Boise State to evaluate where it's going.

"Boise State is a unique organization," said Leah Barrett, director of Campus Community Relations. "As Boise State, we need to take a close look at where we're going, how we're going to get there, and what's not working. And what we have to do is to keep going forward and to be realistic about what we can do and where we have to buy two tickets."

According to the ValleyRide website, VRT will also be switching from a fixed bus route system to a flexible bus route system. The changes include looking for ways to increase ridership by 10 to 15 percent, increasing the safety and comfort of their riders and also increase the visibility of the system.

David Auburn's "Proof" Pulling off dramatic mathematics

The Chic Chick: Fashion's hits and misses

Walking in heels...may not be such a good idea

When watching a play called "Proof," it is necessary, paying attention to the title, to enter the room with the possibility that she has not only inherited her father's insanity. Literary debates make the difficult task even more difficult and more intense. Twenty years ago, said the woman in the black coat, the emotions associated with loss, love, depression, hate, frustration and disappointment with impenetrable ease and bellicosity. In the director's note, White alludes to the "universe of the mathematical state of mind." When she began, and feared the idea that "mathematical and spiritual matters are intertwined" Nothing is more compelling. "Proof" unceasingly balances handedness and passion, and the "absolutely hand in which a mathematician chooses to live."

The performance unraveled itself before my eyes, and I saw how clear-the performance was charged with the connection between spirituality and the abstract house in which a mathematician chooses to live. The acting performances, the set design, the music, and the lighting all come together to make "Proof" surprisingly believable and moving.

"Proof"

OCTOBER 3 2005 THE ARBITER 3
song's story line is that of a poet's torments on a boat with newly married lovers. The singer can't help but notice the two lovers, and he is intrigued by their love. Although the song's title, "Bullet in the Blue Sky," is a metaphor, the listener not only feels the tension, but he also becomes a part of the story. The singer’s line, "I'm gonna try my hand at penning," is a statement of his desire to express his feelings through writing. The song's setting, on a boat, adds to the romantic and mysterious atmosphere. The lyrics are filled with imagery and metaphors, creating a powerful and engaging experience for the listener."

Myth of the liberal media is alive and well

By Drew Hayes

On any God, if one must

It's almost as effective as a liberal pulling out stories they get from the latest Michael Moore talk show to prove their point.

Let me take a page from the Bush administration and do a little more positive spin on the argument conservative media make for a lib-

Note, that argument does seem a bit fishy, but here's the thing... chief, pay no attention to experts, because there is no such thing as what they are going to report on as the sand-

Wisdom of the crowds does not exist, but it is a little bit of pull but in all the end of the day

The media does depend on advertising dollars as much as a far cry from their very own. The media may be certain it is not going to rock the boat of their corporate building.

For example, ABC television is the media's best friend in the argument that's how liberal the media is. That is, it is.

Let me take a moment to explain the reasoning behind the Arbiter's decision to sit down with the former Boise State University at all.

First of all, the Arbiter's argument for allowing student money to be spent on things that would normally not be considered college expenses is a strong one. The Arbiter is right when it says the money should be spent on things related to the school and on activities that will benefit the students.

Secondly, the Arbiter's decision to sit down with the former Boise State University at all is a good one. The former Boise State University is a well-respected institution, and the Arbiter is right to want to hear from them.

Racial profiling strikes again

All the national attention directed to the hurricane disasters and the questions of race and class rising in everyone's mind, you have probably not yet heard about the racial profiling and discriminatory issues used in the Florida Keys, to say the least.

Having a genetic flaw does not make you a minority

Where are we going with this gay/lesbian recognition week? I wonder. The mixed-race society that has developed in America is largely comprised of African and Hispanic ancestry.

I feel like I was being singled out by my local school and fear someone would call the cops on me for no reason. It is most definitely racial profiling.

A: interesting at a bank last week. When I went to get it, I realized I had had that all over the back of my shirt. I was surprised and actually considered changing my major because of it. I am not thinking about the doors I don't walk through, but I am thinking of the doors that open in my life because of this. I want to be treated like everyone else. I don't want them to think I'm a weirdo.

Don't use diversity as your excuse

I have been following the articles on the latest research in the field of diversity. It seems that after a few years of trying to do more about diversity, the current trend has been to use it as a way to diversify the workforce and to make the workplace more welcoming to people from different backgrounds.

One of the most powerful groups were the Irish and Italian immigrants, who were able to work together to overcome the racial and religious discrimination they faced.

Diversity simply means difference. My opinion is different from all the others. Diversity therefore is not something we should strive for. Instead, we should be proud to be different and celebrate those differences.

I have achieved something special in being recognized as a person who has practiced such diversity. I have learned that every single person has the right to express themselves in their own way.

Looking forward, I will continue to work towards promoting diversity and acceptance in my community. I will always strive to be a positive role model for others and encourage them to do the same.

If it weren’t for the weather that was said to last longer, it may have been how the Boise State Barons scored points on a route to a come-from-behind victory at Idaho State University.

With the win, the Barons took a 1-0 lead into the third quarter and extended their win streak 12-0 on Saturday, Oct. 1.

The Barons were led by quarterback Colt Brennan, who had 416 yards and 4 touchdowns in the second half.

"Our defense played reasonably well in the first half, as there wasn’t any score," Hawkins said. "In the second half, the momentum went our way and we were able to score an offensive touchdown.

"It was a great game to be a part of, it was really good," head coach Dan Hawkins said.

Hawkins took a 20-16 lead into the fourth quarter, as the Barons were able to score an offensive touchdown.

Win Streak

The drive, needing to call a timeout to rest, what he would later call cramps. It was a war for him. This humidity kicks my butt, but I worked my ass off trying to stay hydrated all week and I felt good in the first half, and I came in the second half and I started cramping up in my calves," Zabransky said.

The next drive for Hawaii resulted in another punt. Quanton Jones returned the punt 37 yards, moving right to left and catching a line up the far side, giving BSU the lead for the first time at 21-20.

Again the Broncos defense held Hawaii to three and out, but the Broncos offense was unable to move the ball and was forced to punt the ball. BSU was able to capitalize on the punt, as Nate Buss returned the punt 47 yards to the Hawaii 22, setting up a two-point conversion.

"I saw the ball come off the kicker's foot and I just reacted, grabbed it and (ran) it in for the touchdown," Zabransky said.

The Broncos lined up on the next drive to punt the ball on the BSU 38, but Boise State punter Kyle Stringer fumbled the snap, picked up the ball and ran it out to the 13-yard line, setting the stage for the Broncos. The Broncos converted a fourth-down conversion to the first of Steinmeier's two touchdowns.

"That's living in the fire. If you want kids to get outside their comfort zone, if you want people to play with kids, sometimes that's going to happen," Hawkins said.

The see-saw battle continued as Zabransky continued to lead the Broncos on second-half drives for touchdowns.

Zabransky was just 6-for-10 passing at the half, but completed 13 of 17 passes after intermission, including three fourth-down conversions to give BSU the lead.

Normally extra points are sure deals, but not against Hawaii.

On the 45-yard attempt, senior Daryn Colledge was able to block the kick, giving BSU the 44-41 lead.

"It was just great college football. It was a blast," Colledge said.

For the second time, Colledge blocked the kick, and BSU needed that last score.

Lifehouse set to perform for Homecoming Week

BY MARIANA BEKKER
Culture Editor

Boise will be hanging by a moment Saturday when Lifehouse takes the stage in celebration of Homecoming Week at Boise State. Lifehouse is the creation of singer/songwriter/guitarist Jason Wade who started the band in 1996 with bassist Sergio Andrade. Originally called BLYSS, Lifehouse is now based in Los Angeles after trying out the music scenes in Seattle and Portland. After years of playing gigs in the L.A. area, Lifehouse signed a contract with Dreamworks and their debut album “No Name Face” hit the stores in the fall of 2000. This once obscure band that was eking by in L.A. scored a number one Billboard hit with their first single “Hanging by a Moment” after only 10 weeks of radio play. “No Name Face” became an instant success and is now a double platinum album.

“Everyone dreams of being a rock star, but I was never in that frame of mind. I was doing it for me. I think that is why my lyrics are so personal,” Wade said in a previous interview. Wade got his first guitar and began writing songs at age 12 after his parents split up. “I think with where I was at when my parents got divorced, it just started as me getting out feeling,” Wade said. “I didn’t know what I was going to do with my life until I put the band together. That is when I knew I could do something with it.”

His mother sang and played guitar with a folk pop trio in the 1970s that, according to Wade, strongly influenced his desire to be a musician. Among his influences are Pearl Jam, Nirvana, Paul Simon and The Beatles. “Most of my lyrics are inspired spiritually, but also inspired by real life,” Wade said. “I write story type songs. One of my favorite things to do is to go to Barnes & Noble and people watch. The stories aren’t literal, they tend to be more abstract, but I take a lot of my experiences I’ve had and my friends have had and mix them all up.”

According to Wade, he prefers to write alone. He says he carries the melody in his head with him until all the lyrics are written. Lifehouse’s sound has been compared to that of Matchbox Twenty and the band insists their sound is entirely original. They separate themselves from the rest, however, with Wade’s resonant vocals and a finely calibrated sense of dynamics. The bands moves fluidly from solid electric rock to more thoughtful, acoustic sounds. Lifehouse’s songs resound for listeners in either setting, a point Wade has made with numerous solo acoustic performances.

His lyrics address issues of self-discovery and spiritual seeking and other areas of exploration that have bonded Wade to his fans.

Wade views the name of the band as a metaphor for his music.

“It’s just an inviting name to people. It was really appealing to us because it was all songs about life. It really connected to where we were coming from and I think people are starting to feel that too,” Wade said.

Lifehouse will be playing at the Taco Bell Arena Saturday at 8 p.m. Ticket cost $10 for students and $15 for general seating. Floor tickets cost $25. Tickets can be purchased through Select-A-Seat.

In a separate room alumni can partake for $20.

A.J. McGillis, director of Student Programs Board, said concertgoers are more encouraged students to pick up their tickets in advance at the information desk in the SUB, “McGillis said. Also in light of the Death Cab For Cutie concert being held across the street at the BigEasy, McGillis said concertgoers are more likely to do so.

“Highstreet is a ‘must see.’ The musicians have a ball, put on a great show and their music is infectious to crowds of all ages...”-Idaho Statesman, Aug. 18, 2004.

A.J. McGillis, director of Student Programs Board, said that the gala should be plump full of good times. “We encourage students to pick up their tickets in advance at the information desk in the SUB,” McGillis said. Also in light of the Death Cab For Cutie concert being held across the street at the Big Easy, McGillis said concertgoers are more than welcome to swing in and continue dancing.

Although there is no formal dress code, the theme is 1930s and 1940s style. “The costume related attire is highly encouraged as well. Along with Highstreet blues and jazz that move and soothe, a variety of food and drink will be offered.”

Thursday night, out on the town, coupled up with a friend or lover, Boise State’s Homecoming Gala is the perfect way to take it back to a simpler time when swinging was the hip and groovy thing to do.
I'm not really sure what Homecoming is, but I know I want to be the king of it.

BY TRAVIS ESTVOLD
Culture Columnist

Hooray for Homecoming Week! Why hooray? I don't know, but let's say hooray, anyhow.

So what in the heck is homecoming? Well, as you have guessed from the name, it's Boise State's version of Christmas, much like Canada has Boxing Day. I'm kidding, of course. It's far more like Thanksgiving. Except it's our Pilgrims (the football team) tripping to our New World (Bronco Stadium), driven here by oppressive European leaders forbidding religious worship (evil teams from the SEC and Pac-10).

Next Saturday, a feast (beer-drinking) awaits, not to mention all the turkey (Portland State) we can eat.

But on a more serious note, I'm officially announcing my candidacy for Homecoming King! What's that? We don't do that here at Boise State? I don't care! If you elect me Prom King, I promise I'll shut up about being elected for anything else for a while.

So, anyway, maybe I'm looking at this whole thing from a selfish standpoint. Maybe I should start thinking about what I can do to help out this school during Homecoming rather than what the school can do to make me popular. I believe it was John F. Kennedy (or maybe it was Buster Bronco) who said, "Ask not what Boise State can do for you. Ask what you can do for Boise State!"

So, umm... Boise State... Do you... need anything? Ha! I thought not, and since I've gotten that out of the way, then you do something for me. Score me the homecoming monarchy. I promise I'll make promises until I'm blue in the face. Then we can all drink beer and laugh.

Hooray for homecoming and happy Thanksgiving, everybody!

Bars and Grills with Bronco spirit

BY AMBER FUGER
Assistant Culture Editor

Listed below are the top three sports bars in Boise. Boise Weekly readers voted and these three earned the Best of Boise awards. During Boise State Football, they give their undivided attention to Bronco fans for away games, tailgating events, and those who missed out on tickets.

First Place: The Ram. Located just down the street from Bronco Stadium, The Ram offers a wide array of Big Horn beers, brewed on the spot in their brewery.

Second Place: The Crescent 'No Lawyers' Bar and Grill. Located on Franklin near the Orchard intersection, the Crescent offers "sports viewing daily."

As a huge supporter of Bronco Football, the Crescent makes special exceptions for crazy timing in accordance with away games. For the Hawaii game, which aired at 10 p.m., the Crescent kept the kitchen open until 1 a.m. serving a limited breakfast from 9 p.m. until close.

Third Place: Busters on Broadway. Now if the poll asked best place to worship Bronco football, this bar would have received first place hands down.

This bar records every Boise State Football game. They host a huge tailgate party with two big screens on the patio and all 14 Buster girls attend BSU. During every BSU game, the girls wait tables in their matching Bronco gear.

So, if you can't make it to the game, are determined to drink through the whole game, or are just looking for a place to tailgate other than Bronco Stadium Parking Lot, check one of these spots out.

The Toilet Bowl: a BSU tradition

BY DUSTIN LAPRAY
Assistant sports editor

At this university, generally void of long-lasting traditions, one event has been a staple: the "Toilet Bowl."

The Toilet Bowl is an annual flag football tournament that has existed since the 1950s. The event this year will be on the Monday of Homecoming Week (TODAY) from around 4 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The tournament is played on the blue at Bronco stadium. The event is free and fans can watch from the stands, or try to fit onto the sidelines.

The event was initially a competition between two fraternities playing for a keg of beer. Needless to say the event has grown. More than 200 participants on 16 teams will vie for the 2005 title.

It is a single elimination tournament. Each game has two 15-minute halves, with a running clock and a five-minute halftime. The clock does stop on out-of-bound plays and incomplete passes in the final five minutes of the game. The games are officiated and the winners don’t get a keg of beer, but a long-sleeve shirt and the camaraderie of the sport.

This year’s Toilet Bowl will have a special significance as the Intercollegiate Knights (the founders of the Toilet Bowl from the 1950s) will award the 2005 champions after the competition.

The 2004 champions, Scrubs, will not be in the event this year, but the runners-up to the Scrubs, Vance’s Army, will return and is expected to be a favorite.

Landon Stroebel is the captain of The Orange Peels, which consists mostly of lacrosse players. "We definitely will come to play," Stroebel said. "We have a lot of really good athletes and a lot of girls too, because girl athletes are good too."

The event is co-ed and requires a balance of male and female players on each team.

The Orange Peels has 14 players on its roster. The tournament is an eight-on-eight game, but teams are allowed to play with six players, as long as the team is equally gendered.

Stroebel played two years ago in the Toilet Bowl, and believes it contributes to Homecoming Week.

"It’s cool to have some traditions like this," he said. "It gets everybody excited and that is a good thing for Boise State."

Stephen Kessinger, captain of the Porcelain Pirates, participated last year. His team fell to the Scrubs.

Kessinger said he was having a little trouble with keeping a full team, as players drop out due to scheduling problems, but he is still confident in his team.

"It’s a lot of fun to go out there with your friends," Kessinger said. "It’s fun for the competition. There isn’t a ton of people who come out there, but you recognize people around campus. BSU doesn’t have a lot of traditions, but this is one of the classics. It’s good to be involved in the traditions."

As far as the actual competition is concerned, Kessinger and his Pirates intend to contend for the championship.

"We expect to have a pretty tough team," he said, "It’s pretty laid back. There gets to be a little pressure, some folks getting a little hot under the collar, and some teams you end up buttin’ heads with, but usually it’s laid back."

Shelley Hopkins is a freshman on the BSU lacrosse team, but said that the majority of her team is from her all-girls floor in Chaffee Hall — that is until they found out they had to have an equal amount of boys on the team; so, they did some recruiting and found some fellas to tag along. Her Teddy Grahms consist of about 12 players.

"I think it’s going to be really fun," Hopkins, a Treasure Valley native said. "Most of us are freshmen. It’ll be a great experience, being on the Smurf Turf, playing against other students. We’re a real passionate team. We’re looking forward to kicking some butt."
