Eighteen year-old rights bill in trouble

The eighteen year old majority rights bill was amended and passed in the Senate, sent to the House where the amendment was defeated, and finally referred to a joint conference committee.

The majority rights bill was originally passed by the House and sent to the Senate where it was defeated. After the bill was defeated it was placed up for amendment, and Senator Stoicheff moved to have the controversial drinking age raised from eighteen to nineteen. Action was taken last Friday on the bill in its amended form.

In the floor debate on the amended bill Senator Kidwell said "The principal of giving majority rights to eighteen year olds has been put aside for political considerations." Senator Brassey questioned whether or not enough study had been done on the bill. Brassey said he felt that the bill was much more far-reaching than the Senate knows.

Dave Thiessen, Idaho Student Lobbyist, called the bill unconstitutional after it passed the Senate. The nineteen year old amendment, according to Thiessen makes it unconstitutional. Article 3 section 16 of the Idaho Constitution states that the legislature shall pass no bill dealing with more than one section of Idaho Code.

"The bill deals with some 34 sections of Idaho law but we were getting by on a technicality. We were just making one fundamental change: lowering the age to eighteen. But now with Stoicheff's amendment we are making two changes, one to eighteen and one to nineteen," said Thiessen.

When the bill reached the house and the concurrence resolution was voted on, Representative McDermott called for the defeat of the resolution. McDermott, too, felt the bill was unconstitutional in its present form. The concurrence resolution was defeated and a Joint Conference Committee of the Senate and House will be set up to try to straighten out the difficulties in the bill.

If the Joint Conference Committee cannot straighten out the constitutional problem the bill will die. "If they can't work it out our only alternative will be to send the sections of the bill through one at a time," said Thiessen.

Some pitfalls about 18-year-old majority
In My Opinion

Pat Eibhight

As our recent Idaho Student Government Association conference, several announced and unannounced candidates for the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives were given the opportunity to talk to and answer questions from an audience of eighty student government leaders from Idaho's colleges.

To me, one of these candidates came out far ahead of the others present. I will not be negative about the other candidates, for there are those, I'm sure, that can get excited about their qualities as politicians and their political beliefs, but I cannot.

Dr. William E. "Bud" Davis, current President of Idaho State University and unannounced candidate for the U. S. Senate, was the one candidate that had the most to say and won, again, my trust and confidence.

Having had the opportunity throughout this past year to watch Dr. Davis work at several different levels, I have developed a great trust and confidence in his abilities and qualities both as an administrator and as a politician. When I heard that there was a possibility that Dr. Davis was interested in running for the U. S. Senate vacated by Len Jordan, I decided that if I really did believe in Dr. Davis, I should do something about it.

In my year in office as ASBSC President, I have learned one very important lesson: if you are convinced that something is wrong and you know that help to make it right, energy applied positively can usually change it.

I have become involved in trying to make a bad situation a good one by working to develop support for Dr. Davis. I believe that the Idaho people would benefit from the representation of a man like Dr. "Bud" Davis! I have refrained from attacking Dr. Davis as either a Democrat or a Republican, because I feel that it is the man and his views that cause me to trust him and work for him, and not the simple fact that he is from one party or another.

I am totally sold on Dr. "Bud" Davis as our next U. S. Senator, and I hope many other concerned students, young people, and adults can either now, or by election time, agree with my deep convictions concerning the necessity of Dr. Davis.

On our college campus in Idaho, and in many of our Idaho high schools, students are now forming, in fact, of all candidates. Dr. Davis that he does have the support and trust of some of the Idaho citizens, and secondly, hopefully, to elect him to the U. S. Senate.

If you already agree with us, please help. If you aren't sure or don't know any of the other candidates, please start listening and evaluating them and their stands. Above all, don't develop an "I don't give a damn" attitude, because, maybe for once, there is a difference in the candidates and what kind of representatives they will be.
Walk a mile in my shoes
IKs coordinate Walk-A-Thon

President John Barnes, ASBSC Vice-President, Marty Miller, and willing ISC students will participate Saturday, March 19 in the second annual Walk-a-thon for the March of Dimes. Dennis Ward, IK's announced this week. He reported that activities were underway to organize the biggest and best walk ever with the hopes of raising thousands of dollars for the benefit of children afflicted with birth defects.

A walk-a-thon kickoff was held Wednesday, February 16, when Governor Andrus, Mayor Jay Amsy, and Boise's Junior Min., Claudia Swanson, walked from Stuenzberg Park to the Capitol. Many hundreds more are expected to join them for the Walk-a-thon, March 18.

This year's Walk-a-thon will cover an 18 mile course beginning at Boise State Stadium, past the Capitol, continuing on State Street to the Western Idaho Fairgrounds where lunch will be served, down Cole Road to Fairview, up Orchard to Overland and back to the stadium.

Each participant enrolling in the Walk-a-thon will seek contribution pledges for each mile he or she walks. Gatekeepers record each walker's mileage, and the pledge totals are collected after the walk. Last year's walk collected $54,000.00 for the fight against birth defects. The walkers last year ranged in age from 6 to 84, and included members from all the Boise junior and senior high schools, Governor, Andrus, Secretary of State Cennarusa, Mayor Amsy, and a large contingent of Boise State students.

More information will be available from the IK's campus coordinators of the event, at the Programs Office, "We are looking for campus wide support," says Chairman Dennis Ward, "and we urge everyone to join us in a worthy fight against birth defects." Ward challenges any campus organization to bring in more pledges and walk more miles than the IK's.

As elections for ASBSC offices are now approaching, I am now declaring my candidacy for President. My past experience includes: Homecoming Chairman for 1971, Chief Justice of the ASBSC Judiciary, Member All-Idaho Week, Industries Manager for the Les Bois, Member of the Student Lobbying, and a Member on various committees on Student Bill of Rights, Judiciary Procedures and Governance Board.

I am a junior, majoring in Marketing.

As far as having a specific platform with issues that might be emphasized for campaign purposes in note so to elect, feel a general platform would allow more freedom to deal with any and all issues as they are brought to my attention. This does not, however, mean that I do not have specific projects in mind.

In conjunction with Dick Swift and Ken Smith, we have tried to circulate a questionnaire to the students in the classrooms on certain issues that have come up during the year and find out how students really feel. We felt this way we could present the students with what they felt was important instead of what we thought was an issue.

Another dam symposium

Sunday from 1-4 the Attorney General of Idaho, a member of the Fish and Game Dept., a member of the Idaho Water Resources Board, a prominent farmer, a student leader, and ecologists of varying age from 6 to 84, and included members from all the Boise junior and senior high schools, Governor, Andrus, Secretary of State Cennarusa, Mayor Amsy, and a large contingent of Boise State students.

The proposed venture would involve building a dam 12 miles downstream at the Swan Falls Dam. The costs would be split between the Idaho Power Company and the United States Department of the Interior. The Fish and Game agency would be responsible for the fishery.

Venues leaders from across the state are disagreeing on the project. United States Senator (D) Frank Church would only say that the project in a long way from becoming reality. Congressman McClure (R) plans to introduce documents in the IWRB and various power companies in the Northwest because "the joint venture is objectionable because of the public policy. unsound water into Lake Lowell and in the diversion of Snake River water into the Snake River valley."

All environmental groups questioned the project because of the problems in the reservoir. Everyone interviewed who opposed the Swan Falls-Guffy project for whatever reasons all agreed on one thing. namely, that the public is unaware of the consequences of the asb. Balance in law enforcement called for in symposium

The Symposium on Law and Justice in Ada County, held on Feb. 22-24, delved into three areas of the American Criminal Justice system: Law Enforcement, Judicial Process, and Penology.

Panel members for the discussion of Law-Enforcement included Ada County Sheriff Paul Bright, Elmore County Prosecutor Frank Hicks, FBI regional chief agent John Reed of the Butte, Montana office, Boise Police Chief John Church, and inmate Mike Chanchez, with moderator Dave Combes, News Director of KFXD Radio.

Each panel member started off by giving a description of their department's work and problems. FBI Agent Reed explained that each government department has its own investigative section and that the FBI is simply the investigative arm of the Justice department. The bureau's biggest problem is "the lack of public support in certain areas that has resulted from the Big Brother image that the FBI is simply the investigative arm of the justice department." His office's largest problem area, he said, is narcotics traffic.

Boise Police Chief Church talked about the great community support his department has had. He went into some of the programs which he felt were at least in part responsible for this community support. He mentioned things like the ride-in program, by which high school students can ride in patrol cars with the officers and see what the officers come up against on a day-to-day basis.

The college incentive program was also mentioned. This is a raising of officers pay in accordance with the number of years of college completed, as a result of this program some 85% of the force is raised.

Sheriff Bright attributed a great deal of the success of local law enforcement to inter-agency cooperation here in Ada County. As far as problems go the Sheriff cited money as his department's biggest one. He gave several examples of deputies who left the department for jobs in other areas of law enforcement because they couldn't live on the pay. By way of another example, he mentioned that when he came to office in 1964 he found the same type of equipment that he'd seen in the Boise City Police department when he'd left it in 1950.

Inmate Mike Chanchez sees one of the main problems of law enforcement as being, "that if people start caring about what's going on in the community, safety and seeing that justice is done, but after a while, with all the nervous experiences and all, it gets to be just a job." He also raised the idea of the public's role in law enforcement, saying that the public should be informed of the need to report crimes and to know what to do when they see something suspicious.

Inmate Gary Harrison said that the work release program helps make the transition from the hostile environment of the prison to that of society easier. Commissioner May said that the biggest problem with the work release program is that society won't accept it. "People think they should be locked up." Supt. Anderson and Commissioner May had high praise for the program. "They've helped us greatly, any time you can get the people in front of the public it helps."

QUESTION: Do you feel you are getting your money's worth out of the food service here in the CUB from Saga Foods?

Susan Knudsen, Junior, Elementary Education
Yes, I think the food is good, and the prices are cheap.

Dave Ogden, Sophomore, Chemistry
Yes, except the price on the cherry turnovers is ridiculous.

Paula Kindall, Freshman, General
Yes, I think we're getting our money's worth. The prices are very reasonable compared to other commercial food prices.

Tim Hill, Sophomore, Ind. Bus.
I do not eat it too often, but it is as good as any place else in town.

Nellie Pass, Marketing
Yes, but as you notice, I usually "bring my own", but do eat the Saga Foods occasionally. The prices are lower than other places around town, but how they compare with other schools I can't say.

Larry Rain, Freshman, Business
Yes. I feel that the food here is very good. Also I feel that the selections are prepared so that almost all of the students will be satisfied.

Sharon Travis, Freshman, General
The food is passable—although it often leaves something to be desired. Of course, it isn't like good home cooking. Considering the number of people Saga must serve—and the size of proportions they prepare, the food is fairly good.

Jim McMillan
No, I very seldom eat breakfast and am gone on some weekends.

Vicki Kirkman, Junior, Gen. Business
No. Because I don't eat that many meals there. Breakfast is too early and sometimes I go home for the weekend.

Bronco quintet concludes season with loss to ISU Bengals 84-78

If basketball coach Murray Satterfield and his Broncos had their way they would probably change the name of the school to something like "Home Sweet Home." Winning at home and losing on the road was the name of the game for the Bronco this year, and the final record of games last week was no exception. Win last weekend in Boise over Montana and Montana State and Tuesday's loss in the Missoula battle to ISU left BSC with a 14-12 record for the season and a 7-7 mark in the Big Sky, good enough for a third place tie with Montana. But the one story is the Broncos home and away stats. On the home ground Boise State compiled an outstanding 13 wins against 2 losses, but when they hit the road the record drops to a dismal 1-10.

Tuesday in Pocatello the Broncos lost their fight with the Bengals until the closing minutes when the ISU. Gritters came in on a series of Boise State fouls and carried out a 78-76 victory. In the second half the Broncos led to a lead that reached one point ten times, but a final flurry in the closing minutes cut the lead to three, 4:41 at intermission. Greg Bunn led the effort with 18 markers, but big Ex-Fopene of ISU dominated the inside, causing several Broncos fouls.

Both teams traded baskets in the second half until Boise ran into foul trouble. With three minutes left the Bengals had a slim 3 point lead, but two technicals and several personal fouls put the game out of reach for the Broncos. Leading score in the physical contest was Booker Brown with 22. Bunn hit 10 for 19.

But last weekend was a totally different story as the Broncos coasted over Montana State 87-76 and Montana 94-63. Friday against Montana State, Boise started out cold and had a hard time reawakening defensively against the Bobcats. Boise had 16 points in the first half, 6 feet 7 inches. The visitors held Boise to five point lead throughout the half and two buckets by Bill Correll put the Broncos ahead at halftime.

The teams traded baskets to open the second stanza, but rash of turnovers led to a healthy Bronco lead. Numerous

Boise State wrestlers are fans for the championship matches Friday. "If we can get people out to support the boys it could really pick us up," added the difference, said Idaho State's Todd Young, the state champ for Boise State.

Starting on the mat for Boise will be six freshmen, eight sophomores, two juniors, and one senior.

"At 118 pounds will be Steve Williams from Riverside, Calif. He is a state champ, but has been in the past year," added Young.

Gary Rollins will wrestle at 126. Greg Bunn is a Boise native and one of BSC's best champions and championship hopefuls. Earlier in the year he defeated the defending Big Sky champ.

Soph. Tom Harrington will go at 132 for Oregon's Young. The scrappy fighter has a three match win streak and is one of the most improved men on the squad. The 142 pound representative will be Oklahoma's strongman Barry Hester.

The Bronco team captain Bruce Edgerton will be at 150. A very strong wrestler, he sports a four-match victory string. He is the lone scorer on the squad. He also had beaten the Big Sky champ.

Dave Chandler was undefeated until recently when he lost a close 11 to 10 decision. Chandler will go at 156 pounds. He is a state champ from Aberdeen.

At 167 will be Twin Falls native Mike Bickert. He is a transfer from Gray's Harbor Junior College.

Another freshman from Oklahoma is Pete Smith at 177. He also is a former state champion and hopes to keep alive his winning ways in the Big Sky Tournament.

Jerry Elliot, 190 pounds, has won his last five matches. He is another Grays Harbor transfer. Rounding out the squad is big Mark Bittick of nearby Middleton. He is BSC's heavyweight, checking in at 370 pounds. Last summer he won the Junior Olympic title in Japan.

Boise Young cited Rollins, Edgerton, Chandler, Elliot and Bittick as his brightest hopes, but said that all men will more than likely return and build on their own. The tournament starts Thursday and ends Friday.

The weekend was a pretty hot for this one," and honors. Earlier in the year he said that the Broncos have an excellent opportunity to put titleholder.

Boise's feminine basket squad to vie in Northwest Tournament

Coach Connie Thorngren's women's basketball squad heads north to Moscow this week to do battle in the Northwest District Tournament. The BSC girls bring an impressive 12-1 record into the affair, but they will have to surmount a full head of steam from the very beginning because they open by playing defending champion Washington State. Then on Friday the BSC team will face squads from the University of Washington and the University of Montana. Fourteen to Moscow this week to do battle in the Northwest District.

Tony Smith Arbitrator Sports Editor

Last week, the Locker was the first half of a column on the athletic departments on the Boise State College campus. It was directed toward the intramural and extramural programs, their rapidly expanding growth and how they are financed.

After some more digging and further research, this columnist learned precisely the intricate workings of the Athletic Department and the Physical Education Department.

First of all, and the question most often asked is where does all the money come from to support the school's various athletic activities. To begin with, sports on the college campus are divided into two basic areas, the Physical Education Department and the Athletic Department.

Money in the P.E. Department comes from the student registration fee, one dollar per student which totals approximately $8,000 for a year's activities. Money for the Athletic Department comes from several sources, those being gate receipts (about 40 per cent) and booster contributions, guarantees, concession returns, shoe bank rental and program prices, total up to about 10 per cent. The remaining 50 per cent of the funds comes from student registration which is $18 per person. The idea that students are charged $18 is the football team and baseball team as well as the basketball team can travel to some school to play the chosen game, revolve some and others not.

However, a lot of things go into the make-up of a college and the majority of these things are dehumanizing—due to the sheer number of students. Athletics performs a vital college function for these students that do not want to be just another computer card, by providing a central gathering point for all the students, whether they be pre-med, business, law or even the proverbial basket weaver. In this way a college or university is not just a lot of separate schools but one group. A group that is not a pile of punched computer cards, but live yelling, energy bodies. Another thing that builds a college atmosphere is the intramural and extramural programs for men and women. For without it many students would assume the body shape of an egg. The physical side of college is not to be neglected, a great American ideal in the well-rounded education, not a well-rounded stomach.

Nineteen dollars is not too much of a price to pay for a semester's chance at unity and good health. In variety sports the eighteen dollars is provided for football, basketball, wrestling, baseball, track, golf, skiing, cross-country and tennis. Under extramurals the student can participate in touch football, soccer, basketball, volleyball, badminton, tennis, wrestling, track and field. There are gymnastics, bowling and billiards. That's quite an impressive list for one dollar, and these are not the classes they are extra.

Any surprising number of students have taken the college up on their one dollar and as much so that the facilities are open seven days a week and in use practically all the time.

There are hundreds of things, both aesthetic and monetary, that go into a collegiate make-up, enough to compile a good sized book, but time and paper do not permit.

One thing that can not be passed over however, is that the Athletic Department and the Physical Education Department do work together and are very content with their budgets. Scheduling events is a hard job, especially since there are so many, but the two departments have done so with no conflict yet, and all of the facilities are well used. And now that the college has a new gymnasium, plans are on the drawing boards to put it into full scale use by both departments, just like the rest of the facilities.

Boise women finish season with a second in the Wasatch Front meet

Boise State's women closed out the 1972-1973 gymnastics season with a second place finish in the Wasatch Front meet. The team, led by coach Karen Price, showed remarkable improvement throughout the year. They were the only two Boise State gymnasts in the top 21 contestants which shows the stable performance of the young team.

Pam Waddell and Shannon Page finished with high scores in beginning vaulting and intermediate beam respectively as the only two Boise State gymnasts in the top three places. The team members practice two to four hours a day during the week and have sponsored several gymnastics clinics to raise enough money to purchase team uniforms.

Introduction of '72-'73 Bronco gymnastic team

PAM WADDELL—All-Around Beginning Level-Freshman from Boise who trained very well as a first year gymnast. She improved improvement throughout the season. Expect her to be one of the top gymnasts in all-around next year.

HELEN FLEENOR-Intermediate Freshman from Twin Falls. Last season competed on bars and vaulted. This season competed in every event and showed vast improvement over last year.

PATTY LINC—(Junior) Hard-working second year gymnast from Weiser. Competes at all events, floor and bars at beginning level, vaulting and beam.

PATTY LINC—(Junior) Hard-working second year gymnast from Weiser. Competes at all events, floor and bars at beginning level, vaulting and beam.

DIANE DARLING—Boise. Top scorer for BSC in intermediate floor exercise in all meets, also took first on beginning beam at Ricks. Dianne was a first year gymnast this season. We expect Diane to be tops in her events next season.

GAYLE JURKOVIICH-Coeur d’Alene freshman. Gayle competed in intermediate floor exercise, beginning uneven parallel bars, and beginning vaulting. Gayle had a foot injury the day before the BSC meet which prevented her from competing in vaulting and uneven parallel bars. She placed in all events except the BSC and Ricks’ meets.

BECKY CORRILL-Freshman. Becky joined the team ten days before the second meet. She competed in intermediate floor exercise at the Ricks’ meet and showed promise for the future.

JILL ZANDER—Elko, Nevada. Freshman, Jill is one of the two gymnasts on the team with high school competitive experience. Jill’s events include advanced bars, intermediate vaulting and beginning beam. She placed in all events in the three meets.

JILL ZANDER—(Junior) The top scorer for BSC at the BYU meet on intermediate beam placing third in both categories. Jill has some school injuries prior to the Ricks’ meet which hindered her vaulting and floor work to some degree.

Boise Statethins capture 3 firsts

Boise State trackmen captured three firsts and placed in several events last Saturday in their first meet of the year at Logan, Utah. The Broncos showed Coach Ray Lewis to say "I am very pleased with the kids performance. We were in good condition and our progress has been good." Others in the meet were Weber and Utah State.

Blue ribbon winners for BSC were freshman Steve Kraal in the 440 yd. dash, Gerald Bell in the triple jump, and Chuck Varner in the high hurdles. Kraal and Bell also brought home honors in other events; Bell took a second in the long jump and a fourth in the 60 yd. dash, while Kraal came fourth in the 400 yd. run.

Boise's talented group of distance runners performed as expected as Herb Closson nearly won the 600, Alex Ulatosnek took second in the 880, Jim Coker was third in the two-mile, and Juan Lopez placed fourth in the same event.

Pole-vaulter Brad Weidencraft soared to a third place in his specialty, but Boise State's second high jumper Mike Bennet was still recovering from a sprained ankle and wasn't at top form.

Meanwhile, in Seattle, Oregon distance ace Harry Odey placed a very respectable 17th in the annual Trojan's End Marathon. The 26 mile race drew 600 entrants ranging from age 63 to 10, including former Olympian Jerry Lindgren.

The next action for BSC westies will be at Walla Walla, Wash. in the Whitman Relays March 18.

Frankly Speaking

The two who made the move are Roland Weidhach (6'1, 197) and Mike Erickson (5'8, 165). Erickson is the younger brother of senior right corner Denny Erickson.

Veteran Dave Ober (Sr., 6-0, 210) will be back at the strong safety and will get backup help from upcoming sophomores Jim Steklo (6-4, 190) and Gino Signa (6-1, 180).

The left linebacker spot is wide open due to Vogel's graduation and those relatively few names are waiting in line for a shot. Brad Hancock (Jr., 6-2, 210), Bob Jamison (Soph., 6-3, 215) and Loren Schmidt (Soph., 5-10, 210) are the prospects.

Another veteran senior, Tony McAuliff (6-2, 225), will be moved from right end to the defensive tackle position. He is one of the few veterans with experience and depth in the secondary.

Veteran senior Joe Larkin (6-0, 185) returns at right safety and behind him are red shirt seniors Pat King (Soph., 6-2, 185) and Brett Hengle (Soph., 6-1, 200). Larkin led the Big Sky in interceptions with 9 last year.

Another veteran senior returns at right corner in the person of Denny Erickson (5-8, 165). Erickson will be faced with competition for that spot from Charlie Fields (Sr., 5-9, 180) and Gopp Frederick (Jr., 5-11, 172). Frederick is being moved to right corner from quarterback.

The defensive back and outside linebacker positions should be strengthened this year for the Boise State Broncos. Last year at this time many slots had to be filled. While this year, the Broncos begin their spring drills, just two are currently vacant.

The graduation of veteran linebackers Dave Vogel and Ray Rodriguez will hurt in those spots, but experience and depth exist in the defensive backfield.

Tim Culler (Sr., 6-1, 185) is a question mark at the left corner position due to an injury last year. Two offensive players from last-year's freshman team will be battling Culler for the left corner spot.

The defensive backs and outside linebacker positions should be better this year. The drawing of some players from the offense to the defense will also give added depth to the defensive unit.
