Do you love a dollar bill more than me?

Once upon a time in distant Boise, Idaho, there existed a university that was the envy of the nation. Whether Teacher, Learner or grounds helper, was regarded as a human being. Love of learning became the standard which guided the university throughout its most glorious days. Everyone was happy and the community was very proud, indeed, of its prestigious center of learning.

One day, two strangers arrived and claimed to be the Master Manipulators of Learners. They were taken immediately to the High Instrctor. His Instructship decreed that this would occur each semester and He would permanently lead the parade.

The strangest were immediately hired after displaying the proofs of their ill conscience, which reaped profit was completely justified and feasible to the Theorists.

A new class of individuals, the Administrators were added to the number of Learners and were instructed not to fraternize with Teachers or Learners at any level except in the line of collecting fees, fees, etc., with the primary object of maintaining the STATUS QUSO. All of their efforts were staled to satisfy and continually publish the Theorists, i.e., matriculation fees; and claimed to be Master Teachers. They were instructed not to fraternize with Students until he arrived at each Learner was collected and the Wonders which were revealed: the funds which had been collected and the Wonders which could be.

He loudly exclaimed, "Wonderful!" and ordered the newly formed Senators to begin. He felt that this order was the result of his previous experiment and that the process was going to be very unique.

Bicycle riders beware
By Pat Nance
Two weeks ago a Mr. Donald George wrote a letter to this periodical concerning bicyclists and pedestrians. He said, "Being a member of both categories of students, I feel some concern is necessary.

Bicycles are a healthful, non-polluting means of transportation. Graded. But they also can be a much nuisance as automobiles. If I went too fast, my Volkswagen "doggie" would go down the sidewalk the way some people ride their bikes, you can bet I'd get my axe and black and quick. There are some, and I say it again...some bike riders at BSU who have made the decision that the only people in the world who walk to the road are sidewalks. Those of us who walk to class have a right to the sidewalks also. Perhaps bike riders would change their names to "pedestrians" and vice versa. Perhaps they should change their names to that of the woman's or the man's marriage. Probably would be a bit too much trouble. The road was meant to fit equally well on either side. After all, we live in a patriarchal culture.

I suppose it's good to gripe once in a while. College students do. Vo- deo do. Almost everybody does: it's the way they vent their spleen after they've left their jobs. They are laughing hysterically? Well, it's probable that the name each of us has has more of an effect on our personalities than we realize.

I didn't really give much consideration to people's names, or even the process of naming people, until a few years back when I read a few articles written by those "famous women's liberationists" who either refuse to change their names when they married, or had realized afterward that it was a patriarchal culture which demanded that they change their last names to that of the men when they entered the blessed state of marriage. At first, I thought the idea a bit strange and even wondered about complaints, I thought maybe they were right. For example, in some Arabic-speaking countries, they change their names when they marry and in many Spanish-speaking countries women keep their own names. Would Americans be men be if the women of the States were to change their surnames to that of the woman's or the man's marriage? Most probably would be a bit too much to ask. The road was meant to fit equally well on either side. After all, we live in a patriarchal culture.

I suppose it's good to gripe once in a while. College students do. Video do. Almost everybody does: it's the way they vent their spleen after they've left their jobs. They are laughing hysterically? Well, it's probable that the name each of us has has more of an effect on our personalities than we realize.

Well, as a single person I can sympathize with the married women's plight. But I don't have a husband's last name to worry about changing. I had my father's. Not my mother's, my father's. Now if I should remarry, the same thing could happen again. How can anyone justify a system in which the only name propagated is the father's? Physiologically speaking, all that a father donates to his child is a germ and sperm. So why should children's surnames be only those of their father? Why must they change their names?

Ah yes, I can hear the groans at this point. "Here it comes", they say. "Not only did the 'libbers' want the vote and equal pay, but from now on every woman is going to use any ASBSU funds until the shaft!" I had my name legally changed to include my mother's maiden name. It's not been entirely satisfactory, either, since her "maiden name" was her father's, not her mother's. The plain fact is, women in this country don't have surnames of their own right. It is only the husband's or their husband's. Is that so bad? Is Herkimer Twattlefats so bad? The argument comes full circle, because it's what a person's last name is, not her mother's or his father's. That is the way they were given.

As for this naming system in society, it is a definite reflection of a patriarchal culture and is yet another way to strip a woman of her identity. It probably isn't the one right answer, but it is the correct one today, but I think it bears thoughtful consideration.

Well, I gripped about the system long enough. So I decided to "put up or shut up." I had my name legally changed to include my mother's maiden name. It's not been entirely satisfactory, either, since her "maiden name" was her father's, not her mother's. The plain fact is, women in this country don't have surnames of their own right. It is only the husband's or their husband's. Is that so bad? Is Herkimer Twattlefats so bad? The argument comes full circle, because it's what a person's last name is, not her mother's or his father's. That is the way they were given.

Speaking of sidewalks and the like, does anyone know what happened to the bridge that crosses the river, giving students easy access to the park? The plans, being the way they are, must have been in the works for God-alone knows how many years and the University has been given many, many completion dates for the bridge. Why don't we just hold the damn thing or forget about it? As always, I could carry on longer, but in the interest of humanity, I won't. Until later, rée-ta. (Ow, that was my foot, you crazy bicyclists!!!)

How you can spread the message of love: the love of Christ for all people.

Have you ever considered the preachers' adage that "there are a small number of people with a small number of people who have a small number of people who have a small number of people?"

A Parish is a group of people who have a common purpose - the purpose of spreading the message of Christ. Parishioners are the people who are witnesses to the message of Christ. Parishioners are the people who are witnesses to the message of Christ.

Whether you are a parishioner or not, you can help spread the message of Christ for all people. You can help spread the message of Christ for all people. You can help spread the message of Christ for all people.

Curriculum center offers class aids

"The Boise State University Curriculum Resource Center offers the newest in classroom aids for kindergarten and high school instructors, according to Carol Clemens, library technician.

The center, located on the second floor of the library, is the largest facility of its type in Idaho. Its purpose is to serve children in special and regular educational classes by making the most recent methods and materials available for teachers' use," Ms. Clemens stated.

Materials at the center include flashcards; games for strengthening phonics and testing auditory comprehension; super 8 loop film projectors; filmstrips; slides and visual charts.

"All university students are urged to use the center," Ms. Clemens said. "Many of the materials are also suitable for use in the college classroom. Filmstrips and slides, for example, cover topics such as women's rights; protest and propaganda; man as the aggressor, and the Arts."

Questions answered about procedure of ticket sales

In the weekly ASB SU Senate meeting, Senators and students alike queried Assistant Athletic Director of the Varsity Center, Ron Stephenson. Questions centered around the stadium situation and BSU students' inability to procure guest tickets for the home games.

Stephenson opened the discussion by stating that the Chico State game was oversold because of the issuance of too many guest tickets and confusion by the usher as to the seating of general-admission ticket holders, resulting in some students losing their seats. He stated the current problems are three-fold:

1. Guest tickets are not available because of student abuse by using activity tickets other than their own.
2. Part-time students must buy guest tickets to attend games and some seats are lost there.
3. The Athletic Department knows of the problem but the solution they proposed (limiting number of guest tickets) failed.

Stephenson stated then that an informative pamphlet entitled "Student Ticket Information" was to have been handed out at the end of the registration line. The pamphlet outlines rules for receiving tickets and the necessity of the present system. Neither members of the Senate nor of the gallery acknowledged ever receiving such a pamphlet.

At the present time, Stephenson said there are no general admission tickets left for the ISU game and that ushers have been informed of the ticket differences, thus eliminating the confusion over seating.

The session then turned to questioning Mr. Stephenson on some specifics. In answer to a question of where the BSU students would be seated, Stephenson stated emphatically they would be on the west, or press box side of the stadium, not the BSU side as had been rumored.

In answering a question as to why students who had arrived at 5:00 p.m. were being "booted" from seats on the 50-yard line by the BSU Marching Band, Stephenson said these seats are marked "BAND" and should be honored as such. When queried about whether the band would move to some seats if a seating problem arose, Stephenson yielded to Mel Baldwin, director of the Marching Band. Baldwin explained that as members of a one-credit class in marching band, the students were required to attend the games. Furthermore, Baldwin stated all band members are full-time students and are entitled to seats, anyway. Baldwin neglected to comment upon the necessity of having 50-yard line seats or whether they would move in the event of a seating shortage until he had consulted with the members of the band.

Debaters take third

Boise State University debaters qualified for the third round of the 1974-75 High School debate topic at the University of Utah Fall Smothing. Seven schools from the Intermountain West competed.

Four debate teams were entered by BSU with the teams of Howard Welch and Chris Schahner taking third place in the final debate. Their opponents were the University of Oregon later.

Mr. Gene Blackwelder, Director of Auxiliary Services, has named Marty Estrel as student vending representative. This is a part-time position created by BSU and Kwik Kafe vending company.

Marty's main function will be to improve service on campus vending machines. The vending operation on campus is contracted out to Kwik Kafe of Idaho, and Marty will be working for them, BSU, and the students. It is hoped that he will help the operation run smoother, since he is a student, himself, in the communications department.

The vending machines are here specifically as a service and convenience for the students and faculty. Foreign coins, bent coins, and paper should not be used in them as these will jam the machine and cause others to lose their money. Probably 75 percent of the machine failures are caused by misuse of the machine.

Another point students should understand is that nobody is getting rich from these machines. The university receives a commission from Kwik Kafe for the service. All commission monies earned by the university are paid monthly and deposited in the General Scholarship Fund. All monies from the housing machines are used for housing aids. This leaves only a small margin of profit for Kwik Kafe which they need to remain in business.

Change banks are being established in various places on the campus for students to get refunds of any money lost in the machines. If students have any complaints, ideas or comments, Marty can be reached through his office of Auxiliary Services. All comments and questions are welcome. Contact: Marty Estrel Room 208 Adm. Facilities at U of I

A classroom building at the U of I.

The School of Education Building at U of I.

Residence halls at the University of Idaho.

The Performing Arts center at the U of I.

They say a picture is worth a thousand words, so here is a page of pictures worth an entire book. The pictures deal with the facilities at the University of Idaho at Moscow, and the facilities at Boise State University.

It is hard to make a fair comparison between the two institutions because one of the institutions is older than the other and has a larger alumni organization which carries considerable influence in this state. Not only does it carry considerable influence in the Legislature, but two members of the Board of Regents for the University of Idaho have seats on the State Board of Education...namely Mrs. Swartley and Munson.

It is also interesting to note that very few of the University of Idaho buildings were built with student funds, and almost all-with the exception of some state help toward the library learning addition and the new science building-have been constructed with student funds here at BSU.

If you have never visited the University of Idaho, here are some facts you should know. The area of the campus which consists of the major learning centers is
Facilities at BSU

The Liberal Arts Building at BSU.

The Boise State library building.

Music Drama building at Boise State.

The P.E. Building at Boise State.

About half again as large as the BSU campus, the overall campus at the U of I is much larger because of the land acquisitions and land grants. The U of I campus is large enough to facilitate a 9-hole golf course, a forest of tree specimens, a Greek row, a private home provided for the University's president, and -believe it or not-adequate parking facilities. After interviews and conversations with students who have attended classes at both the University of Idaho and Boise State University, it was stated quite openly that the quality of education received at both institutions is equal. Both schools have their good faculty members and their bad. The BSU School of Education was highly praised as was the BSU School of Business; whereas the School of Art and the School of Engineering at Moscow are their high point winners.

Look over the pictures, think about it and draw your own conclusions. If you think we can do better get in touch with someone who is powerful or is in a position to do something about it...i.e., your representatives in the Idaho State Legislature.
Woman mechanic questioned why

Camshafts - valve lifters - alternators - brake drums - fuel pumps. If you recognize what these are, you are probably a male. BUT, if you were under a car yelling under the hood for a squeek, how many females could run and get one and take it to you in a matter of two minutes? One woman can: PAT DOUGHTY from Caldwell. The reason she can is that she is in Auto Parts class, instructed by Max Lamborn, of the Vocational-Technical Division.

Most of us have a reason for doing something a little different. Pat's husband collects old cars and restores them as a hobby. After running out of children, dogs and hobbies...this 36-year old grandmother made up her mind to join her husband in his hobby. If she gets greasy and gristy from crawling around under a car, how could she yell at her husband for leaving a few fingerprints on the doors and getting the towels dirty? He's getting there!

Pat did admit that she does have some mechanical aptitude and repairs her own appliances at home, such as the washer, or dryer, and does soldering when necessary. She enjoys other hobbies -- designs jewelry, works with ceramics, makes lamps, and other nicknacks. At one time we were talking, she was wearing a neat-looking pants suit enhanced by a very attractive necklace with matching ring which she had created. It was difficult to visualize this nicely-dressed, coffee-sipping, young housewife with dirty fingernails, covered with grease and grime, wearing coveralls, with her head deep inside the front end of a car putting valve lifters and fuel pumps in place.

After nine months as a student of Auto Parts, Pat will receive a document certifying her as a "Counterwoman".

"This training will enable her to take employment in the auto parts division of such firms as Sears, or automobile companies, etc. She will be able to read the catalogs listing all vehicle parts and aid the customers who order these items. If you have seen a parts catalog, you will see that it is no easy task. I think I will stick to pasting labels on things. The only thing you need to know is where.

Vengeance is mine he saith and the wolfpack answereth

by Tim Bitter

REVENGE! elomred the sign pasted to the upper deck in Bronco Stadium last Saturday night and vengeance was what BSU got by thrashing the hard and (late) -hitting Nevada-Reno Wolfpack 36-16. Nevada-Reno was assessed almost 200 yards in penalties during the contest and it was apparent to most fans they deserved every inch of the penalty yardage they got. One rather timely (for-future BSU opponents) late hit put sophomore wide receiver out of action for the remainder of the season. But worry if you were at the game and missed this fine display of unsportsmanlike conduct, it happened three yards out of bounds and after Hunt had come to a stop. Now don't get me wrong fans, I enjoy forearm shivers as much as the next guy, but not when they occur after the play has been dead for two seconds. The kind of treatment Nevada-Reno gave the Broncos Saturday night can at best be described as shocking. A hard-nosed football team has always been thought of (at least by me) as a team that plays no-nonsense ball, tackles hard, blocks hard, and is mainly concerned with winning the game. If the University of Nevada-Reno's display of sportsmanship was reminiscent of alley brawls, Boise State's demonstration was one of pure class. Tony Knap and his coaching staff, and the Boise State Bronco team members, especially, are to be commended.

Remembering past gridiron battles with Idaho State, don't be too worried if you were at the game and missed this fine display of unsportsmanlike conduct. The only anger and regret that was missing after the Broncos had run the Wolfpack out of the stadium were the tar and feathers. The Bengals have not forgotten last year in the Mini-dome, when Idaho State had the Broncos up against the wall 17-7 in the fourth period and Idaho State had the Broncos up against the wall 17-7 in the fourth period and didn't pass the ball for two seconds. The kind of treatment Nevada-Reno gave the Broncos Saturday night can at best be described as shocking. A hard-nosed football team has always been thought of (at least by me) as a team that plays no-nonsense ball, tackles hard, blocks hard, and is mainly concerned with winning the game. If the University of Nevada-Reno's display of sportsmanship was reminiscent of alley brawls, Boise State's demonstration was one of pure class. Tony Knap and his coaching staff, and the Boise State Bronco team members, especially, are to be commended. Sportsmanship is alive and well at Boise State.

Remarking past gridiron battles with Idaho State, don't be too sure of a runaway Saturday night, which is what most signs point toward. BSU is a well-coached ball club, and their 0-2 conference record is not an indication of the game they would like to give BSU. The Bengals have not forgotten last year in the Mini-dome, when Idaho State had the Broncos up against the wall 17-7 in the fourth period only to have Tony Knap's charges escape with a 21-17 victory and the conference championship. Adding fuel to the fire, remember the year before in Bronco Stadium when the heavily favored Bengals again were defeated by the Broncos in an extremely emotional contest. Boise State has done a little shuffling in personnel to compensate for key injuries. They have a little date next Saturday night in Las Vegas, and the Broncos could be looking ahead to that battle with a fine, undefeated Nevada-Las Vegas team. The Broncos cannot afford to overlook Idaho State, however, as I am sure Coach Knap and his staff are well aware of this. It's a much-used cliche, but throw all the records out the window when the Broncos and the Bengals square off Saturday night on the artificial turf at Bronco Stadium. It will be an intense, emotional struggle.
The stronger teams emerged from the pack last week in the BSU intramural flag football program. In the Tuesday league, Packer Hole 10 and the North-South team are dominating with 3-0 records while the Rodeo Club is the only undefeated team in the Thursday league, sporting a 1-0 mark, while teams are log-jammed in second with 1-1 marks. Action continues each Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights. Game time is 6:00 p.m. in the Stadium. The results and standings after last week:

With a fourth-place finish in the University of Idaho invitational behind them, the Boise State University Cross-Country team will have a week's layoff before resuming action against Weber State, October 18, at Ogden.

In the meet at Moscow, BSU placed two runners in the top five. Steve Collier who placed fifth and Randy Terhune, who placed eighth. "Steve did a great job for us in Moscow," commented head coach Ed Jacoby. "He beat an All-American from Washington State, and that's not bad for a freshman." Terhune placed eighth but in doing so, the senior from Boise ran the same time as last year and the course was half a mile longer than a year ago.

Commenting on the layoff, Jacoby stated, "I'm happy that we have a week off so we can get Bob Walker and some of our other injured runners healthy again. Walker had a muscle strain in his thigh which he's been treating while overcompensating for the injury in his hip. When Walker comes around, I hope we can get more consistency in our runners and maybe we can have our five best runners grouped a little closer together. The University of Idaho meet proved we could do well, but I think we rely too much on Walker and this is what we must overcome".

Broncos face ISU in intra-state battle

With their four-game win streak and national ranking on the line, the Broncos from Boise State will host rival Idaho State Saturday night in Bronco Stadium. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. The Big Sky game was sold-out early Monday morning with 14,500 fans expected to be in attendance.

The 4-0 (1 Big Sky) record of the Broncos is the best in the conference and their third straight win has them looking towards the back of the schedule as they try to finish strong for the upcoming bowl game.

Knap's offensives and defenses have reached that mark at the beginning of a season since 1964. Knap's first year at BSU. The Broncos also won four straight at the beginning of the 1970 and 1973 seasons.

That fourth victory 36-16 over the Reno Wolf Pack, by the Broncos last Saturday night was an expensive one for the team as they lost wide receiver Terry Hunt and fullback Chesler Grey for the remainder of the season. Hunt suffered a knee injury while Grey injured his ankle.

"We face another week with problems, a little more numerous than usual," coach Knap said. "Not only do we need to prepare game plans for Idaho State but we also need to shuffle personnel to compensate for the loss of Grey and Hunt."

Filling the void at those two spots will be senior Ken Johnson at fullback and junior Crabree at one of the wide receiver spots.

"The Bengals present some real problems in their own right," Knap said. "They are a good offensive and defensive club which can be expected to be really fired-up for Boise State. They had a little problem with the option coverage last Saturday against the Idaho Vandals but they weren't beaten physically," Knap added.

Idaho State brings a 1-2 record (0-2 Big Sky) into Bronco Stadium Saturday night. They won their opener 13-7 over the University of Nevada Reno but lost two straight conference games in the next two outings. They were defeated by Northern Arizona 20-15 and the Univer-sities of Idaho 28-9 last Saturday.

Voting took an unusual turn Monday as the Bronco Athletic Association selected the Offensive and Defensive Players of the Week. Honors for offense went to two players: Chester Grey and Terry Hunt. Both men have been sidelined for the season due to injuries suffered Saturday night against Nevada Reno. Defensive credit went to end Pete Poumelle.

For Chester Grey, Saturday's war was his last as a Bronco as the fullback from Idaho Falls is a senior this year. Grey suffered torn ligaments in his ankle on a six-yard pass play in the second quarter.

Just two plays later, wide receiver Terry Hunt tore up his knee on a late hit after snagging an 18-yard pass from Jim McMlllan. Hunt will be back next year however, since he is presently a sophomore.

Pete Poumelle got the nod from the BAA for his performance against the Wolf Pack offense. Poumelle had five tackles Saturday to bring his season total to 28.

Commenting on the Reno game, Knap said: "I have a lot of respect for their courage and aggressiveness, but they carried it a bit too far. With our national ranking this is the kind of effort we have been meeting every week and it is the price we have to pay to maintain our lofty reputation. I feel that this is the way football should be played every week. I have classified our opponents as being highly spirited and tough competitors from the first game through the eleventh," Knap said.

Idaho State has been mainly a running team, averaging 215 yards per game. Their top runner is tailback Curt Ashton who has carried the ball 36 times for 172 yards and no scores. Fullback Ken Monroe has 28 carries to his credit for 152 yards and 5.4 average per carry.

The starting quarterback for the Bengals will be Pat Sartori, a senior, who has completed four of 21 passing attempts for 40 yards. Freshman Steve Touches is also expected to see some action at the QB spot. He has completed 12 of 23 passing attempts for 254 yards and two scores. ISU's top receivers are Tom Hofmann (5 for 152 yards, 2 TD's) and Kevin Crocker (5 for 106 yards.)

Bronco All American candidate Jim McMlllan will get another severe test of his passing attack from the Bengals. McMlllan who is 43 of 81 for 843 yards and eight scores will be facing a defensive secondary which has allowed their opponents a slim 118.7 yards a game via the airliners. McMlllan is also averaging 332 yards a game in total offense.

The BSU defense is well versed in its opponent's schemes and will have the advantage of knowing its foes well.
