The challenge of excellence

Athletics have become big news and big business. Over the past two decades, the power of the sports program in the educational system of this country has increased so astronomically that it is rather apparent that nothing can be done to wane its ever-increasing influence over administrations and institutional policies.

Boise State University is no different. It seems that the influence of an outstandingly successful team/program makes its presence known, and almost without exception this fact of life is accepted by the BSU status quo. But have they, the directors of our athletic program, stopped to consider how large and important they have become, perhaps at the expense of the average student?

This last week, the question just posed was brought to light again. Why are students who shell out good money refused admittance to a game because there just is not enough student seating to go around? Why is it not possible to purchase one guest pass with each full-time ticket instead of limiting the overall guest seating to a measly 500, 1000, 1500 capacity? Why doesn't the student take precedence over community ticket sales, when the student shucks out over $18 per semester in athletic fees and $54 in bond revenues, part of which goes to pay the note on Bronco Stadium?

I wish I knew these answers, and I am sure that everyone else wishes he had the wisdom to reply, but no one does. Sad as it is, my fellow students of higher education USA, we are the scapegoats, the pidgeons—if you will. The popularity of Bronco Athletics is such that it is impossible to deny the citizens of Boise "Fals" priorities as far as seating goes.

We made the mistake, you see, of allowing the city to become too accustomed to the weekend contests; we let the people of Boise become part of our winning adventure, and now we have to pay for it by giving up our seats. This is plain fact, an indisputable observation -- nobody's fault -- it just happened that way.

I have held conversations with student leaders from Moscow and Pocatello and at both schools, there exist rather strong student movements to discontinue the football program. This could stem from the fact that both ISU and the University of Idaho have losing teams, or perhaps the students have just had enough. When the student leaders were informed of the fact that students were sometimes denied admittance to a home game because of lack of seating, their reply was simply "AND YOU STAND FOR THAT?" Yes, we stand for that.

I have no quarrel with the athletic program, nor do I begrudge them the vast amounts of money poured in by the students and community to anoint their curriculum. I do not begrudge the fact that over 100 full-ride scholarships have been given in various areas of our athletic programs or that thousands of dollars have been spent on tutoring; all I ask is that every student on this campus be given the right to see their men in action. It is not only a meager request, but a challenge to our men in blue to see that this action is taken. The challenge of athletics should be to instruct its audience in healthy competition on the field, not at the ticket gate.

Editor, the Arbiter,

As a Senator, I welcome the press at weekly ASBSU Senate meetings. However, the press was not there October 1, Mark Stinson was. A reporter objectively and faithfully reports the facts and, unless he or she is questioning someone, a reporter does not use such editorial qualifiers as "fabulous", "one of your so-called", and "disillusioned". He also quotes the facts; Henry Henschel asked for two hours every week -- not one hour every two weeks. He reconfirmed this to me the following day.

The implications Mr. Stinson blatantly made concerning Senate's unwillingness to cooperate with the handicapped were unwarranted. I am sure I'm not the only Senator who only a few hours' prior to Senate, received the proposal and was unprepared to commit myself to another two hours a week along with a heavy credit load, Senate and Faculty Senate. I also discovered, while talking to Henry, that Senator Mayer has volunteered his time and services to the committee -- apparently we're not all bad.

I'm very disappointed in Mr. Stinson's journalism and would ask that the press be duly represented this week and the remainder of the year, and that Mark choose either journalism or confine himself to the editorial page.

Respectfully,

Christensen reports on board

Last Thursday and Friday, the State Board of Education held its October meeting at Idaho State University in Pocatello. Among the varieties of information discussed was the newly-released enrollment figures.

As you may notice, BSU is in a very unique situation. We had a tremendous student enrollment increase while the trend nationally is a decreasing enrollment. Boise State University saw the largest increase in enrollment and is now for certain the higher education institution in Idaho with the most students at a total head count of 10,002. ISU has 8,172, U of I at 7,676, and Lewiston Clark State College at 1,592 students.

Of course, this increase is accompanied by a problem which was presented to the State Board of Education...that being the problem of over-crowded classrooms and an inadequate number of faculty personnel. This problem will be partially solved this spring semester, thanks to the desires of BSU's administration and the action taken by the State Board.

The State Board unanimously voted to allow BSU to obtain nine new faculty members for this spring's semester. But more important, the Board has fully recognized that BSU is a growing institution in need of assistance, which means their desire to reduce faculty student ratio; additional buildings, improvements, etc.

The State Board also relegated authority to BSU finally to bid the construction of the Special Events Center.

In closing, I would like personally to request each student to applaud the assistance of our administration, without whose help, the addition of new faculty members and the initiation of growing support from the State Board of Education would not have been possible.

Do you love a dollar bill more than me?

Once upon a time in distant Boise, Idaho, there existed a university where each individual whether Teacher, Learner or grounds helper, was regarded as a human being. Love of learning became the standard which guided the university throughout its most glorious days. Everyone was happy and the community was very proud, indeed, of its prestigious center of learning.

One day, two strangers arrived and claimed to be Master Manipulators of Learners. They were taken immediately to the High Instructor, His Instructship.

"Our theory is unequalled in all the world", the strangers exclaimed. "Not only is our plan brilliant, pragmatic and PROFITABLE, but it has far-reaching mind-molding powers as well. It will be accepted by anyone who is a fool. Think about it, Your Instructship."

The strangers were immediately hired after displaying the profit motive behind the concept and instructed to implement their master plan at once. These individuals began setting up various offices such as Business; Parking; Library Administration; the Registrar, etc.

Tickets, fees, various other costs and the parking lots were created to assist the Learners in their educational endeavors. Anything which reaped profit was completely justified and feasible to the Theorists.

A new class of individuals, the Administrators, were adopted to regulate Learner life and were instructed not to fraternize with Learners or Teachers at any level except in the line of collecting fines, fees, etc., with the primary objective of maintaining the STATUS QUO. All of their efforts were slanted to satisfy and continually polish the MAGIC COMPUTER from which All Blessings Flow.

News of these acts spreads rapidly over the campus. Learners began looking at each other wondering which of them was a fool. Everyone worried that he or she might not be able to receive the fruits of the New Life.

Just to be on the safe side, His Instructship sent one of his wisest Administrators to insure Theorist progress was being maintained. This Administrator sought out the Strangers and immediately noted the almost total lack of written procedures, regulations or even authority to accomplish these new acts. The Theorists assured him they were not necessary since after all, they were dealing only with Learners. The Administrator pondered, contemplating whether he was a fool or not, and abruptly exclaimed: "Magnificent".

As the days went by, the Strangers demanded more from the Learners, i.e., matriculation fees; Arbitrator censorship; parking decals; cap and gown fees, etc. His Instructship marveled at the accumulation of gold and silver; he supplied everything the Theorists needed to continue on.

Then one day, His Instructship was informed that all the work was completed and each Learner was completely subdued. He listened patiently as the Strange Ones revealed the funds which had been collected and the Wonders which could be.

He loudly exclaimed, "Wonderful", and ordered the newly formed Semesters to begin.

He felt so proud that he ordered registration for all students and paraded Himself as well as the Administration throughout the campus for all the Learners to see; to appreciate the immense efforts put forth by his Staff. His Instructship decreed that this would occur each semester and He would permanently lead the parade.

Thus His Instructship led the Administrative line to Initial Registration amidst the throng of obedient servant Learners until he arrived at the Royal Platform. He ascended it and each Learner shouted their approval and happiness with the new system.

His Instructship began speaking of the glory achieved in enrollment and all the wonderful things which would happen when a voice suddenly cried out: "Do you love a Dollar Bill more than me?"

Whispers grew to a roar. "Fines, reason, authority, evictions from the University, could it be after they said we were so happy?"

And His Instructship trembled for he knew it was true.

Band member answers

Editor, the Arbiter,

As a member of the Boise State University Marching Band, I can attest to the fact that the band did actually play to the student side of the stadium each proposed new school song. Each song was played twice, once to each side of the stadium. Maybe you just didn't notice. As for the choir, I really can't tell why except that the amplification system did not carry to the student side. It didn't even carry across the field in the practice sessions and I am as much in the dark as you for the words they sang, if they really did.

The band works hard to present a halftime show that most people don't even notice, and they inhibit others in their viewing by their loud talk and moving around. Check the band out at the next game...you'll be pleased.

What's in a name? A rose by any other name contemplated

by Jo Elliott-Blakeslee

What's in a name? A rose by any other name would smell as sweet. Right? Shakespeare or somebody important said that a long time ago. So why should anyone get uptight about his or her name? Even if a guy happened to be named Herkimer Ickabod Twattlefat, that name doesn't change him -- or his personality. Well, perhaps that's a little extreme. Perhaps all of the Herkimer Twattlefats and Grezelda Thornbuckers in the world are suffering a terrible burden. Consider the following situation. You see a friend of yours with someone you haven't met, and they walk over to you. Your friend says, "Linda Thompson (addressing you), I'd like you to meet Herkimer Twattlefat". Now, could you honestly keep a straight face? And how would poor Herkimer feel seeing you rolling in the grass while laughing hysterically? Well, it's probable that the name each of us has to carry from birth has more of an effect on our personalities than we realize.

I didn't really give much consideration to people's names, or even the process of naming people, until a few years' ago when I read several articles written by those "flaming women's liberationists" who either refused to change their names when they married, or had realized afterward that it was a patriarchal culture which demanded that they change their last names to that of their husband's when they entered the blessed state of matrimony. At first, I thought the idea a bit absurd. After mulling over their complaints, I thought maybe they were right. For example, in some Arab countries, women don't change their names when they marry and in many Spanish-speaking countries women keep their own last names as well as adopting that of their husband's. Would American men be irate if the women demanded the men change their surnames to that of the woman's upon marriage? Most probably would be. The shoe does not seem to fit equally well on either foot. After all, we do live in a patriarchal culture.

I suppose it's good to gripe once in a while. College students do. Voters do. Almost everybody does; it's the squeaky wheel that gets the grease, and all that. As far as this naming thing goes, some women have changed their married names back to their "maiden" names. Surprisingly (to me, at least), some of their husbands agreed with them. I read where a few couples had adopted each other's name -- Hugo and Jane van Lawick-Goodall -- for example, the celebrated chimpanzee studiers. One couple even abandoned both their last names and jointly took an entirely new and different name.

Well, as a single person I can sympathize with the married women's plight. But I don't have a husband's last name to worry about changing. I had my father's. Not my mother's, my father's. Now honestly in the name of fairness, how can anyone justify a system in which the only name propagated is the father's? Physiologically speaking, all that a father donates to the creation of a new human being is one-half of a DNA molecule. So why should children's surnames be only those of the father? Why not both parents?

Ah yes, I can hear the groans already. "Here it comes", they gasp. "Not only did the 'libbers' want the vote and equal pay, and equal promotion, but now we've got to do away with the whole naming system. Fred, can you just imagine the mess?" Yes, I can and have. If every child had two last names, the mother's and the father's, and then as an adult, married another person with two last names, would their children have four last names? At that rate, the seventh generation would have 128 last names, which is obviously too cumbersome to bother with. If we chuck that method and let each child choose which last name he wants -- the mother's or the father's -- or if the child is given an entirely different last name from either his mother or father, then no one would know, by name at least, who anyone else was related to. Now in my opinion, that's not such a bad idea, but that's another story.

Well, I griped about the system long enough, so I decided to "put up or shut up". I had my name legally changed to include my mother's last name. That's not entirely satisfactory, either, since her "maiden" name was her father's, not her mother's. The plain fact is, women in this country don't have surnames of their own; they have only their father's or their husband's. Is that so bad? Is Herkimer Twattlefat so bad? The argument comes full circle back to, "what's in a name?" I don't have all the answers. I do know that the present naming system in this country is a definite reflection of a patriarchal culture, and it is yet another way to strip a woman of her identity. It probably isn't the one most serious problem facing women today, but I think it bears thoughtful consideration.

The Senate meeting was called to order by Dave Ward. Ron Stephensen was then introduced to the Senate. Ron stated that they were aware that a problem did exist with the seating in the stadium. Ron then stated that the problems in the last games were due to two things. (1) too many guests passes had been sold (2) the ushers didn't recognize the difference between student tickets and general admittance, thus allowing the general public to sit on the student side.

The floor was then opened for questions. When asked if the ISU students would be allowed to sit on our side he answered that they would be in section 9 on the general public side. As to the number of tickets sent to Pocatello there were 500 student tickets and 962 general admission. When I asked Mr. Stephensen what would happen if all the students which paid for tickets (if you are a full-time student you have paid and are entitled to go to all home games) would come to the U of I game, his answer was pure and simple, "we'd be in trouble." It would appear to me that something must be wrong if all students who are paying for the construction of the stadium in addition to a fee in order to attend home games can't attend these games due to lack of student seating. I feel someone is getting the shaft! If you have an opinion, write the Arbiter or better yet attend the next home game.

At this time Ken Butler moved that no matter how many activity cards a person shows, he/she will be allowed to purchase only two guest tickets. The motion was seconded and passed. A good step, toward the solution of the problem, by the senate.

Also, from now on each student with a student ticket will be required to show their photo I.D. card at the gate. If you don't have such a card, photos will be taken Thursday and Friday of this Week.

President Chistensen then gave his report to the Senate. Kit announced that there will be a Youth Leadership Conference for area high school students October 26, 1974. This will be sponsored by the ASBSU and the Administration. Kit then asked as many senators as possible to attend this conference.

Christensen then reported that he had attended the State Board of Education meeting Thursday and Friday and stated that BSU had received an additional $120,000 due to the increase in enrollment. This will allow BSU to hire nine new faculty members.

Kit then reported that work on the upper east deck of the stadium will be under way sometime after the first of the year, for a cost of $190,000.

The question was brought as to whether the Homecoming Queen or Mr. Bronco need a 2.25 G.P.A. The senate declared that it will be conducted this year as a Homecoming Public Opinion Poll, thus illuminating the question of required 2.25. Candidates must be registered by this Friday. The campaign starts October 21 with elections on October 30-31 from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at any one of the five poll areas--L.A., Vo-Tech, Business, SUB, Library. You must have your photo I.D. and one other form of I.D. to vote.

It was brought to the attention of the senate that the Radio Station for BSU has a house and are trying to get a station going. They are not going to use any ASBSU funds until they find out if it is legal for the ASBSU to own and operate a station. We'll just have to wait and see what vibes come from the FCC.

There was no further announcements or emergency items. Meeting adjourned at 5:00 p.m.

Bicycle riders beware

by Pat Nance

Two issues ago, a Mr. Donald George wrote a letter to this periodical concerning bicyclists and pedestrians at Boise State University. Being a member of both categories of students, I feel some comment is necessary.

Bicycles are a healthful, non-polluting means of transportation. Granted. But they also can be as much a nuisance as automobiles. If I were to drive my Volkswagen down the sidewalk the way some people ride their bikes, you can bet I'd get my ass grabbed and quick. There are some, and I say it again...some bike riders at BSU who have the same disregard for pedestrians as motorists have for bicyclists. Neither bikers nor motorists have sole priority on the roads or sidewalks. Those of us who walk to class have a right to the sidewalks, also. Perhaps bike lanes on campus could be a solution but there must be others, such as courteous and attentive bicycling. (By the way, rumor has it that if the situation doesn't change, Militant Pedestrians will begin constructing combination first-aid-station-machine gun nests at major sidewalk intersections!!!)

Speaking of sidewalks and the like, does anyone know what happened to the footbridge that was to cross the river, giving students easy access to the park? The plans have been in the works for God-alone-knows how many years and the University community has been given many, many completion dates for the bridge. Why don't we just build the damn thing or forget about it?

As always, I could carry on longer, but in the interest of humanity, I won't. Until later, ta-ta. (Ow, that was my foot, you crazy bicyclist!!!!)

HOW YOU CAN SPREAD THE MESSAGE OF LOVE... THE LOVE OF CHRIST FOR ALL PEOPLE.

Have you ever considered the priesthood as a way to serve people? The Paulist Fathers are a small community of American priests: Progressive, searching, young and energetic, they form a religious family.

A Paulist is a man of the Spirit, a man of his time. He rejoices in the signs of hope around him and celebrates with the people he serves.

Every Paulist is a missionary: in the pulpit, or parish house, on the campus, in the inner-city. He communicates with the spoken word, the printed page, and with contemporary media. His mission is to all of America. His message is love: the love of Christ for all people.

BSU opts to keep fight song 'Orange and Blue'

Boise State University will officially keep the "Orange and Blue" fight song that has served BSU for many years.

With the change in Boise State "College" to Boise State "University", the idea arose possibly to change the pep song, also.

$200 was offered as a prize for a new official song. Contest regulations and composition requirements were distributed nationally and a selection committee was formed. Represented were:

Music Department
Athletic Department
Bronco Athletic Association
Administration
Alumni Association
Associated Students of BSU

Three compositions which were chosen as the best by the committee were performed by the Bronco Marching Band and the BSU Meister singers at half-time during the first game. They were:

Boise State University Fight Song
by William H. Hill
(California)

Broncos, Ride On"
by D. Manuel Garcia
(Ohio)

Hail, BSU
by Thomas Hutcheson (Tennessee)

The traditional "Orange and Blue" was also performed.

Students, fans, and alumni were given ballots at the game and the choice was made. The traditional "Orange and Blue" was voted most popular by a substantial margin.

The fight song which served Boise Junior College and Boise State College for many years will continue as the official pep song for Boise State University.

Curriculum center offers class aids

The Boise State University Curriculum Resource Center offers the newest in classroom aids for kindergarten and high school instructors, according to Carol Clemens, library technician.

The center, located on the second floor of the library, is the largest facility of this type in Idaho. "Its purpose is to serve children in special and regular educational classes by making the most recent methods and materials available for teacher's use", Ms Clemens stated.

Materials at the center include flashcards; games for strengthening phonics and testing auditory comprehension; super 8 loop film projectors; filmstrips, slides and visual charts.

"All university students are urged to use the center", Ms Clemens said. "Many of the materials are also suitable for use in the college classroom. Filmstrips and slides, for example, cover topics such as women's rights; protest and propaganda; man as the aggressor, and the Arts".

The Curriculum Resource Center is available as follows:

Monday through Thursday
7:30 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.

Boise State Instructor Dr. Rolando Bonachea

BSU Professor authors books on Cuban revolt

Havana, Cuba is more than four thousand miles from Boise State University. For Dr. Rolando Bonachea, the distance hasn't been as long as the time he's been away. It has been 14 years since he left Cuba.

It was October, 1960, when 17-year old Rolando Bonachea left his native land bound for New York City. He didn't know a soul there. Fidel Castro assumed power in January, 1959 and soon afterward, Bonachea's father fell into disfavor with the Castro regime. He fled to Miami. His mother and two brothers weren't able to leave until 1961. After 15 days of job hunting in New York, the best job Bonachea could come up with was that of a dishwasher. He worked at that for a year, attending night school to earn a high school diploma. Despite his limited English, he did well. So well, that he won a one semester scholarship to the University of New Mexico. After seven years of hard work, he earned his bachelor's degree in political science.

During his time with University of New Mexico, he became interested in revolution. Then, he assumed duties as research assistant to the school's Latin Affairs expert, and that experience led to his first book written during his senior year. Entitled "Che - The Collected Works of Ernesto Che Guevara", the book (published by MIT Press) is now in its second printing.

From New Mexico, he continued on to Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., where he pursued a master's degree in Latin American Studies.

He met his future wife in 1971 when attending a school social function. She was in Washington working toward her masters in nursing at Catholic University. They were married last August, the day after he finished and defended his doctoral dissertation.

Two more books were published during 1968-73, "Cuba in Revolution" by Doubleday and "Revolutionary Struggle-Fidel Castro 1947-59, Volume I" by MIT Press. Volumes II & III will be out next year.

How did Bonachea come to BSU? Two years' ago, he drove through Idaho while on a cross-country trip. Being an outdoorsman and backpacker, he liked what he saw; when he came across a BSU job announcement last year, he applied and was accepted.

His latest work, now being written, is "U.S. Foreign Policy and the Cuban Revolution 1959-74".

He holds the title of assistant professor of history at BSU while Mrs. Bonachea is a member of the BSU nursing faculty. His father died two years' ago, but the remainder of the family have prospered in this country. His mother remains in Miami. An older brother is a New Jersey community college dean. His younger brother is with the United States Army in Korea.

Honors Program offers seminars on science, education, football

Three Honors Program seminars offered this fall are:

Science and Ethics
Foundations of Education
Football for the Spectator

Coordinated by Marty Most, Football for the Spectator is designed to acquaint the student with the basic rules, objectives and strategy, as well as many of the controversies of America's greatest sports phenomenon---the game of football. Among the topics to be discussed are: gambling, racism and drug abuse in football; psychology of the crowd and players; Women's Professional Football League; referees and literature of football. Speakers will include Coaches Tony Knap and John Cooper (Boise High School). Emphasis will be decided by students.

This seminar will be held on Thursday evenings.....7:00 to 8:00.

The Science and Ethics seminar will be held once weekly, beginning the second week of September and ending the first of December. Steve Ketchum is coordinating the program. Ketchum, a member of the Honors Program for a half year, has included political candidates and other guest speakers in the seminar's curriculum. Dr. William Mech, Ms Phoebe Lundy, Dr. Sickles, and Dr. Leo Jones or Dr. O-bee are scheduled as speakers.

Foundations of Education seminar is being coordinated by Julie Morris and Dr. E. Coston Frederick, Associate Professor of Education. Topics to be discussed will include:

Questions answered about procedure of ticket sales

In the weekly ASBSU Senate meeting, Senators and students alike queried Assistant Athletic Director of the Varsity Center, Ron Stephenson. Questions centered around the stadium situation and BSU students' inability to procure guest tickets for the home games.

Stephenson opened the discussion by stating that the Chico State game was oversold because of the issuance of too many guest tickets and confusion by the ushers as to the seating of general admission ticket holders, resulting in some students losing their seats. He stated the current problems are three-fold:

1. Guest tickets are not available because of student abuse by using activity tickets other than their own.
2. Part-time students must buy guest tickets to attend games and some seats are lost there.
3. The Athletic Department knew of the problem but the solution they proposed (limiting number of guest tickets) failed.

Stephenson stated then that an informative pamphlet entitled "Student Ticket Information" was to have been handed out at the end of the registration line. The pamphlet outlines rules for receiving tickets and the necessity of the present system. Neither members of the Senate nor of the gallery acknowledged ever receiving such a pamphlet.

At the present time, Stephenson said there are no general admission tickets left for the ISU game and that ushers have been informed of the ticket differences, thus eliminating the confusion over seating.

The session then turned to questioning Mr. Stephenson on some specifics. In answer to a question of where the ISU students would be seated, Stephenson stated emphatically they would be on the west, or press box side of the stadium, not the BSU side as had been rumored.

In answering a question as to why students who had arrived at 5:00 or 6:00 p.m. were being "booted" from seats on the 50-yard line by the BSU Marching Band, Stephenson said these seats are marked "BAND" and should be honored as such. When queried about whether the band would move to end zone seats if a seating problem arose, Stephenson yielded to Mel Baldwin, director of the Marching Band. Baldwin explained that as members of a one-credit class in marching band, the students were required to attend the games. Furthermore, Baldwin stated ALL band members are full-time students and are entitled to seats, anyway. Baldwin neglected to comment upon the necessity of having 50-yard line seats or whether they would move in the event of a seating shortage until he had consulted with the members of the band.

The 1974-75 High School topic is:

Resolved:

Vending machine rep. located on BSU campus

Mr. Gene Blackwelder, Director of Auxiliary Services, has named Marty Estrel as student vending representative. This is a part-time position created by BSU and Kwik Kafe vending company.

Marty's main function will be to improve service on campus vending machines. The vending operation on campus is contracted out to Kwik Kafe of Idaho, and Marty will be working for them, BSU, and the students. It is hoped that he will help the operation run smoother, since he is a student, himself, in the communications department.

The vending machines are here specifically as a service and convenience for the students and faculty. Foreign coins, bent coins, and paper should not be used in them as these will jam the machine and cause others to lose their money. Probably 75 percent of the machine failures are caused by misuse of the machine.

Another point students should understand is that nobody is getting rich from these machines. The university receives a commission from Kwik Kafe for the service. All commission monies earned by the university are paid monthly and deposited in the General Scholarship Fund. All monies from the housing machines are used for housing aids. This leaves only a small margin of profit for Kwik Kafe which they need to remain in business.

Change banks are being established in various places on the campus for students to get refunds of any money lost in the machines.

If students have any complaints, ideas or comments, Marty can be reached through the office of Auxiliary Services. All comments and questions are welcome. Contact:

The Performing Arts center at the U of I.

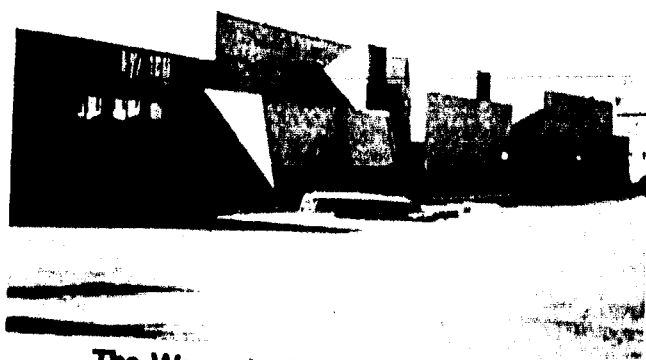

An unrehearsed, unscripted actual classroom situation.

They say a picture is worth a thousand words, so here is a page of pictures worth an entire book. The pictures deal with the facilities at the University of Idaho at Moscow, and the facilities at Boise State University.

It is hard to make a fair comparison between the two institutions because one of the institutions is older than the other and has a larger alumni organization which carries considerable influence in this state. Not only does it carry considerable influence in the Legislature, but two members of the Board of Regents for the University of Idaho have seats on the State Board of Education...namely Mrs. Swartley and Munson.

It is also interesting to note that very few of the University of Idaho buildings were built with student funds, and that almost all-with the exception of some state help toward the library learning addition and the new science building-have been constructed with student funds here at BSU.

If you have never visited the University of Idaho, here are some facts you should know. The area of the campus which consists of the major learning centers is about half again as large as the BSU campus. The overall campus at the U of I is much larger because of the land acquisitions and land grants. The U of I campus is large enough to facilitate a 9-hole golf course, a forest of tree specimens, a Greek row, a private home provided for the University's president, and -believe it or not-adequate parking facilities. After interviews and conversations with students who have attended classes at both the University of Idaho and Boise State University, it was stated quite openly that the quality of education received at both institutions is equal. Both schools have their good faculty members and their bad. The BSU School of Education was highly praised as was the BSU School of Business; whereas the School of Art and the School of Engineering at Moscow are their high point winners.

Look over the pictures, think about it and draw your own conclusions. If you think we can do better get in touch with someone who is powerful or is in a position to do something about it...i.e., your representatives in the Idaho State Legislature.

Woman mechanic questioned why

Camshafts - valve lifters - altime-ters - brake drums - fuel pumps. If you recognize what these are, you are probably a male. BUT, if you were under a car yelling your head off for a sprocket, how many females could run and get one and take it to you in a matter of two minutes? One woman can: PAT DOUGHTY from Caldwell. The reason she can is that she is in Auto Parts class, instructed by Max Lamborn, of the Vocational-Technical Division.

Most of us have a reason for doing something a little different. Pat's husband collects old cars and restores them as a hobby. After running out of children, dogs and hobbies....this 36-year old grandmother made up her mind to join her husband in his hobby. If she gets greasy and grimy from crawling around under a car, how could she yell at her husband for leaving a few fingerprints on the doors and getting the towels dirty? He's gotter there!

Pat did admit that she does have some mechanical aptitude and repairs her own appliances at home, such as the washer, or dryer, and does soldering when necessary. She enjoys other hobbies -- designs jewelry, works with ceramics, makes lamps, and other nicknacks.

At the time we were talking, she was wearing a neat-looking pants suit enhanced by a very attractive necklace with matching ring which she had created. It was difficult to visualize this nicely-dressed, coiffured young housewife with dirty fingernails, covered with grease and grime, wearing coveralls, with her head deep inside the front end of a car putting valve lifters and fuel pumps in place.

After nine months as a student of Auto Parts, Pat will receive a document certifying her as a "Counter-man" (or would it be "Counterwoman"?)

This training will enable her to take employment in the auto parts division of such firms as Sears, or automobile companies, etc. She will be able to read the catalogs listing all vehicle parts and aid the customers who order these items. If you have seen a parts catalog, you will see that it is no easy task. I think I will stick to pasting labels on things. The only thing you need to know is where.

Gamma Phi Beta celebrates 100 years

Gamma Phi Beta will be 100 years old next month and to celebrate, the BSU chapter will accompany Idaho State University members to the University of Idaho at Moscow.

The sorority is a national organization founded November 12, 1874 at Syracuse University in New York. Their Centennial convention was held in Kansas City last June with sisters from all chapters attending. The BSU chapter, Delta Beta, was represented by President Karen Johnson and Marlene Sharpe.

"The prime objective of Gamma Phi", Ms Johnson said, "is to advance to a higher spiritual, mental and social culture. We strive toward womanhood through sisterhood".

Activities thus far this semester have included: serving for the Bronco Athletic Association luncheon; assisting with ticket sales for "Evel Wevel", and participating in a pie-eating contest with the TKE's. They won the event and were rewarded with a membership to BAA and a trophy. New members:

Leslie Merrill - Burns, Oregon

Senate meeting

Kristi Kitchen, an ASBSU senator, asked what the policy was as to fraternities, sororities or any other organizations roping off sections for their exclusive use. Stephenson said he was not aware that this was happening nor did he approve of it. When verified by students who had witnessed the incidents that this was indeed the case, Stephenson said if it persists, privileges for such organizations could be lifted or some other action would be taken against them.

He replied to a question of "what if every student picked up a ticket to the game, where would they go?" by saying such a situation has never existed as of the present and if it did, theoretically students would probably be seated either on the west side or in end zone bleachers. Stephenson added to this by saying he didn't think it would ever come to that.

Senator Ken Butler then moved to limit the number of guest tickets any one student would be allowed to obtain to two, thus eliminating any one student from purchasing an excess amount of tickets with activity cards other than his own. The motion was seconded and after discussion as to whether this would effectively eliminate the problem, the motion was voted on and passed. The policy, as of now, stands something like this: STUDENTS WILL NOT BE ALLOWED TO PURCHASE MORE THAN TWO GUEST TICKETS REGARDLESS OF HOW MANY ACTIVITY TICKETS HE MAY HAVE IN HIS POSSESSION.

In closing, Stephenson stated that at the gates, students will be required to show their photo I.D. card with the ticket. Arrangements have been made with the Photo Lab in the Administration Building to remain open all Thursday and Friday for those students needing to obtain a photo I.D.

ALL ORGANIZATIONS:

All you have to do to enter is pick up an application at the information booth or in the programs office. The application must be submitted to the programs office before October 15. On the application, you will be asked to write a short story for a film, how you would film it, a budget estimate and that is all. The winner or winners will be funded to make that film; entry fees will be paid into as many film festivals as possible.

Remember....the deadline is October 15.

SPEED READING?

Read This in 30 seconds

So you're a good student are you? You work hard, get pretty good grades, why should you take RDI's speed reading course? Maybe what you don't realize is that RDI's classes are filled with good students, students who can see the value in improving their reading speed, students who want to remember better what they read and who can see how being able to read more could mean better grades this year. Join with the hundreds of college students in enrolling in RDI's classes, attend a free demonstration next week. Limited Boise classes will be offered. For information, call 376-3823.

But was it sweet? BSU garnered revenge over Nevada-Reno 36-16 last Saturday. (Photo by Conroy)

From the sidelines

Vengeance is mine he saith and the wolfpack answereth

by Tim Ritter

REVENGE! clamored the sign pasted to the upper deck in Bronco Stadium last Saturday night and revenge was what BSU got by thrashing the hard (and late)-hitting Nevada-Reno Wolfpack 36-16. Nevada-Reno was assessed almost 200 yards in penalties during the contest, and it was apparent to most fans they deserved every inch of the penalty yardage they got. One rather timely (for future BSU opponents) late hit put sophomore wide receiver out of action for the remainder of the season. Don't worry if you were at the game and missed this fine display of unsportsmanlike conduct, it happened three yards out of bounds and after Hutt had come to a stop. Now don't get me wrong fans, I enjoy forearm shivers as much as the next guy, but not when they occur after the play has been dead for two seconds. The kind of treatment Nevada-Reno gave the Broncos Saturday night can at best be described as shocking. A hard-nosed football team has always been thought of (at least by me) as a team that plays no-nonsense ball, tackles hard, blocks hard, and is mainly concerned with winning the game. If the University of Nevada-Reno Wolfpack considers itself a hard-nosed team, they are laboring under a severe illusion.

The main thought of this column, however, is not how Nevada-Reno played their dirty game, but how Boise State played their clean one. The Broncos had plenty of chances to express their displeasure to Reno players in ways that could do bodily harm, but BSU channeled their energies toward winning instead of maiming. The only anger BSU showed was in vicious tackling and blocking as the injuries to Hutt and senior running back Chester Grey inspired Boise State, and all that was missing after the Broncos had run the Wolfpack out of the stadium were the tar and feathers. Nevada-Reno's display of sportsmanship was reminiscent of alley brawls. Boise State's demonstration was one of pure class. Tony Knap and his coaching staff, and the Boise State Bronco team members, especially, are to be commended. Sportsmanship is alive and well at Boise State.

Remembering past gridiron battles with Idaho State, don't be too sure of a runaway Saturday night, which is what most signs point toward. ISU is a well-coached ball club, and their 0-2 conference record is not an indication of the game they would like to give BSU. The Bengals have not forgotten last year in the Mini-dome, when Idaho State had the Broncos up against the wall 17-7 in the fourth period only to have Tony Knap's charges escape with a 21-17 victory and the conference championship. Adding fuel to the fire, remember the year before in Bronco Stadium when the heavily favored Bengals again were defeated by the Broncos in an extremely emotional contest.

Boise State has done a little shuffling in personnel to compensate for key injuries. They have a little date next Saturday night in Las Vegas, and the Broncos could be looking ahead to that battle with a fine, undefeated Nevada-Las Vegas team. The Broncos cannot afford to overlook Idaho State, however, as I am sure Coach Knap and his staff are well aware of this. It's a much-used cliché, but throw all the records out the window when the Broncos and the Bengals square off Saturday night on the artificial turf at Bronco Stadium. It will be an intense, emotional struggle.

Harriers take week off prepare for Weber State

With a fourth-place finish in the University of Idaho invitational behind them, the Boise State University Cross-Country team will have a week's layoff before resuming action against Weber State, October 18, at Ogden.

In the meet at Moscow, BSU placed two runners in the top ten; Steve Collier who placed fifth and Randy Terraberry, who placed eighth. "Steve did a great job for us in Moscow", commented head coach Ed Jacoby. "He beat an All-American from Washington State, and that's not bad for a freshman". Terraberry placed eighth but in doing so, the senior from Boise ran the same time as last year and the course was half a mile longer than a year ago.

Commenting on the layoff, Jacoby stated, "I'm happy that we have a week off so we can get Bob Walker and some of our other injured runners healthy again. Walker had a muscle strain in his thigh which he incurred while overcompensating for the injury in his hip. When Walker comes around, I hope we can get more consistency in our runners and maybe we can have our five best runners grouped a little closer together. The University of Idaho meet proved we could do well, but I think we rely too much on Walker and this is what we must overcome".

Favorites emerge in intramural football

Broncos face ISU in intra-state battle

With their four-game win streak and national ranking on the line, the Broncos from Boise State will host rival Idaho State Saturday night in Bronco Stadium. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. The Big Sky game was sold-out early Monday morning with 14,500 fans expected to see the clash.

The 4-0 (1-0 Big Sky) record of the Broncos is the third time Tony Knap's Broncos have reached that mark at the beginning of a season since 1968; Knap's first year at BSU. The Broncos also won four straight at the beginning of the 1970 and 1973 seasons.

That fourth victory 36-16 over the Reno Wolf Pack, by the Broncos last Saturday night was an expensive one for the team as they lost wide receiver Terry Hutt and fullback Chester Grey for the remainder of the season. Hutt suffered a knee injury while Grey injured his ankle.

"We face another week with problems a little more numerous than usual", coach Knap said. "Not only do we need to prepare game plans for Idaho State but we also need to shuffle personnel to compensate for the loss of Grey and Hutt".

Filling the void at those two spots will be senior Ken Johnson at fullback and junior John Crabtree at one of the wide receiver spots.

"The Bengals present some real problems in their own right", Knap said. "They are a good offensive and defensive club which can be expected to be really fired-up for Boise State. They had a little problem with the option coverage last Saturday against the Idaho Vandals but they weren't beaten physically", Knap added.

Idaho State brings a 1-2 record (0-2 Big Sky) into Bronco Stadium Saturday night. They won their opener 13-7 over the University of Nevada-Reno but lost two straight conference games in the next two outings. They were defeated by Northern Arizona 20-15 and the University of Idaho 28-9 last Saturday.

Poumele, Grey

Hutt feted

by BAA

Voting took an unusual turn Monday as the Bronco Athletic Association selected the Offensive and Defensive Players of the Week. Honors for offense went to two players: Chester Grey and Terry Hutt. Both men have been sidelined for the season due to injuries suffered Saturday night against Nevada-Reno. Defensive credit went to end Pete Poumele.

For Chester Grey, Saturday's war was his last as a Bronco, as the fullback from Honolulu is a senior this year. Grey suffered torn ligaments in his ankle on a six-yard pass play in the second quarter.

Just two plays later, wide receiver Terry Hutt tore up his left knee on a late hit after snatching an 18-yard pass from Jim McMillan. Hutt will be back next year, however, since he is presently a sophomore.

Pete Poumele got the nod from the BAA for his performance against the Wolf Pack offense. Poumele had five tackles Saturday to bring his season total to 22.

Commenting on the Reno game, and tough competitors from the Knap said "I have a lot of respect for their courage and aggressiveness, but they carried it a bit too far. With our national ranking this is the kind of effort we have been meeting every week and it is the price we have to pay to maintain our lofty reputation. I feel that this is the way football should be played every week. I have classified our opponents as being highly spirited

Idaho State has been mainly a running team, averaging 215 yards per game. Their top runner is tailback Curt Ashton who has carried the ball 36 times for 172 yards and no scores. Fullback Ken Monroe has 28 carries to his credit for 152 yards and a 5.4 average per carry.

The starting quarterback for the Bengals will be Pal Sartori, a senior, who has completed four of 21 passing attempts for 40 yards. Freshman Steve Tosches is also expected to see some action at the QB spot. He has completed 12 of 23 passing attempts for 254 yards and two scores. ISU's top receivers are yds.)

Bronco All American candidate Jim McMillan will get another severe test of his passing attack from the Bengals. McMillan who is 43 of 81 for 843 yards and eight scores will be facing a defensive secondary which has allowed their opponents a slim 118.7 yards a game via the airlines. McMillan is also averaging 323 yards a game in total offense.
