Dozens of students gathered outside as empty Idaho State Capitol Building on Monday to protest the very reason it was named. Idaho State Capitol Day. Afternoon employees were told to leave work, the Intertribal Native Council of Boise State (INS) protest organized by members of Columbus Day celebrated culture of Indigenous people.

The rally was held at the State Capitol in Boise. Employees took the day off work, the voice of expression, "said Patricia Garcia, one of about 200 protesters in attendance.

"This is the message they put in school," Garcia said. Some time has passed in school, but George Washington, founding of the country, the society is a means to Chinese. The society is a means to Chinese. This was the first INC-organized protest on a Monday afternoon past the Capitol Building last week, Sladek, one of four finalists competing for research assistantships, said it would not do anything as long as he didn't use their space.

India, Pakistan cooperate to aid survivors

KANDI, India - The men pushed each other on the road. Four villagers traded punches over a blanket. Despondency seemed to be pinching them as they walked in a tightly knotted circle in the air and chanted, "Down with the government!"

That day after a deadly 7.5-magnitude earthquake killed about 12,000 people in and near this village about a half-mile from the India-Pakistan border, many villagers were in tears. Bollywood star Hrithik Roshan’s film "Bang" played in cinemas in India.

Writer, poet Sandra Cisneros visits Boise for book discussions

BY LIZ HUERTA HALE

Cabin Literary Center, well-known Mexican American writer Sandra Cisneros was able to visit Boise for the second time in more than two years. Cisneros has several works published, including "The House on Mango Street," "Hollering Creek," "Caramelo," and "No One Cares About Mexican American Women." Her books have been translated into more than 16 languages.

The writer's visit was sponsored by Ada Community fund, supervised by the Ada Community fund, with the support of the Boise Public Library. The Idaho Statesman, sponsored by the Ada Community fund, published an article about Cisneros's visit.

"Caramelo" was published in 1994, and "The House on Mango Street" was published in 1984. Cisneros's writing is known for its lyrical style and its exploration of the Mexican American experience.

On Tuesday night, Cisneros visited Boise for the second time. She discussed her book "The House on Mango Street," which was published in 1984. The book is a memoir of Cisneros's youth in Chicago, and it explores the challenges faced by Mexican American girls growing up in a working-class neighborhood.

Cisneros is known for her use of language and for her ability to capture the essence of a place and a time. Her writing is often characterized by its poetic quality and its use of imagery.

Cisneros's visit to Boise was sponsored by the Ada Community fund, which is dedicated to supporting the arts and cultural programs in Ada County. The Ada Community fund is a private, non-profit organization that provides funding for a variety of arts and cultural programs in Ada County.

Cisneros's visit to Boise was part of a larger tour that took her to other cities as well. She has been a fixture on the literary scene for many years, and her writing has been widely praised for its depth and its ability to capture the experience of being Mexican American.

Avoiding the salad treatment'

BY HEATHER FLYNN

If you live in a vegetarian community, you probably recognize the following situation. You're out for a night on the town, you order appetizers, and then you look at the "vegan" side of the menu and find that there's only a single item. You order the "vegan" item, but when the waiter brings the dish, it's actually a non-vegan dish. You're out in a non-vegetarian world, you live in a non-vegetarian world, and yet you order a "vegan" item to satisfy your "vegan" desires. This is a common problem among vegans who travel to non-vegetarian environments. When you walk into a restaurant, you know that the food will be non-vegetarian, but you still order a "vegan" item to satisfy your "vegan" desires. This is a common problem among vegans who travel to non-vegetarian environments.

There's the fact that most people don't know what "vegan" means. The word "vegan" is used to describe someone who doesn't eat meat, but it also means that the person doesn't eat any animal products. If you're a vegan, you don't eat meat, fish, or poultry, but you may still eat eggs, dairy products, and honey. If you're vegan, you don't eat meat, but you may still eat eggs, dairy products, and honey.

However, there's more to it than that. Vegans often have different interpretations of what it means to be vegan. Some vegans believe that they can eat eggs and dairy products, while others believe that they can't. Some vegans believe that they can eat honey, while others believe that they can't. Some vegans believe that they can eat fish, while others believe that they can't. Some vegans believe that they can eat shellfish, while others believe that they can't.

The key here is to understand that there are different levels of veganism. Some vegans believe that they can eat eggs and dairy products, while others believe that they can't. Some vegans believe that they can eat fish, while others believe that they can't. Some vegans believe that they can eat shellfish, while others believe that they can't.

The Internet’s poor reputation is at an all-time high (adults’ children). Fraud theft, scammers or organizations, and victims alike that help men and women check on their process.

On a recent episode of "Dr Phil," an asymptomatic "boring" man told a producer, "This is a lot of people that would rather be in this position." The man admitted to the producer that he began cheating when sex between him and his wife diminished, meanwhile, fights between them.

Dorothy Moseman, the founder of the Ashley Madison Agency, which currently has 250,000 paying members, adds, "As long as people will sign up, we want to provide a community where people can potentially meet." The agency's website features customs with the client message, "When monogamy becomes meaningless."

The Canadian-based company began in Philadelphia in 2001. According to the Rock, Paper, Scissors Tournament website, "Our main purpose is to "take care of the community," according to the band's website. The band felt about playing benefits versus doing their usual gigs. "Using what we have been dedicated to keeping fans happy, we provide gifts for Christmas day."

Last, but certainly not least, is the benefit concert. Local band Crash Four is set to kickoff at 7 p.m. to win the Rock, Paper, Scissors Tournament. Old Chicago's first annual benefit concert, silent auction will be held to raise money for Miracle on Idaho Street. Imagine Christmas, or winter, for this month, without a warm winner to shield a child from the bitter cold. How realize that 20,812 Idaho families had members who actually went hungry from 2001-2002. According to the Idaho Food Bank and the website http://www.idahofoodbank.org this mind-numbing statistic calculated out to 5.9 percent of the area's population.

OK, you've finally got some filling and tasty food, you're free from the side salad complex, and you feel good about yourself and your choices. When is the best way to ruin your moment of triumph? With just one compound English word: soap-box. That's right. It's great that you are a vegetarian, and I know you feel strongly about it. But now is definitely not the time to climb onto some high horse and insult the choices and foods of everyone else available. In the same sense, make sure they don't insult you either. If the question pops out of your great uncle Edith's mouth, with a hint of scolding (you know the one: "Why on earth are you doing that? I've never heard of such a silly thing."), just let him know your response briefly and then let it be at that. Example: "After much consideration, I came to the personal choice that eating meat was an unhealthy habit, but let's talk about something other than my food." You're asserting your beliefs without attacking the beliefs of others. You might want to talk about it later if you want. You will not enjoy yourself if you have to spend the entire night either pitching your beliefs or defending your self against the beliefs of others. Be clear in your assertion that it is not important at this moment, because what matters is spending some time with good friends and enjoying yourself.

Now you are ready to relax and feel comfortable having someone who thinks differently about you, and your loved ones will understand. Your family is the furthest from vegetarianism that anyone can get, but they love me, and they respect my choices. When we get together, it's not about the food or the turkey, it's about sitting around the dinner table and enjoying the cozy atmosphere that always accompanies sharing a meal with the ones you love.
Letters address racially charged photos

A letter of apology

Dear Editor,

We apologize for any offense or injury caused by our actions.

Collectively, we apologize for any offense or injury caused by our actions. That offense never intended to hurt anyone in any way. This letter has been written in a general and inclusive tone to allow for everyone to feel heard and acknowledged.

Sincerely,

A letter of concern

Dear Senator,

I am writing to express my concern regarding the photos that were posted on the ASBSU Facebook page. I found these photos to be offensive and disrespectful.

I understand that humor is an important aspect of our culture, and that memes and photos can be used to express that humor. However, I believe that certain memes and photos can be seen as offensive and hurtful.

I urge you to consider the impact that these images have on the ASBSU community and the university as a whole.

Thank you,
Alyssa Harper

A letter of apology

Dear Editor,

I am writing to apologize for any offense or injury caused by any action taken by our organization. We have reviewed our policies and procedures, and we are committed to ensuring that these types of actions do not occur again.

Sincerely,
The ASBSU Senators

A letter of response

Dear Editor,

I am writing to respond to the letter you received from the ASBSU Senators. I understand that the ASBSU Senators have taken steps to address the situation and I appreciate their efforts.

I encourage all students to participate in the ASBSU Senators’ discussions and to voice their concerns and ideas.

Sincerely,
Alyssa Harper

Editor's Note

I am glad that we have students who are willing to speak out and address these issues. It is important that we continue to have open and honest conversations.

Sincerely,
Alyssa Harper

Teams traveled to Boise from across the WAC to compete in the 2006 Western Athletic Conference women's golf tournament at Crane Creek Country Club in Boise. Five schools, Boise State, Nevada, Oregon State, Utah State and Wyoming rounded out the top five with a team score of 873. Santa Marymount, Idaho, Arizona State and Idaho State followed, with the top five.

At the media's choice as the WAC's preseason Player of the Year, respectively. In the coaches' poll, Louisiana Tech, the four-time defending regular season conference champions, was picked to win the WAC by Kunneman and Naomi Hernandez, who completed both goals against Nevada in the season opener. Nevada's Hamon of the Year) and San Jose State's Alex Elam. The Wolfpack appear to be the team to beat in the conference. The Division I Wolfpack outscored the Broncos by three goals, Northern Colorado, Loyola Marymount, and Boise State completed the options. Graham DeLaet recorded his first goal from 60 yards out and scored another late to put the game out of reach. In the second round of play, the Broncos outscored the Bulldogs with a score of 211 (-5). The University of Idaho took second place in the tournament with a 211 (-5). The final round of competitive play did not have the drama that Monday featured, however the stakes did hold enough play- off spice.

Broncos need to get ‘out of the blocks’ early Saturday night

BY TREVOR HORN
Sports Editor

Slow starts may come back to haunt the Broncos. So far this season, Boise State has scored just 20 points total in the first quarter—14 of those points coming against Oregon State, which could be seen as the best start the team has had so far.

Twice the offense has been shut out in the first half. In three games there has been no offensive scoring in the first quarter, and in four of the five games the Broncos have not scored a touchdown in the first quarter.

“We want to score points in the first quarter. Our goal is to put points on the board whenever we have the ball. We started that in practice a little bit, getting our mentality to start fast and hopefully we can do that this Saturday,” quarterback Jared Zabransky said.

But can a team which returns nine starters from a 2004 team which scored a school-record 49.9 points per game struggle on offense?

“When you turn the ball over and you have penalties and you end up killing your drives, it’s tough to get it going. When you look at most of those situations, we’ve moved the ball and made some progress—but you we ended up killing ourselves by either turning it over or penalties that put you in bad situations,” head coach Dan Hawkins said.

So now what?

“One of our main goals is to get out of the blocks and score early and stop them early,” Zabransky said.

Lucky for Boise State (3-2, 1-0 WAC) is the offense’s ability to come out strong after halftime and almost reverse what happened in the first 30 minutes of games. The Broncos are averaging 19 points a game in the second half.

During the current three-game win streak, the Broncos are outscoring the opponents 72-35 after the half. Calculate that out to a full game; and that would be 48 points per game.

“I don’t know exactly what it is, but it has kind of been our forte to sit back and let them score first and come and say OK, and see what you have and counter it. We definitely don’t want to do that, we want to score points and we want to be ahead early,” Boise State quarterback Jared Zabransky said.

Another plus for Boise State in the quest to get the motor running early is Saturday’s opponent is also suffering from the snooze button syndrome. San Jose State (1-4, 0-2 WAC) has been outscored in the first quarter 28-69 this season.

“We have to come out and put it to them,” cornerback Gerald Alexander said.

This is still something the Broncos have done just once this season. Following a devastating loss to Georgia on Sept. 3, the Broncos came out strong against another BCS-conference school.

Broncos can’t forget last season’s wake-up call

BY TREVOR HORN
Sports Editor

The series between Boise State and San Jose State isn’t an old one, shoot—it’s even been one sided. But the meeting last season between the two teams was one for the ages.

One that is still engrained in the minds of Boise State players.

“I remember a lot about last season’s game. I remember how long it was. A very early game, a 5 a.m. wake-up call,” cornerback Gerald Alexander said. “I remember ever second of that game.”

San Jose State took the Broncos down to the wire. The Spartans were in the midst of a four-game win streak going into the game, and the Broncos were undefeated last Nov. 13.

The game went into overtime after Alexander blocked a Jeff Carr field goal attempt with just one minute, 44 seconds to play in the game.

It was the first overtime game for Boise State since the 1996 season. Jon Helmandollar scored the winning touchdown in the second overtime, but it was Lee Marks who led the team with 140 yards rushing and scored his first touchdown of the season to tie the game up at 49 in the first overtime.

The early start to the game gave the Broncos troubles, but the team withstood a strong showing by a Spartans team that finished the season with just two wins.

Boise State leads 5-0 in the series that began with a 30-15 Boise State win at Bronco Stadium.

The other four games have all come since Boise State entered the Western Athletic Conference. In the three games prior to last season’s game, the Broncos outscored the Spartans 59.3-9.3 from 2001-03.
Getting to Know:

Marty Tadman

In just his second season at Boise State, strong safety Marty Tadman is behind only Korey Hall in total tackles, tied for first in solo tackles and has returned an interception for a touchdown. The sophomore, who gave up a red shirt season last year to help the depleted secondary, says he is "Living for Christ," and spends a majority of his free time away from the football field at the Eagle Christian Church and the University Baptist Church.

Q: You were a two-way starter in high school and returned kicks. The interception you returned for a touchdown against Hawaii, did that remind you more of returning kicks or catching touchdown passes?
A: Catching touchdown when I intercepted it, and once I got going it was returning kicks. Like the quarterback was the kicker and I was making moves on him. So it was kind of fun. It felt good to have the ball in my hands again.

Q: You pulled out of your red shirt season last season and now you are second on the team in tackles this year. How has your progression here at Boise State been so far?
A: I'd say all the coaches have helped a lot putting me in the right positions for my strengths and my weaknesses and I think I've progressed a lot in my tackling. I'm a lot better at, but that's something I still need to improve.

Q: Has the time you've spent improving your tackling helped you with your 19 solo tackles this year?
A: Yeah. We work a lot on open-field tackling and this year I've tried to be a lot more physical, and not necessarily knock guys heads off—but throw my body in there more and make more forceful tackles.

Q: Is it true that you spend most of your off time preaching on and around campus for your religious beliefs?
A: My whole life is dedicated to preaching and then to witnessing to others on campus as well as any opportunity that I get to preach in church.

Q: How do you prepare for a game?
A: I always read the Bible and pick a couple passages out and get myself pumped up for the love opposed to when I used to get myself pumped up with anger and crazy metallic music. Now I get really in touch with God before the game and get in a real spiritual state of mind and rely that if I stay close to God, all my physical talents and mental status will fall into place.

Q: Finally, where is Marty Tadman in five years?
A: Wherever God wants him to be.
In the past two seasons, the Broncos have gone away from an aerial attack, opting to use a handful of players to become the best rushing team in the conference. Antwaun Carter (8), and Jeff Carpenter (22) are two of the four running backs Boise State uses in the rotation.

Unselfish backs are moving forward for BSU Broncos

By Trevor Horn
Sports Editor

For anyone who has ever tried to do more than what is asked of them, those people should sit down with the running backs for Boise State. For the second straight season the Broncos use a running-back-by-committee system. For a selfish person, this system would drive them nuts.

"You definitely can't be selfish. But I'm not going to lie, it sometimes gets frustrating because you want to get in there and do some things that maybe you feel you can do especially when the team is struggling on offense," senior running back Lee Marks said.

"But you can't be selfish because when your number is called, your number is called—you can't be out there feeling bad. You have to be just as amped up as if you were getting the ball 95 times in that game."

Marks is one of four running backs which rotate for Boise State this season. Whatever the team is doing with each one seems to be working, the Broncos are first in the WAC and 16th in the nation averaging 214 rushing yards per game.

"We can give the ball to different guys and still continue where someone just left off. I had an 11-yard run on Saturday and then Ian (Johnson) had a 7-yard run right after that. I mean he comes right off the bench, or wherever comes and we just leave off right where the other one did, and that's good. We all cannot be selfish and do what we are asked to do," Marks said.

The Broncos have three seniors and a freshman in the rotation at running back. Ian Johnson (the freshman) leads the teams in rushing yards (69.8 yards per game) and is fourth in the Western Athletic Conference this season. Johnson has also been the leading rusher for Boise State in every game this season.

"I think Ian is doing a good job and I think he is a good football player. There are three seniors leaving after this year and I think he's had a chance to learn and watch a little bit when he was redshirting and he's doing a good job so far this year. What can I say? The kid is good, he's the future," Marks said.

Marks is averaging 50.8 yards per game and has two touchdowns. He also has six catches for 20 yards and has returned a kickoff for a touchdown.

"Lee does a lot of things right," Johnson said.

Antwaun Carter has been the goal line specialist. He has three rushing touchdowns and the longest run of the season for the Broncos. The third senior, Jeff Carpenter, has been a workhorse. He is the best blocker of the backs and has even recovered a fumbled punt against Georgia.

"He does everything for us. He's definite-ly our best blocking back. When he gets his chance to make a play, it seems like he is always making it. He's a very good player and rarely makes mistakes," Zabransky said.

Carpenter was also on the short end of two plays when he scored against Portland State. Twice he looked as if Carpenter got the ball over the goal line on swing passes from Zabransky, but the officials called him out at the one and the 1-yard line. Boise State scored on the next plays.

"Lee does a lot of things right," Johnson said.

Carpenter also said they are all good running backs and I think it's good for the team to get them all in there and contribute as they do," Zabransky said.

And he gets to learn from some of the most unselfish players in the game.

"I'm a team player. If they told me, 'Lee won't be getting the ball anymore and you have to play defense,' you better believe I'm going to strap on my shoes and throw on that orange jersey during practice and give them my all. That's the way you have to be," Marks said.

The rest of the team, especially Zabransky loves having all of those guys ready to go.

"I enjoy having all those guys back there. They are all good running backs and I think it's good for the team to get them all in there and contribute as they do," Zabransky said.

The only thing this group is missing is a 100-yard rushing game for one player. Johnson had 85 against Oregon State, but that is the closest thing that has come close to the milestone—but that seems to be good enough to the team.

"I think it's OK to spread it around. I think that is one of our focuses is to get everyone involved," Zabransky said.

Tomey brings loaded resume to SJSU

BY DUSTIN LAPRAY
Assistant Sports Editor

San Jose State head coach Dick Tomey is in his first season at San Jose State and has led the beleaguered Spartans to a 1-1 record. SJSU is winless (0-2) this season in the Western Athletic Conference.

Tomey is in his 41st season as a head coach and has a record of 159-114-7. He was signed to a four-year deal by SJSU Athletic Director Tom Bowen in the offseason. The two had worked together in 2003 when both were working for the San Francisco 49ers.

Tomey handled the 49ers nickel packages on defense, as well as serving as a sounding board for defensive coordinator Jim Mora. Prior to returning to the sidelines with the 49ers, Tomey spent two years as a frequent contributor to Fox Sports Net and ESPN and provided color commentary on University of Hawaii football telecasts.

Tomey is No. 8 on the active list of all-time winningest coaches in the NCAA with 159 wins.

Tomey is one of three head coaches who is the winningest coach at more than one institution. Tomey is the winningest coach at both Hawaii (63 wins) and Arizona (95 wins). Only Paul "Bear" Bryant (Alabama & Kentucky) and George Welsh (Virginia & Navy) have matched the San Jose State head coach as the winningest coach at the helm for two different Division I-A teams. Tomey's 159 coaching victories is eighth among active NCAA Division I-A head coaches who have worked at the I-A level for at least five years. He is 2-0 as a head coach against Boise State.

San Jose State needed to replace Fitz Hill, who resigned after four years and a 14-33 record. The Spartans were just 2-9 this past season and did not post a winning mark under Hill. The school has not had a winning season since 1993 and has not reached a bowl game since 1990.

Tomey spent last season at the University of Texas as an assistant head coach working with the defensive ends. He hasn't been in charge of a program since he left Arizona after the 2000 season. Tomey spent 14 years in Tucson.

The 66-year-old Tomey compiled a record of 95-64-4 from 1987-2000 at Arizona, leading the school to seven bowl games. Nicknamed "Desert Swarm," the Arizona defense led the nation in scoring defense in 1993, allowing only 8.9 points per game and finished second in total defense. The impressive display was repeated in 1993 when the Wildcats led the nation in rushing defense while allowing a conference-record low of 30.1 yards a game.

"He has tremendous credibility and tremendous knowledge," Hawkins said. "Obviously, he was at Texas and they know what's going on...when you look at a guy's resume, look at where he's been and what he's done and his experience level, there's probably not a coach in the league that can match it."

The Wildcats also had the second-most wins of any Pac-10 team during the 1990s. His 60 conference victories place him eighth on the all-time list among Pac-10 coaches. Arizona recorded its only Top 10 finishes in school history under Tomey (1993 and '96), culminating in a final ranking of No. 4 in the nation following a 12-1 season in 1998. He led the 1993 Wildcat squad to a 10-2 record and a No. 10-final ranking. His 1994 squad (8-4) finished the year ranked 20th nationally and his 1989 unit (8-4) earned a No. 25-final ranking. He led the Wildcats to four bowl victories in seven games, including a 28-0-shutout over then-No. 10 Miami in the 1994 Fiesta Bowl and a 23-20 win over then-14th-ranked Nebraska in the 1998 Holiday Bowl.

Tomey coached 49 All-Americans at Arizona, as well as 43 first-team All-Pac-10 selections. He was named Pac-10 Coach of the Year in 1992. He helped direct a defensive unit that set new standards in the Pac-10, as well as the nation.

Tomey earned Western Athletic Conference Coach of the Year honors in 1981.

Before taking over in Tucson, Tomey led Hawaii to a mark of 63-46-3 in 19 years.

Tomey began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under Bo Schiebemach-eller at Miami (Ohio) in 1962 and spent two seasons there. He served as an assistant at Northern Illinois in 1964 before joining the staff at Davidson from 1965-66. Tomey left Davidson prior to the 1967 season and spent the next four years as an assistant coach under Pepper Rodgers at Kansas (1967-70). He went with Rodgers to UCLA and was a member of the Bruins staff, where he coached under current 49ers general manager Terry Donahue (1976) and Kansas City Chiefs head coach Dick Vermeil (1974-75), for six years. Tomey was part of a Bruins staff that led UCLA to a 9-2-1 record and No. 5-final ranking in 1975. UCLA capped off that year with a 23-10 victory over the Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

A native of Bloomington, Ind., Tomey attended Michigan State (Ind.) High before enrolling at DePauw University, where he played football and baseball. He was inducted into the DePauw University Hall of Fame in 1994. Tomey was awarded the Provost Award in 1999 as Arizona's Outstanding Coach — the only coach in history to be so honored by the faculty.

Tomey and his wife, Nanci, a contemporary fiction author, were married in 1997 and have four children: a son, Rich, and three daughters, Angie, Ali and Leigh — along with one stepson, Sonny.

The San Jose State Spartans visit Bronco Stadium Saturday and look to surprise the Broncos, but surprises have been a rarity on the Spartan front.

SJSU (1-4, 0-2 WAC) has lost four consecutive games after opening the season against Eastern Washington. San Jose State has not held a lead in a game since the first quarter of the Illinois game Sept. 10. The Spartans tied the score in the first quarter of the San Diego State game Sept. 24 and twice in the second half of the Oct. 1 game against Nevada.

The Broncos (3-2, 1-0 WAC) got a scare at San Jose State last season. The Broncos beat the Spartans 56-49 in double overtime. BSU leads the all-time series 5-0 and has outscored SJSU at Bronco Stadium by an average of 62.5-10.

The Spartans have lost three in row games. The Broncos have won three games in a row and are playing for their fourth consecutive WAC title.

The Spartans’ losing record is due mostly to poor starts. The Spartans have been outscored 69-28 in the first quarter this season and have a poor third-down conversion percentage of 19 percent (15-79).

“Making more on first and second downs will make doing better on third downs possible,” Spartan head coach Dick Tomey said. “It’s related to your physicality and your backs. You’re just trying to move the chains to keep the game going. The game is doing whatever you’re going to do, having your opponent know what you’re going to do, and doing it anyway.”

The Spartans have an even turnover ratio, whereas the Broncos are 1-6 in the nation with a (2-2) ratio.

SJSU sophomore quarterback Adam Tafralis has had mixed results this season, going 71-of-148 for 972 yards, with five interceptions and five touchdowns. Tafralis has run for three scores and has more than 100 yards rushing this season.

“He’s a fighter,” Tomey said. “We’ve had protection issues at times, but he’s a warrior and he’s a tough guy. He’s learning the position and it’s not an easy one to learn.”

Tafralis’ most productive game of the 2005 season came in the season opener against Eastern Washington when he accounted for four of the team’s five touchdowns on runs of eight and three yards and a pair of 20-yard scoring passes. The redshirt sophomore posted his major college single-game bests, completing 21-of-34 attempts for 290 yards and was credited with 344 yards of total offense.

Tafralis relishes the pleasure of the presence of Rufus Skillern out in his patterns. Skillern’s 20 receptions for 332 yards and three touchdowns leads the Spartans. Skillern caught 10 passes for 167 yards and a touchdown last year against Boise State. He has four 100-yard receiving games in his career, two coming this season.

“We’re blessed to have him as a part of our team,” Tomey said. “He’s a great leader and he’s highly intelligent. He’s a performer and he’s highly dependable. He’s a great practice player and he’s a great example for our younger players. Everybody we play knows he’s a threat.”

SJSU doesn’t have much of a running game, averaging 108 yards per game and led by Yonus Davis’ 11 carries for 109 yards and a score through five games.

“The quarterback is a product of what he has around him,” Tomey said. “The less effective the running game is, the tougher it is on the quarterback. With our running backs, we’re just waiting for somebody to bust out and on the road.

Just six plays and a 34-yard touchdown pass from Zabranksy to Drisan James is all the Broncos needed to get an early lead. Following a three-and-out drive by Oregon State, the Broncos scored on the next drive. But the rest of the first quarters this season have come nowhere close to the results of that game. Hawkins says the team has changed from one that is an underdog to one that believes it should be winning these games, "I think what has happened with our club is we went from being a team that maybe felt disrespected and shouted." Hawkins also says it has nothing to do with pregame speeches or halftime locker room rallies that have given the Broncos that kick going into the second half.

"It's about your adjustments you are making about at halftime, and that pregame is being out there and being ready and get going and not wait for a guy to see what he's got," Hawkins said.

Senior running back Lee Marks also attributes the slow starts to the fact that Boise State is no longer the underdog team, instead it is a team with a target on its backs. Especially with home and conference win streaks both at 27 games right now.

"We have a big target on our backs. Everyone that has been playing us has their A game. We are undefeated at home," Marks said. "We are not just some team that tries to sneak up on some people. We are a team that is definitely known in the national spotlight and people can't take us lightly. They are coming to beat us."

The players are also aware that this is a talented team that still has enough to put it all together soon. "Luckily our guys have had enough heart to stick through games and battle back," Zabransky said.

Zabransky himself has shown his ability to step up when the team is down in the second half. In the last two games he has completed 72.4 percent of his passes in the second half for 222 yards and three touchdowns and just one interception. But compare that to his 54.5 percentage and no touchdowns in the first halves of the two games—he knows there is a need for a change and is confident that until the team finds a way to get going early, the offense can battle back.

"We are a strong team in the second half so far, so that's been one of our strong points. We know we have the ability to come back from games. We don't exactly want to be in that situation, but if we are we know we aren't going to panic," Zabransky said.

"Football is a funny game and it doesn't always work out the way you planned it."

say 'I want this job' and just pull away." The Spartan defense puts a lot of pressure on the quarterback, compiling 18 sacks this year, with nine different players with at least .5 sacks. Ezekiel Staples leads the team in tackles with 51. Eric Wilson has 46 tackles, 3 sacks, 5 tackles for a loss and Jarron Gilbert has 3 sacks and 5 tfls.

"They are very athletic, (Tomey) has got these guys playing very hard," BSU head coach Dan Hawkins said. "They make a lot of plays. They do things on both sides of the ball that give you problems. I think their whole mentality is way different than what it was before. They'll be a very dangerous club when they come in here."

The game should be a breakout for BSU quarterback Jared Zabranksky, who threw for two more interceptions last week and has been looking for some sunshine.

The Spartans are 103rd in the nation in pass defense, giving up 270 yards per game and a 64.4 completion percentage. The rush defense is a bit more stingy, giving up about 154 yards per game. The Broncos lead the WAC with 214 rushing yards per game.

San Jose senior cornerback Trestin George has scored touchdowns five different ways in his career at San Jose State: rush, pass receiving, interception return, punt return, and kickoff return, which includes a 99-yard kickoff return for a score this season against Nevada.

"To be successful against Boise State," Tomey said. "You've got to take it to them and it's got to be a 60-minute fight. You've got to sustain that fight because they're so well-drilled that they make plays. You've got to wait until the clock says 00:00. Our guys know that they can do it and they've got to go do it."
