Appellate Traffic Court is presently in a "state of confusion" according to Ted Hopfenbeck, faculty advisor for four years. Three students on the court quit because they felt they weren't eligible, and no appeals will be heard until these vacancies are filled.

The committee appears to be the only voting member left on Traffic Court, even though Doug Shanholtz claims he appointed three people for the openings. He is attempting to form a sub-committee to study qualifications of voting members and develop some written rules that the court could refer to.

Other problems adding to the confusion include poorly marked parking areas, lack of signs, and hearing only the student's explanation of the violation. Zack, the traffic control officer, does not attend court.

Zack's full-time job is issuing tickets on campus for such infractions as: students parking in faculty areas, parking in a visitor, handicapped, or loading zone, parking over a yellow line, backing into a space, and even faculty parking in student areas. Zack's salary, among other things, comes from the Parking and Security Fund supported by fines paid on tickets he issues.

In spite of Traffic Court's problems, students are encouraged to appeal their campus tickets if they feel justified. Of the average one to three people that appeal per week, most of these are faculty and the majority win their cases.

To appeal, one must obtain a form on the second floor of the Administration Building within three school days after receiving a ticket. He must appear in court the following Thursday at 4:30 in the SEB Bannock Room where he explains his case. The court will rule him either guilty, not guilty, or guilty suspended (guilty with a legitimate excuse).

A guilty suspended means the $1 fine is waived, but the person must pay the graduated rates of $3 and $5 if he receives more tickets.

Mr. Hopfenbeck does not feel these fines are unreasonable compared to many major universities that charge $15 and up. "Parking regulations exist to keep order," he said. "If you can keep order without fines... beautiful!"

Seven hundred people watched Governor Cecil Andrus sign the bill creating Boise State University last Friday.

Boise State students, faculty, and staff were awed at the mass of politicians who journeyed to the campus to assist the Governor in the signing.

The University bill did not receive such wide support from these politicians until it became apparent that the Governor had taken a special interest in this legislation and was determined to see it enacted into law.

One spectator was overheard to comment "You sure can tell it's an election year."
Apathy or election fever at BSU

Fellow Sufferers,

I hear a lot of people rapping about a disease called Apathy making the rounds at BSU. After some time and a little lack of concern, I managed to think of a few characteristics of Apathy:

1. It is a non-discriminating disease (anyone can get it regardless of race, color, creed, etc., etc., etc.)
2. It is a universal disease (everyone catches it once in awhile and some people have it all the time)
3. Most outbreaks occur during the winter months and around election time, although if the candidates campaign all year it can be caught at any time.
4. It is highly contagious (A PATHETIC president can give it to a PATHETIC mate and down the line to the rank and file).
5. The cause of the disease is of course the fact that the student government has had very little to say about what happens to students on the campus. An example of this is the latest power play by the administration over the disposal of student building funds with regard to the construction of a Special Events Center.

We students could probably do without the disease, but we really wanted to, but to be truthful about it, who cares.

Student inquires about construction of bridge

Editor, the Arbiter:

Last fall there was discussion of a bridge that was supposed to be constructed in the near future. That talk has long since passed, but we have never heard what will happen and if the bridge will be constructed.

This bridge would connect John Davis Park with this side of the river, thus giving pedestrians easier access to sidewalks for an uninterrupted walk. It is hoped to make a shorter and more enjoyable way through the path. Now we are wondering if it will be finally under construction by next fall.

No oil shortage

WASHINGTON - Contrary to the tale being told by government and industry on the energy cri- sis, the Arab oil embargo has nothing to do with America's fuel shortage.

The truth is that an analysis of the industry's own statistics makes it clear that we have enough oil to last almost 8 years, even if the petroleum under Alaska's north slope is never produced.

The real problem is oil supply, not refinery capacity.

Although the oil giants know the demand for their products was increasing dramatically in the United States over the past 15 years, they built virtually no new U.S. refineries. It was more profitable, they found, to build refineries abroad, to supply foreign markets where demand and prices were growing even faster than in the United States.

To supply these markets, the oil companies used crude oil from the Middle East. This production was subsidized by billions of dollars in tax loopholes granted by the US. government.

In short, the American taxpayer has, through taxes taken to help the oil companies make billions in the production and sale of oil everywhere but in the United States.

The major loophole the big companies have used to plie up the profits is the so-called foreign tax credit. This tax break, like other government policies favoring the oil companies, has been justified as necessary for American national security.

But it resulted in the oil companies neglecting to build the refineries that America badly needs, and thus made the shortage of gasoline and other petroleum products predictable and unavoidable. This is the opposite of national security.

Although the shortage has been a hardship for the people of the country, they have proved to be a bonanza for Big Oil. With the shortage, the prices have gone up and so have the profits.

The oil barons have been getting other government help, too. Although energy czar William Simon talks tough in public about cracking down on the oil companies, he's behind-the-scenes wiggling to get them off the hook.

The two are only as close as they have to be to work together. If the oil companies aren't cooperating, there would be no need for the government's special relationship. Simon has the power to promote and the industry, in return, has the power to promote Simon's personal goals.

Simon, nevertheless, hardly deserves some of the things that have happened to him lately. It seems that some Americans are willing to ignore the psychological strain of the change in the oil companies' lifestyles caused by the gas shortage, and blame Simon personally for their troubles.

Some cranks have even gone so far as to threaten violence. The hate mail that comes to his desk is so violent, in fact, that Simon's staff has been warned that someone might actually try to attack him.

Our source was the office of Treasury Secretary George Shultz who this week was under Secret Service protection for the energy czar.

If Bunny Fox found out through the Arbiter that BSU is going to be BSU, then she must not be up-to-date. World-wide ‘Up With People’ group comes to Boise State, March 3

Young men and women selected to become a part of Up With People are selected from thousands of world-wide applicants between the ages of 17-25 who apply each year. While musical ability is a plus for any candidate, the primary basis of selection is not talent but the motivation behind each application, and the ability of the individual to communicate and learn. All cast members are students, believing in Up With People so much that each pays a fee to defray a portion of the cost of its educational programs. In order that the opportunity be denied anyone for financial reasons, the difference between what the student can afford to pay and the cost of his maintenance while on tour is made up through public donations to an outgoing Scholarship Fund.

The cast finds itself in an ever-stimulating learning environment, with traveling professors and educational directors providing the basis for an accredited secondary curriculum, and a college program operated under the University of Arizona. In addition to this formal educational program, their global tour schedule fosters exposure to an enormous variety of people, places, and lifestyles. A recent visit to Hawaii saw them trekking into the remote leper colony of Molakai. At European Common Market Headquarters in Brussels they were received and briefed by its executive staff. American Indian lore and culture came alive through living with families on New Mexico’s Indian Reservations.

The Up With People Show is an extension of this educational orientation. Utilizing professionals in an advisory capacity only, cast members write and arrange the music, stage each performance (with a ten ton complement of production equipment), publicize appearances, and handle the complex logistics for each of Up With People international touring companies. Through their efforts a ten month tour will cover 50,000 miles, include arrangements for the booking of the cast into approximately 1,000 private homes, and result in the staging of some 200-250 performances. In addition to appearances at the world’s most prestigious concert halls, casts have brought the music and spirit of Up With People into schools, hospitals, orphanages, prisons, sports centers, and city streets in some 30 countries on some 5 continents. They have been seen on national television in 15 countries and hailed by the press worldwide.

And this is only the beginning. Just as the barriers of age and race have passed through the magic of Up With People, so too must the artificial boundaries which man has imposed on man. Up With People sees Russia and China on the horizon with stops both far and near.

An international cast of Up With People will be putting on a performance March 3rd at Boise State Gymnasium. The show starts at 8:00 pm. Tickets are available at the Boise State University Information Booth (SUB) as well as around the city.

Local BSU students who have participated in Up With People are Rick Frisch, Van Culver, Teri Robinson and Annette Smith.

They look to the future - reaching out to learn, to share, to communicate, and to entertain.

‘Truly unique in all the world – Up With People.’
Tax relief effective form of assistance for education

Since 1969, students at Wichita State University considered various ways and means to offset the soaring costs of educational expenses. We concluded from those discussions a carefully directed use of tax relief is perhaps the most effective form of Government assistance to higher education. First, it does not require the creation of cumbersome and costly bureaucratic machinery. Second, it avoids controversy over Government determinations as to the institutional beneficiaries of Federal support.

Is there a need for Federal Tax Credit to counter higher educational expenses? Those with children know that education costs are a grim reality. The prospects are even more alarming, however, when we consider that while the price of a college education has mounted considerably over the past few years, no relief is yet in sight. It appears that tuition hikes and a general increase in other educational expenses are something with which we shall have to live for some time to come. In the light of this situation the Federal Tax Deduction would be the most appropriate way to help the hard-pressed middle and lower-income taxpayer.

Our investigation reveals that the tuition tax credit meets the needs of most Americans. The merits of the tuition tax credit are:

First. Two-thirds of the benefits would go to families earning less than $15,000 a year. A special provision cuts out the wealthy entirely. Second. The tuition tax deduction would provide substantial lessening of pressures on existing scholarship funds and would encourage the giving of scholarships by individual to designated deserving students. Third. The tax credit formula is weighted in favor of the public and land-grant colleges. The deduction will be based on 100 percent of the first $300 of tuition fees and book costs; 25 percent of the next $300, but only 5 percent of the next $1,000 of such costs. This, the lower-tuition schools get a higher percentage of benefits. Fourth. Tuition tax credit allows the taxpayer to use a part of his own gross earnings to pay for his own education or that of his children.

The increasing facts of education reveal the need for the deduction.

First. The number of students working toward undergraduate or graduate degrees has tripled in the last 15 years. One of every two citizens between the ages of 18 and 21 is a student.

Second. The cost of higher education is increasing rapidly. Between 1958 and 1968, there was a 34 percent increase in the tuition rates at public institutions of higher education, and a 59 percent increase in the tuition rates at private institutions of higher learning. It is projected that during the next decade there will be another 25 percent increase in the former and a 36 percent increase in the latter.

Third. Because private institutions of Higher Learning are especially in need of funds, their tuitions have been rising far more rapidly than public HIL. A result has been an excessive burden placed on public HIL in terms of student population. By the late 1970s, 80 to 90 percent of the student population will have to be in public HIL, which are paid for by taxpayers.

Fourth. Present Federal funds to HIL are poorly distributed. About 90 percent of Federal funds go to only 5 percent of HIL.

Fifth. Tuition tax deduction have won the support of large segments of the public. In 1968 and 1971, a nationwide survey by Better Homes and Gardens revealed that almost 75 percent of the 300,000 persons interviewed consider college expenses so basic that they should be deducted from Federal income tax returns. The Citizens National Committee on Higher Education distributed a questionnaire to the president and trustees of all public and private institutions of higher education and it indicates that 90 percent of those responding expressed enthusiastic support for the tax credit approach.

Sixth. Since 1954, over 100 tax deduction proposals for tuition fees have been before the two Houses of Congress. In fact, on March 4, 1971, the Senate passed legislation as the Rechloff-Dominick tuition tax credit amendment to the 1971 Tax reform Act. A majority of Republicans as well as Democrats joined in passing the measure, only to see it deleted by the House in conference.

The need for the deduction is great and apparent. The question now is one of implementation. Many Congressmen believe in the success of this proposed legislation if you the educational community actively support it. ACT NOW. Cut a copy of your letter and send it to your Congressman accompanied by your letter of support.

Boise, Idaho 83707

Dear Veteran,

I am delighted to have the petition you and so many of the veterans attending Boise State University have signed in support of extending G. 1. Bill eligibility from 8 to 10 years.

As you know, I am cosponsor of legislation to accomplish this goal. However, I understand the size of the Nixon Administration which has blocked action on G. 1. Bill legislation in the House of Representatives until recently, and to increase educational assistance payments by 13%. Here is how you representatives feel about the bill.

I have taken the liberty of calling a copy of your excellent petition to the attention of Senator Vance Hartke, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs, and enclosure a copy of my letter transmitting it for your information.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Frank Church

P.S. I will keep you closely posted of developments in this area.

P.S. Bill passed to increase by 13%. I voted aye.

Dear Veterans,

I hope you understand that the large number of signatures (sans addresses) precludes an individual letter to each and I hope this one answer will suffice.

I've been keeping my eye on the bill for the extension of educational benefits. A clean bill was just reported out of committee and House Bill 12628, as I know you will understand it is tentatively scheduled to be considered by the House tomorrow.

I know that if the benefits are not extended, that's your financial assistance. However, one consideration will be the $161 million price tag for FY 1974/1975.

I do appreciate all the efforts you went to in compiling all the signatures and will be keeping that in mind if the bill comes for a vote.

Yours for a free society,

THE DOOP IS STUCK

ACT LIKE THE MONTH OF MARCH.

IN LIKE A LION

...AND OUT LIKE A LAMB.
Committee recommends expansion of student health advisory board

The Ad Hoc committee on student health services filed a report this month that dealt with problems faced by the student health center. The committee concluded that the main problem facing the center is a lack of communication with the students and recommended an expanded use of the student health advisory board.

The report included a section on finances which showed a surplus at the end of fiscal 1972-73 of nearly $50,000. Dr. Robert Mathias, medical director of the health center, said part of the surplus existed when he took over two and a half years ago. "The reserve fund was presumably intended to buy the new building and equipment," Mathias said, "but the state made that impossible."

Part of the surplus will go to hire a second full time physician who is expected to begin by the middle of March.

The report stated that the student feedback to the health center concerned the prescription of birth control pills by Dr. Mathias. "Any discussion of the health center among students immediately turns to a discussion of 'moralizing' by the physician when prescribing birth control assistance."

Dr. Mathias said the previous physician routinely prescribed birth control pills without a physical examination. He said, "It's a matter of opinion on what is moralizing and what is sound medical practice. I tell people to wear their seatbelts or to quit smoking and some of them say it's none of my business." I feel that it is sound medical practice to go through a physical examination before prescribing birth control pills."

Dr. Robert Jduino who headed the Ad Hoc committee on student health services, expressed much the same feelings as did Mathias. "We talked to several students and it seems to be a matter of attitude. Some feel birth control pills should be sitting out like after-dinner mints and some feel birth control is morally wrong."

Judio concluded that the problems facing the health center should be discussed internally, by the student health advisory committee, rather than by an external committee.

The Awaji Puppet Theatre will be performing at the Capital High Auditorium on March 12 at 8:00.

Awaji Puppet Theatre in Boise

The city of Boise will enjoy a rare cultural opportunity this spring when the Awaji Puppet Theatre of Japan, an "Intangible Cultural Treasure," is to perform at 8:00 p.m., Tuesday, March 12, at Capital High Auditorium. On the following day at 10:00 a.m. a lecture demonstration will be given at the Student Union Ball Room.

The group from Awaji Island in the Inland Sea is visiting the United States for the first time, and their performances in Boston, New York and other cities have been highly acclaimed.

Representing one of the two oldest traditions of puppet theatre in Japan, the convention of the Awaji puppeteers dates back to the sixteenth century. (The other tradition is preserved by the famous Bunraku troupe of Osaka, which has had three successful visits to the United States.) The puppet tradition of Awaji apparently began in association with the worship of a Shinto god, and has been handed down through the generations by the sight of a blind man as a means of seeking the God of Wealth.

The Awaji puppets are usually divided into two main types. Each puppet is worked by three puppeteers: the formally dressed master puppeteer manipulates the head and right arm, one hooded attendant the left arm, and the second hooded puppeteer the legs of a puppet.

The master puppeteer's artistry is also shown in his handling of facial expressions of the puppet. The puppeteers are visible to the audience at all times, but after a few minutes the viewer is attentive solely to the puppets.

The Boise performance of the Awaji Puppet Theatre of Japan is made possible by the grant from the Idaho State Commission on Arts and Humanities and the National Endowment for the Arts. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for students and children. Advance tickets are available at the Information Booth, the Student Union Building, and tickets will also be sold at the door. The lecture demonstration on March 13 is open to students free of charge.

One day last week I went to the Bookstore to buy some personal items. When I checked out, the bill came to almost $4.00. After I left, I thought to myself, "My goodness, that seems high for toothpaste, mouthwash, deodorant, and other things."

This got me wondering. So one morning I rode my bicycle downtown. I decided to check the Bookstore prices with some others. I spent a lot of time making a list of prices for different stores. But because I had to ride my bicycle, I couldn't go to too many stores. The stores I did go to were Butterly's and Grand Central. This is what I found:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Item</th>
<th>Butterly's</th>
<th>Grand Central</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bic pens</td>
<td>$0.99</td>
<td>$0.17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>College spiral notebooks</td>
<td>$0.59</td>
<td>$0.57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Colored sweat shirts</td>
<td>$3.35</td>
<td>$2.59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cotton gym socks</td>
<td>$1.75</td>
<td>$1.74</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Record album</td>
<td>$0.29</td>
<td>$0.29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kris Kristofferson-Border lord deodorant</td>
<td>$1.29</td>
<td>$1.09</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 oz. Close-up toothpaste</td>
<td>$0.84</td>
<td>$0.89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6 oz. Dial deodorant</td>
<td>$1.29</td>
<td>$0.89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kleenex (200) 2 ply</td>
<td>$0.47</td>
<td>$0.47</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Safeguard soap 3 oz.</td>
<td>$0.22</td>
<td>$0.21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10 regular Tampons</td>
<td>$0.49</td>
<td>$0.39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scope Mouthwash 12 oz.</td>
<td>$0.01</td>
<td>$0.19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ve's Vapo-Rub 1.3 oz.</td>
<td>$0.65</td>
<td>$0.59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gillette Technic 7 Blades</td>
<td>$1.10</td>
<td>$1.10</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

I think the prices at the Bookstore are a bit higher. I have a friend who is a marketing man and he figured out for me how much more the Bookstore is than the others. He says that the Bookstore is 35% more than Butterly's and 20% more than Grand Central.

This is how I think this is really sad. For most people like me who live on campus, the Bookstore is the only place to go to buy things. But people like me can't go to other stores. So I think the Bookstore should sell things cheaper for people like me.

Legal awareness discussed at Center

Wrestling, a lot like life itself

"I probably wouldn't have an ice cube's chance in hell to go to college if it weren't for wrestling," stated Mark Billick, BSU's talented heavyweight wrestler in a recent interview. Billick and his Boise State teammates have reasons to capture the Big Sky wrestling championships to be held this weekend in Iowa. "I think we'll win it," Billick said. "Nobody on our team should place less than third and I definitely feel we have a good shot for first at every weight."

Billick was red-shirted last year because of a knee injury but has come on this season and holds a 14-1 record heading into the league championships. During the course of the interview this reporter pulled out a determination in Billick to succeed and satisfy his coaches and teammates, and to especially justify the trust put in him by his coach at Middleton High School, the late Gary Comstock. Comstock, according to Billick, was the person who helped Mark down the road and most influenced his life. "We had a real personal relationship," Billick said, referring to Comstock and himself. "He wasn't just a coach, he was a deep personal friend." Comstock was fatally injured last fall in a tragic skiing accident.

Reflection on why he chose Boise State over dozens of offers from other schools, Billick explained, "I like Idaho and it's people and I knew Idaho wasn't known for the sport of wrestling. I had faith in Mike Young (head wrestling coach) that he could build a program and that I would be part of a winning team. That's why I came to Boise State."

Asked how wrestling has helped shape his own life, Billick stated that to him, wrestling is a lot like life itself. "You don't win them all," he says, "The key to wrestling as well as life is how you come back from a loss, if you can get back up again after being knocked down. You have to fight for everything you get. Wrestling builds character because of that."
Skiers win third Big Sky Championship for BSU

Boise State has seen two Big Sky Championships in football and cross country this academic year. Following last week’s team captured the league title last Friday at Bogus Basin in Boise.

The championship followed as somewhat of a surprise since Boise State finished several teams behind in the standings.

A new addition to the squad is the return of Boise State University head coach Bob Connor. The Broncos outlasted the Miners 71-68 and 5-7 in the Big Sky. They have beaten the Broncos in Logan Wednesday night. The game was in Bozeman, home of Montana. Following suit, the year and 6-7 in the Big Sky.

With the victory, MSU Differential guard Dick Dickey with 10 points for the team. The 6-7 forward ace was essential to Boise State's defense. His other BSU finishers were Griz country Bill Vernon 55-55 (6th), Downhill Rich Gris 56-26 (2nd), Dave Warkins 58-34 (3rd); Slalom-Watkins 92-25 (2nd), Craig Manort 97-65 (5th), Jump-Wakins 166-4 (2nd), Pat Boyington 102-7 (5th). Dave Skinner 92-4 (7th).

Final cage tests set

NCAA play-off contenders will be the final foes for the Boise State University basketball team this weekend. Friday night the Broncos will face Idaho State in the Minidome in Pocatello. Saturday night Boise State will travel to Logan, Utah for an encounter with the Utah State Aggies.

Four points spell losses

Boise State University, looking for an upset over the University of Montana, fell short as the Grizzlies came from behind to hand BSU a 58-56 loss. Sophomore Pat Hoke kept the Broncos on their toes with 17 points for the team. The 6-7 forward ace was essential to Boise State's defense. His other BSU finishers were Griz country Bill Vernon 55-55 (6th), Downhill Rich Gris 56-26 (2nd), Dave Warkins 58-34 (3rd); Slalom-Watkins 92-25 (2nd), Craig Manort 97-65 (5th), Jump-Wakins 166-4 (2nd), Pat Boyington 102-7 (5th). Dave Skinner 92-4 (7th).

Idaho State is tied for the lead in the Big Sky with Montana and needs a win to stay on top. Game time for that crucial encounter is 8 pm. The Utah State Aggies still have a chance to shot at an at-large berth in the first round of the NCAA playoffs. It will be the first meeting over on the basketball court for the two schools and will start at 7:30 pm.

"We have no feeling on who the Big Sky in the play-offs," commented Bronco head coach Bus Connor. "We are going to represent ourselves and make the final trip of the year to win both games," he added.

Boise State is now 1-12 for the year and 6-7 in the Big Sky. They dropped two close decisions in the State of Montana last weekend. They were defeated by Montana State 70-68 and Montana 58-56. "In the Montana game, we played about as well as we could, we just got beat at the end," Connor said. "We really got hurt when Clyde Dickey fouled out with 12:19 to play," he added.

"We have lost some close games and if we hadn't, we would be on top of the league ourselves," he said.

Idaho State has an 1-7-1 season record and are 10-3 in the league. They have beaten the Broncos two of the past three times the teams have met this year.

Utah State is 15-9 for the season and will host Weber State in Logan Wednesday night. The Aggies are currently 3-13 at home. Last Saturday night they lost to Denver 93-92 in Denver.

Expected to get the starting call for the Broncos in their last games of the season are Clyde Dickey and Terry Miller at guards with George Wilson and Maurice Buckingham at forwards.

Sophomore Pat Hoke will be the starting center.

Judoists hold tourney

The Boise State University Judo Team will host the 1974 Northwest Collegiate Judo championships at BSU fieldhouse March 9th. The Bronco Judo team has won the annual even three of the past four years and looks very strong to regain the team title. The tournament begins at 1:00 pm Saturday, March 9th. Admission is free to the public.

Films, bike ride

The Outdoors Activity Committee would like to extend an open invitation to all students to attend the film and lecture series and any and all outings. Students that are interested in going on outings or would like to initiate an outing are urged to contact Mike Wentworth in the Games Room.

All the activities planned to date for the month of March are as follows: March 3rd starts a film and lecture series on outdoor survival. The first film is titled The Lost Hunter. March 10th is the second film and lecture. The last film and lecture is March 24th. There won't be a film March 17th due to spring break. It has been seven lean years for the Big Sky schools in wrestling except for the Idaho State Bengals. The Bengals could make their toughest challenge in those seven years come this weekend when the Big Sky wrestling championships are held in Boise. The Bengals have won even more conference wrestling titles since '67 but the Boise State University Broncos are expected to give them a stiff challenge Friday and Saturday, March 1-2 in the Boise State gym. Admission will be charged for the tournament except for BSU students.

"Idaho State is going to be sky high for the championships and so will we," said William Sabatini, commented Bronco wrestling coach Mike Young. "For Boise State to win the title, we'll have to have some superb performances from our wrestlers," he added. The Division II match record into the affair with a 13-3 mark. Boise State has also a first place finish in the Beehive Invitational and a fourth at the MIWA tournament. Idaho State has also had four wrestlers placed fifth in the Beehive and 15th in the MIWA.

Boise State, who was second last year to Idaho State, has a 7-7 dual record and had a sixth at the Beehive Invitational and a fourth at the MIWA. Idaho State has also had four wrestlers placed fifth in the Beehive and 15th in the MIWA.

Wrestling is the only sport at Boise State, but it is the school's premier sport. With a tradition of more than 30 years, Boise State has won seven national championships. The University of Idaho does not have a wrestling team.

Boise State is the most successful program in the Big Sky Conference with 13 titles, eight of which were won by Idaho State.

BSU welcomes Big Sky wrestlers in championship

For example, while helping coach the WSU varsity team to its conference championship, he also coached the junior varsity to an outstanding 18-2 season record.

These accomplishments are testimonial to the winning attitude that Ross Vaughn brings to Boise State. Asked about his observations of the Big Sky Conference, coach Vaughn said, "Gonzaga and Idaho are primarily the teams we have to beat since they compose the Northern Division along with BSU."

Henry Mago (168-8) and Larry David (52-4) will be in the discus and shot respectively. Brad Glass (14-8") and Stan Andrews (115-6") will pole vault for the Broncos.

At long beach, cross country champ Bob Walker will be tutored by coach Vaughn. Denny Bannister, Randy Taberley and Brent Lienman or Bennett.

Jeff Howell and is now top-seeded for the Idaho does not compete in 1-2 in Boise, Head coach Mike Young missed the meeting in Cheney, Wash. for a dual meet there. It resulted in the University's 14th win in 15 outings. Boise won 30-13 over Eastern Washington State College.

Vaughn unveils baseball team

Washington State University has won the Northern Division baseball championship of the Pac-8 Conference five of the last nine years in a row. Last year they finished the season with 49 wins and only 15 losses.

If you're wondering what has led to baseball at Boise State University, the answer is nothing. That's it, except that the WSU assistant coach last year is the new head coach this year at BSU. His name is Ross Vaughn and it's true what he says is cemented in the idea of winning.

Incredible women vie in NW

BSU varsity women cagers take their perfect 11-0 record to Eugene, Oregon for the Northwest Tournament. This event is of prime importance since the winner will get the right to representing the NW in the Nationals.

"There will be a very fine group of schools competing of high caliber," stated head coach for Boise, Connie Thorngren.

State will be the 'A' category along with 13 other schools including University of Washington, Washington State University, Washington Central State, Oregon at Eugene, Montana State University, Portland State University and Simon-Fraser from Canada.

The entire women's squad will be making the trip and "will all get to play at one time or another," said Thorngren.

"Our girls have worked hard and are dedicated," she added. "They take playing basketball seriously and it's very important to them. The work has paid off as this is the first time Boise State has ever finished with an undefeated season record. We have won the majority of our games by over 20 points."

In 1971, BSC had an 8-1 season record and won the NW 'B' bracket. The women were 12-1 in 1972 and won all their NW games except one - to Wash. St. in the 'A' division. 1973 was an 'off year' for the then BSC women hoosiers, having a season mark of 10-4 and finished NW play with two wins and three losses.

In the last regular game of the season, BSU topped Northwest Nazarene College 50-33. Deanna Brower, a 6'+plus freshman dumped in 15 points and shot 42 percent from the field. State led at the end of the half 20-18 and then came back in the third period with a tough press to limit the Crusaders to only four points in that quarter.

The talented BSU gymnastics squad will be hosted at the University of Utah, Friday, as the Wasatch Invitational.

State finished third last year with Brigham Young University capturing top honors.

"I would have to pick BYU to take it again this year," predicted head BSU coach Pat Holman.

The Bronco women are coming off a close second place finish in their own invitational last weekend. Utah State won the compulsory events and BSU received second in both. Debbie McCormick, a junior from Parma, Idaho, was first in All-Around. She also took top marks in beginning beam. Senior Dale Hunt from Carey, Idaho, was second in All-Around.

Pam Waddell, a junior from Bishop Kelly HS in Boise, was second on the intermediate All-Around.

OPTIONAL TEAM SCORES: Montana 79, BSU 49, Utah State 35.

COMPULSORY TEAM SCORES: Utah St. 164, BSU 158, Montana 120.
