BSU Psych professor discusses pelicannapping

Pelican dead? No, says BSU Professor Carlos Arreola. Due to a bit of good luck, the pelican that had been staying at Lucky Peak Dam is now recovering from an infection in its mouth, also a tapeworm condition, in the clinic of Dr. John Lee, Meridian. The bird, a brown pelican (an endangered specie), was seen by Richard Outlaw, a student at Santa Fe Community College in Gainesville, Florida, and Carlos Arreola, a psychology professor and psychometrist at the Counseling, Guidance, and Testing Center here at BSU. They determined the bird was sick and in need of medical attention, and called the Federal Game Commission, where Dr. Lee was recommended.

Apparently, they were seen leaving the dam with the bird, and in the September 12 edition of the Statesman, it was reported as "Pelicannapping".

Richard Outlaw had been studying the specie of brown pelican for the last year in Florida. This particular specie needs salt water fish in order to survive. He is unable to digest fresh water fish properly, and the salt-water cures infections and rids the bird of tapeworms.

This pelican does not need a home, as was implied in the September 13 edition of the Statesman. He needs to be returned to either coast and cared for there.

So far, Booth Fishery has donated salt water fish, in order to keep the bird alive.

How did the pelican arrive in Idaho? Possibly, it could have flown off course, but it has been speculated that the brown bird might have been illegally transported into the state and abandoned. The fate of the bird lies with the Federal Game Commission, which will determine what to do with it.

PELICANNAPPING? It seemed that way when BSU Professor Carlos Arreola rescued a pelican that had been lodging at Lucky Peak. Arreola retrieved the bird and took it to a Vet to have a mouth infection looked after. The fate of the bird is still in question.

Members of the Minority Cultural Board met to discuss problems the Board is facing, such as repair of the Minority house, and future programming. They are [L-R] front, Bill Hancock, Mark Smith, Amparo Barrear, back, Maria Young, Jackie Blossom and Robert Pacheco.

Minority Cultural Board meets, discusses plans

The Minority Culture Board held its first meeting Thursday, September 12 at 5:00 pm in the SUB.

Members present were: Mark Smith, Jackie Blossom, Amparo Barrera, Robert Pacheco, Billy Hancock, Maria Antonia Young, Dr. P.K. Ourada (Faculty-Advisor) and Dean Wilkinson.

The first item discussed was that a house has been assigned as a Minority Culture Center (211 College Boulevard) and it is in great need of repair and renovation. At present, it is not likely that it will begin to function as a Center before the first part of October. As soon as it is possible, an open house will be scheduled at the Center.

The Board also discussed future programming which may include a series of faculty lectures. More on this to be released after it is definitely set.

Other items discussed were the selection of representatives from organizations which wish to send representatives to these Board meetings.

Also, there was discussion as to the type of problems students face on this campus - not only minority, but others as well. Such as when they have to deal with those people in positions who are supposed to help them solve housing, meal tickets, and other problems which are an important part of a student's life. In some areas it is a lack of communication and/or understanding of minority as well as other students.

An attempt will also be made to involve minority students in student government and other activities connected with the SUB.

The representatives on this Board may be contacted for further information or to discuss a particular problem.

Chairperson: Amparo Barrera, 385-1787 (office), 385-1795 (home); Mark Smith, 344-9360; Jackie Blossom, 342-2711, ext. 2244 (office) and 385-1129 (home).

Student Advisory and Special Services Office: Maria Young, phone 385-1583. This office can also take messages for the representatives. Kenton Dick and Rachel Butts are representatives, also.

Shoplifters get their day in court

The month of September has been officially proclaimed as Anti-Shoplifting Month by Governor Cecil Andrus. In a combined effort with Attorney General Tony Park, D.F. Engelking, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and J. Tim Brennan, Executive Director, Idaho Retailers & Food Dealers Association, Idaho's new shoplifting law is being given its kick-off.

At a news conference, Park explained the new law. "In addition to the criminal penalties which include a possible fine and jail sentence, the shoplifter may now be sued civilly for not less than $100 nor more than $250, plus the cost of the item taken, plus court costs, plus attorney's fees."

In addition, the new shoplifting law affects parents of minor offenders (under 18 years of age). The parents of a child under the legal age are now financially liable for shoplifting done by their children.

Park explained that the anti-shoplifting program will make full use of public service advertising, extensive publicity, printed materials and a speakers bureau. Based on the twin themes, "Shoplifters get more than they bargain for," and "They get their day in court," the program has won the support of all Idaho agencies involved.

Shoplifting is, now costing each Idaho family $100 dollars per year, according to a recent poll, a total amounting to well over $15,000,000....this includes only those shoplifting crimes which have been reported.

Students should be aware that stores and businesses throughout Idaho are tightening security, and "shoplifters" get more than they bargained for.

Day care offered by Vo-Tech

If you have trouble finding baby-sitters for your children, ages three to five, perhaps you will be interested in the day-care services available through the Vocational-Technical Department.

Vo-Tech sponsors child-care classes on an eighteen-month basis with practical experience in an ongoing day-care program available to students, faculty, and the community. The child-care classes sponsor three sessions: Tuesday and Thursday mornings; Monday through Thursday afternoons; and an all-day Friday session. The cost is 50 cents per half-day session and 75 cents for the all-day session. The classes are held in the Vocational-Technical Building.

assistants are students who have completed nine months of instruction and are certified as such. Supervisors are working on the full eighteen-month program, and when they have completed it, they will be certified to operate their own day-care centers.

Instructors for the classes are Joan Lingenfelter and Patti Correll. They are assisted by aides or assistants and supervisors. Aides or as-

The program could be classified pre-kindergarten, stressing intellectual, social, emotional, and physical experiences. Present enrollment is 25 to 30 children.

BSU Communications Department granted $15,000 by Idaho Arts Commission

Something new is coming to Idaho and the Communications Department of BSU.

What is it? It's the "Artists in the Schools" program that has been instituted in approximately thirty states over the last three years.

The BSU Communications Department has been granted $15,000.00 by the Idaho State Commission on the Arts. This program is designed to pursue the utilization of film, video tape, and other media equipment in elementary schools.

Dr. Richard Boylan will coordinate the program for the Communications Department. Basically there are three program goals as stated by Dr. Boylan:

- (1) To give school children an opportunity to make films, work with video tape, and other media equipment.
- (2) To bring students and teachers into contact with professional media artists.
- (3) To show elementary students

Students invited to save $8,000

Life insurance is one of the largest investments a person makes in a lifetime and with proper consultation and advice the difference, even on a small policy, can be up to $8000. that television is serious and to teach them a new language in film making.

Boise State Communication students will be working as assistant teachers when the program begins in the Boise area.

According to plans, there are to be two centers, one in the Ketchum area that is coordinated by the Sun Valley Center of Arts and Humanities. The other center is in Boise.

Dr. Boylan said concerning the program, "We're not interested in what the students do, but in getting them involved in the process."

"It's a long-range program and it won't be spectacular at first but it has an exciting end," he stated.

The "Artists in the Schools" program is tentatively scheduled to begin in early October.

Expo proves popular library goes

You did not have to go all the way to Spokane to visit an Expo last August, if you were a new freshman, a transfer, or even a returning student or faculty member who arrived on campus early and followed the bright yellow lemon signs to the BSU Library. The most popular aspect of the first annual "Library Expo" was the free lemonade, ladled out to all comers on the front porch of the library. The fact that it was one of the last of the really hot summer days guaranteed the project a certain degree of success from the outset.

Inside the air-conditioned building, however, was the best part of the program. There, students were free to wander among the special displays and exhibits featuring many of the unique materials that comprise the Library-Learning Center collection: career information, educational toys, games, kits, models, maps, sight and sound equipment, posters and magazines. Background music was provided by records from the varied collection housed in the Curriculum Resource Center. Early visitors to the Expo were immediately drawn to the free books counter, and many came away with an extra bonus. There were drawings for doorprizes and the winners were: Mark Morsching (gift certificate to the Campus Store); Clay Matthewson (gift certificate from MacDonalds); Tom Sater (gift certificate from the Bronco Hut); Alan Melby, Michael Barley, Patricia Faye Scifues, and Lucy Thomas (certificates for free xeroxing at the BSU Library); and Judy Harris, Michael Ballard, Fred Aalto, Sarah Black, Brian Schreiner, Brenda Ingram, Dennis Hobbs, Marvin Hanks, Chris Kohring, and Linda Schmunk, who each won a free houseplant. Those who have not claimed their prizes may do so by presenting some identification to the Circulation Desk.

The Library Expo was the brainchild of the Library Orientation Committee, a library-faculty group, who meet regularly to explore new ways to introduce students to library materials and services. We are grateful to all those who helped make the Library Expo a success and hope that we managed to kindle a few student-library friendships in the process. Students' suggestions for new programs and projects would be welcome. Call the Library at 385-1139 and ask for Mrs. Strong.

IK's elect officers

The Intercollegiate Knights of Boise State began the year by electing new officers, as follows:

- Duke: Jerry Ranson
- Earl: Stephen LeMar
- Scribe: Stephen Haven
- Chancellor: Dave Anderson
- Executioner: Dave Simpkins
- Recorder: Joe Day
- Page Master: J. C. Hinman.

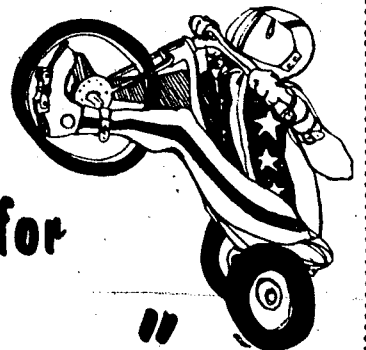

The I.K.'s will be holding elections for a new Duchess in October, and are now accepting applications for new members. This is a National Honorary Service Fraternity, with the distinction of being the only organization of this kind that is solely student organized, financed, and operated. The Intercollegiate Knights organization was founded at Boise State in 1939, and has been the most active service organization since that time.

Anyone interested in pledging this organization may leave his name, address, and phone number in the I.K. mail box in the Programs Office at the SUB, or may call J. C. Hinman at 344-3350.

Editorial

God grant me the serenity

There is an old prayer that goes something like this:

God grant me the serenity to accept those things I cannot change; The courage to change those things I can change,

And the wisdom to see the difference.

You know it is difficult to be in a position of responsibility, especially when you care about those people to whom you are responsible. It is difficult to watch people who are supposedly placed in various positions for the benefit of your constituents, abuse the very group you wish to serve.

As Editor of this newspaper, it has been my job to visit various offices on this campus, and to observe the methods these people utilize while they carry out their appointed duties. I have watched your student officers take on jobs, such as scholarship drives, community improvement projects and day-care operations, while remaining, at least in part, faithful to their educational commitments. It is not your student representatives who are shirking their duties, but those employees of this institution who have forgotten where their bread and butter lie.

I do not speak of fine and dedicated servants. Men such as Dean Wilkinson, Dr. Taylor, Dr. Bullington, Gary Bermeosolo, Leland Mercy, or of the fine women on this campus such as Peggy Herbert, Jean Boyles, Jane Buser, Maria Young, or Christa Bax and others. No!.....these people recognize that their duty is to the student.

I speak of people who seemingly have begun to take the student for granted. People who are here to make money....hang the student, but sign my check. This institution, indeed, the very epitome of the higher educational system, must function as a viable area where the student is not only a number, or a face in the crowd, but where he is the reason that any of what you see, hear or speak of is existing.

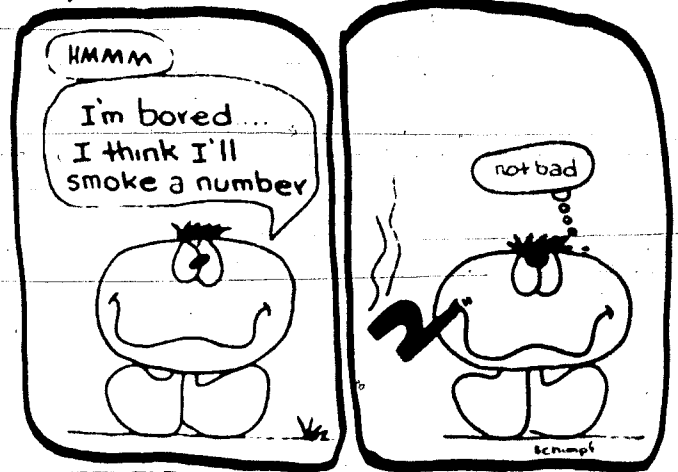

This editor could go on and give names, dates and places where ignorance, rudeness, harsh words and commands were demonstrated....but what is the need, my friends. There is neither room for, nor logic behind this abusive action. In reality, this editor would not lower himself to the level of such an "employee".

All of us are in this together, and...because of the extenuating circumstances, lack of space, teachers, money and time....we must deal with each other in a feeling of gentle compassion.

If those who do not wish to be part of a magnificent experience; if those whose only thought is the gratuity of the dollar bill do not wish to share in this great adventure, then this editor and staff wish them well in their empty existence...and hope that they will find their fortunes elsewhere.

In conclusion, let us remember that in every being there is a part of God...when we recognize that, perhaps the world, our world, will be a little less unwilling to serve those who seek the future.

Huck's realm Rumors are spreading..

by Huck Hovey

Rumors are spreading that the Housing Office is planning to rent classrooms in the Liberal Arts Building as apartments on two year leases. Johann Sebastian Wrestle, Housing Coordinator and former Explorer Scout, confirmed the rumor and added this act was necessary to construct a series of Happy Hawk rest havens for sea gulls visiting this campus. (It has been rumored that a recurring visitor is actually the Chairman of the Senate Education Appropriations Committee incognito). Wrestle estimates the kitchenless units will produce a yearly income of $15,000, the brunt of which will be spent to lure the anonymous Chairman into the open. The remainder of the income will be spent on a CONFIDENTIAL BSU Project.

The Arbiter, through skill and cunning, brain over matter, was able to penetrate Executive Privilege and uncovered plans detailing a statue memorializing Dr. Hymie Stitt, former University President. Dr. Stitt was found deceased in his office by his Secretary of ten years. He apparently died of a heart attack eight years prior after being informed of a new University policy allowing students upon the campus, but for some unexplainable reason, though lifeless as he was, Stitt continued signing checks and drafts, collecting funds, and only an empty ball point pen betrayed his real nature.

This, of course, is only the beginning. Wrestle's ultimate ambition is to rent the entire campus for about $350,000 (half of the operating budget in 1977) after abolishing the student body and most of the faculty to "eliminate all that financial drain and waste."

"If we can get fifteen grand by evicting the students and a sizeable portion of the faculty from the Liberal Arts Building initially, think what it would contribute to a balanced budget when we get rid of everyone else," he speculated excitedly. "Why there is even a real estate agent here with large investments in Harlem interested in the Administration Building. Says he wouldn't change a thing."

Wrestle mentioned that in the interest of programmatic need, he would allow tenured full professors to keep their offices "as long as they pay the rent," and Civil War Veterans will be allowed to use the second floor southwest tower free of charge.

The downstairs portion of the building will be renovated into a Falling Ave Memorial Dining Room with appropriate "dignity and decorum". Financed by a 10 percent surtax on mealbook sales with turn in of Food Stamps, it will feature the Steve Sims Appul Steak Room with attached Sauna and the BSU Community R.I.P. Cocktail Lounge.

In the meantime, surviving students interested in leasing rooms in the soon-to-be-vacated buildings will be required to obtain off campus permission. Interested individuals will also be compelled to attend a VD lecture at the Health Clinic after complaining of congestion upon entrance after graduating from Holy Hubert's Institute For The Salvation of Sinful People.

We're sorry: In last week's Arbiter, this Editor used a quote out of context. We would now like to extend sincerest apologies to Leland Mercy, BSU Registrar, for the oversight.

Bike riders urged to obey rules, read regulations

Editor, The Arbiter.

In the past few years, a bicycling craze has swept across America and made its presence felt even in Boise. It is interesting to see the ever-growing number of people who are taking up bicycling. Some do so as a means of physically improving their health, others to help try to beat the cost of buying gasoline, and some to help relieve traffic congestion and the hassle of fighting for a parking space.

With the rise in the number of bicyclists, some problems have been encountered. One of these is that of bicyclists riding on congested sidewalks. It is no joke to have someone run you off a sidewalk or swerve in front of you in order to go around a group of people. Our sidewalks at Boise State are quite crowded between classes. Those of us who are physically fit are often able to dodge out of the path of an oncoming bicyclist. Those who are physically handicapped, on crutches or who are blind often cannot move quickly enough to get out of the way. There have been no serious injuries yet, however.

In order to prevent accidents, bicyclists are urged to read regulation F under General Information Rules for Cars and Bicycles. This regulation states: "No bicycle shall be ridden on sidewalks or grass."

I know I speak for those other than myself when I ask bicyclists please to use the roads, not sidewalks to travel around the University campus.

Do you consider building construction or land acquisition our No. 1 priority here on the BSU campus?

TERESA SCHROCK:
Building construction.....a music building...they don't have a music building...you're shoved into classes which everyone else has to use.

GAYLENE MUNSON:
Parking space...from what I have observed, of course I'm new here and haven't seen many of the buildings or the condition they're in.

ROY EVANS:
Buildings for classes and land for the building. It's kind of like the chicken and the egg.

BARBARA GILLIAM:
Let's see...AH!....Land first, because I think BSU needs to expand. It's kind of crunched together right now. The campus is too small, it needs to be larger.

ANGIE LLOYD:
I haven't heard any controversy on it. I really think something should be done about the parking space. The classes can be worked out but the parking spaces are limited.

Openings in ASBSU

There are still many openings available in student government, according to Ron O'Halloran, Personnel Selection Committee chairman. Positions are available on the Curriculum Committee, the Election Board, Recreation Board, and the Finance Board has one opening.

To be considered for one of these positions, a student must complete an application available in the ASBSU offices or in the information booth, verifying his/her GPA and area of interest in student government.

There are also openings still available on the Structures Committee, the Public Relations Board, the Student Services Committee, the Student Health Advisory Board, and editor and staff of the Les Bois Yearbook.

Tips offered on text book use

A textbook, properly used, can be invaluable to you in any course. It can make the course easier for you; it can add to the knowledge you gain in the classroom as well as prepare you for classroom work; it can and should serve as a permanent resource book for you after the course itself has been completed. The following six steps have proved to be successful in using textbooks, and they can easily be applied to any assignment.

1. Survey the entire book
2. Read for the main ideas
3. Question yourself as you read
4. Underline & make margin notes
5. Use study guides
6. Review systematically

SURVEY THE ENTIRE BOOK

Before you read your textbook, make a brief survey of the author's method and intention so you understand how he has ordered his materials.

Read the preface carefully to acquire a sense of the author's purpose in writing the book, his approach to the materials, and the structure he is following.

Scan the table of contents to grasp the organization and scope of the book. As you read particular chapters, review the table of contents to remind yourself of the larger context the author has in mind.

Read the concluding chapter or final paragraphs of the book. The author will often stress and summarize those major points that he has demonstrated specifically in individual chapters.

Glance at the book as a whole and at the apparatus that supplements the text: chapter headings and summaries, reading suggestions, quizzes, chronologies, discussion questions, graphs, pictures and diagrams. In a short time you will have a sense of the author's overall techniques which will help you read the book more profitably.

Before you read a chapter in the text, survey the author's main ideas. Read whatever headnotes or summaries appear in the chapter. They provide a clue to all of the main concepts that the author is stressing, and they serve as a handy outline.

Examine the headings and subheadings of the chapter to gain a sense of its main ideas, organization, and direction. The arrangement of these headings often will suggest which topics are primary and which are subordinate.

READ FOR THE MAIN IDEAS

The author is trying to convey a central concept in any given chapter of his book, and you should concern yourself with that concept rather than worry excessively about details. By concentrating on the main idea, you will find that facts and supporting evidence are much easier to remember. Periodically ask yourself what the author is trying to say in a particular section of a chapter.

Coordinate your class notes with your reading. Good lectures or class discussions should further illuminate the perceptions you have derived from your reading. Keep full, legible, and accurate lecture notes. Like your textbook, lecture notes will serve as a basic part of your knowledge in later years, and you will find yourself returning to them for guidance.

Read your assignment before the class discussion. Not only will this technique make cramming for examinations unnecessary, but it will also give you confidence in your own ideas. If you wait until the professor and other students discuss an assignment before you read it, you will lose faith in yourself as an independent reader. Read the material regularly and discuss it in class so that you are constantly testing your ideas. Your verbalization of reading material will reinforce it in your mind.

Summarize whatever you have read. After finishing a page, restate the main ideas in your mind and then glance back to see if you are correct. Before closing your text, repeat the major points of the material you have read. See if you can jot down the central ideas in the section you have just completed. If you can, you will find that most of the supporting details will return to you rather easily. In addition, when you resume your reading the next day, your brief review will serve as an encouragement to begin the next assignment. By noting the major points of your reading, you will find that your preparation for an examination is a relatively simple matter.

Health Fair slated for September 26 at BSU

Find out about lung capacity, blood pressure, and hematocrits at the Student Health Fair September 26.

Sponsored by Boise State University's Student Health Service, the fair will run from 9 am to 4 pm in the Student Union Building's Boisean Lounge.

Students can have their hearts and lungs checked, learn about proper nutrition, and obtain information on venereal disease. Representatives from the State Department of Epidemiology will be present.

Hematocrits are checks for anemia made by counting the amount of red blood cells or iron in the blood, a service which will be provided at the fair.

Female students will have the opportunity to have an examination for breast cancer in complete privacy. Nurses from BSU's Health Service and other registered nurses will make the examinations.

Experts in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation will perform demonstrations on Resucel Ann, a mannequin designed for that purpose.

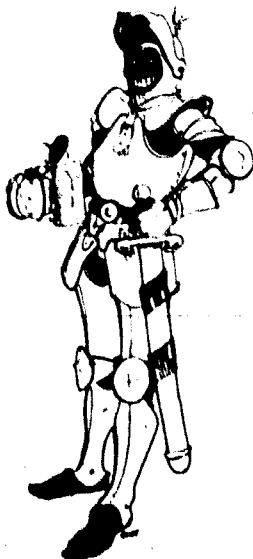

Practical demonstrations on fire safety will be performed by the Boise Fire Department. The Governor's Alcohol Safety Action Program will also be featured.

The Health Fair offers students a chance not only to check up on their health, but learn how to maintain it.

Campus mailboxes

Each recognized club and organization has a campus mailbox in the Programs Office located on the second floor of the Student Union Building. Pick up this mail regularly, as these mailboxes are small and may contain important mail.

Amphetamines act upon nervous system

Amphetamines are stimulants which act upon the nervous system. Their effects on the body are quite similar to those of adrenalin: they constrict blood vessels, increase blood pressure and heart beat rate, dilate pupils, and increase respiration. They also make a person more alert, temporarily improve one's memory, and depress one's appetite.

Most amphetamines come in tablet form, although time released spansules and liquid for injections are also manufactured.

Amphetamine sulfate is the principle ingredient of uppers. It is a white, odorless powder with a bitter, numbing taste. Even though amphetamines, benzedrine in particular, were first developed in the early 1930's, they were not widely prescribed until the '50's. Dexedrine, benzedrine, and desoxyn, the most popular brands, became as easily obtainable as cough syrup. Millions of housewives, not to mention business executives, students, athletes, etc., were popping uppers. The uses for amphetamines were varied, including diet control, increasing memory and physical performance, curbing alcohol consumption, stopping mental depression and petit mal seizures, even shrinking nasal passages in asthmatics. The usually prescribed dosages ranged from 5 to 100 milligrams per day, depending upon several variables. However, these "cure-all wonder drugs" soon experienced heavy abuse. People began consuming too many in too short a time for too long, and the drug industry found them to be addictive.

Uppers, speed, roses, oranges, bennies, L.A. turnabouts, or whatever you choose to call them - the disconcerting fact is that a lot of what amphetamines do to you when you take them on a long-range basis simply is not known or poorly understood at best.

Whether or not amphetamines are truly physically addictive depends on which source one consults, but they definitely are psychologically addictive. Amphetamines are potent drugs, even partially overcoming the effects of anesthetics, narcotics, hypnotics, and alcohol. One of the dangers in taking them is that a person cannot tell when he is fatigued and often pushes his body to the point of collapse. When uppers are taken on a continuing basis, the body builds a tolerance for them, and an increased dosage is needed for the drug's effects to be felt. Unlike hard drugs, e.g. heroin, the "high" is felt rapidly. Likewise, coming off the drug is described as a "crash" in which the user sleeps soundly for long periods of time.

As far as prescriptive drugs are concerned, amphetamines are has-beens. Better, more selective drugs, with less danger of addiction are being used instead.

Narcolepsy, a fairly uncommon disorder-disease in which a person has an uncontrollable desire to sleep, is still frequently treated with amphetamines. However, tricyclic compounds are now considered the drugs of choice as stimulants by many physicians. However, the popularity of amphetamines in the illegal drug market remains an ever-present success.

Barbiturates are truly downers

Barbiturates, or "downers" as they are sometimes referred to, are a class of drugs in which the principle ingredient is barbituric acid, a white, crystalline, odorless powder. Barbiturates can be divided into four types, depending on the length of time the drug affects the body. The long-acting ones require an hour or more to take effect in the body, and their effects last ten or more hours. Included in this category are barbital and phenobarbital, which are used medically to provide continuous sedation and for hypertension and epilepsy.

Intermediate acting barbiturates remain in the body for six to eight hours, requiring approximately one hour to take effect. They include amobarbital and butobarbital, and are used to overcome insomnia. Pentobarbital and secobarbital, better known as nembutal and seconal or "yellows" and "reds" respectively, are short-acting drugs which last approximately four to eight hours in the body, but require only minutes to take effect. They are prescribed for insomniacs and are also used as sedatives in patients prior to surgery. All of the above are manufactured in tablet or spansule form. The fourth type of barbiturate is ultrashort acting, and is injected intravenously. Thiameylal is the main drug in this classification; it lasts only minutes in the body, and is used as an anesthetic in surgery.

Barbiturates cause a person to become relaxed and drowsy by depressing the nervous system. The length of time barbiturates affect the body depends on how rapidly they are converted into non-sedative compounds in the liver, how fast they are excreted by the kidneys, and how soon they are distributed into organs and tissues.

Taking too much of the drug at one time results in barbiturate poisoning, which may cause brain damage due to lack of oxygen. If barbiturates are taken over a long period of time, the body acquires a tolerance, and larger doses of the drug are needed to obtain the drug's effects. This is particularly dangerous because although a person may need increasingly larger doses to feel the drug's effects, the fatal dose does not change. Barbiturates are truly physically addictive, and a person "hooked" on them can take enough to be fatal without realizing it. In addition, barbiturates make a person forgetful. Users often don't remember previously taking the pills, and then will take even more.

Treatment of an addict is the same as that of one hooked on hard drugs - gradual withdrawal over a two to three-week period. If an addict suddenly ceases taking barbiturates, the severe withdrawal symptoms of restlessness, anxiety, weakness, insomnia, nausea, delirium, and convulsions may be fatal.

Although barbiturates are no longer as easily obtainable from physicians as they once were, they are still frequently prescribed in treating some physical disorders and diseases.

Only your doctor knows for sure...

Question: Why am I always told to drink lots of fluids for my cold?

Answer: To help keep the fever down, to keep the secret ions thinner and not plug up the sinus openings, and to help feel better by avoiding dehydration.

Question: How contagious is mononucleosis?

Answer: I have never seen two cases of mono in the same family at the same time, in ten years of practice.

Question: How do I get mononucleosis?

Answer: We do not know the answer. Mono is caused by a virus, apparently, and we think a person must be fatigued to be susceptible. However, the exact answer is not yet in.

Question: Why do I need a referral by the Health Service to get my insurance to pay for something?

Answer: You do not need a Health Service referral. The insurance and Health Service are entirely separate - in funding and administration and coverage.

Answer: Each full-time student pays $10.00 per semester for a Health Service fee. There is no extra charge for a visit, and most medications are dispensed from the Health Service at no extra charge.

Question: Are venereal warts contagious?

caused by a virus, and are found in the anogenital region. Because they are transmitted sexually they are called venereal and thus considered contagious.

Question: What would you recommend for a sure, safe way to lose weight?

Answer: Eat less calories than you burn.

Question: What methods of birth control do you offer?

Answer: Currently we are able to provide every method, with the exception of the Intra Uterine Device (IUD).

Question: Is gonorrhea on the rise?

Answer: Yes - In December 1973 there were 68 cases reported in Ada County, as compared with 163 cases during the entire year of 1972. A total of 2,135 cases was reported in Idaho during 1973. It is estimated the actual incidence in the U.S. exceeded 2.5 million.

Question: What should be done for a twisted ankle?

Answer: As soon as possible get off it - elevate and apply an ice pack for about 12 to 24 hours. If walking is difficult, then it should be checked by a doctor.

Question: Will the "Flu shots" prevent colds?

Answer: Not always - there are about 45 different viruses that have been isolated. A vaccine has been developed for the most prevalent or common viruses.

The remainder are very rare and the possibility of exposure equally rare.

Question: Who should take the influenza vaccine?

Answer: Individuals who are "high risk." That is, those individuals with chronic lung or respiratory problems, heart problems, diabetes or other chronic diseases; and most individuals over 45 years of age.

Question: Is there a patent medicine available for Pediculosis (crabs)?

Answer: No, if soap and water are not effective, a prescription medicine must be used.

Question: If I injure myself and need suturing, can I be cared for at the Health Center instead of going to the Emergency Room?

Answer: Yes, all emergencies can be taken care of at the Health Center, including the suturing of wounds.

Question: Are pregnancy tests available at the Health Center?

Answer: Yes, a Gravidex test for pregnancy may be run at the Health Center and the information is confidential.

Basque children introducing themselves to BSU students in Spain.

Boise State in Spain

Oñate is a town of about 10,000 people located in the Basque province of Guipuzcoa (Gay-puh-coá) in northern Spain. On September 2, seventy-seven Boise State students arrived here to begin a nine-month study program designed to provide them a first-hand look at a foreign culture. This is the first in a series of weekly or bi-weekly articles concerning various aspects of the program.

The political situation in Spain is such that many of the people involved were more than a little concerned with the reception we might receive. Local police escorted us from the airport in Bilbao to Oñate, where we were greeted by the guardia civil, the national police of Spain. The latter group carries sub-machine guns and were there apparently as a show of force and a warning not to get involved in political activities.

At first, the townspeople regarded us with a rather restrained curiosity. Their children, however, flocked to us immediately and established a friendship which quickly spread throughout the town. The feeling toward our group now is one of overwhelming good will.

As you make your way through the narrow streets, it is almost a certainty that you will encounter several groups of friends singing traditional Basque folk songs. Many of their songs, the ones which proclaim Basque independence, are forbidden and may not be sung in public. The others are sung with an air of defiance, and pride in the Basque culture.

The difference between the American and Spanish cultures is much too involved to explore in a single article. The most practical course to follow, therefore, will be to concentrate on one particular facet at a time. Since this is the first time Boise State has undertaken such a program, much of the material will concern various problems encountered by the group for the benefit of those planning to enroll next year or in the years to follow.

In the evening, the townspeople turn out en masse to walk about town and visit with one another.

The tradition is to have perhaps one glass of wine in a bar and continue on their way, rather than spending an entire evening in the same place.

The class work is minimal at this point, leaving us a considerable amount of free time to do such things as attend the many festivals in surrounding towns and explore our new environment. Possibly the greatest advantage in participating in such events is the opportunity provided us to talk to the local people. This is not only an excellent way of learning the language, but a valuable lesson in human nature.

The pace of life in Oñate is noticeably slower than that of Boise. Partly, I'm sure, because of the difference in size, but the attitude of the people is also an important factor. It is a mental philosophy which allows them to take things as they come.

Baptist student union offers friendship and answers

College is new, and you're excited. You plan and dream. Then you finally arrive. You meet people, receive cards and slips of paper and instructions, and you listen, and you stand in line, and suddenly.....you're miserable. Even while your face is smiling, you are crying inside. You feel uncertain and alone in a cold, new world.

This is where Baptist Student Union comes in. Because of the way it is on campus -- sometimes rough, sometimes confusing. And sometimes, you need a supporting fellowship. That's Baptist Student Union. It's not a closed organization. It's just close. Close because Christian students want to help you adjust to involvement in the academic world, knowing you'll be confronted with questions, and problems, and occasionally, just free time on your hands.

The Baptist Student Union -- a fellowship of concerned students growing together and representing Christ on campus. Regular meetings on Monday evenings at 7:30, 1006 Michigan, at University Baptist Chapel. This is one block from the SUB. Please come.

International Student Organization will hold its first meeting September 19 at 5:00 in the SUB (Clearwater Room). All students interested in becoming acquainted with the International Students on BSU campus are welcome to attend.

People enjoy themselves, as the TKE's showed at the barn party.

TKEs - Men ready for the future

"Believe me when I say that we are all Greeks."

Tau Kappa Epsilon, founded in 1899, is just as much an ideal as an organization. Showing the solidarity of its Midwestern roots, the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon, and their ladies, the Daughters of Dianna, strive for individuality. The members stress the freedom of expression needed to achieve maturity in this modern world of our.

When the members of this staff attended a function sponsored by the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, we were greeted by a scene that could have easily been lifted from the works of Bret Hart or Mark Twain; that sight being the epitome of western America -- the hay loft barn dance.

The sounds were loud and full of life, praising existence in a style worthy of an Aaron Copeland. The people, good people, happy to be where they were, extended hearty welcomes and handshakes, offered us drink and conversation.

This festivity, more than anything that was said during the evening, displayed to us the very spirit of that group known simply as Tau Kappa Epsilon. The wide-eyed trance of all-encompassing hope, reaching for the future bade us to leave the pettiness of everyday and join the hypnotic pleasure of relaxation.

The men are truly men; friends to one another. They display the comradery inherent in the fraternal organization...that need for self identity.

Tau Kappa Epsilons are the common aristocracy of America. They are the workers who leave after a hard day's work and live their lives through simple luxury. No fancy facades, no airs of superiority; they exist as honest folks ready to earn their way.

Social fraternities have become places for retreats. Social functions are not so much functions as viable avenues of expression. Through the windows of the houses look the leaders of industry, government and business. Tau Kappa Epsilon's members dare the future to come, and accept the challenge it employs.

First mountaineering session by OAC

Last Sunday members of the BSU Outdoor Activities Club, under the expert tutelage of Jerry Thornton, assaulted lava escarpments of the Snake River Canyon near Swan Falls and began the first in a series of mountaineering expeditions planned by the club.

Due to the club's acquisition of "high country" rental equipment, such as sleeping bags, fly shelters, climbing rope, cooking utensils, packs, etc., fair weather fall weekends have been set aside for the following expeditions:

Sun. Sept. 22 9:00 A.M.: Phil Newton leads all comers to Table Rock and vicinity for free climbing and some top rope (belay) work. He also goes up DAILY (except Tues. and Fri) at 5:15 P.M. and has invited anyone interested to join him.

Tues., Sept. 24, 5:30 P.M.: Regular club meeting in the Game Room Office with Jerry Thorton and his Hell's Canyon Sandstone Cave slide show. Jerry will also sign up anyone who wants to go to Hell's Canyon Sun., Sept. 29 and see said caves. Avid cavers must have hardhats, head-band lights, spare bulbs and batteries and or carbide, flashlight, candle, food, water, pack and good boots.

Columnist Jack Anderson drew a crowd of about 2000 at his lecture Tuesday, starting off a new lecture season.

Jack Anderson, cites threats to American society

The two largest threats facing America today are a poor economy and abuse of power by politicians in power, according to Jack Anderson, national syndicated columnist, in a speech here Tuesday night.

Anderson stated that after Watergate, the economy is the next big crisis on the horizon.

"The economist fighting inflation is like an obsolete general fighting a modern war with old weapons," he said. For the first time in 200 years, the United States is suffering from both inflation and recession at the same time.

"There are no easy solutions. We've got to increase production, roll up our sleeves and get back to work," he said.

"I hope the realization of the problem will keep management and labor from reaching a confrontation." This would result in a depression which would be disastrous for both business and labor, Anderson stated.

He said that Americans live in a society where the rich get richer.

An example Anderson cited is the tax advantage gained by the oil companies, which allows them to increase profits 50 to 90 per cent.

As for the problem of Watergate, Anderson stated that "We are all weary of (it), but the lesson must be brought home.

He said that former President

Nixon was stealing power. "It was the biggest power grab in our history.

However, the court, Congress and the press did stop it at a point. He said the press first brought Watergate to the attention of the American people, and kept at it until finished.

Asked whether or not he felt Nixon was playing a martyr for refusing medical attention for his illness, Anderson said he thought not.

"Nixon is a very private person; lonely, pathetic, tragic. He would be very upset to hear things such as that being said."

Anderson also said that Senator Frank Church's name is being circulated in Washington circles as a possible contender for the Presidency.

"He is respected by his Senate colleagues. It is especially impressive since he comes from such a sparsely-populated state with a small power base."

Anderson stated that he felt Nixon's pardon was an unwise move on President Ford's part, because it will just spark more controversy.

"No man is above the law. The law should have worked this way. Ford, instead of closing the Watergate door, has opened it again.

Bob Hopple presented Jack Anderson with the "Muck Raker" award, a gold rake.

Bob Hopple, lecture chairman, Fred Norman, SUB Director, meet Jack Anderson at the airport

The Vocational-Technical auto body shop moves on campus, a sign of one of many changes in BSU Vo-Tech.

With the estimated February 1 completion of the new Vocational Technical building, a few new programs will go into effect.

"The building, under construction since July 1, and having a total of 20,000 square feet of floor space, will house three new classrooms," according to Glen Linder, assistant director of the Vocational Technical Department.

An auto body shop (small engines and recreational vehicles) will be moved into the building from a previously off-campus location. Also, a possible heating and air-conditioning class is tentatively scheduled, if funding permits.

"Totalling $500,000, costs were split between the State Permanent Building Fund and the Educational Development Agency (EDA)," Linder stated.

The Walter Opp Construction Company is in charge.

Music dept. opens season

The Boise State University Department of Music opens its 1974-75 season of Faculty Recitals on Friday evening, September 20 at 8:15 pm with organist Donald Oakes and guitarist George Thomason. All concerts are to be held in the Music Auditorium.

Oakes, who has been with the music faculty since 1964, will perform compositions by Mozart, Hindemith, and Bach on the 3-manual Cunningham Memorial Pipe Organ in the Auditorium. Thomas, who joined the music faculty in 1971 as the University's guitar instructor, will play compositions by Bach, Ponce, Narvaez, and Villa-Lobos.

Season tickets for the six-concert Faculty Series may be purchased for $6.00 in the Music Department office or at the door the night of the recital. Individual concert tickets may be purchased for $1.50 (students $1.00) at the door for each presentation of their ID cards.

All proceeds will go to the BSU Music Department Scholarship Fund.

Women participate in sports at BSU

by Betty Dresser

Pam Waddell demonstrates a difficult procedure for gymnasts.

Thanks to Billie Jean King, Women's Lib, and Chris Evert, women in sports are no longer pictured as Amazons; they aren't karate-chopping, muscle-bound, non-feminine "things".

It is now "respectable to participate in sports. Schools and organizations are now providing funding and support for women's athletics. Boise State University is no exception.

Back in '48, women at BSU played a little tennis and not much else. Nothing else was available. Even five years' ago, there wasn't much but tennis. Now, most sports are available: field hockey, basketball, tennis, volleyball, track and field, and gymnastics head the list in intercollegiate athletics. Also available are archery, fencing, rodeo, and skydiving.

Although women's sports usually don't feature large numbers of spectators, this doesn't seem to upset those participating. Rather than placing the emphasis on making money, drawing large audiences, or otherwise exploiting the player, the sport is kept enjoyable and for the benefit of the player.

Another tricky maneuver is this one.

Women's field hockey teams get in gear for a new season of play.

Broncos open home season to face threatening Wildcats

The Boise State Broncos will take on the Chico State Wildcats in BSU's first home game Saturday, September 21 at Bronco Stadium.

Chico State has 35 lettermen returning from a team that finished 7-3 last year and won a share of the Far Western Conference championship. As for this season, the Wildcats won their season opener by defeating Simon Fraser 8-6.

Boise State head coach Tony Knap was pensive about the upcoming game. "Chico State presents us with a different kind of problem defense. They are a swarming, twisting defense which will be quite a change from Cal Poly's reacting defense." As for the offense, Knap replied: "Chico State hasn't shown great ability but their top players have been injured." He added that "If they can heal up and be ready for us, it should be interesting."

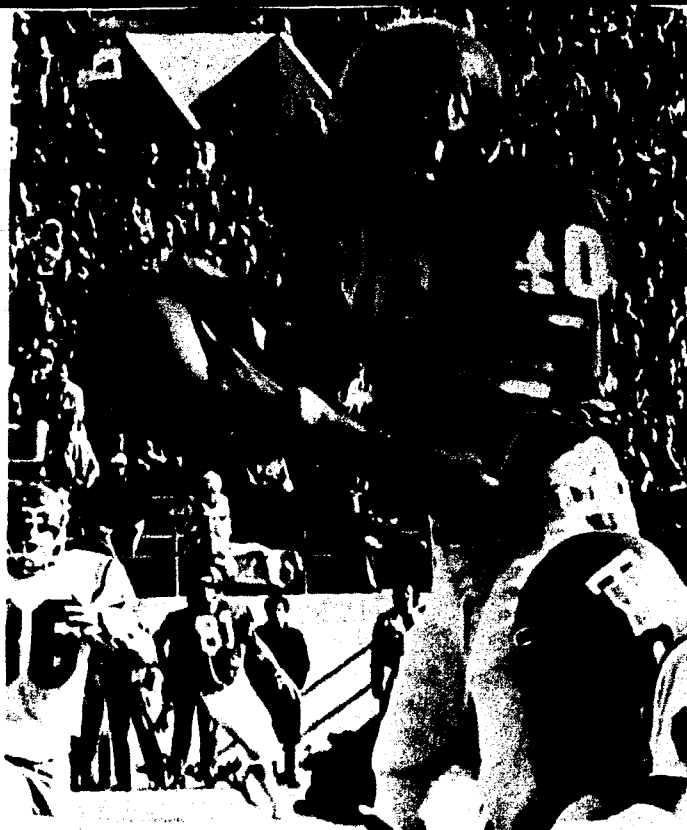

In earlier action, Boise State shellacked Cal Poly 41-21 Saturday, September 14 in San Luis Obispo, California.

Fullback Chester Grey scored BSU's first touchdown of the season after a drive that started with a personal foul called on Mustang safety Kird Hubbard. Ty Morris' PAT was good to make it 7-0 with 8:24 remaining in the first period. Cal Poly came back in the second quarter and tied it 7-7 when Gary Davis took it in from the eight-yard line. The Mustang's TD followed a big 54-yard pass play from QB Rich Robbins to Walter Mead.

Boise State bounced right back less than 20 seconds later on a 75-yard run by running back John Smith. But Cal Poly came again to tie the score at 14 all on a 13-yard pass by Robbins to Trudeau off a fake field goal.

The Mustangs took the lead temporarily in the third quarter on a three-yard run by Davis. But the Broncos took over and from there it was BSU all the way. Veteran quarterback Jim McMillan bolstered the point spread with a ten-yard sprint into the end zone. The Broncos hit paydirt again as Smith scored his second touchdown on a ten-yard run to make the scoreboard read 27-21. John Crabtree iced the game for BSU as he snatched a nine-yard pass from junior college transfer Lee Huey. Halfback Jerry Baber scored for the Broncos on the final play from scrimmage on a six-yard run.

Boise State finished the game with 343 yards rushing and 235 yards passing for 578 yards total offense. Linebacker Loren Schmidt led the defense in tackles with eight, followed by Saia Misa with seven and Ron Davis with six.

BSU running back John Smith has been elected BAA offensive player of the week. Smith had 150 yards rushing and four receptions for 56 yards for 206 yards total offense.

Road to Bogus Basin renovated and ready

The entire length of the Bogus Basin road from Highland View Drive to the Bogus Basin parking lot has been widened, resurfaced and is now ready for fall and winter traffic. The road bed now measuring 26 feet in width is two to four feet wider than the previous surface. A three-inch thick surface requiring nearly 6,000 tons of asphalt mix now provides a smooth and much-improved roadway.

In addition to reconstructing the road surface, 8200 feet of guardrail is being installed along with curbs and double line striping. This amounts to over twice the guardrail previously used on the road and should provide for a much safer trip to the ski area. Numerous turnouts have also been constructed for slow moving vehicles and will improve traffic flow during heavy winter use. Total cost of the construction project was nearly $827,000 with $736,000 provided through Federal secondary highway matching funds.

During the ski season, Bogus Basin will again plow and sand on a daily basis to provide easy access to the ski area. The extensive sanding which began two years ago has resulted in a substantial reduction in minor winter accidents occurring on the road.

The road to Bogus Basin was first constructed in 1938 and was paved during the summer of 1963. This provided an adequate surface for some time, but in recent years, heavy traffic and spring breakup have caused a great deal of maintenance expense. The reconstruction will eliminate these problems and motorists can now look forward to a smooth and easy drive to the ski area.

Smith, Davis garner BAA honors

Running back John Smith and middle linebacker Ron Davis were named Offensive and Defensive Players of the Week, respectively, Monday September 16, at the Bronco Athletic Association luncheon. Voting was cast by 200 members of the BAA.

Smith, 6-1 and 188 pounds, rolled up 150 ground yards in 12 carries and had 41 yards aerially in four catches while enroute to two Bronco touchdowns. Included in his rushing yardage was a 75-yard scamper, which set a new BSU run length record and was one yard short of a single play gain mark.

He was also named Big Sky Conference Offensive Player of the Week.

Davis, 6-0 and 235 pounds, had six unassisted tackles which gave him 205 yards total offense. He led the Broncos in tackles last year with 120, almost 40 more than the next player.

Harriers to meet with Idaho State University

Boise State's Cross-Country team, fresh from last week's victory in Long Beach, will take on Idaho State this Saturday at Bronco Stadium. Approximate time for the meet is 10:00 a.m.

The Broncos have their entire team from last year returning, most notably senior Bob Walker, who won the individual title in last year's Big Sky cross-country meet and led the Boise State squad to the league co-championship with Weber State. Other seniors are Randy Teraberry, seventh last year; Dave Lockman, eighth, and Jim Bonnell, ninth. Sophomore Glenn Lorenson is another runner back this year.

Newcomers to the Bronco squad include Steve Collier from Ontario, Oregon, who was fourth in the Oregon High School cross-country finals last year. Other new faces on the squad are Alan Park from Vallivue High School in Caldwell, Andy Casillan from Sylmar, California, and Dave Frickel, a JC transfer from Mt. San Antonio in Walnut, California.

Two runners from which Coach Ed Jacoby expects a lot are Frank Willy from Borah High School, and Dennis Hawkes from Blackfoot. Willy is the Idaho High School 880 champion, while Hawkes was a member of the State High School championship cross-country team.

Last week, the Broncos won the college division of the Long Beach Invitational meet with Walker setting a new course record winning the event. Fickel finished third while Collier and Teraberry placed fourth and fifth, respectively.

TENNIS DEADLINE EXTENDED

The Intramural office has extended the sign-up deadline for co-ed tennis through Friday, September 20. Ross Vaughn, Intramural Director, stated this deadline was changed to allow more individuals to sign up for the tournament. Classes include both men and women's singles and doubles, along with mixed doubles. No entries will be accepted after Friday, so sign up at the Intramural Office in the Gymnasium. Play starts Monday.

RODEO CLUB

The BSU Rodeo Club met Monday night in the Minidoka Room of the Student Union Building. This club is comprised of BSU students interested in the promotion of rodeo and the western way of life. The BSU team is a charter member of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association which headquarters in Huntsville, Texas and promotes college rodeo. BSU attends several rodeos in the spring and will attend the fall rodeo at Brigham Young University in two weeks.

At their meeting Monday night, the team's major business was the election of officers as follows:

President, Dirk Minatre; Vice-president, Craig DeVeny; Secretary, Peggy Sec. Treasurer, Jan Bennett.

Meetings are held every Monday night in the Minidoka Room. All interested persons are urged to attend.

Sluggers open season against the CSI Eagles

Boise State head baseball coach Ross Vaughn got an early look at his fall baseball squad last Saturday when the Broncos traveled to Twin Falls for a pair of seven-inning contests with the College of Southern Idaho. BSU and the Golden Eagles battled to a 1-1 tie in the first game but the Broncos came through to post a 7-1 victory in the nightcap. According to Vaughn, the contests gave him a good chance to take a look at his squad, and he was pleased with its over-all performance, especially defensively and on the mound.

Vaughn did a considerable amount of switching around during the contests, and the Broncos, despite having four freshmen in the lineup, played very well defensively. Newcomers Dale Baldwin, Joe Rake, Darrell Groves, and Rick Runyon performed well in the infield while freshman Bob McIlwain played well in the outfield. McIlwain, a freshman from Bainbridge Island, Washington, was chosen in the free agent baseball draft by the Pittsburg Pirates, but decided to attend Boise State University instead.

On the mound for the Broncos, Vaughn played every pitcher who suited up, and the hurlers, led by returnee Paul Levar, throttled CSI. Vaughn is looking for big things from transfers Ron Estes and Rick Coates, along with freshman Larry Froemming from Caldwell. Also expected to bolster the Bronco mound corps are returnees Nick Mitchell and Scott Hunsaker.

BSU will entertain CSI this Saturday for a pair of seven-inning scrimmages. Also coming up this fall are at least two games with Treasure Valley Community College and numerous inter-squad games. Fall baseball will last through October, according to Vaughn, and will give him a good opportunity to work on preparatory strategy and overall technical work on each individual ballplayer.

.....ATTENTION!

The intramural department badly needs officials for their flag football program. The pay is $2.00 per game. Anyone interested in officiating, see Ross Vaughn in the Intramural office, or Pete Gutches at Chaffee Hall (385-1259).

BIG SKY results

While the Boise State Broncos were sending out a warning via a 41-21 win over Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo Saturday night, the rest of the Big Sky Conference was not faring too well. The only other charter member of the Big Sky to come out on the winning end was Northern Arizona University, which used a stingy defense to hand North Dakota State a 27-15 defeat in Flagstaff, Montana State, picked by many to challenge BSU for the conference Championship, was defeated by a ball-hawking North Dakota team 34-14, while the Weber State Wildcats fell to the Rebels of Nevada Las Vegas 28-10. The University of Idaho journeyed to Colorado Springs to take on the powerful Air Force Falcons and the Falcons clawed the Vandals 37-0. The University of Montana and Idaho State were idle.

All seven Big Sky teams will be in action this weekend, three clubs traveling and four playing at home. Idaho will travel to Pullman to renew their old rivalry with Washington State, Montana journeys to South Dakota, and Montana State plays a night game at Fresno State. BSU opens their home season against Chico State. Weber State hosts Cal-State-Northridge. Northern Arizona entertains powerful Nevada-Las Vegas, and Idaho State opens its season by taking on Nevada-Reno in the mini-dome.

Physical Education classes explained

The large number of physical education and recreation electives at BSU exist because of quality and interest," according to Dr. Gene Cooper, chairman of the department of physical education and recreation.

Dr. Cooper stated that the objectives of the Boise State Physical Education department are to meet the interests of the students, provide them with skills, and give them opportunity to participate. In line with these objectives, the department had moved its emphasis from team to individual sports. For the same reason, course offerings are many and varied.

Boise State students can participate in trap shooting or fly casting and tying, two very popular electives. Also available are backpacking and camping, where students learn the basics of the two subjects and take two overnight trips. A course which has grown in popularity, especially among women, is co-ed modern dance. A favorite of the men is karate. One of the first classes to close out at registration is beginning bowling, instructed by Boise State bowling coach Chris Moore. Other unique classes are scuba diving, kayaking and canoeing, international folk dance, and soccer, one of the few team sports offered.

Individualized instruction is the emphasis of Janis Ogawa's billiards class. Miss Ogawa is a national college billiards champion. Classes being considered for inclusion in the curriculum are horseback riding, sailing, cross-country skiing, and belly dancing, a rigorous activity which produces superb coordination and physical fitness. Ice skating would have been offered before except for a lack of facilities.
