As I See It

Congratulations to Tony Knapp and the Bronco Staff. These guys really came through on the map. After a mediocre finish in the second half of the year, they came back in the fourth quarter and turned a burst into victory. The selection of Coach Hobbins of District 8 Coach of the Year is no surprise.

Everyone at BSC will benefit from this victory in California. Whether we agree with it or not, it is a fact that a winning football team is one of the most important things that can be going on in a college or university.

In talking with people around campus, club and organizational presidents, and even voters and staff people, I have found that very few of these realize how student government can be to what it is today, what it used to be, or what it is evolving into.

In this campus, as our student and college enrollment has expanded in size and quality, our student government has primarily been social organizations, with secondary emphasis placed on programs, arrhythmias, or on exposing student opinion and desire to the administration, community, state, or nation.

As students began to realize that they also have a vested interest in Boise, in Idaho, or America, they started looking to student government to carry the wind. This simple progression happened not only at Boise State, but throughout the nation. Now most people realize that by banding together, they would, or eventually could, become a powerful force both on their own campus and outside their campuses.

Thus, on the Idaho campuses, Idaho Student Government Association, I.S.G.A. was formed. Designed to further communications between all of the Idaho campuses, discussion problems of mutual concern and come up with answers or solutions, and be a central, powerful voice for students in the political arena.

Here at Boise State, in order to better meet the changing philosophies and desires of students, much internal change has taken place. Priorities had to be realigned. This process took place one year ago with the approval of Constitution, re-evaluation of the student government, and establishment of new priorities. One year ago, student government got out of the "bubbles gum and pop corn" stage and became relevant and significant and began losing what it was designed to be-a bubble gum and pop corn stage.

The priorities have now been set and have been placed into action. Social roles (not social programs) are number one on the list of student government's concerns. The group cannot all do everything for everyone.

AWS Takes Poll

Being a clearinghouse for information is not the only role an AWS can assume. But it seems absolutely necessary for BSC’s AWS to revise its goals and purpose to perform whatever the women at BSC think it should. The time is past for a social gathering to serve as a few thinly purposes to Main Hall and the Sweetheart’s Ball. These events are worthwhile if people feel they are, but they are not enough purpose for an organization representing all women on campus and their activities.

In other campuses, the Associated Student Women has a very active part in determining the activities of students. At Kansas State University, the women establish the Information Center staffed with a gynecologist, social workers and nurses. In Washington, the A.W.S. has available legal service (advice to women on their legal rights). Also, at Eastern Washington State the AWS had speakers from throughout the nation, on controversial subjects of the New Left and Gay Liberation.

The list is endless. This goes to show some of the things a women’s organization can do on a campus today if they want to. This is not necessarily the role that AWS women want to fulfill. Perhaps they have totally different ideas and needs. It is obvious from attendance at our AWS, that there is not sufficient interest in its present state and function. The handful of women participating in AWS have chosen to continue with the present system in effect.

There are women on BSC’s campus who are interested in accomplishing things, but AWS is not the agent to go through to get things done as it is set up now. The people active in AWS are representatives from other organizations and are committed first and foremost to that organization. They feel they do not have the time to devote many hours to a women’s commission, for example, and can understand their position.

An AWS organization if it can accomplish anything, must start from the ground and work up, with women dedicated to AWS first. As stated previously, AWS has chosen to continue with its present system next semester.

It seems very improbable, that they will be able to be successful next semester, with a repetition of the same manpower problems that plagued the first semester’s commission at AWS. The few people who were involved in AWS worked very hard, but a handful of people cannot honestly represent all women at BSC.

Welcome
WHY WILLIAM RHEINGOLD SHOULD NOT BE REELECTED ON THE SUPREME COURT
by Senator Birch Bayh

Following the thousands of unjust arrests and the flagrant suspension of constitutional rights during the anti-war protests in Washington this past May, an assistant attorney general sought to justify the abuse of fundamental civil liberties with the excuse that "the circumstances were extraordinary." In Germany in the 1930's, in Greece in the 1960's, in a country that has evolved into a republic quite in the first suppression of constitutional liberties and guarantees came because of "extraordinary circumstances," usually in the guise of preserving order and protecting the public safety.

The assistant attorney general who asserted that the Bill of Rights was suspended and who drew a rationale in the excuse of "extraordinary circumstances" was William Rheingold - the man whose nomination to the U. Supreme Court is now being debated on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. Rheingold's disregard for individual liberties during the May demonstrations was only the first in a long series of public statements which, taken together, reveal a dangerous bombshell on the part of Mr. Rheingold to the great principles of equal justice under the law and individual freedom under the Bill of Rights.

If Mr. Rheingold is seated on the High Court, he has an excellent chance of being there for more than a quarter of a century. He is a young man who could be voting on basic constitutional questions until the year 2000.

I am convinced that it would be a serious mistake for the Senate to confirm Mr. Rheingold's nomination.

I am further convinced that the young people of this country and women would receive a badly needed message from the High Court if Mr. Rheingold were to stand for a special forum to speak out against Mr. Rheingold.

As one who labored long and hard to foster the voting age issue ten years as an excellent opportunity for the new group of young people to make their voices heard.

I urge all young people who see the Jeep's and the concerns of their peers, the concept of our young college colleagues, who are working for the battle against Mr. Rheingold to make call and write to their Senators urging rejection of Mr. Rheingold's nomination.

Let me cite evidence of Mr. Rheingold's attitude on human rights which is disturbingly consistent with his conduct during.

In 1964, when this nation was beginning to respond to decades of gross mistreatment of our African-American citizens, Mr. Rheingold opposed the Phoenix ordinance providing equal access to public accommodations. He didn't believe black people should be allowed in the drug stores of Phoenix in 1964.

Then, in 1966, he opposed anti-blooming and voluntary employer anti-discrimination sections of model state antidiscrimination laws. In 1967, he wrote a public letter which said, "we are too dedicated to an integrated society than to a segregated society."

Mr. Rheingold has never disavowed himself from that statement despite numerous opportunities to do so during Senate hearings.

These actions, coupled with the May experience, clearly show a persistent unwillingness on Mr. Rheingold's part to permit law to be used to promote racial equality as it is by the United States Government.

It is my hope that the young people of this nation share my concern about the dangers of placing such a man on the High Court. If this is the case, the proper response would be to express that view as quickly and as directly as possible to their United States Senators. This measure must not be confused, but it will require a true interest in the part of the American people if it is to be defeated.

Business School Forms Corporation

Wanted 25 to 50 Marketing Management, Finance, Data Processing, Administrative Economics, Engineering, Chemistry, Biology, Commercial Art majors object

Under the old title General Business Special Topic, the Business faculty of State College is planning a corporation.

"The objective of the program," says the C. Graham who will conduct the course, "is to prepare students realistic experience in business and to develop on the part of the students an appreciation of other disciplines." Students will plan the corporation, organize it, and decide what it is to produce. Each faculty member in the business program will be on the board of directors, and each student will be on the board of directors. Each student will be given a quota for each meeting with students, but he will be expected to work on the quota until he earns his quota.

The only problem now, Graham says, is whether we can do it. "We are," he says. Roger Green, Vice President for financial affairs, is discussing the possibility of the corporation with the Board of Trustees and the faculty. The college, through the dean of the school of business will own the corporation and would own the company and would own the stock for its own use.

Despite this problem, the business faculty has looked forward to starting the corporation in the fall. In the fall, says P. Graham, will be the second year in the nation the business faculty has received this fall in the business college.

Jeff Hartung, Junior, Pre-Med.

Yes. Because it seems to me they are providing the students with an opportunity to see these athletic events throughout the year, although cheerleaders don't get any funding by the Athletic Department. I guess the Camellia Bowl represents every student at B.S.C. because each student has his own ideas and to others who are not athletic-minded the money is not being spent right.

Frank Mendez, Sophomore, Social Work

No. I think that they are spending far too much for only allocating money to three main sports. I think that more sports ought to be supported by the athletic department (Basketball, baseball and football).

Dave Olsen

I believe for the most part that the money is being used the way it should. I don't think people realize that money was turned back to the school from the football program last year. Free admission to all athletic contests is just one advantage that students receive from their student fees. With the rising cost that college athletic programs are faced with I don't believe that the $8 is too much to pay for the outstanding athletic program we have here.

Puget Sound next

Boise State's jegemen will hit the road for Tacoma, Washington during the holidays to vie with the University of Puget Sound on Dec. 22. Other action will set the Broncos traveling to Billings, Montana to play Eastern Montana State College for the second time this season on Dec. 4. Earlier in the month Broncos cutters narrowly defeated the Eastern Montana team 81-78 in a body fought contest.

In earlier maplewood action the Broncos topped Northwest Nazarene College to the tune of 79-61 last Friday. With the accurate shooting of Greg Bunn, who amassed 24 points, and the rebounding of Steve Wallace the Broncos were able to keep a comfortable lead most of the way through the game.

Boise got the tip off to Dean Elkind in the first seconds of the game to set up the Broncos' first point. From then on the blue and orange poured on the steam and ramped up to a 38-24 halftime score.

The Crusaders tried their best to gain the upper edge but instead wound up sending the Broncos to the foul line much of the time. The NNC club compiled a total of 27 fouls, with two of their most valuable shooters, 6-5 Raynor Rumpel and 6-6 Leland Graham, fouling out. Graham, fouling out.

Halftime statistics saw the Broncos being a shooting a deadly eighty-nine percent from the free throw line and forty-two percent field goals.

Going into the second half Boise continued its lead as Wallace dumped in to push the score up to 40-24. The Crusaders tried to put together a scoring drive halfway through the second period but managed to come within only eight points of the Broncos.

Boise State's rugged zone defense was a constant threat to the crusaders who were forced to shoot from the outside ends of the time and as a result suffered a number of double turnovers, 23 in all.

In the scoring department Wallace came through with 19 points. Franklin fin 10, Bill Barnes squared in nine, Bill Costrell had seven, Elkind fired in six and Bob McCallum had four. Ron Maxwell and Steve Clifford both shot for two.

Adaptive P.E. class set

 Boise State's Physical Education program will add a new class during the spring semester. The class is Adaptive Physical Education, and is offered to both men and women. This class is designed to offer assistance to those who, for various or sundry reasons, are unable to participate in a regularly scheduled activity class. This class will include students with neurological, orthopedic, and general medical problems, e.g., past polio, cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophies, diabetes, obesity, low back pain, malnourished, alcoholic, fracture, sprains and strains.

Boise State's rugged zone defense was a constant threat to the crusaders who were forced to shoot from the outside ends of the time and as a result suffered a number of double turnovers, 23 in all.

In the scoring department Wallace came through with 19 points. Franklin fin 10, Bill Barnes squared in nine, Bill Costrell had seven, Elkind fired in six and Bob McCallum had four. Ron Maxwell and Steve Clifford both shot for two.
There's a lot of talk about establishment, yet very little done about establishing.

Talk maybe changes the temperature around your mouth, but not much of anything else. Recognizing problems alone will never solve them, just as criticizing lifestyle isn't going to help matters either.

There's been a lot of problems at Collegeside and we're trying to overcome them. The biggest of which have been the noise and the rent structure. We've gone halfway and dropped the rent and utility payments some, but it's up to the residents to correct the noise problem.

People change things by doing things, solving problems, and presenting better ways.

Students get an improved I.D. system in June, said Henry Henisch, ASB senator.

New I.D.'s
Come in June

"We may not be the greatest team, but we are sure hard to be beaten," former quarterback, Eric Guthrie, after the miraculous come back win over Chico State last Saturday.

Hagen Stadium, built in the early twentieth century, resembled closely the ancient Roman Coliseum, and the players, gladiators awaiting to do battle! The weather was perfect for competition.

After the competition was over, however, Chico rolled up a sizable lead, 140, at the end of the first half via Bronco mistakes. Save for the errors, both teams could not move successfully in the air or on the ground.

In the opening minutes of the second half Boise seconded in scoring. However, the drive did not continue due to a stifling Wildcat defense.

Soon the tables turned. The new team is up to score. Boise, Garchet, Jeff Hartung, to the yelping crowd.

"Same teams are first half teams, and teams are second half teams... Boise State is a team that plays when it needs to," Boise's gridiron team, according to Guthrie, never gets down, even though the score is 28-7 going into the final quarter.

A knee injury for Chico has been witseason all season long. In the final minutes and when behind, the BSC team exploded into flames and burns up the field, leading the other team and many of the spectators newly acquired heart conditions.

Most of the season the Broncos have been a second half team. Whether its second wind, a friendly half tide that with the confidence on a strategy execution that kicks the Blue jays down into the grave has not yet been (illicitly. However, it is a fact that they have been playing super in both the second halves.

Except for the late start, the Chico game was no different, and everybody got into the action of a winning ball club.

The inmates put back into their longs those tiny yellow juggling cards and walked off with that of a winning team.

The I.D. will be a four-year card, with the student's picture, name, and student number. The card will be plastic coated. Attached to it will be another plastic compartment in which the ID validation card will be put. The ASB Office of Admission and the Library and newly affected by the student card will decide in the first of June. The company will be contracted for the college by the Idaho State. Photography of continuing students will be held in March and the card validity will be held at the beginning of the summer term as needed.

"It will be enforced," he emphasizes, "in the interest of protecting students who have paid fees.

According to Henisch, the I.D. card could generate $1 to $15 per student. At present schools and companies could come to over $100. The big question now is how the companies we're considering can adapt to the second consideration and keep the cost down.

Full-time and continuing education students will also receive the I.D. card as the proposed system. Henisch says, Students sponsors, however, would not.

Report Says River Not Polluted

There are no significant chemical pollution from the Boise River from Barbas Dam to the Roadway Dam at this time of year, stated Jack Dalton, chairman of the chemistry department at Boise State College. "According to the chemicals that the students in my course of chemistry have tested for, there is little indication that the river is polluted chemically."

Dalton's class of 15 persons have been taking samples of water from the Boise River and testing using the water in the laboratory for any chemical pollution. The sites where samples have been taken include Harribrook, Gate City Steel, Municipal Park, Julia Davis Park, Eighth Street Bridge, the Roadway Dam, the Second Road Bridge and those places effectively above the waste plant. The river appears to be clear except for a small amount of ice, remarked Dalton. But there does not seem to be any great pollution currently.

The chemistry class is designed for the non-science major so that he or she is taught the elements for graduation. "The class is designed to the average person who is not interested in becoming a scientist or even the methods scientists use by actually doing what a scientist does," explained Dalton. "The students can find out for themselves what the various processes used to determine the presence of certain chemicals are relatively simple. Practical application of theories and formulas make the class come alive and actually retain students."

According to the findings of the students, the Boise River could be able to support aquatic life and that there is no premonition threat to the survival of the fish.

"However, there is another more objective that should be carried out before coming to a conclusion about the river," commented Dalton. "The study needs to be expanded in three areas. First of all more chemicals need to be tested for in addition to those which have been tested for orthophosphate, iron, and the hardness content of the river. Secondly, the study needs to be expanded into the outer river and the river needs to have the same samples in the summer as the river is tested in different flow levels."

Pregnancy Programs Come Under Health School

Two new programs, a four month Nurse Practitioner course and an extended nurses training program, are being conducted by the newly reorganized School of Health Sciences, according to Florence Miles, head of the nursing program.

BSC's nursing department, formerly comprised of a part of the Medical Arts and Science faculty, has just recently become a school in its own right, the School of Health Sciences.

The department now includes a two year associate degree program in nursing which has been offered at BSC since the 1975-76 school year.

In the opening minutes of the new program was first announced last July. The four year training program is approved by the State Board of Education and has been included in the 1975-76 school budget. Whether or not the program begins will depend on the funding allotted by the Idaho legislature. Miles stated that if the program is given minimum funding, the school will be able to begin planning for the coming year. "How the legislature gives this program enough funding, we may be able to said she.

Miles stated that the program will be offered in phases. "July, it caused near hysteria in the north and worry that the school in the state," this reaction was due to the fact that the Idaho State University in Pocatello, at the University of Idaho, is already operates under a four year program and more teams are entering the field. In the Jones has its four year school, she said.

The necessity for maintaining a four year program in Boise was explained by Senator of northern Idaho is only about 100 miles from the four-year training, offered in Spokane, and an identical program is being offered in Salt Lake. Located approximately 150 miles from the southern area of the state. The areas closest to Boise would be Portland, Oregon, which is approximately 350 miles from Boise. The only way that need for advanced health training will be met in this area if the State has its four-year school, she said.

Presently there are five programs in Idaho. They are located at Boise, Cedar of Alex, Lewiston, Twin Falls and Ketchum Idaho Falls. The University of Idaho at Moscow has no nursing programs because the hospital in town will accommodate the school miles.

Another proposed program waiting for the green light in the Nurse Practitioner training. Applicants for the practitioner program is not required to have at least three years training, no new graduates would be accepted. The program would run approximately four months and would be divided into three sections.

The first, stated Miles, was consisted of classes conducted on campus, and would include general research and information. The second part of the program would be working with a variety of doctors in a number of different fields, the third part would be working with all facets of medicine. The fourth month would be spent with each nurse working under one doctor, learning under his direction and guide, for his or her assistant. At the end of the four months, the Nurse Practitioner program would be qualified to go out into the community and act as a trained practitioner. The program is scheduled for next spring. Miles added that the State Nursing Association has asked the program to have all registered practitioners program. The SNA board, a volunteer organization representative year at Stannells University, is said to have Miles "polishing the program."

They said she concerned with overall development of the state, and due to BSC's recent rapid development in the area, the board was not sure the practitioners program would be located at BSC.

"A practitioner nurse would be a role important to this area," she said. "We are looking at this as it's a great need for the general practitioner nurse who would be trained to give primary health care, working as an assistant to doctors."

The American Medical Association, however, has recently expressed a great deal of reservation against the plan. They have stated that they would prefer working with the patients who would be the ones who make a great need for the general practitioner nurse who would be trained to give primary health care. They are all role important to the program, said Miles.
