Ricin finds at Senate similar to toxin mailed to White House

WASHINGTON — A letter containing a small amount of ricin was mailed to the Senate in November but was intercepted at an off-site mail facility. FBI sources said Tuesday that hours after confirming that they had found traces of ricin in a mail-handling area near the offices of Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, a Democrat from Nevada, a package containing ricin was found Oct. 15 at a postal facility in Greenville, S.C., leading to arrests. Officials have said the letter, which federal officials disclosed Friday was sent to the offices of Republican Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, was a possible terrorist threat.

Why are textbooks pricey? Report finds it's the publishers

BY ANDRE COUBES

SAN FRANCISCO — Visit any college campus bookstore and you'll find crowded shelves loaded with paperbacks and hardcovers, some of them weighing in at 40 or more pounds.

"It's the publishers, according to a new report by the Public Interest Research Group, a nonprofit consumer advocacy organization."

"Publishers continue to charge excessive prices to students," said Kate Rube, PIRG's higher education associate. "Publishers would have us believe that students should pay more for textbooks because publishers have spent more on research and development. It's simple economics. It's very, very well." Money, however, was not the main concern of what was quickly becoming a national mystery surrounding the ricin found in Rep. Phil Frist's office, and others stressed that, as usual, the powers that be had no idea how the powers that be got there.

"We're not going to play along with this ridiculous lack of information," said Frist's chief of staff, Gainer. "It is very important that we find out how it got there."

"This is a very complex, very difficult situation," said Gainer. "We have to be very careful."

"There is no evidence that it was sent to any other senator or member of Congress," said Frist. "This is an attack."

"We don't want to speculate on this," said Gainer. "But this is a very serious situation."

"We're not going to speculate on this," said Frist. "We're not going to speculate on this."

The nominees for Best Male R&B Vocal Performance (my personal favorite) include Sam Brown, B.B. King and Ziggy Marley. The nominees for Best Female R&B Vocal Performance include Missy "Missy Elliott" and Heather Headly's Performance: Ashanti's "Rain on Me," Beyoncé's "Dangerously In Love," and Erykah Badu's "I Wish I Wasn't," along with the "velvet teddy bear" himself, John Legend. The nominees for Best Rap Album include OutKast, George Clinton and the "guess what they did to that woman." The honor for Best Female Rap/Hip-Hop Performance includes East Coast and West Coast stars, such as Lil Kim and Missy "Missy Elliott." The nominees for Best Rap/Sung Collaboration include 50 Cent and the Black-Eyed Peas, just you don't know music!

The Beatlemania that year was an oxymoron. Rock was emerging the dominant form of popular music, seems disconnected from the idea of a British rock band, with two guitars and a record at the time. Everything about them, from their floppy hair to their tight-fitting suits, seemed groundbreaking. And that George and Paul leaned into it; it was an expression. Rock was "The Beatles."

The Beatles' influence can't be measured in sales alone. Paul McCartney and John Lennon remain great pop-songwriters, but none of the Beatles' influence has been more apparent in the American pop scene. It's as if the Beatles' influence has been "groundbreaking."

The Beatles landed at Kennedy Airport, four tourists with long hair made them immediately famous," says Bill Flanagan, senior vice president of Career Center Services. "It was a record at the time. Everything about them, from their floppy hair to their tight-fitting suits, seemed groundbreaking. And that George and Paul leaned into it; it was an expression. Rock was "The Beatles."

The Beatles remain so important to the music industry, it's hard to believe this is the 40th anniversary of The Beatles first appearance on The Ed Sullivan Show, and their performance as remembered by the fab four as an event. The survival of the Beatles is surprising. Their music is enjoyed by millions around the world today. And that George and Paul leaned into it; it was an expression. Rock was "The Beatles."

The Beatles' footprint on today's musical landscape is more fragmented and diverse than ever, that may be "The Beatles again."

Women's tennis is making a name of its own

The Broncos' women's tennis team has earned yet another win with a victory over the Idaho Vandals last week. The victory improved the team's record to 6-4 overall and 3-1 in conference play. The win also followed a recent victory over the No. 16 ranked team in the nation, the University of Washington Huskies. Head coach Casey Gwynn was pleased with the team's performance and said they are looking forward to their next match against the No. 24 ranked team, the Portland State Vikings.

BSU plays host to National Indoor Tennis Championships

Boise State University will host the National Indoor Tennis Championships for the first time in its history. The tournament will bring together the nation's top collegiate tennis teams, providing an opportunity for the Broncos to showcase their skills on the national stage. The event will feature a men's singles and doubles competition, as well as a women's singles and doubles competition. The Broncos are currently preparing for the tournament, with head coach Casey Gwynn emphasizing the importance of quality competition.

Once again the Broncos will play in the top men's and women's cross-country events of the season when they compete in the NCAA Cross-Country Championships at Jackson's Track. The Broncos have a strong tradition in cross-country, having won the national championship in 2009 and placing second in 2018. Head coach Lisa Ward said the team is excited to compete against some of the nation's top teams and is confident in their ability to perform at a high level.

How much is it just one more win? For the Broncos, it's the opportunity to maintain their winning streak and keep their momentum going against the Huskies. They don't want to go in there and not win. They need to get the win in order to continue their success.

Hopes to finish off those games on Sat-Sunday - a feeling that could have been questioned had they not beaten the Broncos. The Broncos struggled from the field behind the arc, where they typically flourish like no other team in the conference. But as time expired, when the game was on the line, the Broncos showed what they could find a way to win.

There were far more 3-pointers than other teams in the conference, yet finished the game on Saturday with only two, showing a season-low percentage. The high note for the team is that even though they were bad shots, they had a little momentum on their side tonight versus Tulsa. The Broncos struggle from the field were able to get a good look at the basket, but missed a collective 25 3-pointers, which was possible but one of his worst. Jillian Robbins, who scored 19 points, grabbed seven rebounds, and added two blocks tonight, is coming off one of his best games in one week. Boise State takes sexual assault seriously

Banning public smoking

infringes upon our rights

Dear Editor,

I am a senior here at Boise State and have noticed a trend in the university in the way that they handle complaints. Allow me to restate for The Arbiter's readers that Boise State has a policy that was originally adopted in 1983 and has been reenacted in 1997. The policies are in place to ensure that Boise State takes sexual assault of any kind. The policy applies to all faculty, staff and students as well as anyone doing business on university property. The policies are available on the Boise State Web site and are outlined in the 1997 Faculty and Staff Handbook. The policies are also available in the Affirmative Action Office. In circumstances where the accused is a student, a complaint must be filed with the Affirmative Action Office by the victim. If the victim feels comfortable, the victim may provide a list of any witnesses or other documentation to the Affirmative Action Office. It is located at 1010 University Drive, Suite 101. The office has a very difficult time believing that Boise State has a responsibility to ensure the safety of its patrons and employees. The office's policies are followed, but the university cannot say they are staffed with enough people to handle every complaint.

Boise State's Sexual Assault Response Team (SART) has a Web site that provides resources and services to victims. The site is located at www.arbiteronline.com. All complaints and information be taken when warranted by the fact.

This week, some of the local media's coverage included reports of an incident that led to sexual assault charges involving members of the Boise State community. However, not all of these accounts included the implication that the university was taking this matter lightly, which is concerning. Allow me to assure you that such is not the case. While it is not up to me to determine the possibility or the accuracy of the media reports, I have no trouble restating that sexual assault and harassment are not the type of practices that should be going on in any academic or work environment. Boise State has a policy that provides for a very difficult time believing that Boise State has a responsibility to ensure the safety of its patrons and employees. The office's policies are followed, but the university cannot say they are staffed with enough people to handle every complaint.

ATTENTION STUDENTS EMPLOYED BY BOISE STATE UNIVERSITY AND CLAIMING "EXEMPT" FROM INCOME TAX WITHHOLDING

Employees who claim an exemption from income tax withholding on their W-4 need to file a new W-4 to continue to be exempt from withholding in 2004. If you claimed exempt for 2000, and want to continue to be exempt in 2004, a W-4 for 2004 (claiming exempt) is not received, taxes will be withheld at the single rate with zero withholding allowances. This will take effect with the February 27th paycheck. If you did not receive your income tax withholding allowances on your W-4 for 2003, your withholding allowances will remain the same.

W-4 Forms are available in Human Resource Services (Administration Building room 218). Should you have questions, please call Payroll Services at 426-3433 or 426-3799.

ATTENTION STUDENTS EMPLOYED BY BOISE STATE UNIVERSITY AND CLAIMING "EXEMPT" FROM INCOME TAX WITHHOLDING

Employees who claim an exemption from income tax withholding on their W-4 need to file a new W-4 to continue to be exempt from withholding in 2004. If you claimed exempt for 2000, and want to continue to be exempt in 2004, a W-4 for 2004 (claiming exempt) is not received, taxes will be withheld at the single rate with zero withholding allowances. This will take effect with the February 27th paycheck. If you did not receive your income tax withholding allowances on your W-4 for 2003, your withholding allowances will remain the same.

W-4 Forms are available in Human Resource Services (Administration Building room 218). Should you have questions, please call Payroll Services at 426-3433 or 426-3799.
