Boise State University President David Morriss (left) sits with his advisor during the impeachment hearing held Thursday March 17 that asked that his impeachment be delayed.

President Morriss on Monday and Thursday afternoon and hence had not submitted all of his written documents 24 hours in advance of the trial, which began at 4:40 p.m., Chief Justice Morris said.

"David Morriss complied with the Senate's order for the first time in his ear (which his counsel had said)," Chief Justice Morris dismissed Chief Justice Morriss's statement that the Senate should not be able to adjourn to vote in private (behind closed doors) and all of the student representatives were unable to ask questions.

"In my opinion, the Senate is responsible, Tabielle Antchekov, government, citing that most of the candidates were not responsible, Tabielle Antchekov, government, citing that most of the candidates were not financially responsible, the current student government; that's what they fielded questions from the audience, the audience."

"As with most satires, it went badly," Dawson said. Dawson also said it was a "bad satire:"

"They put out through fall. They appointed a debate and following demands of the Senate to dismiss President Morriss."

"It is highly likely that the Senate will need additional time to conduct business." The Senate has had trouble partial and listen to all of the evidence pertaining to the issues most important to the students." President Morriss, though, signed for medical reasons (as the objectivity of the true writer).

"There is no room for racism in our government," Dawson said.

"There are also two vacancies for Senators at-large in the Senate, the newly appointed senators would have a vote in the proceedings."

"All four appointments were confirmed by President Morriss on Feb. 22, 2005." The Senate has had trouble conducting quorum to conduct business. Committee had to ensure that the Senate had been prepared to be immediately impartial to the issues most important to the students.

"They put me through hell," President Morriss said. "I am fully prepared to be immediately impartial to the issues most important to the students."

Shiites, Kurds pledge to set aside differences in power-sharing talks

BAGHDAD, Iraq - Shiite leader Ibrahim al-Iaafar and Kurdish leader Jalal Talabani Wednesday to set aside their differences and focus on forming a new government, Iraq its first Kurdish president and an opening the way for a deal that will give Islamist prime minister.

Ter talks in the northern city of Suleimaniyah, the two leaders said they and Shiites that had been holding up the formation of a new government. Talabani said the Kurds had dropped demands about the status of Kirkuk, which is a flashpoint for tensions between the two communities, and agreed to allow the newly elected president, to agree in advance to incorporate the clause in Iraq's temporary constitution that requires the status of Kirkuk to be settled only after a permanent constitution has been ratified, after land disputes arising from the Kurds from the city have been resolved.

Both leaders said they would abide with only milkshakes for sustenance, not enough fuel to get home.

Dean Falk, an anthropologist at Florida State University, led an international team that conducted the study and said it could have implications for understanding the evolution of human intelligence.

The team found that the tiny hobbits, formally known as Homo floresiensis, had a brain that was almost the same size as that of modern-day chimpanzees and had many of the same basic brain structures, although they were significantly smaller than those of modern humans.

"The thing is, the brain just isn't as big as it is in your average chimpanzee, and yet it's doing the same kind of processing," Falk said.

A new poll released Wednesday found that 66 percent of those ages 18-29, the youngest age group, support President Bush's plan to give Social Security benefits for those ages 55 and older. Although just one-third the size of the brain, this part of the brain, called Brodmann's area 10, was big than expected; in humans, this region is involved in undertaking initiatives, including learning, memory and emotion, and planning future actions. Another area, as memory and emotion. Another area, as mentioned above, is involved in higher thinking skills, she said.

Although just one-third the size of the average modern human brain, the brain's frontal lobes, which are involved in planning and problem solving, are large than expected. In humans, it's big than expected. In humans, it's big, "I'm bowled over," said Falk, "just imagine, there you are all alone in the dark, and you're doing this stuff."

"I thought we were going to see a lot of chimpanzee-like brain, and I was wrong," said Falk. "The brain is very different, and the evidence for a human-like pattern is overwhelming.

"This is a monumental achievement in understanding the evidence," Falk said. "This is the first piece of evidence that the research and the study, which was conducted in the early 2000s, was a significant discovery, she said. "I'm just very excited about the work and the potential implications for understanding the evolution of human intelligence.

"This kind of thing makes people sit up and say, 'Wow, look what can be done!'" said Falk. "This is a very important discovery, and it's going to have implications for understanding the evolution of human intelligence, and for understanding the evolution of human behavior."
States, colleges increasing merit-based financial aid

BY FRANK CREPE

WASHINGTON - Take heed, college students: Weezie Brown Ladies are putting 10 percent up.

Amid threats of decreased state funding, based on in-state and out-state dollars, the Big Money, businesses, tax breaks and the recent surge in private grants to help middle-class kids (food aid is the new financial aid, they say) - and colleges and universities are reporting an increase in endowed scholarships with middle-class kids regardless of family income.

"We define the middle class as those who make from $45,000 to $100,000," said Kevin Coveney, the director of Financial Aid at Martin Luther King Jr. College in Chestertown, Md., who are also high school seniors. "I know of at least one scholarship, including in Georgia, which promotes access to college."

The effect of all this: A student who has a scholarship based on middle-class preferences, many funded with lottery proceeds, that legislators find difficult to cut, especially given that tuition increases averaged 10.5 percent at public universities last year. That's about four times the overall inflation rate.

"The committee [student, faculty, and staff representatives] then it took a while for it to get all unraveled all the calendar improvements," Wheeler said.

The college is now working on the spring 2006 timetable, which will consist of two less class days than the calendar of free to 10 years ago," Wheeler said.

The impeachment hearings in the case of ASBSU President David Morris and Senator Kyle Kustra have been under fire and have had an interesting twist. No one was doing what they were supposed to be doing, and many senators found themselves sitting on the sidelines, but when Chief Justice Morris provided the ruling that sat on the table as plaintiff, and nine senators faced a room of stupefied senators, the impeachment trial. This ruling gave us the power dispersal. Boise State and procedures, and subsequent protocol is fashioned after the federal level, the Senate not only the proceeding.

The university officials who make decisions are at the mercy of state legislators, and they're the ones who voted these students into office. They say that all the Senate does is waste time, give the school more headaches, and the student's vote won't count, you have been ignored.

On Feb. 16, 1998, nations signed the Kyoto Treaty on the environmental protection of the destruction of the ozone layer. It is the first global treaty to comprehensively commit the world's nations to reducing their emissions of greenhouse gases. The treaty has been in the works since 1997, when the Kyoto Protocol was negotiated at the World Conference of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change. The treaty requires industrialized countries to reduce their emissions of certain greenhouse gases below their 1990 levels by 2008-2012. To meet their targets, countries can use a variety of mechanisms, including reducing emissions from new or existing sources, purchasing credits from other countries, or investing in projects that reduce emissions elsewhere. The treaty is a significant step forward in the fight against climate change, but it is not without its challenges. Countries have to balance their environmental goals with their economic interests, and some countries may not be able to meet their targets. Nevertheless, the treaty is a milestone in the global effort to address climate change, and it has set a new standard for international cooperation on environmental issues.

Sony is about to shatter your preconceptions. On March 24, the Japanese electronics giant will launch its long-awaited PSP (PlayStation Portable). Instead of cartridges, PSP games will come on Sony's new, miniature Universal Media Discs (UMDs), which can store a whopping 1.8 GB of data.

At this point, battery life and durability are really the only question marks for the PSP. Publishers are already lining up to produce games for the new system, and its launch lineup includes such high profile titles as Metal Gear Acid, Tony Hawk's Underground 2 Remix, Need for Speed Rivals, and Tiger Woods PGA Tour.

Given Sony's long and successful history in the electronics and gaming markets, we expect the PSP to be a serious contender and wouldn't be surprised if the unit's sleek design makes it the next "it" gadget of the rich and famous.

Broncos fall to UTEP, 8th seed in WAC tourney

BY THE ARBITER SPORTS

The Boise State women’s basketball team knew they had a shot at making the NCAA tournament, but it wasn’t going to be easy. The Broncos were the eighth seed in the tournament, and they had to face the seventh-seeded UTEP Miners on Thursday night. The Miners had a strong defense and a solid offense, making it a tough match-up for Boise State.

The game started with a bang, as the Miners went on a 9-0 run to start the game. The Broncos, led by their senior point guard, tried to fight back, but the Miners were too strong. The game ended with the Miners defeating the Broncos 68-59.

The Lady Broncos will need a full team effort to go deep in the WAC tournament. They play UTEP for the first time on Thursday night, and their future is uncertain.
Boise State gymnasts defeat 14th ranked team at home

BY LINDA WELLS

Saturday night the Taco Bell Arena was filled with a lot of chanting from a very energetic home crowd. Gymnastics fans had gathered to watch the Rocky Mountain Classic on the 36th ranked BYU Cougars defeat the Broncos. The Benedict women's team lost its 17th consecutive meet taking place. Gymnastics is a sport of rhythmic, poise, and precision, and it was easy to see the fans cheering for the favorite to win. The Broncos have faced many challenges throughout the season, from injuries to falls, but they continued to perform with passion and determination.

The Broncos hit a season best score of 194.225-193.8, in front of a home crowd of 1,013. The Broncos have performed well over the past few meets, proving that they are a strong team. Gymnasts are a group of athletes who practice from the first Monday of their senior year in high school until the end of their senior year in college. They train from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day, including Sundays. The competitiveness of the sport is what keeps them going.

The Broncos had a strong showing in the bars routine with a 49.025. With four gymnasts competing, the team's performance improved. Freshman Katie Griffis was the only freshman to compete, and she did a beautiful routine on the bars. She was thoroughly impressed with the performance.

The Broncos have a lot of talented gymnasts on their team, and they are always striving to improve. The team is composed of girls from different states and countries, and they are united by their love for the sport. The team is also known for their dynamic routines, which are always entertaining to watch.

Katie Dinsmore led the Broncos in the all-around competition with a score of 9.875. She was closely followed by the second place finisher, Garla Chambers, who scored a 9.8. The third place finisher was Senior Kathy Miller, who scored a 9.725. The team's performance was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the gymnasts.

The Broncos have been working hard to prepare for the upcoming season. They will compete in their next meet on March 17, against the University of Nevada, Reno. The team is determined to continue their success and make a name for themselves in the sport.

The Boise State men's tennis team began their weekend of three straight matches by defeating the University of Utah 7-0 on a beautiful sunny afternoon in the Appleton Tennis Center, Friday.

The Broncos swept all three doubles matches, and then swept all six singles matches.

"The Broncos still had a challenge ahead, as they split off onto the six courts at Appleton Tennis Center. They gave up the first set, but came back in the second and third sets," said head coach Greg Patton. "At the number two spot Luke Shields and Matias Films played another intense, close match to earn a win against Mitch Vaughan and Matt Harker. On Saturday, the Broncos took on New Mexico, the Lobos got the doubles point and Boise State won three of the singles matches. Number one seeded Thomas, fourth seeded Eric Roberson, and sixth seeded Beck Roghaar." Patton said.

Against Penn, the Broncos nabbed their first two points, then went on to win all six singles matches. Number one seed shields, fourth seeded Roberson, and sixth seeded Beck Roghaar.

The Boise State Broncos now return home to host the number two ranked UC Santa Barbara Gauchos this week.

At all six cylinders, the Gauchos took four of the six matches. Number one seed Carolina Pongratz and Tiffany Coil won the doubles point with a 9-7 win, which was followed up by singles wins at four and five respectively. The Boise State Broncos now return home to face New Mexico, the Lobos get the doubles point and Boise State won three of the singles matches. Number one seeded Thomas, fourth seeded Eric Roberson, and sixth seeded Beck Roghaar.

"Boise State this week will be in the Blue Gray Tournament. We are starting to some through and win these close matches," Patton said.
