RAZZLE DAZZLE

Faced with it again, Punky? That old political razz-a-ma-tazz? Don't know who to vote for, is that what's got you down? Is it the Murphy song and dance or the Andrus second chance that's got you on the road to rack and ruin? You say you can't tell the Churches from the trees, Apple trees that is? Make you want to give up and die--well, stay in there shootin' partner...that's how the game of politics keeps its promise giving, people smiling, hand shaking, Bible swearing little fingers in everybody's pie.

You say you met them all. Right here on this campus. You say you shook their hands and wore their pins, not to mention plastering your room and outmoded vehicle with slogans, stickers and signs. Is that what you say? That's what they all say.

Well, what do you know about that!

Does the "Cosmic Do-Da" have you by the chain, and is it ringing in your ears with promises, promises and more promises for a better life, a better state and a better school...is that what you're telling me Punky? Is that what they said? Well, brother, that's what they all say when the weathers cool and the leaves are red, and the nuts are falling all over the polical arena.

Oh, we got trouble, right here in academia--with a capital T and that rhymes with C and that stands for candidate. Oh, you take one, two, three, four little candidates, put them in the middle of an assembly and they'll promise you anything from A to Z. When they're hot they're hot-when they're not they're not.

I'm telling you know, brothers and sisters, there ain't no one going to give us anything for free--Santa Claus is dead--and we are all too old to rely on the Good Tooth Fairy. You better look pretty close at those God-Given, Glory Praising, Euphoria Spreading candidates and make sure you pick the right one.

November 5 sticks in the throat of many voters as the day when we send our candidates to office or to that great political referendum in the sky. Choose carefully, Punky, the world is full of deceit and crookery.

Ah! They ain't all bad. Most of them are honorable men, with good intentions and a happy howdy to greet the weary public in this time of times. Go get them! Make 'em keep their promises, especially if the promises they make will help you out. You know Punky, YOU are the one that's going to have to pay for it.

Remember, BSU, you and the rest of your friends could use adequate representation in the legislature--November 5, that's the day Punky--see you there with a smile on your face and a ballot in your hand.

Campus religious groups prove beneficial

Editor, the Arbiter,

During my years at Boise State University I have grown in many ways: physically, mentally and emotionally, but just recently a friend pointed out to me that I was lacking in spiritual growth. I pondered that question for several days and realized that my friend was maybe right, so I decided to do something about it.

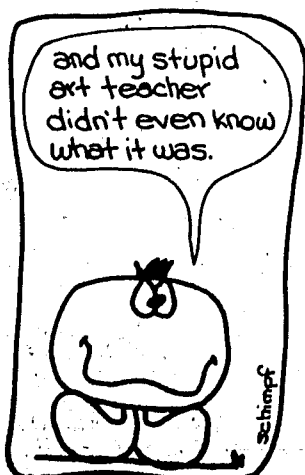

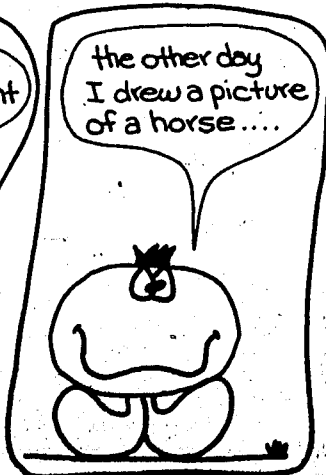

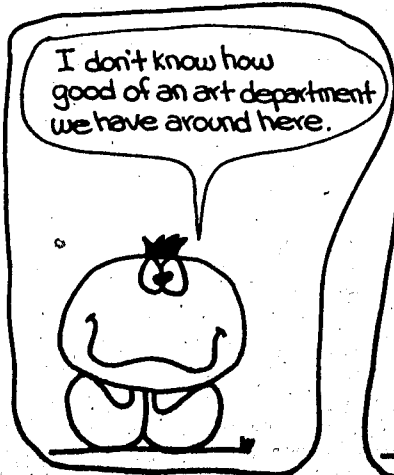

Three weeks ago I started attending a religion class at the LDS Institute called "Dating, Courtship and Marriage," that meets for an hour and a half once a week. I guess the reason I took the class over the others is because I thought it would give me a better chance to meet pretty girls. It didn't do much to improve my dating situation, but it give me a different perspective on the way I looked at my life. I don't want anybody to think that just because I started attending a religion class I am automatically a saint or something, because I'm a long ways from anything near that, but it has opened my eyes to new values and gave me a new direction for my life to follow if I want to change.

There are several student religious groups on campus where students can involve themselves, if they are so inclined. Besides the LDS Student Association--there is Campus Crusade for Christ, Baptist Student Union, Collegians Action, Episcopal Students and the Catholic Newman Center.

I am sure they are fine groups and I urge students that feel that they may be lacking in spiritual growth to check out the organization that represents their various church affiliation.

Students, teachers, grades

By Kay Wood

One of the truly unique features of BSU just has to be the grading system employed by so many of it's faculty. There are so many disadvantages to objective grades, which are given by most universities that it is heartening to see our university unafraid to stand virtually alone in unabashed support of subjective grades.

The most obvious disadvantage of objective grading is that the instructor must explain to his class at the beginning of the semester, how he will grade them. Since this also necessitates that instructor deciding on a systematic grading procedure, this not only places a tremendous cognitive burden on an already overloaded mentality, but it precludes the inspiration method of assigning grades. What could possibly be more touching to the heart of this god-fearing community than the knowledge that our professors depend upon inspiration when facing decisions.

Still another problem is the favoritism. Everyone has pets; some people like dogs, some snakes, and others canaries. If instructors have an affinity for huminoid pets among their students, then surely, in a free and non-discriminatory society such as ours, they should be free to have them. Since subjective grading is the only system by which this custom can be maintained, it is essential to retain it.

The major disadvantage is, of course, that dangerous phrase, student rights. May God and Dr. Barnes forgive me for raising this issue at a university where there is certainly no need for such a thing, it the problem is this. If you begin to promote fair treatment in the classroom, students will soon begin to expect to use their own facilities with the same freedom the staff enjoy, and perhaps, God help us all, they may wish to make changes in the way in which they are educated.

We must protect the students from themselves at all costs, even if it means that we must abridge their freedom! The end always justifies the means.

Insults don't make it

Editor, the Arbiter:

In response to Dan Lawrence whose letter appeared in last week's Arbiter--

In his letter, he suggests several changes he would like to see in certain policies concerning the printing of the yearbook and the student directory.

I am sure that if he would have checked into the printing process required to make a yearbook, he would have found out that it would cost a great deal to buy the equipment necessary, hire the personnel required to run it, and buy the paper and binding materials needed to put the yearbook together. All for ONE university yearbook. But let's save some money and buy the equipment, etc., because it makes no sense to get a bid from a company whose business is making yearbooks for hundreds of colleges and high schools, who already has the equipment, personnel and materials and can offer a reduced price for quantity printing.

Mr. Lawrence's suggestion on the Student Directory I agree with and have wondered, myself.

As to your comment...."Let's see if some of the people who came up with the brilliant idea sometime back to have a tricycle jump across a ditch that a frog could jump, come up with an idea to save money at BSU."

The tricycle jump netted approximately $3000 in scholarship monies for needy BSU students. In addition, the businessmen of the Boise area donated materials, time, ads, and prizes toward making this scholarship drive a success. The money spent for advertisement and expenses falls far short of any real amount making it insignificant to count in light of the monies made for scholarship and the support gained from the Boise community for the first positive act demonstrated by concerned students in a very long time.

I feel it is unfair to criticize the jump, because it is unfair to the businessmen, faculty and students involved for the work they did.

If you are displeased with certain aspects of student government, I would respectfully suggest that you walk into one of the offices you have criticized (instead of just walking around), and offer your real help rather than your mouth; we would all benefit. Suggestions and criticisms don't work until they are implemented, so get off your lazy insults and get to work.

Governor answers

Editor, The Arbiter

Following are the questions from the Arbiter and the Governor's answers:

1. Are you aware of the building needs and additional faculty needs to serve the student body of BSU? Answer: Yes.

2. How will you, if elected, fight to solve these problems? Answer: I am aware of the problems that face all education in Idaho and at Boise State University in particular.

These problems are basically financial in nature. Last year, the Idaho Legislature cut my appropriation request for higher education by 1.4 million dollars. This hurt BSU. If reelected, I will continue to support our universities and colleges as I have in the past.

If you have any further questions, please feel free to call the Governor's office.

Ideology for the astonishing low price

One of the more noted local monetary receptacles, Your Campus Rookstore (but really ours), has formally released details of a new policy intended to add luster to the already glowing YCR Pandora's Box. Implementing more progressivism each ten years, the neighborhood manager, Sir Scrooge McMakemore, announced that beginning January 1, 1984, book prices will lower somewhat instead of the annual logical-necessary, imperative and traditional increase. He proudly emphasized that this policy was being added in order to prove to each and every student the extent of which this booth of Academic Capitalism depreciates them.

For example, an Ideology textbook costing $8.94 this semester (a markup of $8.93 from last Spring) will sell for the astonishingly low sum of $89.40 in 1983. Under McMakemore's revelation, this price will in turn be lowered to $89.39 in Fall, 1984, which prompts many of us to feel our eyes water in gratitude for such benevolency. Of course, by this time the student body will only consist of three individuals (reincarnated Instructors), the rest of which have been systematically reduced through the various efforts of local administrators. The point being, however, is to assist students to the greatest degree regardless of the method, one way or the other.

These prestigious low prices were reached through the laborious efforts of the YCR system of Musical Managers. Under the continually changing leadership pattern, new ideas somehow managed to infiltrate and a desire to satisfy customers in a round about way emerged. Those of you interested in Musical Managers are urged to participate in the next contest whenever you are there. Just fill out the transparent application by writing in the proper slot who you think the next leader will be, place it in the waste paper receptacle and sit out the suspense.

Past Rookstore actions and now the unveiling of a new policy has already endeared this Monetary Pit in the hearts of many students.

"Ah, they shouldn't have done it," excitedly exclaimed one appreciative undergraduate after being informed. "Gosh, my first year at Blasé State University and already I find out books will be cheaper in my Senior year. I'm just overwhelmed with ingratitude."

This sentiment was common around the greens as news of McMakemore's announcement circulated, but many questions still remain unanswered: Will Your Campus Rookstore (But Really Ours) maintain an infinite supply of BIC pens for SS (Sticker Seer) Sack Quickpen?; Will Mr. Spock find love in the History Section or energize out of sheer frustration?; and can the City really locate parking meters at the front entrance bookstalls? Only Scrooge knows for sure and he's too busy to counting money.

Cleta's Corner

Eyes attract

When you look at a person, you probably first see: hair, 2 eyes, a nose, mouth, ears, on down-down-down to the shoes. This is a woman looking at a man. Of course, if you are a man looking at a woman..... that's YOUR story what you see first.

RICHARD (RICK) MATTOON arrested my attention because he had a pair of intelligent eyes evenly situated above a nose squarely in the middle where it belongs. The nose above a mouth held by a well-cut chin. This is the long way around to say that Rick is a handsome lad.

Age 18, freshman, major: Journalism, residence Chaffee Hall. His parents, one brother, and one sister reside in Mountain Home. While his father served in the Air Force, Rick lived in Germany the first two, tender years of his life; Alabama the next seven years, Germany again, and lastly, seven years in Mountain Home. His mother teaches first grade in that city.

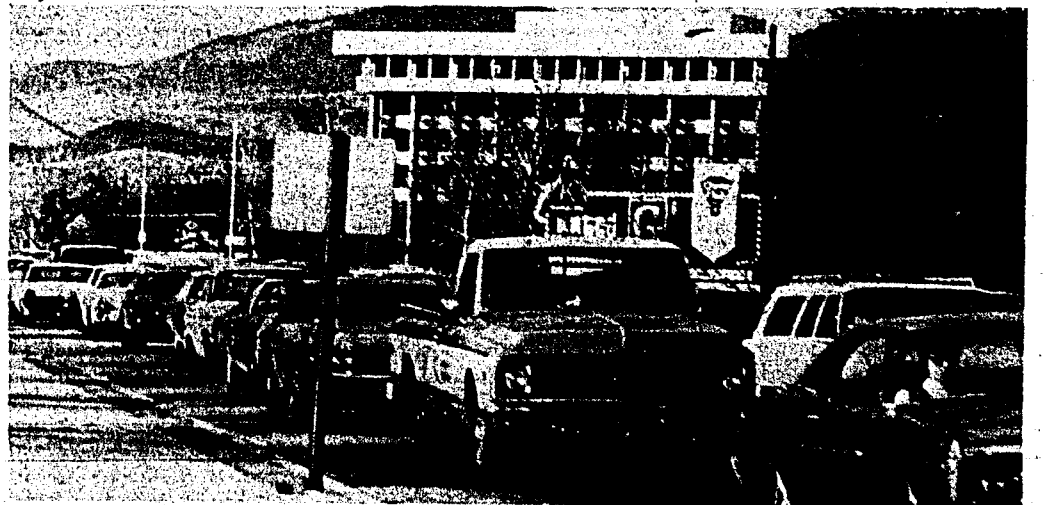

It is remarkable that Rick can so completely ignore a couple of crutches he uses for walking, as a result of polio at six months. Sports are of great interest to him; he plays pingpong and bowls. Music also is on his list of likes. Presently he is enrolled in a beginning piano class and expressed that with the necessity to practice, he uses the piano at Chaffee Hall -- "a little out of tune but good enough to work his fingers around on it". Favorite music: soft rock and soul.

Apparently, he and his roommate, Ed, hit it off fine except when Rick decides to sit around making loud, uncouth, crunching noises on apples. Otherwise serenity prevails in their wickiup. It would be nice to boil all our troubles down to a single apple.

For a reticent, rather blushing lad, I was quite aware of the presence of friends -- some passing by with a little wave, others speaking. Our conversation was interspersed with such "goings-on."

His inspiration to major in journalism dates back to their high school publication which was rated superior in the State, with an excellent staff who worked well together. He expressed that he learned a great deal from that experience, and is considering newspaper work as a career.

I think that inside that well-shaped head is quite a well-shaped brain. After a certain amount of delicate probing and cajolery, I learned that he is being considered for the Academic Standards Committee and is on the Judicial Board at Chaffee Hall, which reflects a certain stable and competent quality in this Rick person. I might be sitting on this chair talking to a future senator...? Governor...? Mayor...? almost for sure, the editor of a newspaper maybe big, maybe little. He just has the LOOK.

The thrilling news of McMakemore's 1984 policy prompted somewhat of a rush to the great Rookstore.

A student view

A day for heroes

by Pat Nance

Well, here it is the ninth week of the semester and I've run out of things to bitch and moan about. Oh well.....

Most of the time, the people whose names and pictures appear throughout the media are the same old folks who were there last week, especially here on campus. Perhaps more important than these "leaders" are the unsung heroes who really make this campus what it is and who really make it work. TODAY IS YOUR DAY, HEROES, AND HERE YOU ARE:

Steve Mengel, Margaret Harrington, Mark Stinson, Dustin Couey, Gary Ribero, George

Birkinbine, Trisha Coonts, Peggy and Liz Streiff, Dr. John Baldwin, James DeMoux, Meg Rawlings, Dr. Robert Juola, Amerigo Vespucci, Debbie Burgher, Gary Bermesolo, Melinda Scharf, Dr. Will Overgaard, Dr. Robert Boren, Ed Orbea, Connie Hendricks, Dave Anderson, Kelly Stohr, Les Zundel, Mike Riddlemoser, Anne Duncan, Jim Dobson, Larry West, Roger Bedard, Rayleen Myers, and the 15,000 other inhabitants of this university community.

P.S. If your name isn't here, don't feel slighted. Each and every person has added to this campus in his or her own individualistic way. Keep up the nice vibes, folks.

COLUMNS

Women Demand Frat Rights

We, the undersigned, are female students currently enrolled on a part-time basis at Boise State University. We are interested in becoming members of Alpha Kappa Psi, a national professional business fraternity open to male college students interested in accounting, management, or commerce. The Theta Omicron Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi is a fully recognized campus organization at Boise State University. As is customary of other national professional fraternities, the process of becoming a member requires initially being "pledged". We received full-fledged pledge status but it was revoked by an action of the majority of the membership. This action was a direct violation of Article C, Section f of the ASBSU Student Organization Policies.

Membership in Alpha Kappa Psi is currently restricted to male students. The exclusion of female students is a part of the national constitution, the national by-laws and the local chapter by-laws. We feel that exclusion of female students is discriminatory on the basis of Civil Rights legislation, Affirmative Action rulings, the current philosophy of the Idaho Human Rights Commission, and the ASBSU Judiciary Committee rulings on the basis of the following:

First, members of Alpha Kappa Psi have the privilege of listing membership in the fraternity on personal resumes used for job hunting purposes upon graduation. There is evidence that some prospective employers who are aware of the fraternity may show hiring preference to members. As female students we are denied this equal opportunity.

Second, some of the activities of the Theta Omicron chapter make it possible for members to establish and cultivate contacts with businessmen in the community which certainly could be regarded as valuable in obtaining more favorable consideration for better positions upon graduation. These contacts also come from the national organization. As female students we are denied these contact-making opportunities.

Third, one of the most important purposes of Alpha Kappa Psi is to provide chapter members with an opportunity to participate in a variety of types of business and/or professional projects related to the field of accounting, management, and commerce for the purpose of helping the student members acquire practical experience. There is evidence that this practical experience has proved helpful to students in obtaining better positions upon graduation. Again, as female students we are being denied equal opportunity.

Fourth, the Theta Omicron Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi plans to provide at least one scholarship to a fraternity member. The chapter also gives recognition to one or more members of the organization for outstanding achievement in the form of certificates or plaques. Women students who cannot become members of the fraternity are denied this opportunity.

Fifth, the professional world of accounting, management, and commerce has a reasonable proportion of successful and highly paid women. There are today very successful women who occupy responsible positions in a wide range of industry and business. We fail to understand the reasons why females are denied membership in a national professional fraternity that is directly related to improving professionalism in a business area that already includes many women.

From a somewhat different point of view, we question the "rightness" of an institution of higher learning which receives both state and federal funds denying membership in professional fraternities to female students. It is true that Alpha Kappa Psi, both at the national headquarters level and at the chapter level, does not directly receive federal or state funds. The organization is essentially self-supporting. However, we feel that it can be argued that local chapters, and in a cumulative sense, the national organization, receive certain financial benefits.

First, student chapters of the fraternity are established only within the environment of an educational institution of higher learning.

Second, most chapters have office space provided by the college or university. In the absence of such office space, which is usually provided at no cost to the chapter, facilities would have to be found "off campus" at some cost to each chapter.

Third, most chapters have found that meeting room facilities on campus can usually be obtained in student union buildings or in classroom buildings at no cost to each chapter. Some of the projects carried on by the chapters involve the use of various types of campus facilities. As examples, all weekly meetings are conducted in the Student Union Building, office space is occupied in the Business Building, and projects use various other student facilities.

Therefore, we do hereby petition the ASBSU Judiciary Committee, the Student Policy Board, and the President of the University to require Theta Omicron Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi to re-instate us as full-fledged pledges leading to full membership and immediately to comply with Article C, Section f of the ASBSU Student Organization Policies. If this remedy is not granted, we request that Article C, Section 4 of the ASBSU Student Organization Policies be invoked and Theta Omicron Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi have its school recognition revoked and the privileges afforded be immediately suspended.

Since time is of the essence, we request that this action be expedited.

DON'T HESITATE TO DROP IN

Dear Students,

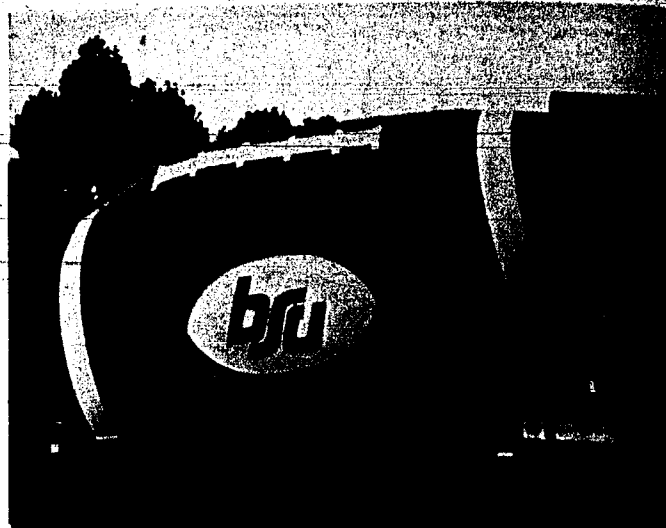

Legal aid, employment, housing, birth control, venereal disease, abortion, health services, and other student information are only some of the areas Student Services covers.

Any student is welcome to come in and discuss any problems that our staff is qualified to handle.

Director, Nate Kim, is quotes as saying, "Student Services is exactly what it says. We are not limited to the programs we have now, we'll expand on any issue to help students."

So, feel free to stop in any time and rap.

Kit Thanks Arbiter

There is seldom any appreciation given to those many students who work extremely hard presenting the campus news to us. I would like to use this column to show my appreciation.

It seems that many students don't realize the long hard hours that must be given by these students in order to compile the information placed in the Arbiter. Everyday the Arbiter office is busy, especially on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, usually from 8:00 a.m. to sometimes as late as 2:00 a.m. or 3:00 a.m. the following morning.

To John Elliott and the Arbiter staff I would like to personally say, "Thanks" for your long and hard hours and especially for putting together a paper which has been so effective in improving the image of the student body of BSU and our University.

Students Object To Fees

We would like to comment on the high school marching band festival held at the Bronco Stadium Thursday, October 17.

Being BSU students, we assumed we could watch the festival free of charge, but found out we were required to pay 75 cents to get through the gates. Due to the fact that this festival was held at "our" stadium facilities, we do not feel that BSU students should have been obligated to pay a fee. Considering the price we pay for activity fee each semester, we do not feel that additional charges are justified.

Hopefully, this can be changed in the future.

Final say Tuesday on AKP protest ISGA reports

The ASBSU Judiciary will decide Tuesday if Alpha Kappa Psi is to remain an accredited organization at Boise State University.

The question arose on October 18, when Donna Furuyama and Barbara Woods, both students at BSU, submitted a petition charging the fraternity with sex discrimination.

According to the women, they were granted pledge status but it was later revoked by an action of the majority of the membership.

"This action was a direct violation of Article C, Section f of the ASBSU Student Organization Policies."

The policy statement was amended last spring by the Student Policy Board.

The statement now reads: "It is the policy of this university to oppose and prevent in any activity or organization discrimination based on race, color, creed (religion) or sex (sex: excluding organizations whose primary function is to provide social activities for their members) and requires each organization to include a non-discrimination statement in their national and local charter, constitution or by-laws."

The petition states that "the exclusion of female students is a part of the national constitution, the national by-laws and the local chapter by-laws. We feel that exclusion of female students is discriminatory on the basis of Civil Rights legislation, Affirmative Action rulings, the current philosophy of the Idaho Human Rights Commission, and the ASBSU Judiciary Committee rulings on the basis of the following:

First, members of Alpha Kappa Psi have the privilege of listing membership in the fraternity on personal resumes used for job hunting purposes upon graduation.

Second, some of the activities of the Theta Omicron chapter make it possible for members to establish and cultivate contracts with businessmen in the community which certainly could be regarded as valuable in obtaining more favorable consideration for better positions upon graduation.

Third, one of the most important purposes of Alpha Kappa Psi is to provide chapter members with an opportunity to participate in a variety of types of business and or professional projects related to the field of accounting, management, and commerce for the purpose of helping the student members acquire practical experience.

Fourth, the Theta Omicron Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi plans to provide at least one scholarship to a fraternity member.

Fifth, the professional world of accounting, management, and commerce has a reasonable proportion of successful and highly paid women. We fail to understand the reasons why females are denied membership in a national professional fraternity that is directly related to improving professionalism in a business area that already includes many women."

The women ask that they either be reinstated as full-fledged pledges, or that the chapter's school recognition and privileges be "immediately" revoked.

The national organization has informed the local chapter that allowing the women in would result in the loss of its national affiliation, according to Mrs. Woods.

Troy Bell, chapter president, was contacted but declined comment "until after the hearing, Tuesday."

Depending on the outcome of the hearing, the women are considering filing a complaint with the Idaho Human Rights Commission, "to see if the state has jurisdiction," said Mrs. Woods.

Sigma Nu now at BSU

BSU now sports a new fraternity, Sigma Nu. Still in the colonization stages, Sigma Nu is looking for men who are looking for something new in a fraternity.

If you're hesitant about joining a fraternity because of their hazing policy, then you have to look no further than Sigma Nu, because their ideals prohibit hazing.

Boises' colony elected officers Sunday evening. They are: Ron Lundquist, commander, Steve Bittenger, Lieutenant commander, Bill Simpson, Treasurer, Keith Bloom, Recorder, Mike Johnston, Rush Chairman, Mark Watt, Public Relations Officer, and Craig Kulchak, Alumni Contact Officer.

If you are interested and want to find out more, contact any member or see Ron Lundquist in the ASBSU Public Relations office on the second floor of the SUB. The meetings are on Wednesday and Sunday nights at 6:00 p.m. in the Caribou Room of the SUB.

Delegates from eight Idaho colleges and universities gathered in Moscow last weekend for the fall Idaho Student Government Association (ISGA) convention.

Topics discussed included the goals of ISGA, coordinating the various school program boards, reviving the Idaho Collegiate Press Association and the Idaho Student Lobby presented it's goals for the upcoming legislative session.

Jeff Stoddard, president of ISGA, stated that ISGA would act mainly as a coordinator between the schools of higher education in Idaho.

Operations manuals explaining the workings of the various student bodies will be compiled by each school Stoddard said, in order that schools needing information about another may readily obtain it.

Information books on each school's particular problems will also be compiled according to Stoddard. Subjects that may be covered are day care and parking.

Money wise, the delegates decided to give the go ahead on this years budget, crediting what may be left to the various schools.

Stoddard stated that a budget would be compiled for next year including a salary for the director, printing and mailing costs, travel, and money for a secretary for the director.

A proposal to coordinate the various school program boards was also discussed.

Randy Barton of Northwest Nazarene College said that a program of this nature would enhance and expand available programming, provide new ideas and help alleviate inherent financial problems.

The functions of the various program boards would be divided between the schools. Block concerts would be handled by the University of Idaho; mini-concerts (coffeehouse), BSU; lectures, Ricks and innovative programs, NNC.

Plans were also made to revive the Idaho Collegiate Press Association. The purposes of this organization would be many, according to Rod Gramer, interim coordinator for the ICPA.

Firstly, there would be an exchange of copy between the member publications, such as features, editorials and columns. Statewide advertising could also be handled by the ICPA, benefiting all the publications involved.

There would be closer ties to the Idaho Press Association, resulting in better student publications. The ICPA would also help make the papers more self sufficient and there would be more general exchange of ideas.

Another area discussed by the delegates was the Idaho Student Lobby. The constitution for the ISL was changed, adding provisions for an assistant director and a public relations person. A poll will be sent to the member schools to decide which issues will be lobbied for this legislative session. The delegates failed to make provisions for funding the National Student Lobby, claiming no benefit to ISL was derived.

The next ISGA meeting will be next spring.

Idaho high school students meet to discuss leadership

Student leaders from fifteen southwestern Idaho high schools came together this weekend at BSU for an all-day Student Leadership Conference.

High schools represented were: Bishop Kelly, Boise, Cambridge, Capital, Emmett, Glens Ferry, Homedale, Kuna, Melba, Meridian, Middleton, Mountain Home, Parma, Rimrock, and Vallivue.

Designed to give students an insight on better leadership qualities and instruct them in organizational capacities, the conference incorporated small-group workshops which dealt with varying problems and ideas.

Nearly seventy students converged on the BSU campus early Saturday morning where they were treated to an informal tour of the Student Union Building. As one student from Mountain Home remarked, "I came expecting three or four people to show up, but when we got here we were greeted at the door and told to go in and have breakfast on us."

Besides having a good time discovering things to do in the SUB, students were exposed to a well-organized program devised by the Communications Department, Associated Student Body Officers, Dr. David Taylor, Vice-President of Student Affairs, James DeMoux and Harvey Pitman, course consultants, and many other BSU representatives.

Following the day-long activities, students were treated to an informal dinner hosted by the Associated Student Body. The program, put together by ASBSU PUBLIC Relations Director, Kip Moggridge, summed up the feeling of the day... togetherness and a personal exchange between students, instructors, and the university itself.

Following the dinner, students viewed a slide show which gave them a brief look into BSU campus life coordinated with a musical presentation by Laurie Larson, Miss BSU. Also gracing the head table as honored guest was Miss Idaho, Rochelle Bacon.

After it was all over, students gathered in the SUB Ballroom to relax, contemplate the events of the day, and listen to the sounds of Wilson and Fairchild, a local rock group.

BSU faculty attends honors council

Ms. Phoebe Lundy, Associate Professor of History, and Dr. William Mech, Director, BSU Honors Program, will attend the annual conference of the National Collegiate Honors Council in St. Louis. Dr. Mech is chairing the Nominating Committee and is also a member of the National Executive Committee. Ms. Lundy will be attending workshops specifically related to the experimental course in Humanities entitled "Freedom and Authority" to gain information to assist the designing of courses under the sponsorship of the grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Some of the workshops at this three day conference include Honors Programs and a Liberal Education in a Shifting Economy, Liberal Education/Honors: An Acronistic or Viable in 1974, New Direction in Humanities, Courses for Honors, Core curricula for General Liberal Education, Liberal Education, Career Opportunities, and Honors Advisement, Honors Programs and the Three Year Degree, Liberal Education: Values and Action, Implications for Liberal Education and Honors, Studies of the Carnegie Commission Report on Higher Education. In all, there will be over fifty such workshops during the three day conference.

Board in search of new administrator

With State Board of Education approval, Boise State University has opened its search for a top-level administrator to "implement and enforce" equal employment opportunities and working conditions on the school staff.

Salary for the position of Affirmative Action Director is pegged at $16 thousand, according to Administrative Assistant Herb Runner who has had prime responsibility for the school's Affirmative Action activities until now.

BSU requested the new position at last month's State Board of Education session in Pocatello. President John Barnes got approval to budget $26 thousand to cover the new Director's salary, secretarial service and office expenses.

He told the Board, then, that Runner and other administrators were being "swamped" with the task of keeping their own responsibilities up to date while doing the paper-laden tasks required by federal and state Affirmative Action guidelines.

Barnes, with Financial Vice-President Roger Green, made their feelings clear that it was the federal and state paperwork demand had created the need for a fulltime Director. Both told the State Board that "based on out past experience with programs like this" the position should be considered a permanent need for the school.

Runner says the school's permanent Affirmative Action committee, a group of administrators and faculty members, are currently working up an outline of the new job's responsibilities and authority.

"The committee is headed toward recommending that the Affirmative Action Director report directly to Dr. Barnes, with sufficient autonomy to implement and enforce the program with reasonable independence," predicted Runner Thursday.

Right now, says Runner, the school is making its annual fall audit of every staff position, under Affirmative Action law. In that process, department heads are asked to review every job position under them, fill out a complex questionnaire that shows the comparative salary and working condition levels for all jobs.

Those figures are then held up for comparison to national averages of racial and sexual job opportunity differences. If discrepancies show up, the school must then make individual investigation of such discrimination and develop a carefully documented plan to rectify the situation within legal deadlines.

LOUIS MALLE'S
WITH JEANNE MOREAU IN THE ORIGINAL UNCUT VERSION

Louis Malle's controversial and much-censored THE LOVERS was the first outstanding financial success of the "nouvelle vague" films, and it ensured the necessary monetary support for many of the fine films that were to come.

Its enthusiastic reception in Paris was repeated in North America and it broke box office records around the art house circuit, even though the version shown was somewhat truncated by censor's scissors (more than 15 minutes was missing in the version originally shown in Ontario, while in Italy the film was completely banned).

The astonishingly beautiful, sensuous love scenes have been widely commented on, as has the performance of Jeanne Moreau as the wife — a portrayal that catapulted her into international stardom.

WILSON FAIRCHILD modernize Old World techniques.

Troubadors look to future

by Pat Nance

The billing for the evening's entertainment was "Two Troubadors from the Past." What the billing didn't say is that the performers were giving the Boise State University students a look into the future.

The performers? Wilson and Fairchild. And their music? Everything imaginable in the music field; honkey-tonk, truck driving, foot stomping rock and yes, even a few madrigals thrown in to mellow things out a bit.

Wilson-Fairchild started in the Look-Out over three years ago with two 6-string guitars and one 12-string guitar and one hell of a lot of nervous energy. Now, the energy has turned into good original music, and the three original guitars have multiplied to 14 instruments including dulcimer, balalaika 5-string banjo, slide guitar, and one beautiful pearl inlaid Martin 6-string guitar. And if that wasn't enough, a friend of Wilson-Fairchild's, a flutist named Neil sat in on a few of the duo's tunes to make some very exciting sounds.

Boise State University was privileged in having this pair of performers back on campus and hopefully the next time they are here, it will be to promote an album of creative, innovative and just plain-down-right enjoyable music.

Otto Pook gets Blitzed

What do you get when you put 300 fun loving college students together with all the free beer they can drink? Then add two hours of nonstop entertainment that includes a belly dancer, a comic folk band, the greatest juggler ever to come out of Jablif, Wisconsin, a mime artist, a typical college student and a one man spectacle. Give them a leader named Otto Pook who is also a part time Baffoon. Put them all together at the American Legion Hall, across the street from the Student Union Building and what on earth will you have?

L & M boys 'rock out' professionally

By John Elliott

It was 7:30 when I arrived at the gymnasium. Looking around the corner I caught a wide-angle glimpse of a quickly filling auditorium, and sensed the electricity in the air. The gym was amazingly quiet, considering the thousand people now inhabiting its innards. The soft hum, resounding now and again with the voice of some drugged-out hippy long-haired freak giving directions to one of his cohorts lying prone upon the moment, gave me a sense of well-being and relaxation.

Questions kept running through my mind, questions I could not answer. Who are Loggins and Messina? I know that I have seen their records and I believe I have heard some of their music on the radio, but I just at the moment cannot place them with any particular mood or improvisation. I hope that people don't charge the stage; man...that's a real bummer when you pay good money to hear and SEE a group and then your vision is blocked by 800 tiny teeny-boopers blowing bubbles to attract attention. I hope there isn't a lot of marijuana, 'cause last time some poor little chick sitting next to me got herself busted, and that is a REAL hassle...either none, or pounds of the substance so the "men in blue" can't really do anything about it.

GIVE A BIG BOISE WELCOME TO BACDORF, RODNEY & CO.!!!! (Who the hell is BIGDUFF AND BORCKLY?) Well, everyone else here seems to know who they are, anyway they are certainly giving them a big BOISE welcome.

Very interesting. They sound somewhat like SEALS AND CROFTS. They certainly seemed to be getting the most out of their instruments. I hate it when balladeers manhandle their music for effect's sake, because all the music is then...is loud.

Technically, I think they are doing a most admirable job. I do wish that they would change key signatures, but if you find something that best exhibits your accomplishments, it is best to stay with it, until you can find another mode. God! I wish I had a beer.

They have just announced that they will play one more song before Loggins and Messina. How rude, the audience is applauding. These guys are dynamite, the L & M boys are going to have to go some to top this.

Intermission just went up in smoke; however, most of the smoke was confined to the out-of-doors and close-up cars in the parking lot.

Excuse me, pardon me, excuse me---what are all these people doing in the aisle. Jeez! an obstacle course is fine when you are prepared for one, and at the moment I am not prepared to battle the center aisle -- oh well, my shoes seem to freak them out -- what's the matter, you've never seen patent leather?

Gad, I've got a cotton mouth. GIVE A BIG BOISE CHEER FOR... well, that's as far as he got before the crowd went ape. Such carryings-on I have never seen. Foot stomping, whistling, shouting and have the best transitions I have heard at any concert this year. Who ins and which one is Loggins? I guess it really doesn't matter --they know and that's all that is important.

These guys are slick. Professionalism is refreshing.

They have all started on the best end of the down beat and let it go from there. From somewhere down deep inside of the soul that is now lying raw on the stage oozing its way into the hearts and minds of thousands, they are creating an energy so powerful it is taking me into the realms of Rock n'Roll; and from all apparent appearances it has grabbed most of the audience, too.

OUTRAGEOUS!!! A complete big band sound out of three musicians in the back. Lay that saxophone on me...Flutes?...Maracas. Get it up and dance around it..Boogie is back to stay.

From one song to the next. They have the best transitions I have heard at any concert this year. Who is running those lights? That lighting effect is bleeding their music.

chewing it up and throwing it out visually. Either they have planned it that way or someone really knows what he is doing. What a ride!

OVER?!?! WHAT DO YOU MEAN OVER?!?! WHAT DO YOU MEAN OVER?!?!?

Bring 'em back or we'll burn this mother down!!! (I think they mean that). So fine...here they come. PANDEMONIUM HAS JUST BRO-KEN OUT.

That fiddle is on fire, and so is the audience. Jumping, screaming, wanting it all again. Give them the music, give them the energy...clap, CLAP! CLAP! From the dredges of exhaustion they pulled out another number and all too soon the sound dissolved and the audience laid back and died. OUTRAGEOUS. VERY TASTY, SUPERB!

Trick or treat it's an orgy!

This Hallowe'en, beginning at 8 p.m., the Popular and Experimental Film Committee will present a Hallowe'en Film Orgy in the Snack Bar. The movies, intended to run most of the night, are all classy horror films spanning the entire history of that genre. There will be films from the silent era, including:

- The Cat and the Canary (the first real suspense film)
- The original Phantom of the Opera (Stars Lon Chaney and contains the musical score written especially for Chaney's performance)
- Frankenstein (from the 1930's - this is the original with Boris Karloff)
- Vampires will make their appearance in the Orgy with: Dracula Has Risen From the Grave and the frightening Count Yorga (frightening because it's believable For the true Science Fiction fans, there is Forbidden Planet. This was a 1950's film that was not well received at the time of its release because it was so intellectual. But this film is very relevant now and has been surpassed only by 2001: A Space Odyssey. Most people consider it to be just as fine. The Horror films of the atomic age will also be represented by Them!, a frighteningly believable film about GIANT ANTS! (?) Finally, Hitchcock makes his appearance with his modern day thriller FRENZY!

 In addition to the films, at 12:00 midnight, the Bookstore will open its doors for a 13th hour sale. Thirteen percent off everything except textbooks. The snack bar will also open up.

An earth shaped cake complete with chocolate continents and a green tinted ocean, made by the Home Economics Department, was the main attraction at the party. (Photo Dan Coughran)

Happy earthday to you

The Sigma Gamma Epsilon, a national honor and service organization made up mostly of earth science students, held a birthday party last Friday for Mother Earth. In a dedication speech fraternity representative Pat Cavanaugh explained to a group of about 75 in the BSU Nez Perce room, the story of the earth's supposed natal day. In 1654 an archbishop, reading through old manuscripts, determined that the earth was born in 4004 BC. A later Bible scholar, Dr. John Lightfoot, figured that the time was October 26, 4004 BC at 9 AM.

Dr. Wilson, faculty advisor to the Sigma Gamma Epsilon, brought the event with him from the University of Alaska, the only other school in the country to celebrate Earth Day. In addition to giving Earth parties, the Sigma Gamma Epsilon edits a bi-weekly newsletter about events in geology, makes and sells mineral identification kits to freshman mineralogy students, and offers scholarships to eligible students. Last spring, the group presented an award for Outstanding Earth Scientist to Dr. Mink of the Bureau of Mines.

Bookstore features inflation beater and check cashing service

October 31, termed by the informed as Halloween, will not be lacking for things to do on campus. Starting at 8 PM a series of Classic Horror Movies will be shown which will break from midnight to 1 AM and then continue on until 4 AM.

During the midnight to 1AM break, "Your Campus Store" will be open offering a 13 percent discount on all non text items. The employees will be in costume to assist the bargain hungry student body and an added enticement will be free candied corn. According to Mrs. Brock, "Your Campus Store" manager, the discount sale will be the first of many to help the student beat the inflation crunch. Mrs. Brock also mentioned that one of the major nuisances, the check cashing policy, is in the process of being alleviated. By the time you read this article "Your Campus Store" will be cashing checks without a minimum purchase up to $5 with proper ID. The current policy of $10 over purchase will continue to be in affect. Mrs. Brock stressed that this will be strictly temporary until the permanent check cashing facility can be constructed in the SUB lobby by the Associated Student Body which is in the not too distant future.

Atomic wastes, pro/con

There will be a public hearing concerning the possibility that Idaho might be selected as a site (one of three in the nation) for dumping atomic wastes.

Dr. Davis was appointed by the Governor to chair the Blue Ribbon Study Commission on Atomic Waste. The Commission has been studying the matter and is holding public hearings in several regions of the state. The Boise hearing will be as follows:

October 31
8:00 p.m.
SUB Ballroom

Boise State University

Dr. Davis will have copies of the preliminary draft of the Study Commission's report to the Governor at the hearing which will be available to anyone desiring one. All information which will be presented to the Commission by any citizen wishing to testify, either written or verbal, will be incorporated into a final report to the Governor. It would, of course, be helpful to the Commission to have any testimony or presentations prepared in written form. Also, all letters which have been sent to the Study Commission will be included in the final report to Governor Andrus.

All interested persons in the Treasure Valley area are invited to attend this meeting.

Jazz ensemble, meistersingers

Join in first performance

The Boise State University Jazz Ensemble and Meistersingers will combine to present an evening of entertainment as follows:

Sunday
October 27
8:15 p.m.
Music Auditorium

The Meistersingers, directed by Mr. Will Elliott will present two selections arranged by Norman Luboff, Skylark and Blue Ronda a la Turk. A special presentation of They Called Her Moses by Robert De Cormier will feature multiple vocal soloists and choir. This work is based upon the life of Harriet Tubman. The songs of her time and her people are utilized to tell the story of a journey to freedom on the Underground Railroad, which prior to the Civil War led thousands of slaves to the free states and Canada.

The Jazz Ensemble's portion of the program will include two contemporary selections...Parenthesis and Trajectory featuring trombone soloist Mike Elliott. Ded-Reckon-Ing is an original number composed by Boise's Gib Hochstrasser. Mac-Arthur Park will feature Kirt Kitchen on Fluegel horn. Two selections from the big band era are Granada as played by Stan Kenton, and Lou Ventrella's arrangement of A Train made famous by the great Duke Ellington Band.

Theatre conference discussed and explained by host

For the first time in the history of the Rocky Mountain Theatre Conference, the host institution will be Boise State University. The conference will be held this weekend, October 31, November 1 and November 2, on and around the BSU campus. The RMTTC is the official national affiliate of the American Theatre Association, the only nationwide association whose membership is composed of people from all branches of theatre production. Its membership is composed of individuals and institutions involved in such diverse activities as children's theatre, high school theatre, community theatre, college and university theatre, playwriting and others.

The Rocky Mountain region includes Idaho, Montana, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming. Delegates from all five states will be attending this week's conference. According to the conference's official host, Dr. Robert E. Ericson, Chairman of BSU Theatre Arts Department, this year's conference is expected to be a particularly outstanding one and will probably attract a record number of delegates. Dr. Ericson went on to say that he expects a minimum of 250 official delegates. He expects the conference to be a successful one and expressed particular appreciation to the Student Union personnel, the Program Board, the Arbiter, and the Associated Students of Boise State University for their invaluable and whole-hearted cooperation. "We just simply could not have done it without this involvement of the Associated Student Body and such people as Fred Norman and Lee LeBaron.

Registration to the conference is open to any interested student, faculty member or townspeople. The registration fee of $15 admits each registrant to any event scheduled as part of the conference, including the banquet Friday night at the Rodeway Inn. Considering the many workshops, distinguished speakers and dramatic presentations available, the $15, Dr. Ericson said, represents a bargain. He concluded the interview with this reporter by saying that he wished he could invite Boise State students to participate free of charge, but the bylaws of the American Theatre Association forbid it, even if there were room for such numbers.

This annual conference is an important part of theatre in the Rocky Mountain area. It's an honor for an institution to be designated as the host institution. Boise State University was selected over a number of other universities seeking this honor.

Big Sky race proves puzzling

By Tim Ritter

For what it may be worth, I don't believe what's been happening lately in the Big Sky Conference Football race. Some mighty strange goings-on, in case you hadn't noticed. Football teams that aren't supposed to win have been winning, and it's mighty upsetting, at least to those who pretend to know where the power in the conference does (or doesn't) lie. The most prime example of what I am talking about is this week's opponent of Boise State, the Wildcats of Weber State College. After an inauspicious start this year, Weber State suddenly made some waves a few weeks back by stunning highly regarded Montana State 28-10 in Ogden. Uh-oh, said future WSC opponents. Big deal, said Northern Arizona, who then proceeded to upset the Wildcats 21-20 in Flagstaff. Meanwhile, (no folks, this isn't the script for Days of our Lives or any other soap opera), Montana State was bouncing back against Big Sky cellar-dweller Idaho State. Oh boy, said Weber State after the tremulous weekend was done. You see, they had Idaho State coming up, and nobody does much worrying these days about Idaho State, right? Weber State apparently didn't. The Bengals upset the Wildcats 10-8 last Saturday, while Montana State and Northern Arizona were (finally) playing true to form against Idaho and Boise State, respectively. At last some form of sanity had returned.

However you look at it, the action so far in the Big Sky has proven that comparing any opponent to any other common opponent and drawing any sort of conclusion is rather foolhardy. As a matter of fact, these days it's getting downright dangerous.

There is an old adage in the National Football League that on any given Sunday, any team can beat any other team. Change the day to any given Saturday, the organization to the Big Sky Conference, and any team can beat any other team, as has been so apparent thus far this season. About the only thing that can be taken for granted in the Big Sky this year is death, god, and an all-out assault by the underdogs against the favorites every Saturday. BSU has to be rated the favorite in each of their remaining games, and we all know the "favorite" tag is too often the "kiss of death." The Broncos, however, have the gutsy people capable of weathering any storm, and any team that takes the field against them with visions of an upset had better be ready for the fight of their football lives. BSU does not want, nor can they afford, another loss. If you don't believe me about my last point, feel free to argue that point with Ron Davis or Ron Franklin, or any other member of the Bronco team.

Student Ski Association offers special rates

Like everything else, the price of skiing is continuing to climb. But over 150 major ski resorts across the country are now offering special rates to college and high school students who belong to the Student Ski Association. Over 100,000 students have joined the SSA in the past five years.

The discounts include half-price ski lift tickets, lessons and equipment rentals on weekdays and $1 or more discounts on weekends and holiday periods.

Last season 44,000 joined the nation's only student ski discount organization, whose membership dues are only $6 per season. Members also receive a season's subscription to The Student Skier, skis only underground publication, and Poor Howard's College Guide to Skiing, which lists the least expensive lodges close to participating ski areas and money-saving methods for skiing.

This is the first season that membership in the Student Ski Association has been open to high school and preparatory school students.

The Student Ski Association also arranges week-long and weekend ski trips to major ski resorts in the east, midwest and rocky mountains at very low costs. Members can choose from charter flights from New York or Hartford to SSA's college ski carnival in Aspen, Colorado, January 4 to 11, 1975. Hundreds of students from colleges around the country attend each carnival.

For more information or a $6 membership write: The Student Ski Association, 223 N. Pleasant St., Amherst, MA 01002 or 2438 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill., 60614.

U of I tickets sold out

All reserved seat tickets for the Boise State-University of Idaho football game November 23 are gone, according to Ron Stephensen, BSU assistant athletic director.

Stephensen said that due to the large number of season tickets sold by the Broncos and the fact that BSU gave 2,200 tickets to Idaho to sell for the game, there are not any reserved seats left.

He added that Boise State students will be able to pick up their tickets for the game, plus one guest ticket up to a maximum of 500 total being sold, beginning Monday, November 18 at 12:00 noon at the SUB and the Varsity Center.

Reserved seat tickets for the Boise State-Weber State game November 2 and the Boise State-Cal Davis game on November 9 are now on sale at the Varsity Center on the Boise State campus. The Cal Davis game will be Homecoming for the Broncos.

Broncos chop Lumberjacks ; to vie with Wildcats Saturday

The Boise State Broncos will be trying for their fourth Big Sky win against no losses when they take on the Weber State Wildcats Saturday afternoon in Bronco Stadium. Kickoff is slated for 1:30 p.m.

Weber State is the only Big Sky team to have beaten the Broncos three times while BSU has won two of the contests since 1968.

The Wildcats are 1-3 in conference action and 3-4 for the year. Their only Big Sky win so far this year was a 28-10 decision over the Montana State Bobcats. Boise State is currently in first place in the Big Sky action with a 3-0 record and is 6-1 on the year.

"I'm hoping that they will all be ready to go against Weber State on Saturday," commented head coach Tony Knap. "I'm always worried about the problem of overconfidence. Weber State is a team that wouldn't normally lose to Idaho State. The Wildcats must have been bitten by the bug of overconfidence and it can happen to anyone."

"Every one of these Big Sky games is a crucial one. Even one defeat can make us an ex-champion. We certainly don't want that to happen and we plan on working hard to maintain our standing," Knap added.

Weber State has been primarily a running team this year. They have gained 200 yards a game on the ground while passing for an average of 112.4 per game. Their top rusher is junior tailback Don Reddic, who has carried the ball 119 times for 570 yards and six touchdowns. Taking the helm at quarterback will be junior Ross Goddard, who has completed 48 of 105 passes for 730 yards and four scores. The Wildcats' top receiver is senior Gary Childress with 23 receptions for 376 yards and one touchdown.

In earlier action, the Broncos got their sixth victory of the year last Saturday as they defeated the Northern Arizona Lumberjacks 45-13 in Flagstaff.

"I was happy with the team effort in Flagstaff," Knap said. "We were able to handle an offense which had been pretty effective in ball control in the past. Our offense kept sustained drives and that is proven by the fact that we had 103 plays from scrimmage in the game compared to NAU's 65 plays," he added.

It took awhile for the Broncos to get started, since they were playing in very thin air and breathing was a bit difficult (the altitude in Flagstaff is 7,000 feet above sea level as compared to 2,820 in Boise). But once they did, they kept it up.

The Lumberjack defense shut off BSU's passing attack in the first quarter of play, and the Broncos were forced to go to the ground. That ground game paid off, too, as Boise State rolled up 207 yards rushing behind the fine performances of fullbacks Ken Johnson (12 carries for 77 yards), Dave Nicely (7-30), Ron Emry (10-27), and John Smith (5-30).

BSU went ahead early in the second quarter when Clint Sigman kicked a 37-yard field goal - the first field goal for the Broncos since Oct. 6, 1973 - but the Axers came right back and made it 6-3 on a 13 yard touchdown pass from frosh quarterback Don Troup to wide receiver Ken Riley.

Boise State finished a 78-yard drive when All-American QB candidate Jim McMillan hit Nicely on a 23-yard TD pass with 2:31 left in the half to make the score 10-6 after a PAT by Sigman was good.

BSU's passing attack wasn't completely stopped, as the Broncos tallied 290 yards from the combined efforts of McMillan and reserve Lee Huey. Defensively, middle linebacker Ron Davis led in tackles with 13, followed by right linebacker Loren Schmidt with eight and middle linebacker Rocky Patchin with seven.

Bronco fullback Ken Johnson takes a handoff from QB Jim McMillan in Saturday's contest with NAU. BSU won 45-13.

Ritter's forecasts:

After a week off to recoup from my disastrous Big Sky predictions of two weeks ago, it's full speed ahead once more. In my initial try, the record was 11-3-1, 1-2-1 in Big Sky Action. This week, some interesting games, one or two which make predicting tricky business. Maybe I need the KBOI computer. Anyway, they go like this:

Montana 21 Montana State 16
The Grizzlies are putting an undefeated conference record on the line. Montana State has the potential to turn this one around, and very well could, but this writer doesn't think so.

Boise State 38 Weber State 10
Forget head coach Tony Knap's continued praise of upcoming opponents. He and everyone who has watched the Broncos know how good they really are. If Weber State doesn't, they'll find out for sure Saturday.

Idaho State 17 Portland State 10
Predicting Idaho State to win is a rarity indeed, but against the Vikings, they should. It may be the last one this year for the Bengals (victory, that is), so they'd better make the best of the situation. The Vandals could have won their last two ball games, but they didn't, and Utah State won't give them that chance this time around.

The BSU Intramural Department is sponsoring a 3-mile Cross-Country Run to be held Saturday, November 9. The meet is open to all Boise State students, faculty, and staff. The run is for men and women. Five teams are required, at least one member of each team must be a woman. The race will start at 10:00 a.m. in the Bronco Stadium parking lot. All entries must be submitted to the intramural office by Friday, November 8.

Stern leads Colts past Ducks 44-7

The Boise State Colts opened their season in grand style Sunday afternoon, running roughshod over the University of Oregon Jayvees 44-7. The game was sponsored by the Baker, Oregon Chamber of Commerce, and was held in Baker.

The Colts broke the game open in the second quarter behind the passing of sophomore Greg Stern and the running of halfbacks Ronnie Gaines and Danm Blanc.

Stern completed 16 out of 36 passes for 319 yards and 4 touchdowns, two each to Bruce Pooley and Ray Hooft. Pooley opened the scoring by snaring a 78 yard bomb from Stern, and after Oregon had gone ahead 7-6, Pooley and Stern teamed up again for a 14 yard touchdown which put the Colts ahead to stay. Hooft was on the receiving end of Stern aerials of 14 and 30 yards for touchdowns in the second and third quarters before Gaines and Blanc turned the game into a real rout by rushing for one short touchdown apiece. The Colts had 541 yards total offense while the Oregon JV's accumulated 309.

The game was a penalty-plagued affair as a total of 270 yards was marched off against the two squads.

Alpha Eta Rho takes first

Alpha Eta Rho, BSU's aviation society took first place at a recent meet in McCall by taking 4 out of 5 events. Those events were power-on, power-off, bomb drop and pre-flight. Taking first place in the power-on was Mike Swanson, president of Alpha Eta Rho. Robert Spry took third place in the power-off event. Dave Rosecranz took first place in the bomb drop and Arlen Woodbridge took third in the same event. Brent Henmen took first in pre-flight and Dave Rosecranz took third in that event.

The winners will now go on to the national event to be held in Santa Fe in April. They will compete in a field of over 50.

Other schools placing were Treasure Valley Community College, second, and the University of Washington, third.

Ski Association announces ski trips

The Student Ski Association, famous for the half-price ski lift tickets its 44,000 members receive at 150 major ski areas nationwide, recently announced the 1974/75 winter schedule of low cost ski trips.

SSA Carnivals will be held at major ski resorts in the East, Midwest and Rocky Mountains. Lasting from two to seven days each, the carnivals include all ski lift tickets, first class lodging and, at most areas, breakfast and dinner every day. There is also a full schedule of activities such as dances to rock bands, serious and fun ski races, wine and cheese parties, discounts on ski lessons and rental equipment, swimming and sauna parties and much more.

At last January's SSA "Great Escape" weeklong carnival in Aspen, Colorado, over 700 college students from every state in the country attended. Most SSA carnivals attract several hundred college students and other young people.

This season's Aspen trip is from January 4 to 11 and January 6 - 13. Cost for lifts at four ski areas in Aspen, lodging at the Holiday Inn or equivalent and admission to all activities is only $109 plus 15 percent tax and services ($125.35 complete).

There are low tour-basing airline fares available on regularly scheduled flights from most cities to Denver on January 6 with connecting bus transportation to Aspen.

The Student Ski Association also offers charter flights from New York City and Hartford to Denver for $164 round trip with connecting charter bus from Denver to Aspen for $25 round trip. The charter price is around $100 below the regular economy air fare.

These charter flights are for SSA members and their families only:

This season's schedule of Eastern carnivals includes:
Glen Ellen, Vermont
December 20-22...$39

Mount Snow, Vermont
January 5-10 and 26-31 (1975)
Mount Washington Valley, N.H.
January 12-17 and 1924...$89
Canadian Festival De Ski
March 15-21, 22-28 and
March 29-April 4...$89

For students who want to spend their spring break soaking up the sun and powder in the Rocky Mountains, the Student Ski Association has put together a three area package at Copper Mountain/Keystone/Breckenridge, Colorado,

March 9-14 and 16-21...$99.

All college students and other young adults are invited. Come with friends or solo. SSA will supply roommates, if desired. Ski clubs are welcome. SSA will provide car pool transportation to students who need it.
