is one of many concerns that we have had in the past year, especially in the Student Union.

I don't believe in airing grievances with the media, but rather I believe they should be kept to the newspaper and the student leadership.

I don't believe in airing grievances through the newspaper in my opinion. This attempt to create trouble shows a lack of realism on the part of certain student leaders if they think this is the way to solve the problems on both sides and then printing the full story instead of removing them.

EXCHANGE FALLS TO RIPOFF

Dear Editor,

At the beginning of the fall term the college library added a service which has enjoyed a somewhat delusional success. The new service was a paperback collection set up on an informal "take one leave one" basis.

Most of the books were not procured or stamped in any way. It was hoped that students, faculty and staff might like to be able to exchange some of their own paperbacks for others that they had not read, and that a revolving collection might be maintained at a fairly stable level.

The collection started out with about 300 titles, covering a wide variety of subjects, and even exceeded those foreign language titles. It has now dwindled to about 100 titles, and the selection leaves something to be desired. Apparently the takers are much more numerous than donors.

Unless more generous donors of paperback books can be found, the "take one leave one" collection will probably have to fall by the end of the semester. The librarians invite everyone interested in maintaining the exchange to donate any paperbacks they no longer want.

"Boise State is not fulfilling the needs of a great number of its students. Perhaps these needs are exactly those which a liberal arts college should be fulfilling—the enlightenment of the individual through learning. If those of Boise State interested in improving themselves in some type of free and spontaneous learning atmosphere there can only be disappointment. The advertised activities of football, basketball, and tennis. advertising techniques of the newest and biggest plastic repair super cars is an insult to those interested in focusing themselves from the more serious and less attractive and eventual pam of ignorance and its exploitive, the living, watching man is estranged from the very goal he set for Boise State for.

"I mean no harm nor put fault on anyone who lives in a "cabin." If one's level of consciousness is pleasingly complemented by these newly extracurricular activities then he has the self-designated right to, and enjoyment of such activity. One would not deny the enjoyment of such activities just as one would not expect to be denied the enjoyment of music, movies, or any other pleasurable activity. I mean only to point out the importance of the student body in being ignored and being spoken to in a patronizing, patronizing, patronizing manner.

"I am only reporting the facts as they are seen, not as they are told, and the second hand, any indication of the very best and most important things that are happening in this college, "Boise State College," is not up to the standards of a college, but I hope that the college is trying to improve."

How busy people earn better grades

As I See It

by Phil Verby

Cragulations are in order for Douchphage and co., for the way they handled ALL IDAHO.正确(?) The individual displays exhibited in the lobby of the CUB were quite impressive with their graphics and ecology approach.

IT SEEMS TO ME that the J. R. Simplot display would have been more meaningful if someone had taken to Caldwell and collected and then displayed a sample of the area so that the pipelines empty into the Boise River from the Simplot Paper Company.

More about killing rivers......... An action group on the campus disagrees on the polluting of the Boise River as reported in the Statesman this past week. These people are throughly water limited as far as passing through the college. Results will be printed here next week.

What do we do if the rumors are true and Boise State is a prime polluter of the Boise River(?)

THUMBS DOWN to whoever was in charge of putting up the campus buildings constructed with student funds. The idea of the plaques was conceived in the ASB Senate last semester because of lack of recognition of student funding and the fact the EX-GOVERNOH SAMUELSON and his cohorts were LINED UP.

A VERY PROMINENT PLAQUE IN THE ROUND BUILDING IN THE V.O. TECH CENTER.

IT SEEMS TO ME that if there is to be a plaque giving recognition to student funding it should be just as large as the existing plaque AND MORE PROMINENTLY DISPLAYED.

This writer pesos in and out of the CUB several times a day and I never saw the plaque until I imagined a search for it.

If we were going to spend hundreds of dollars in student funds for these plaques should be placed as near the main entrances as possible or if necessary on the stairways of steel in the main lobby of the respective building.

A V.P. of the BOISE STATE.

They turned in an excellent performance on the graduation and they are not finished yet. On to the Castella Bowl......

If I mention football I must also mention Homecoming. I refuse to take sides in the controversy as to whether Homecoming 71 was good or bad.

I will say this about that......

I served in the ASB Senate last semester and was directed to investigate the fund raising for the 1970 Homecoming. To my personal knowledge Homecoming 1970 cost the students of BSC more than $20,000. $9,000 of these student dollars could not be accounted for and were never accounted for.

Homecoming 1971 cost $1,000 and there is a receipt for the money. THIS IS THE WAY TO GO.

The Permanent Building Fund (state agency) has recently mortgaged The new far-sighted (wec) people have decided that Boise State will not get a new science building. Instead we will get an addition to the Vo-tech center.

It is surprising that is great but it IS SEEMS TO ME that the decision is a combination of the state policy of not using students' dollars (to students) instead of thinking,

Are the people who control the destiny of Idaho afraid of the small policy of not using these dollars of the students.

We the people who control the destiny of Idaho think the students' dollars should be sent to the students themselves.

We the people who control the destiny of Idaho think the students' dollars should be used by the students themselves to earn the dollars.

We the people who control the destiny of Idaho think the students' dollars should be used by the students themselves to build the dollars.

We the people who control the destiny of Idaho think the students' dollars should be used by the students themselves to make the dollars.

We the people who control the destiny of Idaho think the students' dollars should be used by the students themselves to get the dollars.

We the people who control the destiny of Idaho think the students' dollars should be used by the students themselves to save the dollars.

We the people who control the destiny of Idaho think the students' dollars should be used by the students themselves to invest the dollars.

We the people who control the destiny of Idaho think the students' dollars should be used by the students themselves to spend the dollars.

GROWTH DEAD

by Don Coffman

"Dead Freaks", you need worry no more for your heroes have struck again with a new album simply entitled "Grateful Dead." The album is made up of a conglomeratation of songs recorded live at three different locations throughout the country, yet it does not seem to inhibit the quality of their sound as is the case for many recording artists today.

The "Dead" style of music is probably the closest thing to western music that most of us would like to get, but at the present time, perhaps they have established a type of music which might be related to by a slightly larger listening audience. It's not a driving type of music, and on the other hand it does not try to sing you back. You listen to such songs as 'Bertha' or 'Johnny B. Good' and unconsciously you find your feet tapping against your shoes or your fingers keeping beat on your knees and then you finally realize that they have captured you. You wonder why for a moment, and then you are released as the group shows some of their versatility by grinning out some old good ol' blues in such songs as "Big Railroad Blues" and "Me and Bobby McGee."

The group is made up of five members who have played together since the early days, which might be one reason why their style is very similar to many experiments with different types of musical instruments leaving their guitars, organ, and the like behind which might be a reason why this is The Other One. An eighteen minute instrumental arrangement is the premier of the most beautiful bits of the whole album and is the group's tribute to their own personal instrument.

By practically playing the psychedelic movement close to a decade the group has probably been under a lot of pressure to produce more, new, and exciting music for the public. I'm sure, the 'Dead Freak' would only say that the "Grateful Dead" are the "Dead Freak's," so what you hear is what you get.

You'll find this album and many others at the Boise Ma-chi, Boise's largest record collection.
We, the Associated Student Senate of Boise State, urge the citizens of the State of Idaho to enroll in all the rights and responsibilities of majority age. The Administration of Boise State PoliCy individual responsibility and respect for law will be enforced and by the removal of complete....

COLLEGE LIQUOR POLICY

The College believes that the development of self-discipline, individuality, and respect for law will be enhanced by enrolling the students to a greater responsibility for compliance with Idaho State Law and by these prohibitions which are not enforceable in practice.

We refer to the attention of all members of the College that it is unlawful for any person to sell, furnish, give or cause to be sold, furnished or given away any alcoholic beverages except to any person under the age of 21 years. The same shall be true for beer except that the age shall be 20 years. The College expects each individual student and each student group or organization to take full responsibility for his or her compliance with the provisions of the Idaho Alcoholic Beverage Control laws on the sale of alcoholic beverages.

We have particular concern for the association of this responsibility by students who are not yet 21 (20 for beer) years of age and are therefore more exposed to violations of the law; this concern applies especially to freshmen, not merely because they are exposed to violation of the law, but also and importantly, because they will have the privilege of coming to College life with an attendance problem of adjustment and achievement. These regulations are an outgrowth of the necessity for all ASCB students, relying on residence regulations and the promotion of self-discipline, to be responsible for compliance with the provisions of the Idaho Alcoholic Beverage Control laws on the sale of alcoholic beverages.

Each College student is individually personally responsible for compliance with the applicable provisions of the State of Idaho. In order to provide effective self-regulation which will protect the interests of all members of the College community, each residence living group shall adopt and maintain regulations pertaining to the use of alcoholic beverages within the residence and shall be responsible for compliance with these regulations. In doing so, each residence shall seriously take into account the following distribution of its members so that the legal age for sale of alcoholic beverages to anyone under the age of 21 years of age shall be accorded recognition and appropriate protection.

Alcoholic beverages may not be used by students on the campus except when under the supervision of the College and the University. Alcoholic beverages may be served at social functions only if non-alcoholic beverages are also served at such functions. Violations of these alcoholic beverage regulations as of other College regulations, shall be subject to discipline through regular procedures.

It is emphasized that when alcoholic beverages are used, they shall be used in moderation. The College and Associated Student Senate do not condone violation of the State laws concerning the use of alcoholic beverages; nor does it condone the use of alcoholic beverages under any circumstances where such use is tending to threaten health, academic achievement, or the best interest of the College community.

Senator Considers Camelia Bowl, Clubs

Alcoholic beverages, the Miss BSC Pageant and the proposed ASBC funding policy were among the topics discussed by Senators at their weekly meeting on Tuesday.

The Idaho Student Government Association is circulating a resolution which will hopefully be adopted by all member schools. This is a result of support of the U.S. Senator's re-evaluation of the foreign and program. It affords the U.S. Senate to continue its support of the United Nations and its programs.

This delay was felt to be necessary in order to allow the Senator, re-evaluation of the foreign aid program. It also urged the U.S. Senator to continue its support of the United Nations and its programs.

This action was done primarily to the fact that the ASBC is presently involved in developing a permanent funding policy.

This condition, coupled with the fact that phase out or partial funding negotiations of such sports and other activities are to begin January between the ASBC and Valhalla administration, resulted in a negative vote on the resolution from the three clubs. Paul Ralston, ASBC Treasurer, reported that his office is in the process of sending out budget forms. The deadline for returning the forms is January 31. Hearings on the budget request will begin around February 7.

Harry Henschel, Senator from the School of Arts and Science, said that he and several other people have been working with Law Dean, Director of Admissions, on the student ID card.

Several plans for setting up a poli system have been studied, these plans are still being considered. The companies have been invited to send a representative on campus to discuss cost, procedures, etc.

The final Homecoming report is now available. The Senator accepted this report and thanked Marcia Davidson and committee for doing an excellent job.

The Pop Committee under the College Union Program Board has been allowed to reappropriate $1,741.15 of their budget money.

Jeff Gannon, Pop Committee Chairman, informed the Senator that this purchase would be much cheaper than the rental fee which we are presently paying for a P.A. system.

This fee usually is $700.00 per concert. Dr. Mitchell from the School of Business was present at the meeting. He discussed several of the different ideas presently connected with regard to graduation.

Mitchell reported that surveys are being sent to recent graduates requesting responses in several areas such as (1) the location of graduation ceremonies, (2) the acceptability of eliminating summer graduation ceremonies, (3) details about the ceremony itself, and others.

Dr. Senior Class Committee will also be studying these areas of concern and reporting the result of their investigations.

Senators adopted a resolution that the Student Senate go on record as endorsing the academic calendar as it now stands.

This action is a result of a proposed change in the calendar which would, among other things, change the length of class sessions. Senators voted on the present system is bad and that no change in this area is needed.

Senators took note that next week's agenda will include discussion of the proposal for Student Rights and Responsibilities along with the proposed Code of Conduct.

Investigation of a result in the area has been delayed a few weeks from the weekly meetings will also take place. Chairman Marty Relland reported that the present request that the ASCB Constitution provides that "If meeting will not be requested by all the members of all the groups, the position will be declared vacated and will them filled by appointment.

In final action, the Senator adopted by a vote of 5-1 the following resolution which mainly involves a proposed college liquor policy.
Campus group visits prison in anticipation of presenting symposium

The event was held at the Boise State Penitentiary, where students and faculty members were invited to participate in a forum on issues related to prison life and rehabilitation. The forum aimed to foster understanding and empathy among the participants.

Virginia judge rules on abortion counseling ads in student papers

Richmond, Va. (CBS) — U.S. District Judge Robert E. C. Hargrave, Jr., in a ruling today, refused to issue a restraining order to prevent the publication of an advertisement in The Virginia, a student newspaper at the University of Virginia, that supports abortion counseling centers.

The judge ruled that the advertisement did not violate the state's blue-sky laws, which prohibit the publication of advertisements that promote illegal activities, and that the university had a right to regulate the content of its publications.

The decision came after a months-long legal battle between the university and the National Organization for Women (NOW), which had sought to ban the advertisement.

The advertisement, which was scheduled to appear in the Bryan Medium on October 26, 1992, was intended to inform students about the availability of abortion counseling services on campus and to encourage them to seek such services.

The judge noted that the advertisement did not promote abortion as a solution to unintended pregnancies, but rather provided information about the availability of counseling services.

He ruled that the university had the right to regulate the content of its publications and that the advertisement did not violate any state or federal laws.

The decision was praised by NOW, which called it a victory for free speech and reproductive rights.

On July 3, 1992, a group of students and faculty members from the University of Virginia's College of Arts and Sciences, as well as the College of Law, published an advertisement in the Bryan Medium, a student newspaper, that supported abortion counseling centers.

The advertisement was intended to inform students about the availability of abortion counseling services on campus and to encourage them to seek such services.

The advertisement was removed from the student newspaper after the university received a complaint from the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, which said the advertisement was inappropriate.

The university then filed a lawsuit against the students and faculty members, seeking to prevent the publication of the advertisement.

In his ruling today, Judge Hargrave ruled that the advertisement did not violate the state's blue-sky laws, which prohibit the publication of advertisements that promote illegal activities, and that the university had a right to regulate the content of its publications.

Student leaders to attend
Emergency Voters Conference

WASHINGTON (CPS)—More than 100 student leaders from colleges and universities across America joined with the Association of Student Governments this week in calling for an Emergency Conference for New Voters to organize students as voting delegates to the national party nominating conventions in 1972.

The Emergency Conference is slated for this weekend at Loyola University in Chicago.

The events of the past month clearly indicate that neither of the two major political parties welcomes young, left-leaning voters as fully entrenched participants in the party," said Dean Draper, President of ASG and Chairman of the steering committee for the Emergency Conference.

"These events are a crucial situation for millions of young people who wish to effect constructive change through existing institutions. Until we begin the task immediately of organizing students within the party processes, we will find ourselves totally excluded from delegate selection and the Presidential nominating procedures, does effectively disenfranchised despite the 26th amendment."

The event Draper referred to were the Democratic Committee's selection of Patricia Harris as temporary chairman of the credentials committee over liberal Sen. Harold Hughes, Illinois, who had been viewed as the key to enforcement of the McGovern-Fraser reforms at the Democratic Convention in Miami.

With the Republican side, pressure from high echelon academics who received personal threats will have their inductions suspended until the end of their current academic term, quarter, or semester.

A student in his last academic year can have his induction suspended until the end of the school year, allowing him to graduate before the admission for change. The advisers were concerned that draft calls varied from community to community and defense of himself, and asked a more uniform approach to selecting men for service.

In the past a system based upon total registration was used to apportion the national draft call to the state headquarters, who in turn apportioned the call to individual local draft boards. The new regulations require the use of this system and instead established a uniform national call. Now all young men in the nation—unless the same lottery numbers who are available will receive induction notices at nearly the same time.

It was recommended that young men be afforded a judicial review of appeals to local and state boards in classification matters. New law provides a realistic move in this direction, permitting a young man appealing his classification to bring witnesses and present his appeal to a quorum of the board. The young man also is allowed new status and makes a personal appearance before the Senate and Presidential appeal boards. Further, a registar can be a board to give written explanation of denial of his claim.

Among our advisors were conscientious objectors who believed that they should be provided with an opportunity to work in jobs that best fit them with the national health, interest and welfare. Under the old law conscientious objectors performing alternate civilian service were under the control of local draft boards. Under the new law the National Director of Selective Service is responsible for administering the conscientious objector program. This law has been voided for acceptable work and state directors have been delegated the responsibility of assigning and reviewing work assignments for these men.

The involvement of youth is a continuing activity. An informal survey, for example, will need to replace approximately 30 percent of local draft board membership because of the new maximum length of service contained in the law. While the draft system will suffer from the loss of these dedicated men and women, we are eager to take advantage of this opportunity to replace them with young men and women representing educational and social backgrounds of the great majority of American young men.

Appointed by the President upon the recommendation of the national governing, the local board member holds the most important position in the Selective Service System, and young men who might be interested in serving on a local board or in some other volunteer positions in the Selective Service System should contact the governor or his governor.

Many young people are asking themselves these days with a great seriousness of purpose, by previous generations their values, to what extent make their lives meaningful, and now how to contribute to society. I hope that many young men and women will recognize these new opportunities to serve in the Selective Service as a worthwhile means of social involvement through civic service. We need their help.

Roving Reporter

Roving Reporter Question: At the time of registration you paid 17 dollars into the student government of Boise State College. How would you like to see that money spent?

Doug Headley - Senior, Accounting
I feel that the money should be spent on your student services such as student health services and new student ID cards.

Larry Mahaffey - Sophomore, Business
I think that the student health services should get a large portion of the money. Another way would be some system of supporting students through more scholarships.

Mary Green - Freshman, Secretarial Science
I think for the various clubs on campus would be the best. I think this campus needs more to do and more clubs.

Robert Drury - Junior, Accounting
I feel that the money we pay to the student government should go to activities that benefit most of the students. Most particularly, I like the idea of student health services, Draft Counselling and Intramural Sports. I'm really not in favor of funding individual clubs unless it is necessary for the club to exist.

Russ Heller - Junior
I agree with using the funds for student lawyer services. I'm not in favor of using the funds for band and drill teams, nor in favor of using the money for intermural sports.

Pat Neuer - Junior, Sociology
From the seventeen dollars, I think that something substantial, you know, part of the campus like more bike racks in different areas. Or on something to improve the campus itself could be best used of part of the money.

John Sack has written about the Army for Stars and Stripes, for UPI, for Newsweek, for Esquire, and newspapers around the country. In the fifteen his book on Korea sold a quarter-million copies. The book, "M," has been praised by the New York Times as "greatest book on the war so far.

Besides being a correspondent in Korea, Taiwan, Viet Nam, Japan, China, and Peru, Sack has done many other things in his career. They range from an actor in a Hollywood horror movie, an extra at the Metropolitan Opera, to newspaper columnist, producer for the Universe Pageant, and PFC in Asia with the acting rank of colonel, plus many others.

These occupations have taken him to sixty countries. He has walked across the Andes, lived in a Greek Monastery, and argued with the Pope in America. He also reads for the Metropolitan Opera, and represents the Army in Vietnam.

When the Army superseded his twenty years of Calley's confessions, Sack, a most willing writer, wrote in Chicago, "M". Arrested, he is presently free on bail telling the Congress, television, and college audiences what the Army didn't find out.

Sack conveys more about the reality of Viet Nam than a marathon debate between banks and donors. (Playboy Magazine)

Colt gridders proved 'bigger and quicker' as they garnered a 2-0

by Bill Michels

"They were bigger and quicker this year and we will have a lot of them in the future," in varsity ball players, they were available, competitive, and despite their activities as scout teams they placed terrific ball.

These were the words of the Boise State freshman gridmen's coach, Beulah, describing his squad's performance: this season. The coach, as do, or was most appropriately named, came through this year and underscored with a 2-0 record.

The Colts first game of the year came with the Eastern Oregon College JV's and, in the first match, the team won 5-1. The second and last contest was with the Idaho State and was perhaps most indicative of the caliber of players to expect in the future tanks.

The Colts were behind 35-12 going into the fourth quarter and knew they had to get on the scoreboard and fast. Fast they did, as the Colts tacked on 28 points in an unbelievable 13 minutes and scored a 40-33 final lead over Weber State.

Because the Colts play only two games during the season, a large portion of their time is taken up with scouting activities. The freshmen view game films of the opponents that the Bronco varsity squad will be playing and assist the coaches and team in learning what to expect.

Rita noted that "The freshman year is the most difficult year for a football player - he has to adjust to college and a new caliber of football." One of these new caliber players is Paul Fargen, a 195 lb., 1st-year, who has played all year on the second string varsity squad. He specializes in long steps on punts and extra field goals. Fargen's home town is Sandpoint, Washington.

Another "promising prospect," is quarterback, Jim Wilman from Arfcll, Idaho. Wilman piloted the ball for the Colts and came out with a record of 12 completed passes out of 18 attempts and had four touchdowns. He has also scored in spite of the varsity games most recently, the Idaho of Colo-ga players.

Chester Gray is a 6'5, 5'2 offensive running back from Boise. Boise, he's a "touch, hard runner and very exciting to watch," says coach Rita. In the two freshman games he broke all rushing records, averaging more than 10 yards per carry and so earning the nickname: the "Shadow Coach." Robin Woolsey is a wide receiver for the Colts and a good one. Woolsey has been out of action for a while as the result of a pulled muscle but will certainly bear watching in the future.

A 170 lb., 6'2 defensive player by the name of Jim Meeks led in freshman interceptions this year with three. Meeks has played varsity ball off and on this year, but with his latest effort coming in the 1st of 1 game. This sharp.

defense safety is from Jerome, Idaho.

Other prospects for next year include Steve McNeil, halfback, Mike Fargen, halfback, Pat Short, offensive tackle, Ted Nollett, end, Phil Rabin, off guard, and Ted Garst, split end.

Defensive prospects include: Clay Sisman, safety, Brett Hough, safety, Scotty Rogers, defensive end. Bill Rice, def. end; Ray Vartanian, linebacker and Bob Helfgott, linebacker.

Coach Rita commended that Idaho players were in to adjust well and that the Bronco recruit more people from Idaho than either Idaho State or the University of Idaho combined. This can really be seen as one looks at the Bronco roster. This year's freshman team has proved itself to be a well-balanced and dangerous force to be reckoned with. Next year should we expect the emergence of a number of qualified and potential players that will add new depth and character to the Boise varsity squad.

You and some very with it dudes are screaming toward town in a mean '48 Ford. Shag carpet, roll and sack bucket seats, foam rubber dice hanging on the rear view mirror, brand new spinner hub caps, and two cases of beer in the back seat. Like very, very cool.

You're a force to be feared. You've got the tightest stretch Levi's, the hottest Ford, the greatest hair, and the meanest friends in town, and you are itching for a confrontation. You've got the tightest stretch Levi's, the hottest Ford, the greatest hair, and the meanest friends in town, and you are itching for a confrontation.

And then it happened. "Sha Na Na" slithered out on stage. They were indeed much more than we had expected, much more. Not just sort of "50's, but solid, hard core "greased and ready to kick ass" creeps. They had the style and beauty of a garbage truck and their music was equally as tasteful. These twelve guys put on one damn good show.

They were old undershirts, tight pants, white socks, rat-tailed combos and big sneers. Those dozen, angler types trucked out in very tight old garage suits just like Elvis wore in the good old days.

"Sha Na Na" played all that old stuff everyone used to hate and played it while running all over the stage through great little routines. Their act is a complete song and dance revue. The whole thing was so tight, so exact. One teary-eyed guy was down on his knees singing "Teenage in Love" while another was combing his hair and shing the twist, while the organ player played with his feet. Totally crazy.

The first half of the whole wild was so good but that second half...oh, Don York, my old high school student body president, did a few flashy moves stuff they all really got hot on some heavy numbers like "Silhouette on the Shade." "Tell Duke of Earl."

By this time total insanity had set in, not just mild excitement, but insanity. The audience had gone as weird as "Sha Na Na". They were dancing, screaming, and having a very good time. It all reminds one of the first time the Beatles were on Ed Sullivan, or more accurately, when Elvis Presley was on, with girls passing out junior rolls of toilet paper! The Ventures! He was really going and suddenly he and another guitarist jumped right off the old stage and into the audience, finishing up the song in the crowd. Their greasy buddies pulled them back on stage to go right on into that Woodstock Hop from the movie that "Sha Na Na" is now famous for.

At this point I would like to explain that the audience had apparently gone over the brink. What had been at first a put-on, just-for-laugh concert had turned into a very serious addiction. The crowd, on the whole, had enjoyed the old greasy, pre-Beatle rock and roll because it was a good joke, like Bobby Sherman, but now they had begun to like it as music. Yes, they all wanted to hear more of that tormented guitar they can't understand-a-world they're saying stuff. It was good and I am seriously afraid we must have suffered acute mental instability or at least mild chromosome damage from the whole affair because we gave "Sha Na Na" one standing ovation after another. Three or four at least. They'd leave and we'd SCREAM AND YELL UNTIL THEY WOULD COME BACK! They looked altogether disinterested and a little more angry each time, but each time we'd yell them back again.

I truly think we would have had them trapped there all night but some dirty, insensitive monstrons turned on the house lights and told us to leave.

Oh, well, lots of good memories, like those immortal words one of them said as they came back on stage for the last time. Those beautifully poetic words of enlightenment have got to be preserved, for they eloquently summarize all "Sha Na Na" was trying to say. This sensitive young man stepped up to a mike and shouted lovingly, "I've got one thing to say to you all." He had begun to say just the way he had had to begin to say it as music. Yes, they all wanted to hear more of that tormented guitar they can't understand-a-world they're saying stuff. It was good and I am seriously afraid we...
