Facelift gets 'go ahead'

Boise State University President John Barnes received the “go ahead” signal Thursday from the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council to begin collecting bids on a $5,765,000 worth of construction and land purchases.

Among the projects are a football field across the Boise River, which should be completed by the '74 fall semester, a new science building, student addition and Special Events Center. A new Vo-Tech building is also on slate for construction.

Dr. Barnes, BSU President, stated that he thought the State Board of Education would approve plans for the Vocational Building at its meeting next month.

The 3.5 million dollar science building will consist of three stories with total floor space of 90,000 square feet. It will house Nursing, Chemistry and Life Science Departments.

A boiler plant addition is also being planned to accommodate the new science structure; this will also serve in the capacity of a standby facility.

The new stadium addition, slated to be completed by August 1975, will seat an additional 5,625 spectators and will be located on the east side of the present stadium complex.

The football team, along with the university, will serve as an extension of a planned pedestrian mall. This area, will be located between the Library and School of Business. Bicycle parking facilities will be provided in this area, as only pedestrian and bicycle traffic will be allowed.

Other plans included in the BSU facelift include the exclusion of all traffic through the center of the campus and in the area between the Classroom Elementary School and the present science building.

A parking lot to accommodate 300 cars is to be located in the open area adjacent to the Towers Dormitories.

The 1.1 million dollar Special Events Center will have a seating capacity of 438. The lobby area will serve as a display area for various art shows. This building which will be constructed next to the Student Union Building and will accommodate events as the State film series, concerts and Theatre Arts Department presentations.

BSU faculty who feel they have been discriminated against in the allocation of general pay increases say they intend to file suit with the Board of Education “every chance to work,” but if it fails to give them what they believe are adequate raises they are prepared to file suit with the Idaho Department of Labor.

BSU President John Barnes explained his veto of the faculty-proposed schedule to distribute money for raises to employees on an equal basis as a special Faculty Senate meeting last week. Though he had bypassed the State Board of Education a number of times this year, he told the senators he was unwilling to adopt the plan because he would be setting a policy for the board. He did promise that his staff will gather information soon on salary differentials throughout the State.

But individual faculty members have already begun their study of pay inequities. A Faculty Welfare Committee study of two years ago showed that salaries in the School of Business were $200 higher than in other schools, regardless of rank. “And things haven’t changed much since them,” said one teacher.

Because “you have to look at sex when you’re talking about differences in salaries,” faculty members claim they may be able to make a strong case in court.

Senate approves budget

Tuesday, the Senate approved the ASBSS budget for 1974-75. The final budget varies slightly from this year’s expenditures: the major changes in funding are for a student radio station, the Recreation Board and Service Awards.

The senate’s $5,000 allocation to the Radio Association will finance a transmitter and antenna “that should broadcast over a two-mile radius,” according to Jerry Tellfinger, former president of the Student Radio Association. He said that once the station is operating, they could obtain a federal grant and purchase a more powerful transmitter. The station will be on the FM band and be public service oriented, similar to KAIT-TV.

Tellfinger mentioned some programming plans to the senate. Programming will include jazz, easy listening, sports coverage and news.

The recently reorganized Recreation Board which governs and appropriates money for Intramural Sports, recreation oriented clubs, and committees received $13,100 from the senate. The Rodeo Club, Bowling Team, Outdoor Activities and others will now be funded through the Recreation Board.

CALLOPE CRISIS

Did you know that Boise State University owns a callope? Did you know that the callope was a gift to the university? Because it was a gift to the students, it does not belong to any one department or individual; however, this is not clear to certain parties on the campus.

Because of the callope's age, it is reportedly impossible to use the machine for this year's match. Some rumors place the cause on Wilbur Elliott's head. Elliott, Chairman of the BSU Music Department, says that if the machine is not totally repaired no one will be allowed to use it.

Vo-Tech mechanic, Kenneth Edgett, has stated that the damage to the machine is so bad that it is impossible to use it. He has stated several parts need replacing in order that the callope might run again.

Who ever is responsible for the machine's maintenance and use is simply not doing their job. Those Vo-Tech students are in need of that callope, and because of administrative red tape they are being denied use of the said machine. I would like to know, just what the hell is going to be done about it, and when it is going to be done. That machine belongs to the students of this institution and I for one am a parent who had difficulty

Are we being stabbed in the tank?

The energy crisis has come and gone with the suddenness of a sneaker on a cold morning. With the end of the Arab oil embargo (which the Shah of the oil-rich Iran claims never existed in the first place) it has been announced that gasoline supplies are back to "near normal"—though we are being urged to exercise restraint in our use of this precious resource. It is now time to take note of what occurred during the late, great energy crisis.

To begin with, as those of us who drive have noticed with horror, gasoline prices have risen faster and higher than the Cape Kennedy space probe. While this was happening the profits of the Shell Oil, a major oil company, "nearly tripled in 1973 to a record figure of approximately $16.8 billion" (Washington Post, March 1, 1974)

Not to be done by Shell, the Occidental Petroleum Corporation, has announced that "earnings for the first two months of 1974 were more than 18 percent higher than the same period a year ago." The Idaho Daily Statesman, April 12, 1974, reported the earnings for the first two months of 1974 were more than $40 million higher than the same period a year ago.

Senator Henry Jackson, in observing these and other increases, noted that the "seven standard operating companies in Texas, Gulf, Standard Oil of California, British Petroleum, and Shell reported combined profits during the energy crisis ranging from 34 percent to 43 percent. (Washington Post, December 15, 1973.)

One person, during this period when the railways were driving Szegoe McDick-like into the vaults of dollars, it was open season on ecology and ecologists, whom it was commonly known, were hairy fanatics ever-searching for new factories to sabotage.

In light of this it is not surprising that the energy crisis became a convenient means of disposing of unfavorable measures that would limit the profit margin. One group of people were murdered behind a curtain of spurious arguments.

Now I'm not much of an ecologist, so maybe I can believe the Alaskan pipeline. I am willing to do my bit to help America, so I'll turn down my thermostat, and get out for the last walk.

When I look at all that has happened in the past few months and ask myself who's in this, who's shafted and who isn't, who's making a profit out of the energy crisis, and who's 온 the legislation hasn been passed, then I can't help but get a bit suspicious and worried. I'm not being fleeced, I will continue to wonder every time I fill up my gas tank.

Hoping that the bids we will receive will be comparable in price to that of the policy we now have. Also, we have looked at a student exemption for admission fees for High School games at Bronco Stadium. As best it looks as if there will be no fee charge for all High School games with the exception of the Inter-City battles.

Also, in the same area, we are currently investigating means of students obtaining a spouse card for upcoming athletic functions this coming academic year. As we receive more details in these areas, I will be sure to let the student of Boise State University know the happenings in the Office of the President. If you have any questions feel free to contact me.

The annual Tau Alpha Pi Hobo Scholarship has been planned for May 3, 1974, coordinated by Vocational Technical students of Boise State University, the church will involve some 550 students who will be soliciting funds from motorists throughout Boise.

The March is one of the major sources for financial assistance to vocational technical students who show high academic achievement as well as financial need for continuation of schooling at BSU.

This year's March promises to be an outstanding success, as students who handle the coordinating of the March report that donations have already been received from numerous sources. This year's goal is set at $7500. Your support will be greatly appreciated.

From rags to riches... Tau Alpha Pi Hobo's March ended up at the capitol with Governor Andrus after soliciting funds from motorists. This year's March will be held May 3.
BSU registrar retires; given emeritus status

BSU Registrar, Alice H. Hatton, has been granted emeritus status by Idaho State Board of Education and the BSU Faculty Senate effective upon her retirement, July 1, 1974. She will be succeeded by Associate Registrar Leland Mercy Jr.

Mrs. Hatton has been a member of the BSU staff since June, 1959, when she accepted the position of assistant to the registrar. She assumed the full responsibility of director of admissions and registrar on July 1, 1961.

Prior to coming to Boise, Mrs. Hatton taught in secondary schools in Oregon and Washington for 15 years.

Over the years Alice Hatton has seen her department grow from two fulltime and one part-time person to a staff of 14. During those years she has at one time or another done the job of each of the present staff in the Admissions Records Department.

The present staff has been necessary because of the remarkable growth of students that Hatton arrived when all record keeping was done manually, a time-consuming task. Today it is automated, thanks to computers.

During her stay she has seen the school change from a junior college to a university and bear an enrollment from approximately 2,500 in 1949 to over 10,000 students today.

Mrs. Hatton takes pride in recalling—the widely known reputation of Boise Junior College and the willingness of students to accept BSU transfers who completed the junior college program. This policy has been maintained throughout the growth years of the present institution.

While her plans are indefinite, Alice Hatton looks forward to an active retirement. A variety of interests—family and grandchildren, as well as travel, figure prominently in her future.

Psych. grad given teaching assistantships

Two Boise State University seniors majoring in psychology have been awarded assistantships while pursuing graduate degrees next year.

Jett Phillips, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Phillips, 3233 Edison Drive, Boise, will attend University of South Dakota at Vermillion. His teaching assistantship pays $2,200 over a nine-month period. Phillips' father is chairman of the psychology department.

Kathryn Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Smith, 5615 S. Four Mile Road, Boise, will attend Purdue University in Lafayette, Ind. His teaching assistantship pays $3,200 over a ten-month period.

Phillips' graduate work will concentrate on human factor psychology, while Smith's work will deal with experimental psychology.

Building Committee needs student help

Students are needed to work with the Student Buildings & Structures Committee. The committee is an organized student voice to the administration in the planning of buildings at Boise State. The committee can play a vital role in the direction that the university will grow, in its curriculum, appearance, entertainment facilities, and environmentally.

Presently, four students are burdened with the responsibility of representing the entire student body. We need your thoughts, ideas and suggestions to give a more valid representation.

The committee will be circulating a poll in several classes this week to try and get some idea how other students feel. For a copy of the poll, or just to let us know where you're at, contact any of the following people: David Wood, ASBSU Office (second floor SUB) 385-1440 or 343-2388

Fred Houtman 385-1728

David Frisinger 343-2388

Mary Benton

The committee meets regularly and all students are welcome.

Cultural Unity Consortium, Inc. promotes community consciousness in Boise

This spring has witnessed the birth of a nonprofit corporation — the Cultural Unity Consortium, Inc. The purposes of this new corporation are to promote and encourage a developing community consciousness in Boise on a cultural and spiritual level, and to demonstrate and attempt to provide several different channels through which people can gain insights into a fuller, more meaningful lifestyle. Part of the goal in mind includes plans to sponsor events at which people can come together to share ideas, learn new things, and, in general, have a good time.

The first event will be a festival in Julia Davis Park, May 25th and 26th, which will feature Baba Ram Das, author of the book BE HERE NOW, as a main speaker. Also Ann Wigram, a noted nutritionist and author of several books, has promised to come. She will be speaking and possibly giving demonstrations both Saturday and Sunday. She will also be setting up an information booth at which people will be able to buy her books and see examples of how to build indoor gardens, among other things.

The schedule of events for the Festival includes speakers at the podium, folk and rock music, arts and crafts concessions, and food booths. Anyone interested in participating in either the planning of the festival or in the festival itself as an artist of whatever, should contact George Benfield, festival general chairman, at 345-4476, or write c/o Rocky Mt. Cultural Unity Festival, C.U.C., Inc., P.O. Box 201H, Boise, Idaho 83701.

The festival will include folk and rock music by local and out-of-state people, some crowd-participation events as well as dancing, singing, and, for children, a special center will be set up for fingerpainting: working with clay, and building things. Invitations have been sent out to a T'ai Chi dance group from Ontario, Oregon music theatre group from Oregon, and a soft dance and musical group. The Festival will run from about 10 am to 10 pm both Saturday and Sunday.

Arrangements are being made to form a "Saturday Market Committee" which will be an extension of the Cultural Unity Consortium. The Corporation intends to sponsor an open market on private property kindly lent to them in the downtown area of Boise. The "Saturday Market" will be held every Saturday during good weather. It's purpose is to provide a place where artists and craftsmen may display and sell their wares to the public in a relaxed and congenial atmosphere.

The first Market Committee meeting is scheduled for April 30, 7:30 pm at the Emanuel Methodist Church basement at 14th and Eastman, 7:30 pm, April 30th. It is open to all interested persons. If there are any questions please call 345-4476 or write the Cultural Unity Consortium for more information.

For the third time in the history of Boise State's Subal Theatre, a Shakespearean comedy has been produced, and, in the tradition of "A Midsummer's Night Dream" and "The Tempest," "As You Like It" becomes a fine evening's entertainment.

The technical aspects of the show are quite good. The set, designed by Roger Lauterbach, makes for a visually interesting stage. The changing of the columns to trees, deepening the stage by the lighting of a backdrop and the addition of foliage borders makes the transition from city to country believable. The lighting though, was not up to the usual standard. There were a number of dark spots on the set. Of course, the set was a difficult one to light.

The greatest asset of this production is its characters. The majority of them sparkle onstage. The characters made the poor plot of the play worth listening to. In fact, if this wasn't "SHERAKESPEARE," the acting of the play would get laughed off stage for its trivialness and silliness.

As I said, all the characters were good and many stood out the moment they stepped on stage. Particularly likeable were Touchstone (David Six), a delightfully little imp; Adam (Bruce Richardson) as the funny old servant; Jacques (John Elliott), the curte, but almost unbelievably dumb Audrey (Denice Zundel); the tw0 old shepards Corin and Silvius (Chuck Bower and Pat Boyington) the first a pseudo-philosopher, the second, lovestruck; and William (Brian Joffoiss), the thick-headed shepard whose scene with Touchstone is one of the most priceless moments in the production. Doing a fine job in the leads of Orlando and Rosalind, were Steve Marker and Elizabeth Streiff, although once in Audrey (Denice Zundel), an unattractive, beguiling shepard whose scene with Touchstone incites Oliver's wrath. Orlando meets the charming Rosalind and her beloved cousin, Celia (Becky Oakes) before he flees for his life to the forest of Arden. Orlando and Rosalind immediately "fall in love" and their separation is marked by intrigue, disguise, and all sorts of encounters and complications before the lovers are reunited at the end of the drama. Hymen, a god of marriage (Maureen Cochran), portrays this role with the satire and affectation it needs.

The party ends in a11ay of marriages, Rosalind and Orlando, Celia and Oliver, Touchstone and Audrey (Denice Zundel) an unattractive, beguiling country wench, Phoebe, a shepherdess and William, a country fellow. Hymen, a god of marriage (Maureen Cochran), portrays this role with the satire and affectation it needs. As the rejoicing concludes and everyone departs, Rosalind bids farewell to the audience with an Epilogue.

Two golf tournaments this week

It will be a busy weekend of golfing for the Boise State letterman's as they will take part in two tournaments. The first will be the Expo 74 tournament in Spokane followed by the University of Idaho Invitational in Moscow.

The 15-team Expo 74 tournament will consist of a total of 45 matches Thursday- and Friday. It will be held on the course at the Indian Canyon Course in Spokane. The University of Idaho Invitational will be Saturday and Sunday and also be a 36-hole affair. That match will be on the UI's home course.

"We are looking forward to both tournaments. I'm hoping that we can do well and get a little momentum going into the Big Sky championships next week in Ogden," commented head coach Mike Montgomery.

The Bronco do not have any regular matches until the Big Sky which will be held on the same courts. They are the Weber State Invitational. Dave Graham and Naco Larracono went through the Tournament undefeated. The only team match the Broncos lost was a 5-4 decision to Weber State.

"All of our players played very well today," commented head coach Dan Owen. "All of them deserve credit for the win. When you win 40-45 matches, that is quite an accomplishment," he added. "We'll do a lot of practicing before we go back down there for the Big Sky Championships."

The women's track and field team competed in four meets and ended the season with a win-loss record of three wins and one loss. The fall meet was an easy win for the BSU women over NNC at the NNC Men's Track Invitational.

The second was a tri-meet between BSU, NNC, and Eastern Oregon State College. The BSU women took four first places in the running events and three first places in the field events.

Their winning record was continued when they took first place against tough competition in Logan, Utah. BSU earned a total of 121 points; Ricks took second with 106, BYU 104, and USU 102.
