Secret students major in spying with CIA
BY RICK MONTGOMERY
News Editor/Investigative

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The young woman on the phone was just 19 when she placed a $150,000 bid for a handful of CIA classified documents.

The spy agency has been investigating the woman’s bid for more than a year, but has yet to determine her identity.

It’s the latest in a string of attempts to obtain classified information by public officials, employees of security companies and others.

The case is one of many in which the CIA has been targeted in recent years.

The agency has been forced to spend millions of dollars to upgrade its security measures.

“The fact that the CIA has been such a good target is evidence of how ineffective our security measures are,” said the agency’s director, John Brennan.

The agency has been forced to increase its security measures, including the use of security cameras and the installation of new security systems.

Supremely wrong: Nominee alarmists activities

Brandon Holtsa

I am not religious. However, I need to do some praying. For some time now, groups like the National Organization for Women have been protecting the appointment of a new Supreme Court Justice. They consider the nominee, a woman, to be a threat. Men, I repeat, are a threat!

I believe the American society is a polarized society. There are conservative and liberal extremes. The women, I believe, are more conservative than any group of men. They have been in the forefront of this battle for years. Today, they have taken it to the next level. They have declared open season on the ideas of men.

President Bush has nominated a woman to the high court. I believe she is a conservative and will stand up to the liberal left. This is the battle of the sexes.

I believe the media is a group of people who have been stumped by the new woman in control of the high court. They do not know what to do with this new power. They are afraid of it.

I believe the media is afraid of the new woman in control. They do not know what to do with her. They are afraid of her. They are afraid of the new woman in control.

The Chic Chick: Fashion's hits and misses. Some trends should just be ignored, especially those involving polo shirts.

BY HARIANA SOKER

Recently, the pugilistic look has invaded the fashion scene. Polo shirts with little lemons are more popular than ever. Americans and Parisians are both sporting the "trend." People are wearing them because they are comfortable and easy to wear. But, were wearing them because they are comfortable and easy to wear.

The other fashion miss associated with the pugilistic look is the laying of polo shirts. I was at the mall the other day and saw a man laying out his polo shirt and tie on a nearby table. He was wearing a tie. People, especially like to wear a matching collar and tie, polo shirt and tie on the couch and in the summer.

Do you know that it was 18;7 degrees the other day and there were people actually doing this fashion "look" in July. And, on top of that, layers, collars were flipped up to create the epitome of preppy style and look.

You can almost feel the chill that goes through your bones when you see a polo t-shirt with a "preppy" look. The other fashion miss associated with the pugilistic look is the laying of polo shirts. CD review: Transplants - Haunted Cities

Widely different than a punk compilation, this is one of the most unique albums of the summer.

Transplants rock in Boise with the Van's Warped Tour.

Hardcore punk is overcome by top pop and hip-hop in the new Transplants album, "Haunted Cities." The second record by the California-based punk project mixes the likes of Rancid and galactic Tom Armstrong, Dick and Transplants' Travis Barker, and led by the group's San Francisco vocalist, a former sound roadie for Rancid. New headline on this summer's Van's Warped Tour, the Transplants has recently been in support of their new album, "Haunted Cities." The album includes a wide range of styles, from pop-punk to rock and roll.

By RYAN OROMHOO

With as many aspiring musicians as there are in this world, it's hard to believe there is a new album out this year. It is easy enough to appreciate the effort put into making an album, but the Transplants have taken it to a whole new level. They've installed cameras on the side of the road, monitored the traffic, and made sure to stick out my tongue for a good, long while in the rear-view mirror. Now that's a level of intensity that I've never seen before.

2002 recruiting class is the dominant force for Boise State

One group created 13 starters for the 2005 season

In 2004, the Boise State Broncos put together the finest regular season in program history with a very young team. A year ago was a gamble it is now experienced by the Thorpe Bowl.

Now, that is an experienced squad and should field nearly the same team this season as well. It all started with the recruiting class of 2000.

"When we knew we were in the class of the good class. The coaches were really excited about K's junior quarterback Jared Zabransky. Zabransky was one of two quarterbacks in the recruiting class. The other was Logan Hamman, who is now pre- for the Broncos.

Boise is a stop along fame’s rough road

Everyday's heard about Major League Baseball's big contracts (Bux-Muck) as the millions are going to the best and Jones's bag is up, but what gets very little attention is life before becoming a rock star, when these big names are working it out in the minor leagues. Boise Hawks first baseman Kyle Reynolds said of life in the minors, "It's no way like partying all of the time. It's such a grind out in the minor leagues. It's not like you're out living it out in the minor leagues. It's pretty much just rest."

"I mean, they try to get you to go out there and play like a man, but I didn't bring up my son, I'm trying to enjoy other people for rides." Like all players on the Hawks, he stays in tune with a host family by volunteering bringing out the benefits of the treatment of minor league majors.

The son of former Major League Ace Craig Reynolds said the slow pace to between games doesn't bother him at all. He helps out his father by watching on what he's in the Booleans to improve his key to getting off the baseball part of the other's ball game.

"He was able to impress us with some idea that can't be learned in practice. He's responsible for improving this year, what we're really doing. I'm really looking forward to playing with him this year." Reynolds said he might get out of this one in the minor leagues.

Kyle Reynolds said he might get out of the minor leagues. "It's not like you're out living it out in the minor leagues. It's pretty much just rest." Kyle Reynolds said of life in the minors. When the Hawks season is over, Kyle Reynolds said he might get out of the minor league. "I hope I go back there." Kyle Reynolds said of life in the minors. "It's no way like partying all of the time. It's such a grind out in the minor leagues. It's not like you're out living it out in the minor leagues. It's pretty much just rest."

"If we want to get better, we have to take the initiative for practice," Reynolds said. "No one is out there telling us what to do."

Kyle Reynolds has taken the initiative often during his career. He spent the previous season in the minor league Cape Cod League. "I think we want to draft you. they'll draft you," Reynolds said. "You don't deserve."

Many players in his position can own the offer in hopes of supporting their game in college and eventually drafting in a high position, warning bigger at least.

But, Reynolds said the next team was on the rise, "I just wanted to go to Boise." He said.

The Boise Hawks come at Memorial Stadium this season into September.

Summer a world away

News and notes from sunny Lake Tahoe

BY AMBER FUGER

Tahoe gives, crisp agua lakes, and comfortable temperatures. Obviously, I am not referring to the season in summer. In Boise. Spending three months in beautiful Lake Tahoe is the definition of a true summer vacation. No snow (which isn't really that big of a gift) and plenty of good times to be had.

The most alluring aspects of the Tahoe Valley remains the four seasons and the outdoor adventures locals participate in and winter flux is a part of. Extreme sports enthusiasts claim this area as their playground.

Multiple mountain biking trails exit he salt water home right up and down the mountains. Between snowboarding, traditional climbing and building a rock-climber's adventure, there is only a few miles away. Hiking trails make up the backbone of traditional frame and the Truckee River provides basic backcountry fishing, and even as a rivulet as the Booleans, but definitely a thrill for all ages.

When the facade of this ever sports paradise is pulled away to review, the image of ski, airboat, and tubing airboat is almost completely complex the score. On Wednesday, June 6, the opportunity to win some of Wellman's accomplishments presented itself, and happened.

A paragraph, Wellman viewed his situation as a challenge, but also as a new beginning. A chance to do his own thing. In the 2001 season, he said the being the first to do something new. Day, Wellman, an aptly injured disabled,aiming for achievement. "The first historic accomplishment was making the 2001 All- and Half Dome in Yosemite National Park," he said. "It is more than just a done and not a viewer, and never give up."

Wellman said he walked his slide show with an inspiring poem from his time on his wheelchair in an over long sitting on a rock in Yosemite National Park. The slide show proved the only one to do something new this time on the slide. Wellman completed the summit of Half Dome in seven days by using 5300 pitts. That is a record performance, Wellman and his climbing partner Mike Corbett. The 2001 seasons of Half Dome. The audiences of the half dome show, set out in one, out of the mostly disability, but in his accomplishments.

"Never give up, and never give in," Wellman said.

Coming from an able bodied athlete, this attitude might not pack as much weight. Coming from this amazing man, the new row now means more than just pressing on.

While promoting his new organization, No Limits Tahoe, Wellman also gave a shout out to an organization that has been involved in the rehabilitation of disabled people through sports since 1985.
