On a busy day at the student health center during the flu season 60 to 70 students were treated, with no beds or room to keep anyone for observation. All this was done by Dr. Robert Matthies and two nurses, and Mrs. Smith as a floating nurse checking on students in the dorms.

The need for expanding facilities and care is plainly evident, but do most students even know what care is presently available? The answer seems to be no. Dr. Matthies said "most students think of us as a walk-in station, but we can handle them here, about 90% of the cases we don't have to go anywhere else after they've been here."

Currently the Health Center does urinalysis, mononucleosis tests, hemoglobin determination, immunizations and allergy shots, as well as trying to give complete general medical care.

The center also does some counseling work. Dr. Matthies says that counseling is one of the physicians most important jobs. For example "I had one student who was depressed in talking to me for 45 minutes, and all I did was say yes a few times. He got up and thanked me for listening. We can do a great deal in counseling for less than two minutes but counseling takes time."

Under the expansion program the Health Center needs at least two day beds for students who are too sick to go to classes, but not sick enough to require hospitalization. As an example Dr. Matthies cited a head injury, "they have to be watched for a period of time, and I don't like to tell a student who has a concussion to come back if he falls down. I don't like that type of practice." As of now if they have to keep one student in for observation it takes up one-third of the examining space.

With the increased success of the center which will be brought about by increased awareness of the care offered, the demand will increase. To cope with this increase in demand will require another full time physician and at least one more nurse.

Under the expansion the center will be able to do the full set of blood tests and x-rays. In any hospital emergency room it costs about $18.00/picture of an ankle, at the Student Health Center it will be free. The expansion will cost an extra $3.50/semester for each student. Dr. Matthies explained that the better the treatment and facilities we have here, the less the Blue Cross medical insurance will probably cost. This increase in fees has the support of the ASBSC Senate. The question of the fee increase will be on a student opinion poll on April 12.

Dr. Matthies also mentioned a plan for a program of Student Health Aides. Under this program the Student Health Physician would train students to recognize and treat problems as well as referring them to the physician. This program would bring medical care to the students and bring it to them where they live.

Dr. Matthies thinks that the Student Health Center physician and nurses should become a part of the educational process at BSC. They could give talks in the dorms, CUB, and elsewhere on safety, drug abuse, VD, and childcare.

The doctor expressed the desire to see a pre-med Club at BSC. "I wish I'd had somewhere to turn (for advice about a medical career) when I was an undergraduate."

Opinion poll-referendum to be held Wednesday

On April 12 a combination opinion poll and constitutional referendum will be held. The opinion poll will ask the students if they would want the Student Health Center to add one more full time doctor, and enlarge the physical facility.

These changes can be made by increasing the fee that students pay each semester by $3.50. The first of two items on the constitutional referendum would allow students with a grade point average of 2.00 to run for a student office at BSC. Currently a student must have a 2.25 to run for office, but only a 2.00 to hold the office after election.

Five people were prevented from running for office in the last election because they have a grade point average below 2.25. But all five had an average over 2.00.

The increased grade point average was originally intended to give the student body officers a cushion. But a group of students circulated petitions and got the required number of signatures to have the issue brought before the students.

The second part of the constitutional referendum will allow freshmen and sophomores to run for ASBSC president and vice-president. Currently the constitution requires that candidates for president and vice-president have completed 48 credit hours before becoming a candidate.

This last issue of the Arbiter is provocative. You have finally allowed yourself the liberty of expression. Great job.

However, my purpose here is not to solely clay you on the back. I too, would like to join those countless others who are discussing Phil Yerby’s latest in their quiet corners of the CU Boulder. Thanks for giving the elite a kick in the ass for common people.

Finally, it is my anticipation that Paxton and his Electric Head have come down on hard on Tommy Drechsel and his loyal band of merry men.

391 students on this campus made and2D making themselves members of the “radical right” over night. Before I do my hand hat, tell me just why Ace and his company have garnered such attention.

Drechsel doesn’t play the game by the rules. True. No promises. No commitments. No one is assured of an appointment. No one is booted out automatically.

Still many are screaming about a supposed progressive reactionariness because this boy wonder dares to clear deadwood from their reservoir of apathy.

Why the hell didn’t Paxton say something before the election? Now she comes down on Drechsel because he came down on her Bow posse.

She asked a question, rather, stated that Drechsel knew nothing of the issues except to insult thevalid sides of the Arbiter and the Lex Bon.

She of all people, knowing her right to state her opinion, is now charging another for stating his. Paxton screams at her toes have been steamed by the elephant of accusation. She sounds off so much like alarm bell that methods in there is something about.

Newing such venom out half the campus results nothing. If anything does affect from this, it may be to the discredit of the Arbiter. So go easy.

Drechsel is a clear-thinking individual. Being a social science major, he tends to think in terms of cause and effect. But his judgement becomes cloudy when emotional attack as Paxton’s lambast him. Even her editorial of this week, reeks with discharged venom. To bad, but, that her reasoning is aske.

Officers and editors, fast up to your responsibilities to the students of BSC and discuss your differences. Nothing is going to be done for us when you seek to justify your feelings of hate and distrust.

In Drechsel’s plan to straighten out existing angles in our AERC, government a plan from the grass roots! All candidates stressed this point, so 1278 students can’t be wrong! Thanks.

I was very much surprised to find my type of thinking attacked as being “radical right” in an Arbiter editorial today. The editorial contained typical Ebrighanais whining about the recent student body election, and of course, does not subscribe to the philosophy of Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happy Student Organizations. My surprise quickly changed to a feeling of inner satisfaction, however, as the authors openly admitted that they would be the first to pay if Mr. Drechsel does indeed cut down on the graft, corruption, and infinitesimal bureaucracy at present at Boise State today.

I must extend my heartfelt thanks to Mr. Ebrighanais for his public service announcement in the same column as the anterior in alienating all but the blindest of his readership. Following the latter, when taking BSC students for all we are worth, he thumbed his nose and said: “So long, Cowboy.”

Sincerely,

Wm. C. Duett

As a student leader the past year, I have been open and truthful with you in regard to our plans, programs, reasons for our actions, and all other aspects of student government.

At times, and these were very few, you and I disagreed on the majority, though, we have agreed upon the direction and actions of our student government.

However, Mr. Yerby, once the election of new officers was about to happen you apparently changed your beliefs and basic philosophies concerning our government. You suddenly realized, possibly rightfully or wrongly, that you might have some effect upon who was elected. The power of the purse has been proven. Also, the use of slander, rumors, and misinterpretation has always been a powerful force. I believe that your desire for power warped you and eventually destroyed you.

Rick Johnson, from the Lex Bon, called you a two-faced person in his article last week. I second the motion. Please flush about ten times.

Mr. Yerby, for you’ve got a big pole for our pipes to handle, and, in your case, it’s a long, long way to the river!

Yours truly,

Pat Ebrighanais

P.S. And I know that you can swallow the whole thing!

I would like to apologize to the letter writer for the littering of my campaign material. Due to the hundreds of hours I spent on this project, I was unable to write this letter. I am honestly concerned with our campus.

I would like to thank the people who helped me on my campaign, all the people who voted for me.

Sincerely,

P.S. I won’t answer Mr. Yerby’s letter because I handle them much like I handle intelligent and they go away.

Whether or not the students constitutional referendum will be held on April 12, the opinion poll will ask whether or not the students want a $3.50 increase in their fees to improve the Student Health Center. This would be a very beneficial move. The $3.50 increase would allow the Health Center to have one more full time doctor, some much needed equipment, and expand the Physical Plant, including beds. The Student Health Center is performing a valuable service on campus, and compared to the cost of this service and other campuses, this service here is very imperative. The use of the Health Service is increasing, and with the increase in use the Service is facing the possibility of becoming inadequate. The $3.50 would improve the facility, and allow it to better serve the students.

The whole point in a Student Health Center is to give quick, inexpensive, and expert medical attention to the students. We can help that happen by giving it the money it needs.

One of the hazards of writing a column like this is that sometimes I must respond to some of my misguided colleagues when they hastily attempt to vent their spleen or "close the barn door after the horse is stolen."

I have neither the time nor the space to attempt to educate these misguided colleagues in the art of politics. Last edition four members of this much-discussed publication (Arbiter) wrote a criticism of the ASBSC election (the election is not over) and of the winner... yet ladies the election is MOST DEFINITELY OVER and Directch and Henchens won... or from me to forecast future elections or events but I would suggest in future things like elections these people who are so quick to condemn the winner should take a more active part and insure the election of their favorite candidate... in the election these ladies called the election of Directch a take-over of BSC by a small minority of the radical right.

I would be the last to deny that during my two years at BSC I have been called many things but this is the first time to my personal knowledge that I have been called a member of the radical right... the way I see it if the students had not liked what were advocated he would not have been elected... as much for the four grapes... perhaps we should bury the hatchets (not in each other's backs) and settle down to the business of pursuing our education... Friday past two people came to Boise State to speak... Bernard Fahl (famous newman) was presented as part of the Lecture Series... to say that I was disappointed would be the understatement of the year... I have seen Fahl many times on the TV and I have seen him as the "Red Friday part... I can onlyassume that Fahl thought he was facing a hostile conservative audience or that someone told him that the people of Boise State were not sophisticated enough for him to really "lay it on" or... personally received much better and detailed information about "sticky Dick's trip" from Time and Life and the TV coverage... this is not to be interpreted as a slam at the people who handle the Lecture Series... I cannot believe that even those people would sponsor such a person if they could have guessed the outcome... a Professor, who I respect very much, attended with me and he said "I personally think that Fahl did not think we were worth the effort..." as much far that, the other speaker I listened to Friday was Byron Johnson, potential Democratic nominee for the United States Senate... I have listened to several times since he announced his candidacy and I am more impressed every time... this man really has something to offer the people of Idaho... much to the embarrassment of the rest of his audience a poor fool (yes a fool, even I have to admit there are a few around) attempted to drag Johnson into the supposed controversy surrounding the school elections... Johnson handled that smoothly and everyone got a laugh... When Johnson comes back (he will be back) if you haven't seen him already you owe it to yourself to meet him... The ASBSC Senate created a special committee to look at the "Les Bois" and make recommendations... there is much more I could write about the way the annual was too controversial he should have resigned... Last edition of the Arbiter, Fahl wrote "so long cowboys"... We can only regret that he did not take this stand when he should have last September... I am sure we have not heard the last from Fahl... Pat, one thing more... last year (May 71) the ASBSC sponsored an awards banquet and presented various awards to various people... I would suggest if there is a banquet this year we (the students) should present our Fearsin leader (Ebright) with a new black hat (see Fahl's column last Arbiter) and hopefully he would show the same and with a "so long cowboys" would fade away into the mists... often in the heat of anger people tend to midquote... in all my dealings with the current annual I have consistently criticized the financial arrangement surrounding it... since September last I have maintained that the editor had discovered a way to take advantage of the system and was making too much money... when I spoke about it to the editor of the "Les Bois" I have congratulated him on the way he got paid an exorbitant amount at students' money... I HAVE NEVER SAID THAT HE WAS DOING ANYTHING WRONG.
The Godfather revisited

by WOLF DAVITT

Paramount Pictures' THE GODFATHER, with 175 minutes viewing time, came into Boise last week with more fanfare, more news medium coverage than the recent Chinese atomic fallout. Why? Or why not? Let's take the film, examine it closely and see if that ballyhoo was deserved.

There is no denying it, THE GODFATHER is a VIP—very important picture. Not because it reverses Brando's plunge into oblivion, not because it exposes the underworld Mafia and Cosa Nostra bootleggers, but because the picture is a first rate production.

Not to be ignored is its very presence here, the fact it is apropos cinema, following by only two weeks the New York City premier. (Multiple openings in 3 theatres of the Lew's Manhattan chain.) When you consider Brando's avid picture fans have not found on local screens 1/3 of the prominent Academy Award nominee pictures vying for recognition this month, its vert presence is refreshing.

THE GODFATHER was originally Mario Puzo's third and most important novel. Touted by Life Magazine, it was "The fastest selling book in history". To start reading it meant you finished reading it. The story moved, held your attention and only slightly veiled an expose of a very big Hollywood personality. To see the film is an audio-visual deluge of sensations; it follows the book as closely as the studio's 3-hour screening limit would allow. Mr. Puzo and Francis Ford Coppola (who also directed) snare credits for the screenplay, dialogue is taken straight from the pages.

Sex is toned down, major roles of Mama Corleone and Johnny Fontaine are aborted. Murder and mayhem run rampant, a man's movie, this story itself exposes the underworld baronial empire of the top Mafia family in New York City (1945-1955). The money comes in from illicit gambling. We're carried from New York to Los Vegas—witnessing strong-arm and subterfuge tactics at work, the happy gargantuanities of Italian festivities, shear hams, murder, executions, love-making, family adoration. The photography captures the period, yet it tries too hard to create a dream quality assuming the pre-1930's before film was perfected.

Let's look at Marlon Brando, who is Don Vito Corleone, The Godfather. In the last 40's, Brando was the enfant terrible on New York's Broadway stage starring in the Tennessee Williams classic, "A Streetcar Named Desire". He moved to Hollywood to make the movie. And with this release of the film, starting Vivian Leigh in the role of Blanche Dubois, his career was launched. He won the Academy Award two years later for "On The Waterfront". Production multi-conflicts during the filming of "Mutiny on the Bounty" which began in November, 1960 and took two years to complete, undid his previous successes in the industry.

His career stagnant, Brando went after this role with pure intention of proving—to get it. While Paramount was casting for the lead, Brando brought his own cameramen and director to his hilltop home on Mulholland Drive in Los Angeles and shot his own carefully rehearsed scenes. When the studio was presented with the polished product, casting the Godfather came to a half. Brando had his part. He plays his role with precision, restraint, and complete credibility. Yet Brando does not eclipse the other actors by any means. Casting the myriad of performers for this film was sheer magic. They look like they were created from the pages with infinite detail. Outstanding performances are rendered by James Caan playing Sonny, and Al Pacino in the role of Michael. Sonny is the hot-head son who enjoys taking matters into his own hands—once too often. Michael is the cop-killer, sent back to Sicily for his safety, then returned to the U.S. to be groomed for his father's empirical domain. He emerges as the strongest character of the film.

The Godfather is big, festive and gory. The joy of being Italian and belonging to the brotherhood comes across the screen. The LaScala, the red wine, the Italian faces, reiterant in another language, gangland executions, make the picture seem true documentation.

Report says size of family is key effects I.O.

Joe D. Wray, M.D., a Field Staff member for the RH Guide, has recently published a report, "Population Pressure on Families: Family Size and Child Spacing," showing that as the number of children within the family unit increases, there is a corresponding increase in the number of children and parents, less satisfactory growth and intellectual development among the children, and clear-cut emotional and economic strain on the whole family.

Dr. Wray has drawn on the body of evidence from many investigations into a variety of problems. One study by Reed and Reed (Minnesota) reveals that between 1910 and 1960 the mean I.Q. of children from the normal population was highest in the two-child family and decreased steadily after the third and fourth child. Dingie's 1964 Cleveland study of families of all sizes shows a negative correlation between family size and number of children within the family.

Finally, the report shows that mothers who would like to control their family size, W. Parker Haswell's surveys conducted all over the world have repeatedly shown that mothers with three or four children want no more.

Dr. Wray concludes that, "For everyone concerned about the welfare of children, the message is clear: the larger the family, the least, the more difficult it is for parents who do want to control their family size to do so. If effective means are available, there is reason to believe that many will use them-and be better parents as a consequence."

Guidelines for clear-cutting

Senator Frank Church, Chairman of the Senate Inter-Party Lands Subcommittee, today issued the subcommittee's new set of guidelines for clear-cutting on public lands.

At a press conference, Church said that subcommittee "was pleased that the Administration has put aside the old practice of clear-cutting on public lands and has entered a new era of sustainable logging.

The subcommittee acted after holding extensive hearings on timber sales contracts. Senator Frank Church, Chairman of the Senate Interior Public Lands Subcommittee, today issued the subcommittee's new set of guidelines for clear-cutting on public lands.

A new, comprehensive set of guidelines for clear-cutting on public lands was issued today by the Administration. The guidelines were announced by the subcommittee's chairman, Frank Church, and were based on recommendations made by the subcommittee's hearings on timber sales contracts.

The new guidelines are designed to ensure that clear-cutting is done in a way that is environmentally sound and that protects the interests of the local communities. They are intended to provide a framework for clear-cutting that is consistent with the principles of sustainable forestry.

The guidelines include a number of specific provisions, including:

1. Clear-cutting should be used only where it is determined to be ecologically essential, and the procedures for clear-cutting should be in accordance with these guidelines.

2. Harvesting limitations should not be used as a cutting method on Federal land areas where:
   a. Soil, slope, or other watershed conditions are fragile and subject to erosion.
   b. There is no assurance that the area can be adequately reseeded in a timely manner.
   c. Aesthetic values outweigh other considerations.
   d. The method is preferred only because it will give the greatest dollar return or the greatest economic benefit.

3. Clearcutting should be used only where:
   a. The area is determined to be ecologically essential, and the procedures for clear-cutting are in accordance with the guidelines.
   b. The area is determined to be ecologically essential, and the procedures for clear-cutting are in accordance with the guidelines.

4. timber sale contracts

The guidelines also require that the procedures for clear-cutting are in accordance with the guidelines.

Symposium on environment protection

A symposium on the Economic Impact of Environmental Protection will be held on the Boise State campus, Room 104, 14th and 15th July, in conjunction with the Idaho Academy of Sciences meeting. Participants will include Wallace N. Cory of Boise Cascade Corporation, Boise; Dr. Cecil E. Johnson of Riverside City College and Dr. Robert W. Zeller of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The meeting will be held on the Boise State campus, Room 104, 14th and 15th July, in conjunction with the Idaho Academy of Sciences meeting. Participants will include Wallace N. Cory of Boise Cascade Corporation, Boise; Dr. Cecil E. Johnson of Riverside City College and Dr. Robert W. Zeller of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

QUESTION: How do you feel about the recent ASBSC elections?

Janie Rich, Sophomore, Fashion Merch. The best man always wins! Who won?

Kathy Archabal, Sophomore, History
The recent ASBSC elections seemed to me to be more or less a guessing game. Everyone willingly promised change, but no one really knows if they'd live up to their word. I guess the only way to tell about the new officers is to give them their chance.

Gary Davis, Junior, Acc't. I was very disappointed in the overall turnout of voters. With the enrollment of BSC of nearly 10,000 and only 10 percent of them turned out to vote, to me this shows that we don't really care who we elect to guide us.

Larry Gardner, Junior, Ed. Results seem to show just how much real interest is taken in student elections. People vote without really knowing the people they vote for.

Stanley J. Young, Senior, Psychology
There were several discrepancies but I feel these were the fault of the current student administration—and particularly the Student Board of Elections which failed to properly notify people of the elections.

Kathleen O'Brien, Senior, English I didn't know who was running, I didn't vote. Student government seems an exercise in futility. What you do doesn't really matter as the university system is a rip-off by imperialist forces and their capitalist running dogs. Thank you.

Jim Clayton, Junior, Art It seemed to be about par for the course, hardly anyone voted. Those people that did vote should be commended for their unselfish actions.

Don Detter, Sophomore, History The elections seem to be a mockery of their purpose. Electing the candidates we did, as the ASBSC president is supposed to be a graduating senior this year, is the crowning blow. I also question the funding of the campaign procedures due to some supposedly expensive radio campaigning.

Anne G. Grenke, Sophomore, Education I'm going to be a politician, and expect only on the subject of the votes, or should I say the lack of votes. Now is not the time to become concerned about the ASBSC elections. Students, where were you the 28th and 29th. That's when your student government needed your attention and voice.
Let us MGB you.

One World Crusade in Boise

Traditionally, a missionary leaves the comforts of Western civilization to bring the good news of his faith to the heathen in the jungles of Africa or the rice paddies of Japan. Traditional images, however, are not easily allied to 25-year-old Saro Mazumdar, a young missionary "plunker" for the International Unification Church. Mazumdar arrived in Boise this week, carrying her church's exomical message for Idaho.

As Muso representative for the Korean-born religious movement, Mazumdar, along with 83 other American men and women has pledged herself to three year's work, at a subsistence salary, to preaching, teaching, and witnessing her faith. A former native of Montana, she left her two-year residence in Washington, D.C., to settle here. The entire national revival effort, called "One World Crusade," is an attempt to "awaken this country to Christian ideals, and the threat of Communism." Mazumdar will be delivering lectures on these and other subjects.

The U.S. headquarters of the Unification Church is in Washington, D.C. It was founded in 1954 when a Christian leader named Sun Myung Moon began a movement in South Korea known as "unification of all religions, scientific, and cultural spheres, and the establishment of the long-awaited Kingdom of Heaven on Earth." The Unification Church was founded in Korea in 1954 by Moon. Believing the family unit is the key to the establishment of world peace, Moon knows the way to realize a true family under God. The movement attracts people who are willing to serve sacrificially for world unification. 83 such young accompanied Mr. Moon as he spoke in 7 U.S. cities. They left job, home and family to receive training and are now prepared to continue their work in respective states. There are already established Unification Church centers in 10 major U.S. cities, with headquarters in Washington, D.C.

An outgrowth of the "Day of Hope" in the "One World Crusade" travel teams. They are eager to reach Christians of all denominations, people of all walks of life. Visiting various communities they spend an active week contacting people and organizing community activity. Their aim is to mobilize present day Christians into a united body, to restore the American pioneer spirit in this way, they believe, the crimes we are facing can be met. As Abraham Lincoln once said, "United we stand, divided we fall!"

The "One World Crusade" will arrive in Boise April 6. The week's program includes a Teaching Marathon. Free concert and Conversation, Entertainment and Starling Night. Meetings in local churches with featured Boise speakers, and daily Rallies for God.

Kalb lectures at BSC

The present euphoria over the effects of the Nixon China trip is dangerous and crude, and CBS newsmen Bernard Kalb Friday. Kalb, noted Vietnam correspondent and Far East expert, spoke before an audience of about 150 in a CUBS-sponsored lecture.

The pre-July 13 (the date on which Nixon announced his trip) picture of China, Kalb said, was very crude, and very anti-Chinese. "Now the pendulum is swinging the other way," he said. "This may lead to not appreciating the real China or China's demands when we come to the bargaining table."

Kalb warned that no swift results should be expected from the China visit. The Chinese invited Nixon because they fear Russia, he said; the Americans went because they saw the need to recognize China's place in Asia.

Kalb described China as "Spartan, austere, poor but proud. If you have a picture of a country that is terribly prosperous, you are right," he said. "If you have a picture of a people extremely regimented, you are right." Whatever opinion one may have on Chairman Mao, he advised, one must admit that this (The communist movement in China) is a great attempt to change man.

As to the mathematics of the revolution, "the who won and who lost," Kalb said the feeling among reporters in the Nixon entourage was that the presence won and the intellectuals lost. "We came, we saw," Kalb concluded. "Well leave it to the historians to decide whether we conquered or were conquered.

Kalb ended his speech with a slide show and a reception.

Applications open

The Dean of Men is presently accepting applications for the position of Student Assistant to the Dean of Men. Applicants must have freshman senior class standing or a second "good," junior or senior class standing, with better than a 2.50 cumulative G.P.A.

To apply, pick up an application form in the Dean of Men's Office, A114. All applications must be in by April 15.

This is a paid position for approximately a ten month period. The Student Assistant normally schedules a minimum of twenty hours a week and is responsible for resident hall and other student programs, organizations and activities. He assists in conducting cot, interviews, campus survey, and student investigations, student eligibility, and class schedule files.

This is an excellent opportunity for students interested in personal work, teaching, or administration to "think you learn."

Beginnings
Boise State emerged as team champion for the fourth consecutive year in the Northwest Collegiate Judo championships held March 25 in Billings, Montana, hosted by Eastern Montana College. Boise State walked away with the total team points title ahead of runner-up Washington State and host Eastern Montana, as well as four of the six individual weight class titles.

Gregory also finished second in the Grand Championship by defeating the 154 lb. and 165 lb. winners. He lost to Joe Carlson, 205 lbs., from Washington State University, who won the upper division weight class match off.

The tournament was marked by a major upset when Boise State's Wayne Hamilton, a White Belt defeated the defending national champion, Bernard Koto, unlimited, all defending in the 176 lbs. division.

According to Gregory, "With so much talent available and so much coming up, future tournaments can be looked forward to with much excitement. The Boise State Judo team wishes to express thanks to Black Belt instructor John Lyons for making participation in the tournaments possible."

Boise State trackmen won't be too far from home this Saturday when they journey to Nashua for the Northeast Nazarene Invitational. The Broncs, who are probably facing College of Idaho, College of Southern Idaho, Rick's, Eastern Oregon, Whitman and other NNC, and Coach Ray Lewis' crew could find themselves in a reverse role this weekend if they continue to progress as much as they have in the past two weeks.

Lewis hopes to fill some serious holes in the Bronco lineup, especially in the weight events and in the sprints. The BSC mentor also has some minor changes in mind for the coming meet. According to Lewis, "We are going to shuffle things around a little bit this week in our running events. The runners have been somewhat tailormade to fit, and I believe they hurt the overall depth of the team. So far we've kept them all running, but I think we'll get more out of this week in practice."

Boise State Judoka teams did not fare as well as the trackmen. The Broncs didn't attend the First Annual Northwest Collegiate Judo Championships held in Saint Joseph, Missouri. Of the four Gregory and Kato will attend.

Boise State won't be the only team.

Two judoists go through the drill.

Is the sort of day you want to just take off? — Eh, class?

For the first Annual National Collegiate Team Championship Tournament held April 7-9, 1972 at Kansas State University, the Boise State Baggers will be fielding a team of eight men.

The Idaho State College Baggers, coached by Joe Cosman, will be the only team in the state to play Idaho State this year.

Boise State College Rodeo Club will be holding their Annual Intercollegiate Rodeos at Simplex Stadium in Caldwell, Idaho, on April 21, 22nd. Approximately 16 colleges from Idaho and neighboring states will be participating in the two day event.

"Boise State!" Kelly Daniels will be sporting a bronc at an attempt to keep his lead in the original bronc riding.

James Sims, who sits 7th in both the saddle bronc and in steer wrestling, along with Bill Knez, an outstanding bul rider, will be hoping to enter the national contest in June at Boise State.

Boise State is also represented by a gedi team.

Spring ball

In spring football scrimmage action, Boise State Alumnae will be facing the regular Boise team Saturday at 2 p.m.

Last Saturday during a Boise intracollegiate scrimmage, quarterback Art Berry led his white squad to a 41-40 victory over the blue team.

Berry connected on five touchdown passes, with the last one going to Ray Lowther who did the honors.

Half time saw the winners with a 206 lead.
